PREVENTS OR CURES

An experiment was conducted at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in 1923 to determine the effect of various vitamine rich feeds in the feeding of chicks. Fourteen pens of 40 chicks each were used. These chicks were housed in a pine brooder house on a cement floor with planer shavings for litter. Pen 1 was the control pen and was fed a basal ration which consisted of standard scratch and mash composed of shorts, middlings, cornmeal and oat flour equal parts and one-half part meat meal. Grit, greens and both milk and water were supplied.

The other 13 pens were all fed this same ration plus one or more feeds, which are recognized as being rich in vitamines. The additional feeds used were wheat germ, rice polish, Larro yeast (a dead yeast prepared for feeding purposes) Fleischmann's yeast (a living yeast) tomato pulp, cod liver oil, and raw liver.

At the end of the experiment, which lasted three weeks, pen 4, the lot on Larro yeast, showed no deaths, while pens 7 and 11, the lots on cod liver oil and cod liver oil and Larro yeast, showed but one each, whereas, some of the other pens showed considerably more, the highest being pen 14 on cod liver oil and rice polish, which showed 8 deaths.

An outstanding feature of the experiment was the effect of the cod liver oil on leg weakness. In every pen in which cod liver oil was used, there were no signs of leg weakness, whereas, in every pen, without exception, where cod liver oil was not used, there were chicks either off their legs or showing preliminary signs of leg weakness.

Further—at the end of the experiment, 15 chicks which were completely off their legs, were selected from the various lots, put into a pen, and fed a cod liver oil ration. One of these chicks was in such bad condition as to be almost unable to move, and had every appearance of being about to die.

In three days most of the chicks showed marked signs of improvement, by the fifty day they all appeared much better, by the eleventh day they were all back to normal, except the one previously mentioned chick, and by the fourteenth day this last chick was able to run around normally. The birds were then put on a standard ration and kept under observation for another three months, during which time there was no recurrence of leg weakness and they developed quite normally.

As these results are but a confirmation of previous work at this Farm, the conclusion is that leg weakness may be prevented or cured in growing chicks, by the use of cod liver oil.

CROP CONDITIONS CONTINUE GOOD THROUGH WEST

Conditions Are Practically Ideal Over Wide Areas.

CUTWORMS BUSY.

Present at Many Point, But Abundant Rain Has Checked Damage.

WINNIPEG.—Crop conditions in the Canadian West continue very favorable. The latest Manitoba press report brought returns from 327 points out of 347 queried and these replies were sufficiently widely scattered to give a good idea of conditions as a whole and indicated that crop prospects were generally "good" to "excellent" and actually "ideal" over very considerable areas.

With plenty of time for such damage to have made itself manifest it was shown that there was very slight damage from the late May frosts. A few isolated cases had found it necessary to reseed.

The only real drawback in the generally healthy condition and growth was the presence of cutworms at a very large number of points. The heavy rains have in many cases checked the ravages of these pests but they have done a lot of harm in patches and there will be some reductions of acreage on that account. From the 214 points reporting the presence of cutworms the general statement was that the damage was slight but a few reported losses from 10 to 15 per cent. The damage on the whole seems to have been more on coarse grains than on wheat.

There is abundant moisture all over the west only a few points in Alberta wanting any more and quite a number of points in South Eastern Manitoba and a few in Saskatchewan have had too much rain and there will be some losses from flooding but nothing that will materially affect the crop as a whole.

The reports indicate that there will be a substantial decrease in the flax acreage this season probably due to the high cost of seed. There is a very marked increase in the planting of sweet clover and corn and while many of the acreages are quite small it is worthy of note that 214 points in the three provinces report the seeding of sweet clover and 172 the seeding of corn.

Taken as a whole there has not been so satisfactory a mid-June report for many years and the weather continues very favorable and growth is rapid.

Farm Reports

ONTARIO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The excellent rains of Saturday have changed the agricultural situation in central and southwestern Ontario where the drouth had become severe. All crops have been helped but the moisture came too late to produce large yields of such as strawberries and clover.

Alfalfa as hay and sweet clover as pasture have proven their superiority under adverse conditions. Through the dry area they have outclassed other forage crops and satisfactory yields of alfalfa are now being harvested in the southern part of the Province, where the general hay crop is scarcely high enough to cut. Farmers having sweet clover have seen their cattle enjoying plenty while other pastures have been practically barren. In Northern and Eastern Ontario there has been phenomenal growth during the past two weeks owing to an abundance of moisture and heat. Practically all crops in the Eastern Counties are very promising and a particularly heavy hay crop is expected.

Brant.—Fall wheat is reduced to half a crop while hay will not be a 50% crop. Orchards—Spys particularly which were setting during the hot week are setting very light. Other varieties seem to have set well. Small fruits—early strawberries were frozen and the late ones are suffering from the dry weather. Raspberries look well yet. Plums and cherries indicate a fair crop with pears a little lighter. This district is experiencing one of the worst droughts in its history. Hay and wheat for this time of year are less promising than they have been for years. On the higher ground especially the hay is ripening and but a few inches high while on more favorable soils it will be light.

Dundas.—The past ten days have seen an almost phenomenal growth in all crops—spring grain and corn never looked better than at the present moment—the hay crop is good with clovers excellent. A rising cheese market is particularly pleasing to producers at this time of year, as the usual custom is for cheese to decline sharply with the June flow of milk.

Kenora.—For the past week or ten days there has been rain practically every day with the result that all vegetation has had a very rapid growth. For the most part the weather has been warm but on Tuesday night there were slight frosts. But this was not general or severe enough to do much damage. This has been a very hard spring on bees, owing to our cold earlier in the season followed by the present wet spell.

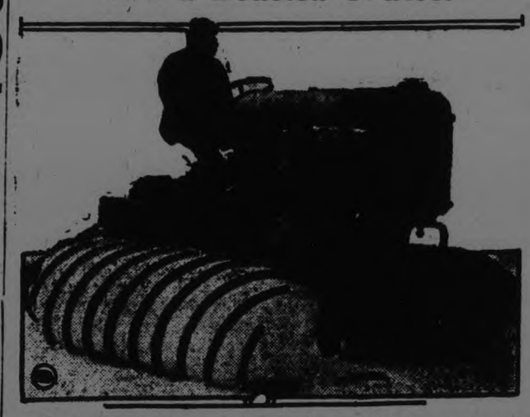
Frontenac.—With improvement in the quality of pasture an increase in milk yields is noted. There has also been an advance in the price of cheese. Local Board quotations were 19-7-16 for colored cheese with the bidding most keen.

Lampton.—Fall wheat is all headed out. Rain is badly needed. The drought has whipped the barley crop. For the past two years barley has proved a good crop. The acreage planted this season is much larger than for a few years' previous. Barley is heading out and only about eight inches high. The oat crop looks well. They are a good deep color, a fair length and thick on the ground. A good rain will give us a good oat crop. Alfalfa cutting is general all over the county. The stand is thick and a fair length. Crop will run one to two tons to the acre. Red clover which promised so well in the spring did not get the growth although it is very thick on the ground.

Peel.—Strawberries very small and light crop the result of drought. Cut worms reported active by a number of gardeners.

Elgin.—Fall wheat is headed out and very short, smut is showing up quite badly, red clover and hay is very short for this time of year. Alfalfa is a very good crop, as is also sweet clover. These crops are being cut now. All fruit promise a fair crop, excepting strawberries, which are light, a few are coming to market.

It's a Bodsled Tractor



Here's how to change a tractor into a bobsled in a few minutes. The circular pontoons with the spiral runners revolve and the tractor crawls over the deepest snows. The new device, which has interested William Ford, brother of Henry Ford, has pulled heavy loads of logs over the deepest snows.

SHIPPING LOSS RAISING RATES

Freight Rates on Live Stock Include Allowance For Loss in Transit.

IS PREVENTABLE.

COLUMBUS, O., June 22.—Producers, feeders and shippers in Ohio have organized the Livestock Loss Prevention Association to save some of the millions lost on livestock in transit.

By this saving they expect to reduce the freight rates on livestock, and thus bring more profit to themselves.

The payments of railroad companies for livestock losses are considered in fixing freight rates and charges.

Yet at least 50 per cent of all livestock losses in transit are preventable, say officials of the new organization. More than a fourth of the losses in 1923 were traced to the responsibility of the producers, feeders and shippers. These were attributed to preventable diseases, congestion of the lungs, improper feeding and care, use of prod poles, and insufficient exercise during heavy feeding.

Losses under control of the railroads were attributed to defective equipment, rough handling, wrecks, fire and loss on water.

DIPPING SHEEP IS ESSENTIAL

Spring Dipping Pays Well for Time and Money Expended on Job.

A GOOD FORMULA

While the dipping of sheep in the spring is perhaps not quite so important as dipping in the fall, just before confining the flock to winter quarters, yet there is no doubt that spring dippings pay well for the time and money expended. As soon as the sheep are shorn the ticks find themselves without sufficient protection, so they immediately migrate to the young lambs. Lambs so infested cannot possibly make the gains which they could make if they were free from the parasites. To clean up the flock for the summer it is necessary to dip twice, the dippings about two weeks apart.

There are a number of commercial sheep dips on the market which are entirely satisfactory and which are not expensive when it is considered that they require nothing more than dilution with water to prepare them for actual use. When time is at a premium, as it is during the spring months, it probably pays to use one of the commercial preparations, but should it be impossible to procure one of these, a simple home-made dip may be made according to the following formula:

Mix thoroughly in an old dash churn or other suitable container two gallons of coal oil and one gallon of milk. When thoroughly mixed and eight gallons of soft water to each gallon of this concentrated emulsion.

If milk is not plentiful enough to be used laundry soap may be substituted. Dissolve one-half pound of laundry soap in hot water and, while still hot, add two gallons of coal oil, and churn well. Dilute by adding eight gallons of soft water to one gallon of the concentrated emulsion.

This formula is advocated by the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

ECONOMY IN FOOD PRODUCTION.

The dairy cow is the most economical animal for the conversion of farm products into human food, swine are the most efficient animals in the production of meat food products from raw material, and the hen converts the feed that she consumes into finished products most rapidly of all animals.

USING HOGS TO HARVEST GRAIN

Many Farmers Turn Animals Into Rye Fields and Make Money.

GOOD FOR LAND.

The idea of turning livestock into harvesters is both labor-saving and profit-making. Furthermore, most of the fertility stored in the crops is returned to the land, thus rendering the plan a land-building one. The custom is growing in extent and practice each year.

By this plan the rye crop is grazed for a time in the spring. The hogs are benefited by this green food and the tramping helps to cover clover seed, which is generally seeded in the rye. The hogs are kept on the rye and later also graze on the clover that soon springs up. When the rye approaches maturity the shoates are removed for a period of two or three weeks to let the beards of the rye lose their sharpness and the rye grains soften and improve in palatability. The custom is to stock the rye with about six 100-pound shotes to the acre, the grain in an average field lasting for a period of about six weeks. This method of harvesting rye turns the crop into meat quickly, saves labor, maintains fertility and provides an excellent link in a strong chain system of crop rotation. Barley, clover and rye pasture are a splendid trinity of good farming and pretty certain profits.

BUSY SEASON OF CAVAN FARMERS

Road Work, Hoeing and Alfalfa All Demand Attention at Once.

HAY SOON READY.

CAVAN, June 22.—This is a busy time for farmers of this vicinity.

Road work is on in several beats; the hoeing and alfalfa are demanding attention, while clover hay will soon be ready to cut.

The showers are helping the hoe crops as well as the grain, and the weeds are doing even better, so that there is plenty of work.

Mr. Harry Lang, Eighth Line, cut alfalfa this week. It is an extra good crop, being quite tall.

Fall wheat is partly headed out. This is early for wheat to be so well advanced.

STRAWBERRIES ARE ON LOCAL MARKETS

Price Dropped 5 Cents a Box Inside Twenty-four Hours.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 22. — Strawberries grown in town and district are now on the market and are selling at 15 cents a box. The opening price two days ago was 20 cents but so large a quantity was brought in that this figure was reduced inside of 24 hours.

The recent rains and warm weather have revived the life of an abundant crop of berries and it is noted that the opening price for the home grown variety is about five cents lower than that of a year ago.

It is reported here that growers of strawberries in the vicinity of Picton have contracted with the canning factories to dispose of their year's output at 9 cents a quart, which figure is taken as an indication that their prospect of a good yield in that section of the province.

RISING PRICES OF FARM PRODUCE IS BASIS OF TRADE

No Other Factor Effecting Canadian Business More Important.

FREER SPENDING.

More Money on Farms Means Great Improvement in Commerce.

It is now a year since the beginning of the wheat market rise and the price adjustment which has made possible a large degree of recovery in agriculture throughout Canada. No other factor affecting Canadian business is of greater importance. Doubtless the effect has still to be passed on more completely to retail business, and hence to industry, but the progress of the year has been great. That it will continue is indicated by current grain reports, and livestock market conditions. The mid-June crop report of the Manitoba Free Press is the best in many years, crop conditions being reported as "ideal" over considerable areas. One retrograde influence in business progress is the deplorable strike situation in the mining areas of Cape Breton.

Just a year ago the farm products index number, as compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, stood at 129.4. There was a steady upward movement until at present the index registers approximately 180 despite the fall of grain prices from the peak. At the same time the general wholesale price index rose from 152.2 to only 159.1, for May, which is the latest figure available. As a consequence of this, the total farm revenue for 1924, as just reported, was $103,272,000 greater than for the year previous, an increase of 8 per cent., and this despite the drastic quantity reduction. Contrary to a popular misconception the improvement was not confined to the West but was well distributed. In fact, Ontario and Quebec alone were responsible for almost half of the increase. Ontario's farm revenue was more than $40,000,000 in excess of that of the previous year. That of Manitoba was approximately double the 1923 revenue.

The result of all this is a tremendous improvement in the general situation. Peculiarly, retail business has not benefited as much as would have been expected, especially in the West. This seems to be the result of a reaction from the over-expansion and over-extension of credit which was characteristic of the post-war period. There seems to be a desire to build up a bank surplus rather than to make new commitments, as shown from the large volume of bank deposits. But obligations have been settled and are being settled in a very admirable way, and debts of all kinds, both private and public, are being liquidated. It is significant that there have been no permanent municipal defaults in Western Canada during the past year, although they are outstanding defaults from previous years aggregating more than $12,000,000.

Present Crop Outlook.

The crop outlook in the East as well as in the West is very satisfactory. Over large areas in the West conditions are said to be ideal, and apparently loss from drouth and from cutworms is confined to a very limited acreage. Recent general rains throughout the greater part of the central provinces have been worth millions to the country, as the drouth in certain sections was becoming acute.

With a larger acreage sown to crops, the grain making very favorable progress and the prospect of a smaller yield in the United States as predicted in the recent crop review published by the United States Government, the outlook for the Canadian farmer could not easily be improved upon. Last year it was said that another such successful year was necessary to bring the country back to a state of business health. Indications that this is in store are excellent at the present time. A somewhat longer period of reasonably high farm prices will inevitably result in a larger volume of buying and a better situation for industry all round. This is gradually taking place. Some lines of industry are already feeling the effect of greater buying power. Certain of the larger textile plants report demand to be very great. Farm implement industries have large orders ahead, and a gradual improvement in general is taking place.

While the recent developments in the mining area of Nova Scotia have paralysed business in a large part of the province, they may have the desired effect of shortening the conflict. The government will undoubtedly use strong persuasion for a settlement rather than leaving the troops in the area for an extended period. The company maintains that, in view of market conditions and prices, it is impossible to operate at the wage basis which the men demand, and the men still refuse to consider the former basis. Should a settlement be forced, the air will undoubtedly have been cleared for some time, since the present impasse is one of the most costly to all concerned.

LEARNING TO MILK.

A farmer had just hired a new hand. The farmer asked him if he could milk, to which the laborer replied that he could not.

"Well," said the farmer, "come out to the barn and I will show you how to milk the old cow."

"Please, sir," came the laborer's quick reply, "being as I'm only a new hand on the job, wouldn't it be better to learn on a calf?"

A slight decrease in wheat acreage is reported for 21 countries by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The total to date is 127,046,000 acres, against 129,075,000 for the same countries last year

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful Flapper marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . . but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford to pay her wages. Gloria has swamped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an actor. She lends him money, and finally, when he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. He spurns her, telling her he has just married a Russian actress. Then Gloria tries to land a job as a chorus girl and fails. Discouraged, she comes home to Dick.

He takes her back, but not as his wife. One night Gloria leaves him to work late at the office with SUSAN BRIGGS, his secretary. While Gloria is at home alone, the house is robbed. Dick doesn't get home until almost morning. Gloria wonders if he was with Miss Briggs all that time. But next morning she learns that he was at the house of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, who had killed himself because of the love affair that existed between his wife MAY and JIM CARWE.

Gloria goes to Dick's office to tell him about the robbery, and to make one last attempt to win him again.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

Dick looked at the date line of the paper he was reading.

"This is the tenth of June," he said. "Seven months ago today you and I were married. We were pretty good friends, then, weren't we?"

Gloria nodded. What was Dick driving at?

"And tonight we haven't a word to say to each other," he went on. "We're miles apart . . . We're strangers."

In her mind Gloria furiously debated that. She denied it . . . ridiculed it. She had plenty to say to Dick. . . . But she didn't know how to say it.

"No," she began. "We know each other too well . . . that's what's the matter with us. You know about me and Stan Wayburn. And I know you're in love with Miss Briggs. . . ."

She waited for him to say that he was not in love with Susan Briggs. But he buried himself again in his newspaper.

In silence they drank their coffee.

In silence they drove home.

And in a silence that shrieked almost, they settled down in the living room to wait for bedtime to come.

. . . Somewhere in the neighborhood a radio set sent forth a silver soprano through the still night air.

"Somebody loves me,
I wonder who . . ."

Unable to sit there facing Dick while the song went on, Gloria got up and went out doors. In the backyard the wind stirred the leaves of the poplar trees along the fence. Behind them was a theatrical white moon.

"Somebody loves me . . .
I wish I knew . . .
Maybe it's you."

The song died away wistfully in the air. But it had confused her . . . saddened her. Love! That was all there was that counted. When you had lost that, you might just as well be dead . . .

The whole world was Love's footstool.

It was a background for love. Without it there need have been no heartbreaking music, no whitemoons, no beauty at all . . . anywhere.

. . Gloria did not look at Dick as she went into the house and up the stairs where her room waited for her . . . her lonely room.

The next morning Gloria went to see Mothe Gregory.

Her mother-in-law was just leaving to go downtown on a shopping trip. In her black straw helmet topped with three plums she looked like the pictures of the Black Prince. . . . And what a warrior she was, though Gloria!

"I won't keep you a minute, Mother Gregory," Gloria said to her as they walked out toward the sidewalk. "I just want you to let me have Maggie for a week or so, to teach me to cook. Will you?"

Mother Gregory shrugged her shoulders. "If she'll go," she answred. "But I don't believe she will. Let's run in and ask her."

They turned back to the house. Maggie was on her knees scrubbing the kitchen floor. She sat back on her heels, as the two women entered.

"Maggie," Mother Gregory began timidly, for Maggie was the only human being in the world of whom she was afraid. "I wonder if you'll go over to Mr. Dick's house again for a few days. Mrs. Gregory wants you to teach her to cook. . . . ."

Maggie scowled. "Indeed I will not!" she announced flatly. "I went there once to teach her, and she wouldn't learn . . . Wouldn't even try to learn. She's had her chance. And depend upon it, ma'am, she doesn't want to learn to cook now. All she wants is someone to do her dirty work for her. . . ."

Mother Gregory held up one of her large, gloved hands to stop the flow of Maggie's words as they came ickth and fast.

"That will do," she said sternly. Then she turned to Gloria.

"I'll teach you to cook, my dear," she offered generously. "We'll start today if you like. Just wait until I run upstairs for a housedress. . . ."

"But your shopping trip," Gloria reminded her.

"It can wait," Dick's mother answered easily, as she rustled upstairs.

Gloria wondered afterward why Mrs. Gregory had bothered to bring a housedress along with her. Certainly she didn't need it, for she didn't lift her hand to do a bit of work all day.

"We'll go to market first of all," she said to Gloria.

"But I always telephone the grocer," the girl objected

Mother Gregory's lips tightened. "That's no reason why you should keep on doing it," she said firmly. "The only way to get fresh food is to go to the stores, yourself and look around. To telephone is a lazy woman's way."

She showed Gloria how to pick out a young chicken, and how to test the tenderness of the spinach.

She was kind and talkative, as they rolled homeward in her car. But when she stood in the hall of the house, and looked around her, all the kindness faded from her face.

"This place is a sight!" she exclaimed. "My stars! when was it cleaned last?"

"Yesterday," Gloria said in a low tone. "You ought to be ashamed to admit it," Mother Gregory answered in her decided tones. "It doesn't look as if it's been touched for a month of Sundays. . . .Let's go upstairs and put on our working clothes and I'll show you a thing or two about cleaning!"

There began the first day of real work that Gloria had ever known.

Mother Gregory kept saying "We'll dust this room now," or "Now, we'll scrub out the bath-tub." But what happened was that she did all of the directing, and Gloria did the actual work . . . the scrubbing, the sweeping, the polishing.

By noon her back ached, and her head throbbed with weariness.

"We'll have something to eat now," Mother Gregory said comfortably when the twelve o'clock whistle blew in the distance. "A little toast and tea will do for me. I never eat any lunch to speak of."

Gloria made the toast and the tea, while Mother Gregory cut a bouquet of roses from the bushes at the back of the house.

"You must have let the tea boil," she said as she tasted the cup Gloria set up before her. "It's bitter."

Gloria's face showed no more expression than that of the Sphinx. "I'll make some more," she said.

Not to save her life would she have admitted to Mother Gregory that she had thought that you boiled tea just as you boiled coffee . . . for seven minutes.

The afternoon was worse than the morning. Mother Gregory sat on the high kitchen stool and showed Gloria how to clean a chicken. She did not touch it herself.

"Most terrible job in the world," was the girl's comment when it was over. "Like a class in anatomy!"

But picking over the spinach was almost as bad. When it came to the asparagus, Gloria let the knife slip in her blistered hands, and cut her finger and her thumb.

"Thank goodness, it's done, anyway!" she said, when the last of the asparagus was in the colander.

"How about salad and dessert?" asked Mother Gregory.

"Do I have to have them?" Gloria asked pathetically. She was so tired and hot that it seemed to her she would have to lie down . . . or she'd drop.

Mother Gregory raised her eyebrows'

"If you're going to do this homemaking job at all, Glory, you'd better do it right," she said. "We can make a salad and some chocolate custard in ten minutes."

"We?" thought Gloria. "What you mean by 'we' is that you'll sit there resting your face and hands while I do all the work!"

She was furious with Mother Gregory.

As soon as the custard was in the oven Mother Gregory suggested that "they" set the table.

"I couldn't have done a better job myself," said Mother Gregory as she took the custard from the oven.

"I'll go out in the yard and cut some more roses," she added, briskly, "while you're putting on the dishes."

"Her idea of a busy day seems to be cutting roses and ordering me around like a slave!" said Gloria to herself as Dick's mother disappeared through the back door.

"Now, let's get out the hose and wash off the front porch," was Mother Gregory's next suggestion when she came into the house with her armful of roses.

Gloria gritted her teeth together. But she lifted all the chairs down from the front porch and went to work with the hose and an old broom.

Presently Mother Gregory came around the corner of the house from the backyard. She had put on her hat and street dress.

"Goodby, my dear," she said. "I guess I'll have to be on my way. You've done just fine all day!"

She kissed Gloria and patted her weary shoulders.

"When you want any more help you know where to come, my dear, don't you?" She beamed at Glory. "Straight to me!"

"Yeah, any old day I'll come to you for help, again!" Gloria thought resentfully. "I can work myself to death without your help, thanks!"

She went into her house, as soon as Mother Gregory's neat little car had disappeared around the corner. She threw herself down on the davenport in the living room, and fell asleep at once.

Dick did not see her at once when he came home at half past six.

He stood in the hall, and looked around him, with a sense of foreboding. The house was filled with the pungent smell of a thorough cleaning, mingled with the odor of roast chicken.

Gloria must have hired a new maid! Not in a hundred years could she have cleaned the house as it had been cleaned. And that tantalizing smell of baked chicken! . . . Gloria couldn't actually have gone to the trouble of baking a chicken. . . .

Just then, she came out of the living room. Her hair hung dankly about her pale face. Her lips drooped. And the bungalow apron she wore was dirty and covered with grease spots.

VANCOUVER HAS CARVINGS THAT CAN'T BE READ

Depredations of Tourists Have Practically Effaced Many of Best.

NEEDED PROTECTION

Ancient Memorials Are Among Finest Ever Discovered in America.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 22, (Canadian Press).—Vancouver Islands' prehistoric carvings, which for years have baffled archaeologists, are in danger of being seriously defaced or absolutely destroyed as a result of the depredations of tourists, and steps are being taken to effect their preservation.

The carvings are on rocks near Comox, at the mouth of the Nanaimo River, at Sproat Lake and at Great Central Lake and are supposed by scientists to be indicative of an ancient civilization of a far higher degree of culture than any of the aboriginal races known to the history of the Northwest. Harlan I. Smith, noted Canadian archaeologist, and several others have sought a solution of the mystery surrounding the origin of the petroglyphs, but so far without success.

The ancient memorials are among the finest ever discovered in this part of the North American continent. They antedate the traditions of persent-day Indians and their form is so different from any others that a clue to their history is singularly elusive. At Yellow Island, near Comox, there is a very large surface covered with rock pictures, several of which were unfortunately destroyed by blasting when the lighthouse was built there. So far as can be made out, the figures represent the sun, stars, whales and fishes, birds and various supernatural beings having a vague general resemblance to the human form.

Rock Carvings.

The rock carvings at Sproat and Great Central Lakes have a general similarity and have been studied and written about by various scientists—Harlan Smith, Dr. Franz Boas of Columbia University, the late Dr. C. F. Newcombe and others. Those at Great Central Lake are three miles from the head of the lake and a curious and obviously very ancient hieroglyphic inscription, deeply graven, is included in the work. Suggestions have been hazarded of music staves, fish and trees, symbolic logs and a seven-branched candle-stick in erratic and mystifying combination. At Fort Rupert there are also shallow rock carvings, but these are of comparatively modern origin, the Indians knowing about them and speaking of them quite freely. They are believed to represent the cannibal spirit long venerated by the tribe.

Of the four groups the most interesting are those at Sproat Lake, near the summer home of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., the publisher. One of the figures in this set has a close resemblance to the mythical snake constantly associated with the thunder bird in the minds of the native West Coast folk. It is called Hai-et-lik by the Clayoquot Indians and Hae-k-toak by the Neah Bay tribe of Washington state. It is recounted in legends that when the thunder bird wishes to kill a whale he hurls the hai-et-lik at it, as a harpoon. The popular theory of scientists as to these carvings is that they had something to do with the prolonged periods of probation through which candidates for admission into the great secret societies of the ancient West Coast nations had to pass during which they had sometimes to depict, as well as they were able, the spirits with which they held communion.

The Natural History Society and other organizations are petitioning the government to set aside the areas in which the carvings are found as parks, and in the meantime efforts to trace the origin of the work are being renewed and the result may lead to the development of an entirely new theory regarding the early civilization of the North-west.

DECIDE ON WAY TO HELP LOWER COSTS

High Rates Are Driving Auto Manufacturers Into Insurance Business.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

High rates are driving automobile manufacturers into the insurance business.

General Motors already is beginning the organiation of as ubsidiary company that will handle fire and theft insurance on the cars sold by this organization. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has organized a committee to consider plans for the organization of a similar company to take care of the entire industry.

The promise of such action is lower fire and theft rates for automobile buyers. Perhaps later, these companies, will adopt the practice of issuing liability and other forms of automobile insurance.

This development is the result of objections made by prospective buyers against the high insurance charges included in the purchase of new cars, especially when sales on a part payment basis are involved.

Rates Too High.

The insurance organizations formed by the manufacturers will be planned to furnish insurance practically at cost, and thus lower the existing rates considerably.

There is no doubt that these rates can be reduced to a marked degree. The experience of automobile clubs that insure their members points to that.

In California, for instance, where members of the California State Automobile Association get their insurance through a subsidiary insurance firm owned by this organization, automobile rates are from 96 to 303 per cent lower than rates in other cities.

Surplus Divided.

The auto club insurance companies are mutual in their organization, offering considerably lower rates than commercial insurance firms and, in addition, dividing their surpluses among the policy holders.

These mutual firms offer insurance covering all eventualities in automoible driving. The firms planned by manufacturers will take care only of fire and theft insurance.

During its 11 years of existence the insurance organization of California has saved more than $1,390,000 to its members in reduced rates and repaid surpluses.

CANADIANS AT BISLEY

Half the Team Are New to the Great Contest.

LONDON, June 22. (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Bisley team arrived at Liverpool Sunday. Col. D. R. Street, Ottawa, the commandant, when interviewed Sunday, emphasized the fact that the personnel of the team was unique, inasmuch that fifty per cent. of the team were young men who were visiting Bisley for the first time.

During the course of the voyage a shooting tournament was held on board the S.S. Canada, the target piece being a cent piece and the range the breadth of the deck. Col. Street hit the coin on the first shot. A loving cup was presented to him by the ship's smallest bell-boy in recognition of the feat.

STRIKE IN HONG KONG SPREADING

Shanghai Municipal Council), the note declared all other incidents at Shanghai had occurred as a result of the failure to obtain a prompt and fair settlement of the case of the Chinese students and strikers of that city.

"There has never existed a tendency of an anti-foreign character of a desire to subvert law and order," the memorandum said. "We sincerely hope Your Excellency and the foreign Ministers will be good enough to concur in this view."

The memorandum added that the Chinese Government has issued mandates ordering the people to exercise restraint, and expresses the hope that "the Ministers of the powers concerned will promptly settle the recent deplorable incidents in accordance with the principles of justice and humanity." It declares that the indignation of the people has been appeased and that the excitement is subsiding.

The memorandum concludes with the statement that the Chinese Government will insist upon the stand it has taken in previous protests, and especially invites the attention of the foreign Ministers to this declaration.

Chinese delegates representing forty-eight colleges sent a deputation Saturday to the Minister of War and the Foreign Minister, demanding that the Government immediately sever relations with Great Britain.

Outwardly the general situation seemed to be becoming quieter here. There were no signs of a strike, and a number of students who had gathered here from other places left for their homes.

SHANGHAI BANKS TO RE-OPEN

SHANGHAI, June 22.—The decision of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce to re-open the Chinese banks of Shanghai, closed during recent disturbances, is favorably affecting the general situation here. The city is quiet, but there is no cessation of anti-foreign propaganda and the shipping strike, a strong anti-foreign weapon of disaffected Chinese, shows no sign of weakening.

The strikers are now beginning to kidnap chinese who are employed by Japanese. They are taken outside the city, robbed and beaten and are only released if they give ransom and promise to cease working for Japanese.

A wireless message from Chungking, where a grave situation was reported Saturday, says strikers have resolved to prevent the selling of coal to British and Japanese.

Despatches from Nanking say danger is apprehended there and measures from Swatow say anti-foreign demonstrations are continuing.

Kitty Kiernan

LONDON, June 22—Kitty Kiernan, daughter of a Longford inn keeper, is engaged for the fourth time.

Each of her previous fiances was slain in the warfare that racked her native country, Ireland, for so many years.

First she was betrothed to Michael Kelleher, a member of the Royal Irish constabulary. He was shot to death in her father's inn.

Then she was engaged to Harry Boland. He, too, was killed.

Then she became the sweetheart of Michael Collins, famous Free State leader. A short time before the wedding date Collins was slain.

Now she is engaged to General Felix Cronin. And Ireland is at peace once more

Miss Kiernan has been employed by the Free State government.

Last night he was taken to the operating table; to-day he is passing through the "valley of the shadow."

Most serious illnesses—typhoid, pneumonia, appendicitis—are sudden.

Would you suffer mental as well as physical anguish if to-night you had to face the surgeon's knife?

First Pictures of Nova Scotia Riots

First and exclusive pictures of strike rioting in Nova Scotia by Bob Dorman, writer and photographer. Upper left, soldiers guarding No. 2 colliery of British Empire Steel Corporation at Glace Bay, with strikers on other side of barbed wire; lower left, company stores at Reserve, broken into and looted by strikers; right, ruins of company store and warehouse at Glace Bay, looted and burned by striking miners.

By Bob Dorman.

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, June 22.—Like some faintly recurring memory of French villages, caught in the path of the World War, is this section of North America.

Here slow starvation has been the commander that sent forth hordes of hardy descendants of Scotch ancestors with torches, clubs and rocks to pillage, burn and loot. And here today desperation causes these thousands, armed only with sticks and stones, to face unflinchingly the gleaming bayonets that hem them in.

They feel that they can capture with their feeble weapons the machine gun emplacements that are now rapidly surrounding the properties of the British Empire Steel Corporation—or Besco, as they call it here.

It is the old story of labor and capital at war, with two carying necessities in the background: industry must go on and protect its holdings; the worker must eat and protect his family.

And so the soldiers come and their bayonets gleam from dull rifle barrels, and charred remains of buildings, crashed windows and looted storehouses tell the story of why they are here.

The backbround is an economic study, not unfamiliar to industrial towns. The maridme provinces of Canada have been visited by the blight of business depression. Besco cut wages in paying coal mines in order to carry the burden of other properties that either lie idle, operate at part time or operate at a loss.

During the good times, with high wages and plenty of work, many came from the mines of the Cape Breton district. Few had put much away for the "rainy day." With the financial depression there was no enough work for all, and full-time men were given two or three shifts a week. The men now on strike were asked to take further cuts in wages which, even under the old scale, scarcely provided shelter and food.

I have watched the miners' committee issuing the semi-weekly rations to the men. They are provided on Tuesdays and Fridays and average 94 cents.

Here is what Fred Snow, of the New Aberdeen district, drew to feed his family of 10 between Tuesday and Friday: two 12-ounce cans of condensed milk, one quart of molasses, two pounds rolled oats, one peck of potatoes, four buns and bread.

In the New Aberdeen district 230 persons receive rations. In the entire section there are 15,000.

When the strike came many men were in debt to the company store for food and clothing. Out of 1500 men at the colliery 470 owed sums ranging from $90 to $400. These men received no cash in pay. To use the vernacular of the miners theirs were "bob-tailed pay checks," the pay envelope showing merely what the men still owed the company.

Starving men are desperate men and hence the looting of stores, the burning of plants and the damaging of tracks.

And for that reason also—the barbed wire entanglements that rise, the bayonets that glisten and the feeling of war days come again.

VOTED AGAINST CORPUS CHRISTI

Laity of Church of England Bow to Opinion of Evangelicals.

DIVIDED 80 TO 40

LONDON, June 22. (Canadian Press).—The house of laity of the Church of England, comprising the lay branches of the Church Assembly which, subject to the final approval of Parliament, legislates for the Anglican Church, recommends that the proposed new prayer book of the Anglican Church include forms of prayer to be used in families as appearing in the Canadian revised prayer book. It also recommends that the family prayers be both patriarchal and apostolic.

On the motion of Sir Edward Clarke, the House disapproved of any passages of apocryphal books being used as liturgical epistles. By a vote of 80 to 40, the house registered the undesirability of the Thursday after Trinity Sunday being used for the commemoration of the Holy Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ. Lord Hugh Cecil, the mover of the motion, said that to adopt the house of clergy's proposal to appoint Corpus Christ as a festival in the English Church would vex evangelicals very much by creating the false impression that it carried with it the belief in transubstantiation. Another speaker said that the day had been observed by 3,000 Anglican churches for over half a century.

CAR ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK END

Children Injured in Crash at Perry Street—Car Struck Pole.

ANOTHER COLLISION.

While Mrs. H. King was piloting Arthur O'Reilley's car along Perry Street on Saturday at 2 p.m. she saw another car approaching south on George Street. She apparently though that a collision was imminent, and to avoid it she turned the car quickly and steered it into a post. As a result two of the children who were in the car had their faces cut.

With Mrs. King were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reid and Mrs. E. H. Reid, of 330 Sherbrooke Street, and three children

Vincent O'Toole, who was driving the other car, stated that he noticed the car coming along Perry Street, and said that the driver apparently lost control of it, steering it into the pole.

He steered his car east on Perry Street to avoid the collision, stopped and gave his name and address.

Mr. O'Reilley car was severely damaged, as the front spring was broken, the chassis and radiator bent, and a front head lamp was smashed.

Cars Collided.

On Saturday at 5.30 p.m. two cars collided at the corner of Hunter and water, one of which was driven by Louis Florence, while the other belonged to Mrs. Dawes. The damage was not of a severe nature, the right rear fender and the body of Mrs. Dawes' car suffering slight dinges. The brakes of both cars were tested and found in perfect order.

TWO FLIERS KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Former Overseas Ace and Student Fell 200 Feet at Detroit.

DETROIT, June 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Two aviators, one a world war ace and the other a student friend, fell 200 feet to instant death Saturday night when the airplane in which they were taking a pleasure spin caught fire, went into a nose dive and finally crashed to earth. The tragedy occurred one mile beyond the city limits on ten mile road.

Another plane, following close on the heels of the first plane—both doing stunts—narrowly avoided collision with the burning machine and barely made the ground in safety. The dead are: Frank Goddell, pilot of the ill-fated machine, 33, commercial aviation instructor at Detroit; Charles Boffey, a student flyer.

Both men were horribly mangled.

MANY GATHER AT SPECIAL SERVICE

Six Thousand People Hear Mass in Memory of Martyred Jesuits.

IN MISSION RUINS.

MIDLAND, June 22.—The heroic epoch of the mission churches in Canada was recalled yesterday when more than six thousand people gathered at the ruins of old Fort St. Marice on the banks of the River Wye, at a special service to commemorate the eight Jesuit missionaries who found martyrdom at the hands of the Five Nation Indians more than three centuries ago, when the Order of the Society of Jesus brought the story of the Cross to the unknown wilderness of the Huron and Iroquois territory. The service commenced exactly at 11 o'clock, when low mass was celebrated by His Grace, Archbishop McNeil, and at the same hour as that at which the beatification of the venerable martyre took place at an impressive ceremony in St. Peter's, Rome. The missionaries beatified were Fathers Jean De Brebeuf, Gabriel Lalemant, Antoine Daniel, Charles Garnier, Noel Chamanel, Issaac Iogues and Lay Brothers Rene Goupil and John De Lalande.

The event aroused intense interest throughout the province, and more than six hundred people alone came from Toronto in a special Canadian National Railways train of nine coaches, including His Grace Archbishop McNeil, Fathers J. M. Filion, Provincial superintendent of Jesus of Upper Canada; W. H. Hingston, Rector of Loyola College, Montreal; F. J. Smith, Guelph; John Burke C.S.P., Rector of St. Peter's, Toronto; E. Kelly, Richmond Hill; F. J. Carter, Newfoundland; W. McGrath of the China Mission Seminary, Toronto; Chief Justice Latchford Toronto; J. D. McDougal, director Canadian National Railways, and C. G. Bowker, general manager of the central region.

China Uprising Imperils Scientific Exqedition

UNDER CUT "CHINA UPRISING'UPPER RIGHT, ROY CHAPMANANDREWS; BELOW, THE EXEPDITION'S CARAVAN CAMPED INTHE DESERT.

ERIE, Pa., June 22.—Threatened with starvation and in constant danger of attack by maraudirs, a little band of Americans is imperiled by the civil war now raging in China.

Word from the expedition, headed by Roy Chapman Andrews, which represents the American Museum of Natural history, has been received here.

Food is at a premium, towns and villages are being looted and death is being meted out quickly to those who are captured by contending forces.

Upon arrival of the expedition in Urga the entire community was in a "state of disruption." The Minister of War and his chief secretary had been shot to death and, according to Andrews, efforts to get food were unavailing.

Refused Supplies.

"When supplies for the expedition, including two tons of flour, a ton of rice and other articles in proportion, were ordered the naitives laughed at us," Andrews reports.

"The day before I had intended to ship our supplies to Kalgan we had word that the city had been looted by soldiers.

"Their punishment was swift and wholesale. The looters had gathered at the top of the Pass waiting to see what would happen.

"Word was sent to them that their sins would be forgiven and they would be sent home if they would surrender. About 450 of them came into Kalgan and gave up their arms.

"The men were put into box cars and told that within a few hours the train would start for Peking. Instead of that they were taken out, half a dozen at a time, searched, and if loot was found on them they were marched to the stone bridge in the centre of town and shot.

"At the end of a few hours 450 bodies lay in the dry river bed.

"This is only one example of what has been going on in China almost continuously since last October."

Andrews says that Chinese soldiers have confiscated every camel, car and mule for a hundred miles beyond Kalgan, the base from which the expedition started.

It was found necessary to drive their camels far out into the desert to keep them from the soldiers.

ConEscate Mounts.

Andrews' reports were made to an Erie man whose financial assistance did much to make the expedition possible. The man, whose name cannot be disclosed, died recently and the reports are being received by others interested in the expedition.

The expedition is conducting a search for dinosaur eggs and traces of human evolution. The plans called for the penetration of the region south of the Altai Mountains, a district which has never before been explored.

"We will work west of Chagan Nor (White Lake), along the northern base of the Altais, as well as to the south. This will bring us to the home of the wild camels and wild horses and I hope we can bring back specimens of both," Andrews says.

ORANGEMEN DENY NEED NEW FLAG

Peterboro County Lodge Passes Resolution Condemning Proposal.

At a meeting of the Loyal Orange County Lodge of West Peterborough, held in the village of Lakefield, the following resolution was unanimously carried:

"That whereas we learn with very much surprise, and still more regret, of the proposed change in the design of our Canadian ensign by the Premier of our Dominion and his government, and that a committee of six have been appointed to decide on such a change. Therefore be it resolved—That we, as loyal Britishers and Orangemen, having in mind the fact that there is no demand for any change in our National ensign, do most strongly protest against the action of Premier Mackenzie King and his government in changing or even considering such change. We consider that in view of the fact that over 75,000 Orangemen went overseas to fight for the Grand Old Union Jack and over 15,000 still lie in Flanders' fields, that this proposal is an insult to the loyal manhood of our Dominion, and a step in the direction of weakening the ties that bind us to the Mother Country, and that all loyal Canadians do protest against any such action and we call upon all Patriotic and Veterans' Societies and all Britishers to join us in this protest; and further that copies of this resolution be forwarded to Premier King, G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., The Evening Examiner, The Orange Sentinel, and The Canadian Press."

THE JUNE MOON

By JUANITA HAMEL

"And what is so rare as a day in June?" sings the poet. And every lover in the world answers promptly "A June Night!" For what could be more wonderful than a softly scented June night when this old earth seems transformed into a veritable paradise. And Cupid takes you by the hand and leads you into the silver bathed hills and you look over a fairy landscape and wish with all your might for your true love to come to you. And she does! Suddenly the full force of the June moon is poignantly forced on your dreams and there framed in the silver globe is the Adored Oone. Small wonder, then that these June nights are magic nights, filled with the joy and thrill and mystery of Love.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been "keeping company" with a young man for four months. I am almost eighteen. One night he asked me for a "goodnight kiss." I refused. He said he didn't see any harm in it, so he stole it. The next day I sent him a note, saying I didn't wish to continue his friendship any longer. A short time after he apologized to me and asked me if I would renew his friendship. He really seems very sorry. Shall I forgive him? —Little June.

Little June: If the young man is truly sorry for his conduct and realizes that your attitude was the proper one, I think you really ought to forgive him, June. Now that he understands how you feel, I am sure that he will not repeat the offense.

HALL COCHRANE DAILY POEM

Well, Mister Dan Cupid, your looks, far from stupid, would indicate something's astir. You're looking right cheerful. Say, give us an earful. What is it about to occur?

You say that you're dizzy from being so busy. Just what is the burden you tote? You act like a king, with your satisfied swing and there's something that's making you gloat.

Says Dan, "I've a reason, for this is my season. 'Tis June and my toil starts anew. All lovers who'd marry, need no longer tarry. I'm ready to hear their "Ido."

"So start up the tune, so familiar in June, and bring on your joy and your laughter. May all of the brides, with their grooms at their sides, live happy and long ever after."

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Hot Day Clothes

NEW YORK, June 22 (United Press). —Excessive heat parches the pavements of New York. Ambulances dart up the side streets laden with persons prostrated by the heat. Firemen splatter children of the tenement districts with the water from their hose. The huge department stores have about as many customers as a Mexican dog has hairs.

And yet—here are some of the styles worn by these who venture on the blistering streets!

At 42nd and Broadway an elderly actor wore an overcoat that reached his knees. On the less pretentious portion of Fifth Avenue a young woman wore a heavy sweater over a serge dress. The majority of women evidently believe that one must be well groome in spite of hot weather. Hence, the wear dark frocks of heavy satin or crepe with felt or silk hats. Usually they wear cuff gloves when the sleeve is short. Figured scarfs are thrown about their throats, since scarfs are considered swank this season. Ensemble suits are many and those who wear them do not remove the coats.

The few women who dressed in wash frocks this week were conspicuous by their minority, although many women wore sleeveless gowns of silk which would have looked better at an evening function. Figured chiffons were perhaps the most sensible frocks worn. One woman carried a Chinese parasol in colors matching her figured frock. This was the only parasol on the Avenue.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

Bobby Sees and Chats With Mr. Glutton.

"Gracious on us," laughed Bobby, when he stepped up to the cage at the Zoo and saw the queer looking animal behind the bars. "I wonder what in the world that animal is."

"Read the sign above the gate and find out," growled the funny looking animal. "That's the surest way of finding out. Some folks call me Wolverine; others say I'm a Glutton, because I never get enough to eat. What's your name, little boy? There's no sign above your head."

"I'm Bobby," replied Bobby. "There's no sign above my head because I don't belong in the Zoo," he laughed. "How much your head looks like a dog's head!"

"Yes, it is rather dog-like," laughed Mr. Glutton. "That is the snout resembles a dog's. My ears are short though, while most of the dogs I have seen have longer ones. If you'll notice I don't walk like a dog, nor have I a tail like one." Mr. Glutton got up and ambled across the ground to the fence nearer Bobby. "I walk like Mr. Bear, so they tell me, and my tail is a little too short and bushy for the rest of me."

"Where did you live before you came to this Zoo?" Bobby asked.

"In Siberia, I think it was," replied Mr. Glutton. "I guess they miss me all right, for I certainly am one cunning fellow. Not in looks," he laughed at the expression on Bobby's face, "but there wasn't a hunter or trapper around there that didn't despise me. Do you know what I'd do?" Bobby shook his head and Mr. Glutton continued. "Why just as soon as they would bait their traps I'd come along and take the bait out, eat it and destroy the trap. Trappers are one thing I didn't like. With a hunter and a gun, you have a chance, but once you step on a hidden trap, you're out of luck. No, many a mother rabbit will miss me, I'll bet you."

"Do you like to live here in the Zoo?" asked Bobby. "Don't you ever get lonesome and wish you were back in the big forest?"

"Goodness, no!" chuckled Mr. Glutton. "Why, I would soon die if they turned me out again. No, I love this Zoo. I love to have folks, like you, stop and talk about me. So many of them don't know I can understand what they say. If they did, they would be more careful. Why, just this morning an old lady was sympathizing with me for being here. Think of that. I was lying back here and laughing at her. Why, I wouldn't change places with any of my friends for anything. There comes the keeper now with my dinner," and Mr. Glutton ambled off down the fence to get his dinner.

Bobby watched him grap and gobble down the piece of meat, then he ran on out the big gate.

Your BIRTHDAY

MONDAY, JUNE 22—Conceit is one of the greatest faults of persons born this day. It will be quite pronounced in men, but less so in women. They make few friends, because of their continual chatter about themselves when in the company of others. The chances are that both men and women born today will be disappointed in love more than once.

Gold embroidery is very much liked to trim chiffon and georgette crepe coats that are so stylish now.

Wear a Fish At Beach

This poor fish needn't be pitied, for it has a chance to get into the water every day. It is of black embroidery on a light gray suit. The turban is of white rubber with a fish sketched in black. For a mermaid we can think of no more appropriate decoration.

IN THE KITCHEN

GLASS UTENSILS.

It is just a little bit disconcerting, to say the least, for an old-fashioned housekeeper to come suddenly upon an opalescent glass teapot on an electric stove with the water boiling gently inside. It looks so gay and unconcerned over its own apparent fragility, while you hold your breath and prepare to pick up the fragments, but nothing happens. Of course, you lose your heart over it, and who wouldn't? One may choose between a blue spout and han dle, a green or amber, and the choice is hard to make, for they are all attractive.

The teapot has with it the dearest cups and saucers, having handles to match the spouts of the teapots. Dainty and delightful, they are like the egg-shell china. The glass set may be placed on a silver-mounted glass tray or on a mahogany tray with a glass bottom.

This opalescent glass is more decorative than that which first appeared, and it has the advantage of not showing finger marks or looking dull after it has been in use for some time. There are certain rules to be observed in caring for glass cooking utensils, and if they are obeyed the risk in breakage is comparatively small. In the first place, they should be warmed slightly before being filled and set in the oven. Then it is a wise precaution to set the dish on a very shallow tin cake plate. This makes it easier to handle, protects it from the unequal heat of the oven and bars the danger of setting the glass suddenly on a cool surface when it is removed from the oven. Never set a hot glass dish direct from the oven in a strong draught of cold air or in cold water. Wash the dish in warm soapy water, but never hold it under a running hot water faucet. If these simple suggestions are heeded, the utensils may be used indefinitely.

In the opalescent ware there are special refrigerator dishes that are so fitted that they economize space, and as they set one in another they hold an amazing amount of food. Then the dishes have a double purpose, for when not used as food containers they may be used in cooking.

The casserole dishes come in three shapes—there is the oblong dish, the round one and the square dish. The food may be served from them right on the table, as they are very decorative in appearance.

There are also fascinating individual casserole dishes, having covers like the big ones, that may be used in serving a casserole course. Or these little dishes may be used for macaroni or in cooking mushrooms under a glass cover, which is said to be the perfect way of cooking these dainties.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

The following old English recipe for castle pudding, or individual small cakes, is from Mrs. James Richardson, 487 King Street:

Take the shell weight of two eggs in butter, sugar and flour. Flavor with half the grated rind of a lemon or with lemon extract. Soften the butter and beat egg whites and yolks separately. Mix butter and sugar together, add eggs and flavoring, then stir in flour. Butter tins and fill rather more than half full. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes or half an hour.

KEEPING COMPLEX. OD

There is nothing which r beauty treatment more rea gratefully than does the comple

Now, there may be a few pers cases when the complexion is sufferi from some special ailment which needs the advice of a specialist, where common-sense measures fail to improve it noticeably, but I am glad to say such cases are far in the minority.

I venture to say that if you concentrate on the beauty care of your complexion, and use none but the best and safest measures in increasing its beauty, that you will be able to bring about a decided improvement in the direction in which it is needed.

Such sane and necessary regulations underlie natural beauty of complexion that it seems a shame for anyone to overlook these steps and own a bad complexion as a result.

Now, for the first thing, sufficient sleep is a very necessary thing. No amount of external applications can efface the marks left by lack of sleep, and also by insufficient exercise.

The girl who suffers from dark rings beneath the eyes will find, in nine cases out of ten, that full, regular sleeping hours and brisk daily exercise will efface those rings as if by magic. They are simply one of the prices she pays for cutting down on the health regulations which Nature imposes.

Also a sparing diet, chiefly of fruits and liquids and supplemented by large amounts of drinking water, taken preferably at other than mealtimes, will do wonders toward clearing the most stubborn complexion.

Alternate applications of hot and cold cloths will also help to clear your skin, but I am not much in favor of the use of steam or of very hot water upon your skin. Do not use the hot and cold applications unless you are sure that they will help your skin. You can determine this by a few trial applications.

Cold water and ice are excellent for strengthening your muscles. The application of cloths moistened in ice cold water will make the muscles firmer. Better still, patting and rubbing the face with small pieces of ice covered with thin muslin will bring color to your cheeks by stimulating the circulation. Always use an upward and outward motion while using the ice.

How carefully you select your toilet soap! but you expose your hands to harsh kitchen soap in the dishpan an hour and a half every day

IT must be mild and pleasant—your toilet soap—even though your hands are in contact with it only ten minutes a day at the most. You can't bear to use a harsh, drying soap for washing your hands. So, naturally, you select it carefully.

Then you undo it all! By using strong, stinging kitchen soap in your dishpan. When you do the dishes—your hands are in these drying, coarsening suds a full hour and a half.

Your skin can't help getting drawn and rough—your finger-tips all scratchy.

Don't wash your dishes with just "any" soap. Use Lux in your dishpan. Lux has that softness and mildness that make it as easy on your hands as fine toilet soap. But of course you know that. Think of the things you just wouldn't trust to anything but Lux.

Your hands deserve as kind treatment as your chiffons—your fine woollens. Use Lux whenever you have to have your hands in soap and water for any length of time.

For breakfast or lunch dishes a single teaspoonful

A level teaspoonful of Lux lasts through one entire dishwashing. That is, for breakfast or lunch dishes. When you've a lot of dinner dishes you sometimes need two teaspoonfuls.

Get the big new package of Lux—flip a teaspoonful of flakes into your dishpan. Then see how sparkling those quick suds make your glasses and silver—how speedily they wash all the dishes.

Buy Lux to-day—the big new size for kitchen use—the regular size for the bathroom. Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto. L-519

Oshawa 2, Peterboro 1 - Dummer Defeated Campbellford Soccer Team - U.S. Polo Team Wins

PETES DROP FOURTH IN ROW; LOSE 2-1 TO OSHAWA, WHO NOW OCCUPY SECOND PLACE

Bad Base Running and Weak Hitting Responsible for Failure to Come Through.

HARDILL GOOD

Youngster Gives Great Exhibition and Should Have Had a Shutout Win.

(By F. D. C.)

Weak stick work at crucial moments and some bad base-running by the Petes coupled with a misjudged fly ball were the principal factors contributing to the downfall of Manager Johnston's crew at Riverside Park on Saturday when Oshawa tossed them for their fourth consecutive loss, the Motorists winning 2 to 1.

As a result of these dire doings the home talent dropped down into third place in the League race, Oshawa moving up into the second niche, a game behind Kingston.

The brightest feature from a Peterboro viewpoint was the sterling twirling of young Jeff Hardill, the Petes' recruit heaver, who was sent right back at the invaders and should have had a shutout. The eighteen-year-old youngster justified Manager Johnston's judgment by pitching a superfine game, the visitors getting their two counters in the first inning when Red Legon played a fly ball badly with two out, and a drive that should have wound up the inning without a score turned into a two base hit carrying home the brace of counters that ultimately meant victory.

After that unlucky start Hardill turned the invaders back without another hit until the seventh and blanked them for the rest of the game so far as runs were concerned. He had plenty of speed, a good curve and perfect control, not issuing a charity and on the performance he gave should have won going away.

Lennox Gets Revenge.

Oshawa gambled on the second string southpaw, Lennox, and got away with it.

The left-hander started a game in Oshawa against the Petes earlier in the season and disappeared after they had scored three runs without a hand down in the first frame.

Saturday was another day.

Lennox held the Johnstonites to seven hits, strung out like Hydro poles, and although he looked ready to break two or three times and Duke Dainty was loosening up his finely trained left wing to go to the rescue on several occasions, the rookie southpaw weathered the storm, aided considerably by the Petes themselves.

Both teams fielded snappily behind the good pitching they received and the game was a fine exhibition of ball, albeit marred from a Peterboro standpoint by the general impression that it was a contest that the home athletes should have tucked away in the old bat bag.

How It Happened.

Oshawa got all their runs and half of their hits in the first frame. Rowden led off with Texas Leaguer to left but was out trying to purloin second, Swanston to Rose. R. Fair fanned. Tyson, however, rifled a single through short and Ward stabbed hard down the left field foul line for two bases. Morrison raised a long fly to left field and Legon, apparently misjudging the drive was slow in starting back for it, the ball dropping back of him for a two-base hit, Tyson and Ward registering. Hardill then fanned Dineen to retire the side.

The Petes wasted two hits. Legon popped to Dineen. Johnston singled to right. Swanston drove a long single over Reg. Fair's head in centre and Johnston, after halting until he saw the centre fielder was not going to make the catch, tried to go to third and was easily nipped on a fast relay. Fair to Morrison to Ward. Hap Harrison struck out.

In the second Roddick grounded to Harrison, Wolfe made a fine catch of W. Fair's smash to right and Lennox was tossed out by McPherson.

In the Petes' half Rose flied to Roddick, Hall drew a pass and McPherson burned a single past Ward but Wolfe gave R. Fair a fly and Ward tossed out Hardill.

Oshawa were easy in the third. Rowden and R. Fair were both thrown out by Hardill and Swanston fielded Tyson's tap in front of the plate for an out at first.

For the Petes Legon struck out, Johnston flied to Roddick and Swanston's smash to the box was nicely handled by Lennox.

In the fourth Ward popped to McPherson, Morrison rolled to Harrison and Dineen missed three.

Harrison's mammoth drive was taken in deep centre by Reg. Fair, Rose struck out, Hall lined to right for a single but was forced at second on McPherson's roller to Rowden.

Roddick started the fifth with a rap to Hardill, who threw him out. W. Fair met the same fate and Lennox raised to McPherson.

The Petes' Loner.

The Petes got their only counter in the fifth and lookely likely to get more. Wolfe opened with a smash to left centre which he turned into a triple by a wonderful sprint and a fine slide into third. Hardill's tap was fielded by Lennox who hesitated as to where to make the play and threw the ball to third, left uncovered by Ward. Wolfe scored and Hardill reached second on the play. Legon rolled to Ward, Hardill going to third. Johnston hit to Morrison and Hardill was out at the plate. Swanston flied to Reg. Fair.

In the sixth Rowden was thrown out by Johnston. Reg. Fair got a life when Harrison fumbled his drive Tyson flied to Hall and Ward was thrown out by Swanston on a fast play.

The home talent's bad baserunning threw away a glorious chance. Harrison opened with a double over first base and went to third on a wild pitch, which bounced away from Tyson. Rose drew a pass and started to steal on the first ball. He doubled back when Tyson made a short throw to Morrison and Harrison, getting too long a lead off third, was nipped when Dineen shot the ball to Ward. Hall was thrown out by Ward, Rose going to third. McPherson rolled to Rowden.

Morrison lifted one to Johnston in the seventh, Dineen popped to Harrison, Roddick doubled to centre, W. Fair was retired on a fast play by Rose.

For the Petes Wolfe was thrown out by Lennox. Hardill was out, Rowden to Dineen, a very close

Out Of A Hole.

A "boner" by Ward helped the Petes in the eighth Lennox led off with a single to right and Rowden followed with another single to left. Lennox wandered off second and Rose stole over and took a throw from Hardill, catching the Oshawa pitcher flat-footed. The play saved a run for after R. Fair had fouled to McPherson Tyson followed with a double to left, Rowden stopping at third. Ward was next up and the Petes decided to pass him and take a chance on Morrison. Ward, however, after two balls had been called on him went after a high one and fouled out to McPherson, who made a nice catch.

Heckman batted for Johnston in the Petes' half and gave the homesters a proper start by singling to right. Swanston, however, after two attempts to sacrifice forced him at second on a rap to Lennox Harrison struck out and W. Fair took Rose's fly near the right field foul line.

In the ninth Hardill tossed out Morrison and Saunders, the latter pinch-hitting for Dineen. Rose made a one-handed catch of Roddick's fly in short right.

Hall, first up for the Petes, got a life when Saunders dropped Ward's throw. McPherson's bunt forced him at second. Wolfe flied to Roddick and Ross batting for Hardill rolled to Lennox to wind up the game.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

In this discussion of the Ten Faults Most Common to Golfers, begun last week, it should be understood that the golfer who has these faults of play, or any one of them to any marked degree, will lose rhythm and timing. Thus the first thing to learn is that rhythm and timing are what project the golf ball, and all effort toward progress should be directed to that end. The easily-swung club with rhythm and timing will drive a ball further than the swing with a body lunge and an extreme of effort. The hard-hit ball is projected from the club swung with the maximum of speed attained with control of the club plus rythm of timing. These three always go together, so that rule 1 with all learning golfers must be to learn to control the club at all times and give it time to swing rhythmically so that timing will result.

TILDEN DEFEATS RIVAL.

NEW YORK, June 22. — William Tilden 2nd, of Philadelphia, yesterday won the Metropolitan Tennis Championship in straight sets from Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N.Y., administering another crushing defeat to his formidable rival for national honors at 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Petes, after winning four games in a row and climbing to a tie for first place, have now dropped a quartette of contests, and today finds them in third place. However, they are only a game behind Oshawa and a brace away from Kingston and nearly two-thirds of the schedule remains to be played, so that there is no occasion for weeping and wailing just yet. The chief reason for their present decline is a falling off in their offensive strength. The attack lacks the punch it had in their earlier games—in fact, in the last three starts they have been able to amass but six runs.

* * * * * * * * *

The most hopeful feature is the fact that right now the Petes' pitching staff looks to be the best in the league. Hardill has won his spurs, Whitehouse is in great shape and rarin' to go, and Heckman's arm is coming round and he should be able to get in there regularly before long. The fielding has been good, the Petes leading the league in that department, and if the crew regain their batting eyes they should soon be back near the top of the heap again.

* * * * * * * * *

The homesters did not win any laurels on their base running Saturday. In the first inning Johnston was thrown out at third on a hit to centre by Swanston, trying to go two bases after pulling up to make sure the ball was not caught.

* * * * * * * * *

There was worse to follow, however, for with Rose on first and Harrison on third in the sixth frame, with nobody out, the Petes fell for the ancient short throw, both runners pulling a boner. The Oshawa strategy, of course, when Morrison took a toss from Tyson back of the pitchers' box, was to nip Harrison if he broke for the plate when the catcher threw down No play was intended on Rose, but he revamped the scenario by turning back to first. Morrison, seeing Harrison had not gone in, shot the ball to Dineen, and Rose was trapped, and then Harrison contributed his share of the disaster by wandering far enough away from third to be nipped when Dineen tossed to Ward. The net result was that the Petes, instead of having men on second and third, with nobody out, wound up with a runner on second and one down.

* * * * * * * * *

The Petes play in Belleville on Wednesday and will have the Kingston Ponies as their guests on Saturday. A brace of wins this week would be of great assistance with two home games scheduled for the following week.

* * * * * * * * *

Oshawa took a chance Saturday by using Lennox, saving Dainty for Wednesday's game with Kingston. The Duke, with a week's rest, should just about tuck away the Ponies, especially as the Kingston pitchers have been performing very erratically recently, allowing 49 runs in the last five games.

* * * * * * * * *

All the Central Ontario League first-string umpires were in attendance at Saturday's game. Ken. Colling and Geo. Sullivan were the officials in charge and Alex. Kay and Si Dell of Oshawa were spectators. John Nott, former Secretary of the Central loop and this year a member of the O.B.A.A. Executive, was another celebrity on hand for the game.

* * * * * * * * *

The league standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Kingston	6	3	.667
Oshawa	5	4	.556
Peterboro	4	5	.444
Belleville	3	6	.333

"Toots" Ward, the Peterboro boy with the Oshawa crew, had a two-base hit in the first inning Saturday that played a big part in scoring Oshawa's two runs. And then in the eighth he was guilty of some very bad baseball when with men on second and third and two out and Hardill deliberately trying to pass him, he reached after a high ball and fouled cut.

* * * * * * * * *

In five out of the nine frames only three men faced Hardill. Lennox, on the other hand, had to deal with men on the sacks in all but two sessions. In four different Peterboro innings the first batter reached first, but only one of these promising openings was cashed in.

* * * * * * * * *

Wolfe's running on his triple in the fifth inning was a feature. It is doubtful whether any other player in the league could have stretched the hit into a three-base knock. He slid into third in a cloud of dust well ahead of the throw from the outfield. —F. D. C.

GOLF AMATEURS PLAY AT OTTAWA

Tournament This Year For Canadian Championship is at Ottawa.

NEW GREENS.

OOTAWA, Ont, June 20 (Canadian Press).—The amateur championship of the Royal Canadian Golf Association this year will see the introduction of two noteworthy innovations—the use of steel shafted clubs and the testing of greens constructed by the new process of vegetative planting. The turnament will be staged over the course of the Royal Ottawa club from June 29 to July 4. For some years steel shafted clubs have been hammering at the door of Canadian golfers, but have been barred because of a ruling by the Royal Ancient club of St. Andrew's, Scotland, which has been the guiding genius of Canadian golf in matters of rules, etc. However, this year the Royal Canadian Golf Association has decided to permit their use. The Ottawa club has two greens of the vegetable family, the tenth and the thirteenth. Both these greens were developd from native creeping bent stolons or runners, and it is claimed for them by some experts that in the Canadian climate they are better than the well known Washington strain of bent stolons developed by the department of agriculture of the United States.

The Royal Ottawa course is well up to championship requirements as regards length and all other requirements. It measures 6,400 yards long, having been reconstructed a couple of years ago from the plans of the noted golf architect, Willie Park, who died last month. The last amateur championship to be played in Ottawa took place in 1914.

Among the prizes to be played for are the championship trophy, the Earl Grey Cup, and the Royal Canadian Golf Association gold and silver medals.

CAMPBELLFORD BOWLING.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 22. — Ten rinks competed in the first local tournament of the season held by the members of the Bowling Club, and play lasted all afternoon and late into the night. The results were close but the first prize was won by Dr. Haig's rink and the second by the rink skipped by L. B. Glover.

The players in the prize winning rinks weer as follows:

First prize: Mrs. Fred J. Smith, Mrs. J. A. Stewart, R. Weston, Dr. A. Haig, skip.

Second prize: Mrs. A. E. Caddy, Mrs. Earl Greig, Thomas Varcol and L. B. Glover, skip.

CAMPBELLFORD OUTPLAYED BY DUMMER UNITED

Township Boys Scored Two Goals in First Half and Another in Next.

IN AUTO SMASH

The Visitors Have a Well-Balanced Team, But Lack Necessary Practice.

Campbellford went down to defeat in the Gordon Cup round by the score of three goals to nil in favour of Dummer United at Nicholls Oval on Saturday afternoon before a good attendance of spectators. The visitors were late in making an appearance through an accident that happened to them while coming by road in automobiles. A few miles outside the city limits, the party's car turned upside down as it fell into a ditch and the boys were fortunate in not receiving any serious injury. No doubt it has been a financial loss to them in having to hire another car to convey themselves the rest of the journey. When the visitors did arrive the Dummer eleven agreed to go on with the game at the late hour and won the cup tie.

Features of the Play

Captain Ruffus Payne won the toss and decided to play with the sun at their backs, also the wind in their favor. Campbellford made tracks for Warsaw goal but Crowe intercepted, punted up-field to the left wing which made progress into goal, Armstrong tackled to advantage. Warsaw returned quickly again to Campbellford's citadel where Ruffus Payne hustled Romaine, a few yards out, to get his knee on the ball that was diverted past the goalkeeper.

Campbellford Dilatory Play

From the centre, Campbellford played nice combination right in past the Warsaw defense. The ball travelled in every direction in the goal mouth until McMillan's foot caught a rebound for the upright. They hammered away without success, more particularly when Beatty was in possession to centre accurately and cause Warsaw's defense some trouble but they responded by snappy clearances. A foul against Page looked dangerous for his team mates but Armtsrong nullified the attack.

Payne's Individual Effort

Crowe returned to the outside right who beat along the wing at a fast pace, outwitted the defense, and while on the run, shot hard and fast past Fitzgerald for the second goal. A few minutes later, the goalkeeper picked the ball away from an opponent's foot when in the act of scoring. Campbellford's half backs were inclined to be weak in supporting an attack and placing poorly which upset a well-balanced attack that got no support. Both elevens tired out near the interval which left the full backs in the prominent column with long and smart punting. A solo effort by Munro made the Campbellford goalkeeper jump up in the air to stop its progress as time announced the change around.

HALF TIME

The second moiety resumed at a spirited clip with each team visiting the goal areas to test the goalkeepers but Campbellford held the Warsaw boys outside the shooting distance until Harold Darling, from the touch, sent an oblique shot in below the bar to register the third counter.

Play Ding Dong

It was very noticeable in the visiting team that they had not practiced together and it transpired after the score was against them that they had found their bearings and because at this period the forwards attacks were well-planned, also half backs intercepting play nicely. On one occasion, Blackwood completely fooled the defense and travelling for the goal unfortunately fell at the opportune moment. Carveth coming back in nick of time to kick to touch.

Players in an Auto Smash

The players who did turn up late deserve credit for the sportsmanlike manner in which they donned their attire to play a hard game and lose after such an unfortunate smash while coming to Peterboro by auto. They put up an excellent brand of soccer in spite of the fact that they never played together before. Full time—Warsaw 3, Campbellford 0.

AMERICANS WIN POLO OPENING

Defeated British Army Team in First of Three-Game Series.

KING PRESENT

LONDON, June 22. — Accurate wielding of polo sticks and aggressive horsemanship during the first chukker of Saturday's match between the British and the United States army polo teams at Hurlingham Club for the International Military Championship gave the visitors a lead that they carried to a final victory of 8 goals to 4.

The result brought cheers from the 3000 spectators who sat in stands surrounding the Royal box from which King George and Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of York and Ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton keenly followed the swift moving picture of ponies and players streaking up and down the field of green turf.

The series of three games, in which the United States players are defending the title won at Meadowbrook last year, will be continued on June 24 and June 27.

The experts consider the visiting team much better mounted than the British, but the weakness of the latter, was due largely to their stick work and they had the misfortune to lose opportunities to score several times by clean misses.

The following line-ups were in the field:

United States: No. 1., Major A. H. Wilson; No. 2, Captain Charles H. Gehardt; No. 3, Captain Peter P. Rodes and Major Louis A. Beard, Back.

Great Britain: No. 1., Captain R. L. McCreery; No. 2, W. S. McCreery, No. 3, Captain J. P. Dening, and Major D. C. Boles, Back.

TENNIS BEGINS AT WIMBLEDON TODAY

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 22. — With the Ascot Week safely over, the next big show for British sports lovers is the all-England Tennis championships, starting here to-day, in which some of the most noted players of the world will contest for the classic British title.

If summer weather continues, such as has prevailed for the last month—and the weather bureau promises at least another week of sunshine—conditions should be better than for many years. London has experienced more than 20 days without rain—an unprecedented happening since the great drought of 1921—and the weather has been balmy, exactly suitable for such affairs as golf and tennis.

The seeded draw, which was used this year for the second time at Wimbledon, has provided interesting matches throughout. In the first quarter of the men's singles, Hennessey, Henri Cochet and Andre Gobert, of France, are all bracketed, while in the second are Jean Borotra, France, and J. B. Gilbert, England; the third has J. D. B. Wheatley, England, J. C. Anderson, Australia; the fourth has Rene Lacoste, France, Randolph Lycett, England, Ray Casey, United States, and S. M. Jacob, India.

ROYAL OAK C. C. LOST AT GROVE

Lakefield School Boys Won Good Game By Seven Runs.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

Royal Oak C. C. journeyed to Lakefield on Saturday afternoon to play the return match with the Grove School, the visitors losing by 7 runs, thus giving one game to each of the teams, Lakefield coming in Peterboro to the Royal Oaks on the first game.

Lakefield won the toss and put the visitors into bat first, the opening batsmen being Dunkerly and Malsh. The batsmen opened carefully, the bowling being very tricky but not fast and the pitch rather rough.

Malsh was caught out after 5 runs were scored, when Duggan, Jr., went to bat, and 3 runs later Dunkerley was caught out. The wickets fell regularly, the fielding being very snappy, and one could not take liberties with the bowling. Duggan, jr., was playing carefully and touched the highest individual score with 17 runs to his credit, when he was bowled by Barnard. The inning closed for 33 runs, which included 3 extras.

Lakefield Innings.

Lakefield opened the innings with Loosemore and Barnard against the bowling of Dunkerley and Duggan, and carried the score to 11 before the first wicket fell, Loosemore being bowled by Dunkerley, who was bowling great shape, being almost unplayable. Half the side was out for 14 runs, but the next wicket added 7, and the seventh wicket added 11, and the whole aspect of the game was changed, the innings finally closing for 40 runs, Flick being high man for Lakefield with 9 runs. "Extras" were responsible for 9 runs. The cricket ended for the Lakefield team with their only defeat being that meted out to them in Peterboro by the Royal Oak C. C. However they returned the compliment on Saturday last, a very enjoyable afternoon being spent. The score follows:

Royal Oak C. C.

Dunkerley c Loosemore b Barnard	5
Malsh c Christmas b Barnard	0
Duggan, Jr., b Barnard	17

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

Are there any special methods used by major league umpires in guiding them as to what actually constitutes an infield fly, when there are runners on first and second or first, second and third and less than two out?

Major league umpires have no set instructions to guide them as to what constitutes an infield fly.

The calling of an infield fly resolves itself purely into a matter of judgment. A certain hit ruled an infield fly by one umpire might not be so regarded by another umpire.

An infield fly is merely a fair fly-ball, other than a line drive, that in the opinion of the umpire can be handled by an infielder.

The umpire should reach his decision as quickly as possible on an infield fly and immediately let the team in the field as well as baserunners know his judgment on the play.

If he doesn't believe the fly ball can be handled by an infielder, he simply remains silent. If he believes it can, he calls it an infield fly.

The calling of infield fly automatically retires the batsman, protects the runners and permits them to advance at their peril as on any other fly ball.

After the umpire once rules a fair fly ball an infield fly, it makes no difference who handles the ball. If an outfielder should make the play and muff the ball, it would not matter. Once the hit was ruled an infield fly, that setteld it, the batsman was out.

FISH AND GAME

"PUTTING DOWN" FISH IN INDIAN FASHION

The Indian fishes, like he hunts, for food. With him a fish is a fish.

To see Redmen fishing for sport would be a novelty. They leave that to we dudes from the city. But they get their fins in time of plenty from the pickle and spread them out on rocks, boards or grass to dry. Leave them in the sun for about six hours. This drying out process keeps brine from forming after packing.

Place the fish in coarse salt in barrels or kegs. A layer of salt, a layer of fish, until container is full. Put plenty of salt over the top.

To be sure no brine forms in the barrel bore a hole near the bottom, so it will drain. Next winter when you want a nice "fresh" trout, bass or musky go to the salt barrel, pick out a choice fish, soak over night in a pan of cold watera—nd, oh, man—some breakfast!

You can just shut your eyes and live that ol' fishin' trip over again, and put 'em down for lean days ahead.

The old-time method of putting down fish for the winter is somewhat a forgotten art.

However, the commercial fisherman on the coast doesn't waste many mackerel, codfish or herring. With a little effort you can be eating game and panfish of your own catch next winter.

The program isn't complicated and the result is entirely worth while. Split the fish down the middle. Remove the backbone by cutting along both sides from head to tail. Pull out the backbone with a pair of pliers. Remove the heads and clean thoroughly.

You can remove the scales or leave them on as fancy dictates. Prepare a heavy pickling brine. One that will float an egg. Put in the fish and be sure they are completely submerged. Let 'em soak in the brine over night.

In the morning remove fish

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

The Play

There is a runner on first base. The batsman in an effort to advance him to second lays down a bunt. It strikes in fair territory in front of the plate.

The batsman has taken two steps on his way to first, then throws his bat in such a way that it comes into contact with the ball.

The contact is very slight but it hinders the catcher who intended trying for a play at second. Changing his mind he throws to first.

The ball goes over the first baseman's head, rolling into right field, and before it can be returned to the infield both runners have scored. How should the umpire rule on such a play?

The Answer

If the batsman so throws his bat that it strikes the ball in fair territory, thereby hindering the catcher in making a play on the ball, the batsman should be ruled out for interference.

While it might be apparent the batsman had no intention of interfering with the play, simply throwing of the ball to second and caused him to try for the runner at first.

The batsman should simply be called out and the runner originally on first base when the batsman bunted the ball, should be sent back to that base.

No bases can be run on an interference play of this sort. The batsman is simply out and runners return to their original bases.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

"But why dost thou judge thy brother? Or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ."—Roman xiv., 10.

This verse formed the text of the subject, "The Judgment Seat of Christ," which Rev. W. T. McCree, M.A., of Lyn, Ont., preached upon yesterday morning in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The congregation was large, and an inspiring message held their attention.

"The great judgment day is an event of utmost importance in the lives of all people, though we seem to give it little or no thought — at least most of us," was the opening sentence of the sermon by Mr. McCree. Scripture reminds us that the day of judgment is at hand, at all times. We are so apt to forget that fact; we feel it may be far off, and not worth keeping in mind, and thereby governing our actions accordingly. The people of the days to which the text refers, sacrificed animals to their gods—the animals were purchased and killed, to satisfy the religious feelings of the people; and if anything was done amiss, the gods were supposed to show spite and jealousy toward the wongdoers. This was called judgment in the eyes of the ancients. Our God, a God of righteousness, also passes judgment on the sinners of to-day; but His judgments are just and true, and we have the privilege of turning from sin and following after our Lord and Master. And the actions of our earthy life will be rewarded accordingly in that great judgment day.

When anyone has a chance to fill a lucrative position, and we try to copy the methods and actions of the party we succeed in that position, if he has acted unwisely, we may feel that we should do likewise, if we want to hold the position. Our judgment places us on the stand of public criticism; and we are led to ask ourselves, What would Christ do, and have me do? We are prone to sin, and condemn sin in others, not seeing our own shortcomings. Let us beware, for we shall be judged, and receive the just reward of our actions. The good we do lives; the evil we do dies, and our souls also become dead within us. We are judged here and now on every path we follow. We are being contemned these days for our actions, for our conscience sake; but withal let us get back to the Christian ideal, forgiving our enemies, and showing in our lives that we are walking with God, under Whose banner of righteousness we will never fail. Future generations will know how close to the kingdom of God we have been, by the actions contributed towards helping to make this world better by our lives of service to Him.

"The Universality of God in the Old Testament."

This formed the theme of Mr. McCree's evening subject, the text being found in Psalm 139.

God as a universal saviour of men was the leading thought brought out by Mr. McCree, the whole Psalm breathing the spirit of God; the height and depth of His saving grace knows no bounds, and is free to all peoples and nations. Liberty to worship God is sometimes threatened, as was experienced in the church controversy; and when religious liberty is at stake, then we are ready to defend it at all costs. We should try to work out the practical lessons of our religion for future generations, and thereby stabilize our faith and trust in God.

Next Sunday special importance attaches to the fact that Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Jonathan Goforth, of Honan, China, will take charge of the services, with Mrs. Goforth addressing the ladies of the missionary societies of the Presbytery in the afternoon art 3 o'clock. In the evening Dr. Goforth will speak on General Feng and his Christian Army. Peterboro Male Voice Choir will lead the praise in the evening.

KNOX

The morning messages was based on Jer. 5. 10, and Zech. 2, 5. Planning for the future of Jerusalem there were those who would build new walls upon the plan and model o fthe old. They fancied the safety of the Holy City depended upon the wall they themselves, or their fathers built. They were mistaken. They were attempting to narrow down the Divine purposes to ther own paltry plans. Some men are always attemptilng this. They go about with their limiting measuring line as if to thwart the expansion of God's Kingdom. They are busy in every age. They would tie the future with the thongs of the past. They mean well, but God would have it otherwise. "Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls," and the Lord "will be unto her a fall of fire round abount and the glory in the midst. The safety of the Church of Christ doesn't lie in the frantic efforts of would-be defenders of the faith who by man-made walls would, perhaps unwittingly, restrict the very Grace of God. Her safety lies in her Lord as she moves on in her missionary march. Human walls are always falling, whether they be of stone or dogma, but the Eternal Revelation is sure. The living Lord is our Rock and Defence. Wherefore fear not. Forward in Christ.

An impressive service or ordination followed the sermon, when Mr. Will S. Hill, formerly ordained an Elder, was received as a member of the session of Knox, and Messrs. Ernest Lilico, Alexander Heron and Herb. Anderson were duly ordinade with the laying on of hands. The reception of these men into Knox Session greatly strengthens the church for her new life in the United Church.

In the evening, Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's Church, preached a very thoughful and helpful sermon on the building of Highways in Life.

The services were greatly enriched by an unusually fine rendering of Mendelssohn's "My Song Shall Be Alway Thy Mercy," by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, and Mr. Maurice Park, a solo; "How Shall I Sing That Majesty," by Mrs. Park, and a solo, "My Redeemer and My Lord," by Mrs. Ross Williamson.

ST. ANDREW'S.

Yesterday was a big day at St. Andrew's, being the annual Sunday School service. The choir loft was extended on both sides, and the various departments were represented in the choir by about one hundred children, who had been carefully trained under the direction of Mrs. J. A. McKone. The children sand choruses, duets and solos with their fresh, clear voices, to the inspiration and delight of everybody.

Helen Ross recited a brief "anniversary" address, and Jean McKone and Isobel Weddel sang a duet, with Grant Breckenridge provising violin accompaniment. A group of tiny tots, with Allison Gordon at the piano, sang "Little Sunbeams." Helen Heffernan led a group of girls in a recitation, "What the Roses are Saying to Us." A solo entitled, "O, That We Should Meet Again," was sung by Eleanor Stacey.

The C. G. I. T. group were present at the back of the choir and greatly assisted in the programme, not only by their own special chorus in which Dorothy Collett sang the solo, but in all the choir numbers. Barclay McKone sang the solo part in a chorus, "The Old Time Religion." Miss Alice Cox was at the piano and the Sunday School orchestra added greatly to the morning's programme. Automobiles had been kindly provided in sufficient numbers to bring to the church such as were able to come from the Protestant Home, while others had brought the children from the "Shelter" to enjoy the morning.

Rev. J. C. Robertson, D.D., General Secretary for Sunday Schools for Canada, gave a brief and delightful children's talk on "Talents." Mr. J. A. McKone gave a brief talk from the standpoint of the superintendent, making an appeal for enthusiastic and loyal support of the Sunday School by the parents and friends of the children.

A very large congregation was present and seemed greatly to enjoy the work of the children who sat quietly and attentively through the entire programme. Mrs. McKone and her assistants have every right to feel highly gratified at the success attending their efforts.

St. Peter's Cathedral.

Speaking from the text; "I say unto you, there shall be joy in heaven on one sinner that doeth penance," Rev. P. Costello preached on the sacrament of penance at the High Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning.

"In this sacrament God shows His infinite love for the sinner, for the one who is held fast by the fetters of sin. God's heart yearns over the lost sheep until it comes back to Him."

In the sacred tribunal of confession, the sinner may regain the friendship of God. Although a sincere mental act of contrition for sin may absolve the man or woman who is hurled into eternity with only a moment's warning, the approach to the confessional is necessary for all who are in a position to avail themselves of the opportunity.

"Confession is as old as the human race," said Father Costello, quoting the example of Adam and Eve, in being obliged to confess their sin to God, as being the first known instance of the confession demanded by the Almighty from those who had broken His laws.

In the Book of Numbers is an admonition to confess sin, the 5th chapter of the Book of Leviticus contains an order for certain sacrifices that must be offered by those taking false oaths, really constituting in itself a public confession of wrong doing, and in proverbs and Ecclesiastes are further admonitions in this regard. In the New Testament also are several examples of public confession of sin by those listening to the evangelists.

"But we must confess not to God above, but to those to whom are entrusted the mysteries of God, as St. Basil says." The Divine promise, "whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them," is an absolute certainty.

"As long as body and soul cling together, the priest will never, under any circumstances, divulge the secrets of the confessional," declared the speaker, who said that even the apostate Luther, who, in his time, must have listened to thousands of confessions, was never known to have broken the sacred seal of the confessional, even when he fell away from the church. "God seems to exercise a particular guardian ship over the seal of the confessional, in seeing that it is never broken."

The reverend speaker alluded to the ceremonies taking place at Waubashene yesterday, in commemoration of the memory of the martyred Jesuit priests whose beatification took place in Rome yesterday. It is almost three hundred years since these five heroic priests were put to death by the Indians. Those who labored and died in Ontario were the following Jesuit pioneer missionaries; Fathers Jean de Brebouef, Gabriel Lalemant, Anthony Daniel, Charles Garier and Noel Charbanel. Three others whose missionary labors were also in Canada until they were made prisoners by the Mohawk Indians and taken to the State of New York, where they were afterwards subjected to cruel tortures and death, and whose beatification also took place in Rome yesterday, were Fathers Isaac Jogues, Rene Goupil and John de la Lande. A tablet to the memory of these eight priests was unveiled at Waubashene yesterday while their beatification was taking place at Rome.

MIDGET SERIES OPENS TO-NIGHT

Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs Youngsters Clash With Full Honors.

SOME CEREMONY.

The Midget series will open tonight with a bang, when the Kiwanis and Rotary youngsters joust at the Sacred Heart grounds at 6.00 for a scheduled 7-inning contest.

All officials of the City League will be in attendance and as well there will be Jack Seals, Charles Cook and Joseph Wearing, who will be chosen to do the first pitching and batting honours, all of which will tend to give a big league flavour to the debut of the aspiring ball artists.

Mayor Turner was asked to repeat his stellar exhibition of batting which officially opened the senior series, but he pleaded business out of town and will unfortunately be prevented from attending.

For Kiwanis, Trebilcock and Jones form the serving and reception committee, while the wily Sergeant Deanard is holding two batteries in reserve till action commences. His staff will be either Howden and Cotton or Sturgeon and Ashmore, the final choice depending on the opposing line-up.

ROTARIANS ARE SORRY TO LOSE REV. W. H. YOUNG

Club Says Farewell to Popular Member at To-day's Luncheon.

A SPLENDID WORKER.

He Has Been Prominent in All the Local Club's Activities.

The Peterboro Rotary Club said farewell to-day to one of its most popular members in the person of Rev. W. Harold Young, whose departure for Toronto means a severance of his relations, not only with the local club, but with Rotary generally. Rev. Mr. Young has been a most active worker in the Rotary movement here, and will be greatly missed by the members generally.

Among the guests to-day were Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of St. John's Church; Rev. Jas. Gordon, of St. Andrew's, and Rev. J. D. Richardson, of Trinity Church.

Miss Geraldine Collins sang in excellent voice, and with a proper appreciation of the beauty of the words of the song, "The Spirit Flower," and in response to a hearty encore rendered equally acceptably "The Star." The accompaniments were effectively rendered by Miss Mildred Green, and both young ladies were heartily thanked by the Rotarians.

The farewell address to Rotarian Young was given by Rotarian R. A. Brown in a very neat speech, in which he referred to Peterboro's loss in the departure of such an eloquent preacher and in the great loss sustained by Rotary in the going away of a most popular and versatile member. Rev. Mr. Young had most worthily represented the clergymen of Peterboro in the Rotary Club, he said, and at the same time he had most worthily represented the Rotary Club among the members of his profession. He had the faculty, sometimes not possessed by Clergymen, of making it evident that a strong religious conviction and a normal active life among his fellow men could go together, and the speaker was sure that Mr. Young's profession had gained rather than lost by his ability to associate with men generally on terms of friendship.

Of Mr. Young's connection with Rotary, Rotarian Brown pointed out that he had been editor of the weekly bulletin in charge of the entertainment committee, had played the piano, had taken part in all the activities of the club in fact, and too much could not be said of his services. He assured the departing member that he was regarded by his fellow-members as one of the best men in the world, and hoped that he would carry away as pleasant memories in his heart of the Peterboro Rotary Club as his fellow members would retain of him.

Rotarian Young, in reply, declared that parting with the Rotary Club was one of the saddest of the very sad partings associated with his leaving Peterboro. He referred in feeling terms to his association with Rotary here, and the very pleasant relationships that had always existed. One of the perils confronting a parson, he said, was the danger that he would always view the world through the glass of his study window, and he felt that he had learned to know more about the problems of humanity because of his association with the members of Rotary.

Three cheers were given for Rev. Mr. Young before the meeting adjourned.

So common have become the closing clinches in cinema pictures that the audience foes not wait for them. Some ignorant few who wish to see the close of the picture are thereby inconvenienced by crowds standing up, but what mattereth that? The minute it becomes obvious that the lovers' troubles are over, let's all make a dash for the door. By-and-by the film makers will learn to leave off the closing episode.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE WAY OF A GIRL," WITH ELEANOR BOARDMAN

"he Way of a Girl," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week, is a story of a social favorite who seeks for excitement in forbidden places. It is adapted from the story, "The Summons," by Katherine Newlin Burnt, and contains both comedy and thrills, the whole set to a fast and furious tempo that suits the style of the plot, whose unfolding includes a wild prizefight, a gorgeous Bal Masque, and a wild auto ride.

Eleanor Boardman is the "girl," a high-spirited, unshackled young woman who seeks for something more than an ordinary existence, and gets her thrills by attending prize fights, artists' balls, and by speeding and going slumming, all the while accompanied by her very concentional fiance, who hopes to see her tire of a fast pace.

However, she becomes the captive of a couple of escaped convicts, and gets a lot of excitement out of the ensuing episodes.

The engaging Matt Moore is the hero of the piece, coming to the rescut when his lady love gets too deeply entangled in the mazes of her own contriving.

"A MAN MUST LIVE."

"A Man Must Live," Richard Dix's second starring picture for Paramount, is the feature at the Royal Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The production, adapted by James Ashmore Creelman from the story, "Jungle Law," by I. A. R. Wylie, also marks Paul Sloane's debut as a motion picture director.

A new star, a new director and something new in the line of screen entertainment—that just about sums up "A Man Must Live."

After "Manhattan" there wasn't a doubt that Dix was headed straight along the path to great popularity and his latest picture will establish him firmly right up with the foremost stars of the screen to-day.

Dix in "A Man Must Live" portrays what is said to be 'the screen's first real newspaper reporter.' As Geoffrey Farnell, Dix returns from the World War and gets a job on a newspaper, edited by a man to whom another's misfortune is his good fortune. Jeff feels the pinch of poverty. He falls upon a story that promises to be the greatest thing his paper ever ran. But it means the exposure and ruining of a fellow who served by his side in France—a man "honorably dead" in the eyes of the world.

"Well, a man must live," says Farnell, and with that we leave you to draw your own conclusions.

Jacqueline Logan heads the cast playing in Dix's support. Edna Murphy also has an important role. Others are George Nash, Charles Bever and William Ricciardi.

You'll like "A Man Must Live" better than anything Richard Dix has ever done before.

Fifty girls, attired in bathing suits of various degrees of scarcity of material, representing each of the 48 states of the Union and in addition Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands, participated in the parade, which was far more elaborate than a majority of real parades held at intervals at various Pacific and Atlantic coast resorts.

High Winds Gave Canoeists Sudden and Unwanted Bath

While the high winds, which resulted in several deaths from drowning when canoes capsized in other places, had no fatal effects here, there were several narrow escapes, several canoeists being treated to a bath right after the regular Saturday night ablutions. The Cemetery Point was a favorite spot, as the winds across the lake took the canoes coming up the river 'roadside on before the paddlers were aware of the danger. Several unlucky young men were seen to drag canoes on shore at the point and a number of beautiful straw hats will never grace a manly brow again.

It is a matter which needs prompt attention.

Wheat Turns Downward On Chicago Exchange

CHICAGO, June 22 (Canadian Press)—Influenced by a noticeable lack of aggressive buying, wheat showed an early trend downward in price today. The fact that speculative demand failed to develop was given particular attention by reason of advices at hand saying that spring wheat in the northwest was in prime condition to receive black rust infection. Chicago opening quotations, unchanged to 1 1-4c lower, July 154 to 154 1-2 and September 153 1-4 to 153 1-2 were followed by declines to 153 1-4 July, and 151 7-8 September. Moist warm weather in the corn belt led to lower prices for corn. After opening at 1-8c to 1c off September 107 7-8 to 108 1-8 the market underwent a decided set back, September touching 106 3-8.

Oats sympathized with the weakness of other cereals. Starting unchanged to 7-8c lower, September 49 3-4 to 49 7-8 Oats continued to sag. Provision traders took their cue from the action of grain rather than from hog values.

DRAGOONS ENJOY ANNUAL OUTING

Third Prince of Wales Regiment Has Comfortable Camp Here.

PLENTY TO EAT.

The Third Prince of Wales Dragoons have become settled in their annual camp at the Exhibition Park, and are now busily engaged in drilling and shooting for the general inspection, which is scheduled for Thursday morning. Training is being carried out at the rifle ranges, as there is not enough room for any extended cavalry formations at the camp grounds.

A fine body of men and horses has been assembled and the men are interested in their drills and particular about their personal appearance.

Every horse of the two squadrons is well groomed, showing the care with which the men strive to have their mounts as well set up as themselves. Yesterday Lieut.-Col. T. D. Johnston, O.C. inspected the men and the camp, and he expressed himself as well satisfied with the way the men are looking after the neatness of themselves, their horses and the campsite. No loose pieces of paper or garbage of any kind is allowed to clutter up the grounds.

The cookhouse is well kept, and cooking is done in a sanitary manner. The favorite bugle call is of course "Come to the cookhouse door" and no slackness is shown when the call for grub is heard. The men are quickly on hand with their plates, which are heaped with an appetizing meal with plenty of everything, even for a soldier who has done a hard morning's drill.

Lieut. D. A. Loomis, physical director of the Y.M.C.A. is on the grounds running a fine canteen and also taking charge of the sports. The programme of sports gets under way to-night with a soft ball game scheduled full afternoon of sport will mark the close of the camp on Thursday afternoon after the inspection has passed into history. On Friday the camp will break up and the men will return to their homes longing already for the next year's camp.

The headquarters staff, on whom so much depends, consists of Capt. M. R. Sloan, Adjutant, Capt. J. Abraham, Paymaster, Major W. T. Rogers, Veterinary Officer, Capt. E. H. Wood, Medical Officer, Lieut. R. Malane, Quartermaster.

B Squadron is commanded by Major H W. Powell, with Lieut. H. G. Mason and Gentleman Cadet Vandewater.

C Squadron is commanded by Capt C. H. Stewart, with Lieut. E. G. Johnston and Lieut. F. D. Stinson.

HONESTY AND ADS.

A Boost For Both Seen in Incident in Peterborough Saturday.

In the Saturday issue of The Examiner, the following notice appeared in the Lost column:

LOST.—Friday June 19, Nine dollars, on George Street, between Carey's Store and 500 George St., Finder please leave at 500 George St.

Two hours after the paper came off the press the money, which was in loose bills, was returned to the owner.

While "honesty tests" may do considerable in throwing a light on people's standard of living, it still remains for the incidentals of everyday life to provide the best examples of regard for private property.

This example also demonstrates the efficacy of the Classified Ad.

Have you lost anything?

SEPARATE SCHOOLS TO GO TO COURTS

Announcement at St. Peter's Cathedral on Claim For Taxes.

At the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, announcement was made of the recent decision handed down by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, giving permission to the Separate Schools of the province to take their case to the courts. For ten years past, the Separate School authorities have been claiming a further share than is at present accorded them of the taxes on public utilities collected throughout the province, quoting the British North America Act as constitutional authority for their claim. Last week, the decision of the Lieutenant-Governor gave them power to take their case to the courts of law for trial on its merits.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR WAR HEROINES

Services Will Be Held Throughout Empire When Memorial Is Unveiled at York.

On Wednesday of this week there will be unveiled in York Minster, a stained glass window, which has been restored to the memory of the nurses killed during the war. The list on the wooden screen erected at the window contains the names of 146 Canadian nurses who died in the service through the sinking of hospital ships and bombardment of field hospitals and other causes.

Memorial services have been arranged all through the Empire for the same date and it is the intention of the local Council of Women to hold a service in Peterborough at 8.00 o'clock on Wednesday evening. It is hoped that the G.W.V.A. Hall will be available for this service, in which all the clergymen of the city have been asked to take part. The nurses of Peterborough will attend in a body.

Further announcements will be made later.

BIG FLOUR ORDER FROM PETERBORO'

Quaker Oats Co. To-day Ships Out 33 Car Loads.

Thirty-three car loads of flour, 20,000 sacks in all, one of the largest consignments sent out for export by the Quaker Oats Co. for many years left Peterborough this afternoon. The flour will be shipped to Dantzig and will be transported in small river steamers up the Vistula to Czecho-Slovakia. Canadian flour enjoys a pre-eminence in the Central European market over the products of all other wheat exporting countries, including the United States, and Quaker Oats Co. finds there a large and increasing market for all its foodstuffs.

BOLSHEVIKI BUSY.

LONDON, June 23. (Canadian Press).—The Daily Telegraph reports the receipt from Tokyo of information that ominous and serious disorders have broken out in Manchuria and are spreading.

"This region," the paper continues, "hitherto under Chang-Tso-Lin's strong administration, has been the most orderly area in China, but it is believed Bolshevik agents have taken advantage of Chang's absence to provoke risings against him and foreigners, and to arouse disaffection among his troops.

BLAMES CHINESE.

PEKING, June 23. (Canadian Press). — The foreign diplomatic corps to-day sent a note to the Chinese Government, declining to accept responsibility for delays in the settlement of the Shanghai strike troubles, and charging the Chinese Government with giving an inaccurate version of the recent series of incidents in Shanghai.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS.

SHANGHAI, June 23. (Canadian Press).—Unconfirmed private telegrams from Wuchow says the Japanese Customs Commissioner has been killed there and two Japanese injured.

AMUNDSEN'S PATH.

The above map shows the route taken by Amundsen and his party on their northbound and southbound flight, prepared from official information. The route starts from Dane's Island, thence in a broad arc to the landing place at latitude 87.4, longitude 10.20 west, thence returning in a straight line to North Cape. On the northward flight the planes encountered a strong northeast wind which caused a marked westward drift, beginning about 75 miles due north of Spitzbergen for 300 miles, when the airmen discovered they were too far west and laid a new course to the northeast.

WEATHER

Although this is the 23rd day of June, there were evidences of Jack Frost's presence last night, although perhaps no particular harm was done. White frost was to be seen on the roofs of some sheds, and its presence could be discerned elsewhere. One gentleman told me he felt it unmistakably on the leaves of some of his plants. Possibly when reports come from more northern sections, such as Apsley, reports of damage may also be received.—W. P.

LOST AIRPLANE LIKELY CRUSHED

Amundsen's Trouble Started Early When Engine Trouble Developed.

FORCED LANDING.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, June 23. Canadian Press. —The lost airplane of Amundsen's north pole expedition by this time has probably been crushed by the ice in which it was left fast and parts of it may eventually drift westward and be cast somewhere on the Greenland coast.

This is the view taken by members of the Amundsen party who made an unexpected return to their starting point here on Thursday in their remaining plane.

The story told by the returning explorers showed that trouble for the party began early when the machine Raold Amundsen, leader of the expedition, was occupying with Lieut. Riiser-Larsen and mechanic Carl Feucht, descended to a low altitude, the day after the start to take observations. The gasoline motor of this machine, it was stated, suddenly developed a defect necessitating a forced landing into a narrow strip of water between two moving masses of ice.

Nobdy was hurt but the party had to move quickly and abandon everything it could not carry in the way of food and equipment and make a dash for safety. They were separated by some distance from the other plane, the occupants of which were unable to see them.

In crossing the ice in the attempted salvage work that followed, Lief Dietrichson, pilot, and Oskar Omdasl, mechanic, broke through into the water, and were rescued with great difficulty mainly by the heroic ex-of Lincoln Ellsworth, companion explorer with Amundsen in the expedition.

EVEN THE WINDS TRIED TO HOLD CANADIAN SHIPS

Algarsson and Crew Delayed at Liverpool Two Months Lacking Funds.

OFF TO ARCTIC.

Driven Up the Mersey By Adverse Winds—Depart Without Godspeed.

LIVERPOOL, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Smiling at ill-fortune which has dogged them for the last two months, the Canadian, Grettir Algarsson of Victoria, British Columbia, Commander Worsley and their little band of volunteer explorers who make up the crew of the steamer Iceland, sailed down the Mersey to the open sea yesterday, beginning an attempt to go farther North than any Polar expedition this year.

They have Amundsen's mark before them and will also have to compete against the MacMillan expedition for the honors of the North in exploration and scientific research. Algarsson has abandoned his attempt to fly to the North Pole this year in a small dirigible as he first hoped to do, and will confine his activities to geograpical survey in the direction of Gillis Land. Preparations also will be made for a Polar flight next year.

Algarsson's expedition has been delayed at Liverpool for two months for lack of funds.

When the vessel left the dock Sunday with the intention of stopping at a landing stage for inspection by the public, it was driven up river by adverse winds and by the tide. The boat was anchored for 24 hours in comparatively sheltered waters and Monday afternoon left for the North without any formal farewell or display of any description.

COLLEGIATE CHANGE.

P. C. I. Will Give First Year University Work in New Term.

Peterboro Collegiate will be ready, so far as equipment and teaching staff is concerned, for the inauguration next fall of Premier Ferguson's experiment in his capacity of Minister of Education of transferring the first year's work of the Universities to the High Schools.

In the following year the second year's work of the Universities will be similarly transferred.

This departure will greatly decrease the cost of advanced education, by the fact that aspiring youths of both sexes will obtain at home for the first two years the education hitherto only to be had by going to Toronto or even further afield.

SOLDIER FARMERS.

Revaluation of Lands in Western Canada Urged by Government.

OTTAWA, June 22.—(Canadian Press).-Revaluation of lands held by soldier settlers in Western Canada was urged upon the government this morning when a bill to amend the soldier settlement act came up for second reading in the House of Commons. Hon. T. A. Robb was in charge of the bill.

The bill provides for a reduction in liability on stock of soldier settlers. Member after member of the Progressive Party pressed on the government that revaluation of soldiers' lands in the West was imperative, that many of the men were struggling along on farms which had been sold to them at prices which were much too high and that farms were being abandoned by men who could not make a success of them.

LION SAVAGELY CLAWED TAMER IN CIRCUS ACT

Thrilling Conclusion to Animal Feature of Sparks Circus at Sudbury.

CROWD ALARMED.

Victim in Hospital—Attendant's Revolver Shots Drove Lion Away.

SUDBURY, June 23. — Canadian Press. — At the conclusion of his act at Sparks' Circus, playing here on Monday afternoon, Steve Batty, the circus lion tamer, was attacked by one of the ferocious animals, and before he was rescued the beast had inflicted injuries to one side of his body and his stomach with its sharp claws.

Batty was immediately removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, and while the extent of his injuries have not been determined, he was conscious when admitted for medical attention.

Batty had driven the animals from the show cage to their regular quarters and was walking back to the large cage to make his final bow to the audience.

One of the beasts, however, did not go to his allotted place and wheeling about, attacked the tamer from behind.

An attendant, firing five blank shots with his revolver, succeeded in scaring the beast away and the tamer was able to walk out unassisted.

A large number in the audience arose to their feet in horrow and many women screamed but all settled back in their place, for the balance of the show.

The act in which Batty performed is a particularly thrilling one, and the impending danger has been the subject of much comment among those who have seen the circus in other places, and the prediction was freely made that he would meet with disaster, as he has had several very narrow escapes in recent weeks.

Batty was knocked down and very badly mauled by the brutes during the tour last year.

Chamber of Deputies Breaks Up in Free-For-All Fight.

STRUCK COMMUNIST.

PARIS, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Today's session of the Chamber of Deputies considering the Moroccan question broke up in a free-for-all fight when the white-haired Colonel Piquot, deputy of the right bloc, rushed to the rostrum and struck the Communist deputy, Doriot, squarely in the face as the latter was attacking the French government.

Deputy Doriot staggered but clinched his assailant. Communists from the left and Nationalists from the right came climbing up the steps of the rostrum until twenty-five deputies were there milling around, wrestling and hitting each other wildly.

ORIGIN UNKNOWN.

SYDNEY, N.S., June 23. (Canadian Press).—The wash-house of the British Empire Steel Corporation at No. 15 colliery in New Waterford district was destroyed by fire early this morning. Fire also started in the stables at No. 14 colliery, but the flames were put out by a quick turnout of men stationed there. It is not known how the fire started as there were company men at both places, otherwise all colliery districts are reported quiet last night and this morning. No. 12 Local in Glace Bay district reported to-day that it had rejected the Corporation terms for a settlement of the strike.

GUNMEN KILLED POLICEMAN AND STOLE BANK BAG

Three Men Fired Point Blank at Chicago Patrolment Escorting Messenger.

JEWELS STOLEN.

Four Robbers Held Up Clerks — Police Fought Running Battle With With Others.

CHICAGO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Gunmen came out of hiding today and murdered Patrolman Patrick McGovern, in a brutal street robbery.

McGovern was the eleventh policeman shot down since January 1, and the sixth to fall in the last two weeks. His assailants escaped with $5,000 in cash wrested from the messenger he was escorting to a bank.

McGovern and George Haney, the messenger, were walking together on Sheridan Road, a busy section, when a touring car drew up at the curb. Before the car stopped, the three occupants opened fire on McGovern. Three bullets pierced his chest. He dropped to the sidewalk, feebly reaching for his gun. He died before he could remove the weapon from its holster.

Tearing the money bag from Haney in a short struggle over the lifeless form of the officer, the trio leaped into their machine and sped away.

Two hours later four men held up a jewelery firm in a downtown office building, bound and gagged the proprietor and clerk, and escaped with diamonds and bracelets valued at $11,000. An hour before the McGovern shooting, thirty shots were exchanged in a running revolver battle on the west side between three bandits and four policemen. None was injured. The bandits escaped.

CHICAGO COPS TO COPE WITH CROOKS

Messenger Suspected of Cooperation With Men With Police Records.

CHICAGO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Drastic action against gunmen and robbers was considered by police today, as they investigated the slaying yesterday of Patrolman Patrick McGovern by three men, who escaped with $5,000 carried by the messenger who McGovern was escorting. He was the sixth patrolman to fall in two weeks.

George Haney, messenger, was technically held after a search of his home revealed letters from men with police records. The police recalled that he was kidnapped in November and robbed of $6,000, and two years ago $15,000 was stolen from the safe in a theatre which employed him.

Mayor Carries Luggage For Week-End Visitors And Encourages Return

An incident which indicates the democratic views and gallantry of Peterborough officials occurred as Mayor Turner was journeying to the station at an early hour yesterday morning.

Business in Toronto made it necessary for the Mayor to catch an early train and en route he noticed a number of young ladies apparently bound for the same destination. Noticing that some were burdened with heavy suit cases he crossed the street and offered to relieve one of the fair maids of her impediment. Not wishing to show impartiality he took two and thus laden the Mayor of our city wended his way to the depot.

On arriving there the Mayor, having learned that the girls were week-end visitors, assured them of the welcome which the city extended and informed them of the position which he held, leaving the young ladies in a highly bewildered and confused state.

It is not every city whose Mayor personally conducts guests to the station, juggling their baggage as he goes.

New Brunswick's Power Project On the St. John River Approved By International Commission

WASHINGTON, June 23. — Canadian Press. — The International Joint Commission late on Monday afternoon arrived at a full decision on the application of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission for permission to establish a power project at Grand Falls on the St. John River in New Brunswick, within a few miles of the International boundary. The Joint Commission grants the power commission the necessary authority to go ahead with the improvement.

The various parties interested in the case, such as the railways, the paper manufacturing interests and the riparian owners will be protected. With regard to the question raised by the State of Maine regarding assurance of a share of the power the Joint Commission does not settle this issue. It will leave that to adjustment between Canada and the United States.

DISCUSS TAKING OVER UTILITIES IN PETERBORO'

Street Railway and Gas Plant Subject of Discussion Yesterday.

HYDRO PROPOSAL.

People Will Have Opportunity to Express Opinion, Mayor Says.

Yesterday, Mayor Turner in conference with officials of the Hydro Electric Power Commission at their Toronto office, listened to a number of suggestions which were evolved by Hydro authorities after much careful consideration of conditions as they exist in Peterboro at the present time.

The Peterborough Radial Railway and the gas plant are at present owned and operated by the Hydro Commission, and tentative plans have been outlined whereby these departments may be taken over by the city.

At present, the gas plant is paying a surplus, although the street railway system has been operating under a considerable annual deficit.

The Hydro Commission believes that by means of extensive reorganization the street railway may be made to show a balance in the right column and they have been considering a bus service to augment the present radial service which would take car of the East City traffic, while auxiliary routes may be mapped out in other parts of the city.

There would also be entailed several changes in the present switching system and the cars which are at present operating. The schedule would also be revised to accomodate new conditions.

The Hydro Commission intimated that either one of two plans might be adopted. A special commission of city men might be trained in the administrative end of the street railway business or the city might employ already highly-trained specialists of the Hydro transportation commission.

This matter will soon be brought before the Peterborough people and they will be given an opportunity to express views and give suggestions.

In the event of the city taking over these subsidiary adjuncts the Mayor state that it will be done on the debenture plan and believes that the taxes will not be in any way increased because of the change.

Stowaway Bloodhound Is Saving Ship Owners Money

NEW YORK, June 23 (United News)—"Odd" the "stowaway bloodhoun" of the new President Wilson, of the Consulich Line, arrived in port Monday with a new record. He had run down and trapped twenty stowaways during one voyage. "Odd," who has a lot of every known breed of dog in his blood, was employed some months ago by Captain Ettore Sear for the sole purpose of routing out stowaways on the ship's passages to and from Italy. Captain Sear claims that "Odd" has saved the line $20,000 in possible fines and a great deal of trouble with the immigration authorities since he has become a member of the crew.

5 MEN INJURED IN STOLEN CAR

FRACTURED SKULLS.

TORONTO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Five young men were injured more or less seriously when the high-powered stolen car they were driving on the lake shore road west of the city early this corning side-swiped a heavy motor truck and caromed into a tree and overturned. The five, all under 20 years of age, are Toronto men. Sollie Seidenberg has a fractured skull and it is thought William Baines' skull may also be fractured. Both are semi-conscious. Eric Thompson has a compound fracture of the left arm; the other two, Harry Simpson and Earl Guy, are badly cut and lacerated.

The car was stolen from the residence of R. J. Christie shortly after midnight. Following its contact with the truck it skidded a hundred feet before hitting the post. The driver of the truck was not seriously hurt. The motor car, except perhaps for the engine, is a complete wreck and parts of it were picked up 150 yards from the scene of the accident.

TRIAL OF LOOTERS.

Four Unions Reject Company's Proposal For Settlement of Protracted Trouble.

SYDNEY, N.S., June 23—Interest in the British Empire Steel Corporation's proposals for a settlement of the Nova Scotia coal problems attaches at the moment to what International President J. L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America may say.

Pending some word from him the local executive is remaining quiet and the Corporation is saying nothing. However, four of the local unions of the upwards of twenty in the province have rejected the proposals, namely, Mechanics, Birch Grove, Number 14 and on the mainland, Springhill. The heads of the local unions were supplied the copies on Saturday for their information.

Subpoenas are being issued for the investigation into the shooting of William Davis at New Waterford on June 11 and this inquiry together with the Supreme Court opening on June 30 when the trials on looting charges will be held, share interest with any developments which might arise out of the settlement proposals. There is conjecture, too, as to whether or not Hon. James Murdock or an official of the Federal Labor Department may visit Cape Breton to renew Mr. Murdock's attempts at conciliation.

Interest in Thursday's provincial elections largely overshadow the minor developments of the past few days in the general industrial situation.

Five men who are charged with interfering and illegal picketting came up before stipendiary Magistrate Nicholson Monday, at Glace Bay and were remanded until next Monday.

SEEKS $7,000,000 FROM HER HUSBAND

Five and Ten Cent Store Owner Unfortunate in His Marriages.

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press).—His first unsuccessful matrimonial venture is reputed to have cost S. S. Kresge, owner of five and ten cent stores, $38,000,000 and now he is threatened with an expenditure of $7,000,000 as a result of his second marriage.

His second wife, Doris Mercer Kresge, has filed suit in Supreme Court here for $7,000,000, alleging it to be the unpaid balance of 20,000 shares of Kresge stock which he promised her in lieu of dower rights when they were married on April 24, 1924.

The petition indicates this suit is the forerunner of an action for separation. He is 57 years old, and she is 32. The first Mrs. Kresge divorced him in Detroit last year after ten minutes' hearing in court. She is said to have obtained a settle of $10,000,000 and $5,000,000 additional for each of their five children.

The second Mrs. Kresge is the daughter of George A. Mercer of Pittsburgh. She says she has not seen Kresge since he jumped out of bed a few months ago, packed up his clothes and left.

SMOOTH STRANGER'S CONFIDENCE GAME FOILED IN CAMPBELLFORD, BUT PICTON MERCHANT A VICTIM

Tried to Obtain Money on Worthless Cheque and "Phoney" Contract.

BANKER'S COUNSEL.

Jumped Hotel Bill in Campbellford—J. I. Adams Declined to Cash Cheque.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23—It is probably Campbellford's Dominion wide reputation for prosperity both as to town and district that has lured several confidence men here within recent weeks but whatever the attraction there operations were all in vain. Two men are now in Cobourg jail awaiting trial on charges of false pretenses and conspiracy, the complaining witness being a Seymour farmer. Another man who after a brief trial found that the sucker birthrate was below normal in this town ,has been heard of as being more successful in another field.

J. A. Stewart, manager of the Standard Bank, has shown up more than one phoney proposition and helped save his clients from the machinations of confidence men. Then Chief Brown has done the rest.

New Heating Device

A man of oleaginous speech and good appearance put up at one of the local hotels recently and with considerable flourish announced himself as the representative of the National Radiation Company of La Tuque, Que. He called himself L. A. Scott, alleged that he had a plan for heating by electricity which would solve the final problem for all time. His appliance, owned exclusively by the company which he represented, was to effect such a saving in juice that the great objection to this mode of warming buildings—the cost of power—was to be removed.

Scott, it seemed, made a specialty of the heating of school buildings and over the telephone he attempted to induce Major J. M. Bygott, chairman of the Board of Education, to call a special meeting to discuss his proposition. Nothing came of these negotiations, the Major informing him that no change could be made in the heating system in High or Public school for the present.

Calls on Harnessmakers

Scott called on the local harnessmakers getting their terms for manufacturing a number of leather boxes about a foot long and eight inches wide and deep, which he said he required to cover parts of his heating outfit so as to conserve the warmth. J. I. Adams offered to make these for $3.50 each and was given an order for 66, Scott handing him a cheque for $75.00 on a bank in La Tuque as advance payment.

A day or two later Scott called on Mr. Adams saying that he was short of funds and asking him either to endorse his personal cheque for $55 or to identify him at the Standard Bank, saying that the cheque which he had given Mr. Adams on his contract should be sufficient guarantee for his reliability. When Mr. Adams refused to take a chance with a stranger Scott departed and soon afterward left town, overlooking the formality of settling his hotel bill.

Cheque Is Worthless

Mr. Adms' bank refused to cash the Scott cheque for $75 and it was sent to La Toque for collection. In due course the cheque was returned with the information that no such person as Scott had an account there. With the returned cheque came a bill for $3.10 protest charges which Mr. Adams paid. He had previously been advised by Mr. Stewart not to begin work on his contract until satisfied that the agreement was bona fide and upon this advice he acted.

Worked in Picton

When Scott left here it was supposed that his destination was Madoc but it seems that he changed his course and landed in Picton. Word has reached here that he followed the same line of operation in that town and when he asked the harnessmaker with whom he closed a contract and made an advance payment by cheque, to endorse his cheque for $70, the latter did better than that by handing him the cash. That little transaction marked the departure of Scott and the Picton harnessmaker has in his possession a scrap of paper that cost them dearly.

Mr. Adam has sent an inquiry to La Tuque and has been informed that neither Scott nor the National Radiation Company are known there.

Operated in Peterboro

Chief Brown reported the case to the police of other towns and cities in Ontario. He received word that Scott had been in Peterboro and had tried the same line there but without success.

Toadstools.

After warm spring rains the woods and fields afford many fine-flavored mushrooms which go to waste because people are afraid of being poisoned. Contrariwise, many people get bad stomach-aches, if no worse, because they rely on an "infallible" test to "tell mushrooms from toadstools." For no plants are more surrounded with terror and superstition than these suddenly-appearing elfin vegetables.

In the first place, there is no difference between "mushroom" and "toadstool." They are simply two synonymous words for the same class of objects, and refer to the shape of the plants, not to their poison or lack of it. "Mushroom" is "toadstool," and "toadstool" is "mushroom."

In the second place, and more important, there is no test with silver spoon, or salt, or sinking in water, or peeling cap, that is worth anything whatever. By any of these tests, the deadliest mushroom may appear perfectly innocent, and the best mushroom may be unjustly condemned. One must simply know what the good and bad mushrooms look like.

NARROW ESCAPE.

George Salter Trapped By Rising Water While Fishing Yesterday.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23—Sergt. George T. Salter has had many a close call on the battle fields of the Philippine Islands and in Flanders, and another of these intimate hails came to him yesterday from the waters of the Trent River. The sergeant went down to the dam to fish and as the bed of the river was nearly dry, the water having been diverted into the canal, he waded across to a small island and began operations. He had caught five fine pickerel when he noticed the water in the river was rising, the automatic regulator at Campbellford having opened to lower the supply in the canal. Carrying his prizes, his minnow pail and his tackle the Sergeant started his return journey to the mainland and soon found himself in the water breast high. He was forced to abandon all impedimenta and to swim for it but the current was so strong that he was carried helplessly down stream. He was almost exhausted when he was swept against a rock which he caught and was able to resume his journey after a brief rest. It was a sharp struggle but he reached the shore in safety, his fish and tackle being, of course, lost.

ST. ANDREW'S HAD A LAWN SOCIAL

United Church Cancelled Engagements to Take Part in Gathering.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23.—Early last evening on account of the falling rain it looked as if the lawn social of St. Andrew's congregation would have to be postponed but the clouds lifted about seven o'clock and in less than half an hour a large crowd had gathered. This kept increasing until the attendance was equal at least to that of former years.

It was a truly community function, as representatives present from every denomination in town. The social had been postponed for a week so as not to conflict with the Forty Hour devotion service in St. Mary's Church, and on Sunday Rev. Father Phelan expressed his appreciation of the courtesy. He not only advised his congregation to attend, but was himself present, with every other clergyman in town except Rev. C. F. McIntosh, the associate pastor of the United Church, who was out of town on professional duty. The local clergyman, with Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, united in extending a cordial welcome to Rev. James Grier, the new pastor of St. Andrew's church.

The members of the United church cancelled all their schedule engagements for Monday night in order to join with the people of St. Andrew's in a social evening.

The manse lawn was beautifully lighted and the arrangements for the entertainment of the guests were perfect. The ladies of the congregation maintained their reputation as caterers and the menu was up to the high standard for which this congregation is noted.

There was very little in the way of a set programme aside from selections by the Blue Family orchestra, and a number of selections rendered by the Northumberland Regiment Band. C. L. Owen led in a brief period of community singing but the major portion of the evening was devoted to social intercourse.

It is estimated that when all the returns are in that the proceeds will amount to over $300.00.

"HE'S" A MOTHER

MRS. EDNA BRITTENDALL

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—Mrs. Edna Brittendall, mother of two children, has been arrested again while masquerading as a man.

A couple of years ago she was found, in man's attire, working with a gang of day laborers.

Now she is being held as a check forger. She was neatly dressed in man's clothing, with her hair cut short, when arrested.

"It saves me from being annoyed by other men," she explained. "And I found I could make two or three times as much money dressed as a man."

PLACE FLOWERS ON MANY GRAVES

Millbrook Oddfellows Held Annual Decoration Day Service.

WAR DEAD HONORED

MILLBROOK, June 23.—The annual Decoration Day service in connection with Millbrook Lodge I. O. O. F., No. 308 was held on Sunday afternoon ,a fair representation both of the Oddfellows, and of "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, turning out for the occasion.

Headed by the Millbrook band, under the leadership of G. A. Duncan, the parade left the lodge room at 2 o'clock and proceeded to the Soldiers' Memorial in front of the town hall, where an impressive service was held. Brother J. A. Vance, P.G., and Brother H. A. Fallis, P.G., laid flowers at the base of the monument in memory of Brother N. B. Elliott, who gave his life in the great war. Brother Vance, in a brief address requested, on behalf of the lodge, that the friends of all those whose names are on the memorial, would consider that the entire number were remembered, though special mention was made of the one connected by ties of fraternity.

Brother Vance also expressed the sincere appreciation which the Oddfellows feel toward the band, which willingly gives its services each year for the Decoration Day occasion, and particularly welcomed the leader, Mr. Duncan, who has but recently recovered from a very serious illness, congratulating him on being able to resume the duties of his position.

Brother (Rev.) G. S. Gervan spoke briefly on the significance of the sacrifice made by those who are commemorated by the monument, erected "in memory of the soldiers from Millbrook and Cavan, who fell in the Great War, laying down their lives for world freedom."

At the Cemetery.

The service was continued at the Presbyterian cemetery, Brother E. Armstrong, N.G., being in charge, chaplain V. R. Hunter, P.G., reading the prayers, and the band leading in the singing of the hymns, those used including: "Nearer My God to Thee", "Blest be the tie that binds" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Brother (Rev.) F. H. Howard delivered the address at the cemetery, paying tribute to the high ideals of Oddfellowship, especially the care of the sick, and assistance given those in deep trouble, of which he has had practical experience in the course of his ministerial career. An exhortation to the living to let kindness rule in their lives, and the Spirit of God prevail, closed Mr. Howards remarks.

Committees, with a chairman in charge of each, had been previously arranged to proceed to the different cemeteries and place flowers on the graves of the deceased brothers and sisters. The list was read by Brother Wilbert Thorne, P.G., and included: Presbyterian cemetery, Brothers W. S. Given, P.G., Brother T. A. Kelly, P.G., Brother R. McMahon, P.G., Brother John Hicks, P.G., Brother W. O'Brian, and Brother Ed. Kerr. Chairman, Brother H. R. Armstrong, P.G.

Gardiner's cemetery: Brother W. W. Gillott, Brother John Bateson, Brother Harry Dunford, P.G., Brother Robert Fallis, Brother Ed. Richardson. Chairman, Brother H. A. Fallis P.G.

St. John's cemetery: Brother Thomas Hutchison, Brother John Tinney, Brother H. A. Wood, Brother F. Ritson, Brother B. Van Homreigh, Brother W. D. Leach, P. G. Chairman, Brother V. R. Hunter P.G.

9th Line cemetery: Brother Stanley Grandy.

Fraserville: Brother N. B. Elliott, Brother David Baxter. Chairman, Brother C. C. Garside. (These two included in the one committee's charge).

Centreville: Brother Fred Deyell. Chairman, Brother J. Isbister.

Bailieboro: Brother J. D. Perrin. Chairman, Brother W. Byers.

St. Paul's: Sister Robina McCamus. Chairman, Sister Irene Fallis, N.G.

The names of Sister Sarah Bentley, interred at Cherry Valley, and Brother Walter Green, interred in Little Lake cemetery, Peterborough, were also read, as the membership of both was in the local lodge.

An invitation had been sent to the Peterborough Lodges to attend the service, and a few availed themselves of the opportunity.

Brother P. I. Bentley, who read the closing words of the Decoration service, expressed the thanks of the Lodge to all those who had so kindly sent flowers, so that there was a generous supply on hand, thus materially aiding in making the special occasion a success.

Demand of British W.C.T.U. Resulted in Iowa Man Talking Overtime.

"GREATEST BENEFIT."

EDINBURGH, June 23 (Canadian Press). James Cavender, Chief of Police of Desmoines, Iowa, addressing the Women's Christian Temperance Union here, upset the convention's schedule yesterday when the British delegates refused to allow him to stop speaking.

Hailing prohibition as "the greatest benefit to suffering and weak humanity since Christ came on earth," Cavender enlarged upon the great decrease in arrests for drunkenness in Desmoines during the past decade, although he explained that instead of arresting only those "unable to wiggle their toes" as formerly, "everybody who even smelled of alcohol or was in possession of a bottle was placed under arrest now."

Cries of "Go on, this is what we want to hear," came from the British delegates when the chair called time. Cavender kept on for a while longer and arrangements have been made for him to address the British women to-morrow. He is conducting a special investigation of crime in Great Britain.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 23 (Canadian Press)—Murdered by a person, so far unknown, who used an axe as a weapon, the body of Frank Rosso, an Italian, proprietor of a confectionery store, North Vancouver, was found yesterday. Police state that robbery was the motive, as Rosso was believed to have had a fairly large sum on hand following Sunday's business.

The store in which the crime occurred showed evidence of a struggle. The body was dragged from the front of the store to the back.

STURDY BOAT GOOD FOR MANY YEARS

Ketch "Bee" Has Been on Run for 124 Years and is Still Good.

SOUTHAMPTON, June 23 (Associated Press).—The little ketch Bee, built 124 years ago and still in service between Southampton and Newport on the Isle of Wight, completed recently her 38,000th crossing of the Solent channel. The Bee began her sea duty in 1801 and is one of the very few ships remaining from whose decks men witnessed a British naval victory at sea with Nelson on board. During one period of her career she was commanded for 48 years by the same captain.

The Bee has been on the Isle of Wight run virtually all of her existence up to the present time and, according to members of her loyal crew, she is good for many years yet to come. The little craft has carried more than 500,000 tons of cargo between the mainland and the Isle of Wight, covering something like 500,000 miles, although the distance between Newport and Southampton is but 18 miles.

Three younger sister ships of the Bee have been plying the same route for approximately 50 years.

THE HEROIC NURSES.

A memorial service in memory of the Canadian nurses who lost their lives during the Great War is to be held in the G.W.V.A. Hall tomorrow evening and should be largely attended.

These services are being held throughout Canada simultaneously with the unveiling by the Duchess of York tomorrow of the National Memorial to the Women of the Empire, consisting of the newly restored "Five Sisters" Window in the famous York Minister.

Too little has been said perhaps of the great services rendered by our Canadian women, particularly by our Canadian nursing sisters during the war, and it is fitting that some opportunity such as tomorrow night's service presents should be given to make public testimony of the gratitude felt to these heroic women.

A number of Peterboro women served with the greatest gallantry with the nursing services in France, and one at least made the supreme sacrifice.

It is well indeed that there is to be a chance to show that the memory of this service still lives in the hearts of the people of Peterboro.

PREVENTING ACCIDENTS.

A Peterboro eye-witness of the drowning at Port Hope on Sunday afternoon when a young newspaper man lost his life through the capsizing of a sailboat is severe in his condemnation of the neglect of the Port Hope authorities in the matter of life-saving appliances.

The accident occurred in view of scores of spectators, who were powerless to render any assistance, for nothing in the shape of a boat was to be found anywhere in the neighborhood of the beach, and it was not until the crews of a couple of gasoline fishing boats were located, perhaps half an hour after the upsetting of the sailing craft, that anything could be done to give aid to the two men who had been its occupants.

It seems strange that no provision has been made at Port Hope for accidents of this kind, particularly at the bathing beach where the presence of a boat might reasonably be regarded as an absolute necessity.

However, as the Examiner has pointed out, there are points within the city limits of Peterboro that are similarly unprotected, although an expert in accident prevention has made recommendations to the Council, suggesting the safeguarding of such points.

That being so, it would be unneighborly, as well as uncalled for, to be too severe in our strictures in regard to Port Hope's omissions along this line.

ACCIDENT CORNER AGAIN.

"I have been working at this corner only twenty minutes, and in that time I have seen five narrow escapes from accidents."

The speaker was a Hydro worker, and the corner he was speaking of was the intersection of George and McDonnel streets.

Accident corner, they are beginning to call this spot.

The Examiner has referred to it more than once in this column, and does so again now, not only because of the remark quoted above, but because personal observation of the conditions at this corner within the past few weeks has shown that many motorists are, in spite of the previous warning, neglecting to take ordinary precaution in approaching this intersection.

A night or two ago a car going east crossed the corner at a rate of at least thirty miles an hour.

The driver got away with it because there did not happen to be a car going south on George street just so placed that it would reach the intersection as he did.

But there were actually five cars in a string approaching the crossing from the north and within a block of McDonnel street.

The fool who dashed across at thirty miles an hour was, in other words, just a second or two off a bad smash-up.

It was not his fault that he did not come much closer than that.

And there are scores of drivers who are flirting with disaster at that particular corner.

Think of it as accident corner; that may help you to be careful the next time you are in the vicinity.

MUST STOP SPENDING.

A feature of the latest warning from the Citizens' Research Bureau is the emphasis placed on the fact that it is difficult to decrease governmental expenditures in proportion to the decreased paying power of the taxpayer.

Prices of commodities generally, and, to judge from the Federal income tax returns, incomes also, have decreased since 1920, but, unfortunately, per capita governmental expenditures have shown no general tendency in this direction.

The taxpayers when their incomes begin to decrease must decrease their expenditures accordingly if they wish to remain solvent.

Governments, on the other hand, when they find revenues from any one source decreasing, due frequently to the decreased incomes of the taxpayers, instead of cutting down expenditures are prone to look for new sources of revenue.

When and if taxpayers are sincere in their demands that governments should cut down expenditures, it will be good politics for governments to cut them down.

Just so long as taxpayers clamour for reduced expenditures and, on the other hand, demand that governments shall perform new services, build new pavements, bridges, elevators, harbours or railways, just so long will the sincerity of the taxpayers' demand for economy be doubted.

In the final analysis remember, all governmental expenditures must come out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

The great need of the Dominion today is to foster a national spirit, says the Hamilton Spectator. The younger generation is being weaned away consciously or unconsciously, but nevertheless effectively, from those purely Canadian institutions which make for the preservation of our national life. The constant stream of American literature pouring into this country, with its emphasis on characteristics essentially alien to the native temperament, but seductive in its appeal, is having the inevitable effect of creating new standards and new ideals. These may not, in all cases, be undesirable in themselves; but the tendencies which they produce are certainly anything but helpful to the progress of our distinctive national aspirations.

The solution of the problem lies via the young. If they are left to their own resources, there can be only one end to the process—foreign enterprise will win over Canadian supineness. There must be an energetic awakening to the necessities of the situation. In the schools, in the patriotic and public institutions, a determined, unremitting effort must be maintained to instill into young Canadians a love for their country and a sense of their loyal obligations. In art, in literature, in music, and, above all, in the home life, the native fire must be kept brightly burning. Yet what do we actually find? Apart from the subject of literature, there is that still more potent consideration in the minds of the young—sport. Sport has always been identified with national spirit. The great British military campaigns, it has been well said, were won on the playing fields of the schools. What cricket has been to England, and still is, can only be dimly realized; but it has undoubtedly meant the preservation of all that is finest in the instincts of the race. Baseball bulks largely in the national life of the United States, and plays so great a part that the country, large as it is, is not big enough to absorb all the enthusiasm engendered. The game has overrun this Dominion of ours, to the virtual suppression of our own national game of lacrosse. It is to be greatly regretted that it should be so, and those who are responsible for the movement to restore lacrosse to its rightful place in the affection of Canadians, young and old, deserve the warmest commendation and support. The game meets all the requirements of real sport—it demands a physical condition of exceptional fitness, speed, initiative and consummate skill, and develops that most desirable quality of "team work," which is one of the best attributes of true sport. It is not difficult to get young Canadians enthused over lacrosse; but if the public remains indifferent, it is not possible to get very far. The success of the movement depends upon the patronage of spectators. There could be no more interesting or exhilarating game to watch than lacrosse, and there is no reason why it should not acquire a tremendous vogue, especially in view of the high standards insisted upon.

AS MISS MacPHAIL SEES IT.

Agnes MacPhail, M.P., is under the impression that Britain would have gone into the late war regardless of the invasion of the kingdom of Belgium. Speaking at a picnic near Peterboro, she said:

"I don't think the invasion of Belgium caused the last war. We thought so then, and some of us do now. But we cannot read authentic reports of authorities in power at that time and believe that the invasion of Belgium was the cause of the trouble, or doubt that if the staying out of Britain would have saved Belgium; she would still have gone it."

Miss MacPhail is entitled to her views, and there will be no move made to prevent her exercise of free speech, but there is something in this remark of hers that requires explaining. If she has been correctly reported, and she probably has, she believes that Britain was seeking to get into the war, and that the invasion of Belgium was not her reason for entering at all, but simply an excuse to get in.

If that had been so Britain would have been prepared. If there was nothing she desired more than a chance to get into a great war there would have been no need to send out a poorly-prepared and provisioned army in the first place; there would have been no days in which there was only enough ammunition for the artillery to fire a half-dozen shots and then cease, to become targets for the endless supply of German ammunition. There would have been no eleventh-hour scramble to turn every metal-working industry in the kingdom into an ammunition plant, nor would it have been necessary to come to Canada and United States and place contracts for millions of dollars' worth of ammunition in shops that had never turned out a shell before and that did not even know what a time fuse looked like. All these frenzied movements were not the ear-marks of a nation prepared for war and anxious to get into it.

Miss MacPhail also said that "Disputes in Europe are usually inspired by desire for gain, the tearing to pieces of some lesser country, or the looting of some less intelligent people." Would Miss MacPhail undertake to tell what Britain has gained from the war? It can be readily stated that she lost in men, commercial prestige and financial standing. She came out weakened, with a debt that was, is, and will be staggering for years to come, and against this credits from other nations that have paid nothing at all to her. She did not even urge the total destruction of Germany, but rather has aimed ever since at giving that former enemy nation a chance to work out her own salvation and get under way in business. It was Britain, too, that stood to welcome Germany to a seat in the League of Nations on an equality with other nations. Can Miss MacPhail have the hardihood to say that these are the symptoms of a nation that is grabbing and seeking to make herself rich by the tearing to pieces of other nations?

Canadian troops entered the war because they thought Britain was in the right. They could not think there was much safety abroad with a nation on the rampage that was prepared to the last degree, and that was fired with the lust for world domination. Will Miss MacPhail go to the limit of stating that the hundreds of thousands of Canadians who enlisted made a serious mistake, and that those who never returned made their sacrifice in vain because of a faulty conception of their duty?—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Bernard Shaw says that most people are not fit to live with. But, unfortunately, he doesn't tell us what to do about it.

The Nova Scotia elections this week may answer the question of whether or not there will be a Federal appeal this week.

The Senate's action in regard to the Home Bank depositors shows that the venerable members of the Upper Chamber are not among those worrying about the next election.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To Editor of Evening Examiner—

What constitutes Cruelty to Animals' Humane Societies are often asked this question. This is the brief reply—whoever inflicts upon them, or causes them to suffer unnecessary pain. What unnecessary pain is, is not so easily answered. The vegetarian believes that all slaughtering of animals for food is a causing of unnecessary pain. Whether we readers are vegetarians or not, we all know or ought to know, that a lot of our present methods of slaughtering involve an enormous amount of wholly needless suffering—a world of pain inflicted on the creatures below us.

For example.—Whoever drives a horse or works him when his condition is such that he cannot be driven without suffering is guilty of cruelty. To use a horse with part of the harness rubbing on a sore spot, or when he is lame, or to drive him over a hard pavement unshod or over icy and slippery pavements so shod that he can get no footing; to leave him standing unblanketed in cold and stormy weather; to use a bridle where the blinders crowd the eyes or are loose and striking the eyes, or the checkrein is drawn tight enough to distress him, or the bit tortures him; to use a collar so small it chokes him or so large it plays about his neck—these are some of the things the general statute is designed to prevent as cruelty to a horse.

It should be remembered, though, that there are horses that can never be made to look as fat as others, just as there are people who never put on flesh regardless of how much they eat. There are also, horses that limp from certain forms of mechanical lameness that does not cause pain any more than some forms of a similar lameness cause human beings pain. For example—boys with stiff knees, one leg shorter than the other—play ball, swim, run, and many other things with a limping gait but suffering no pain.

In general, to underfeed, overwork, fail to provide plenty of fresh water, to neglect to care for properly in any way, any animal in our possession, is cruelty.

To pass by, unheeding its mute appeal any suffering beast or bird, is also cruelty.

No one should be allowed with any animal who is so ignorant, or stupid, or thoughtless as not to know when he is causing it pain. Put yourself in the animal's place, treat him as you would like him to treat you if circumstances were reversed. He who does this in his relations to animals and men will come close to fulfilling that golden command on which hang all the law and the prophts.—"Animal.... Friend."

Dear Sir:—

In your recent Editorial of June 15th you stated the Local Branch of the Musicians Union refused to grant permission to Union members of the Symphony Orchestra, thereby preventing the Orchestra fulfilling the Park Concerts.

Either you have been wrongly informed or your imagination has carried you away. Your statement is incorrect.

Up to the present time the Officials of Union have received no communications from the members concerned, therefore had no opportunity of granting or refusing permission.

I gather from your paper the officials of the Symphony settled the matter.

Yours respectfully,
W. Townsend,
Pres. Local, 191 A.F of M.

To the Editor of the Examiner—

Sir:

The present revolution in China differs from all previous upheavals. It was originated by Chinese educated at British and American universities and is directed against missionaries chiefly. The farce presented by Christians in America has angered the intelligent Chinese and they demand the exclusion of Christians and of the Bible. The uproar over the Bible in America has revealed to the Chinese that the long-preached western Christianity is only a sham, a disguise for putting over prohibition or some other fad on them.

There can be no doubt that American and Canadian stupidity and self-will are responsible for cleaning out the whole lot from Asia in the near future. America has taught the East to bring about reforms with force. The wind has been sown and the world is now to reap the whirlwind.

It all shows that the ballot and the bullet are the same thing in the hands of the self-willed and stupid. The people are easily led and as easily driven.

What good is education?

—BOXER.

ALCOHOL

To the Editor of the Examiner—

Sir:

The report of the great national college of research in the U.S., the Carnegie Institute, as published in the Examiner of Thursday, shows that after very elaborate and long-continued tests the food-value of alcohol as an energy and heat producer is higher than all other foods except sugar, which is the source of all alcohol. If you would extinguish alcohol you would have to extinguish sugar. The tests show that the proper supply of alcohol for the human body is as high as 72 grammes per day. The human body has alcohol in it at birth.

Alcohol has more than food-value. It is a balancer and, like iodine, which was purified out of salt will have to be put back again in the human diet. Even if it had no food-value like water it would be just as necessary as water. Any interference with the natural constituents of the body invites disaster and, as the loss of iodine produced goitre and the loss of insulin produced diabetes, so the loss of alcohol produces beyond doubt the spread of that awful disease cancer. The reports of the leading cancer hospitals of the U.S. are that cancer is not produced by alcohol, and it is expected that in a short time it will be shown that the reason cancer finds its favourite food in people who take no alcohol is that the lack of alcohol in the system means that the catalytic or metabolic agency of it is absent, and the cell growth runs amuck accordingly. All the mysterious diseases of the body are now found to be due to a failure of some fluid in the glands of the body. We know that the failure of the juices of the stomach will produce death in a short time. If people will persist in blaming the apple and not Eve for her sin and alcohol and not men and women for its misuse they will find, stupid as they are, to suppose that they know more than Nature and God, that the wages of being luny is death.

A league to suppress tobacco is being formed in the U.S., to furnish jobs for idle evangelists. Yet tobacco is used for everything in South America where there is no cancer whatever. What we need is a fool-killer!

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 22 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in grain here today showed no marked improvement, as there were only a few firm bids from foreign buyers, and the market on the whole was quiet with a weaker undertone.

In sympathy with the decline in oats in Winnipeg a weaker feeling prevailed in the local cash market and prices were reduced 1 cent.

A very fair amount of business continues to be done in butter, there being a good steady demand from local buyers for all offerings which indicates that orders are still coming forward from English importers for supplies, and in consequence the market was moderately active with a firm undertone. The trade for domestic account was reported rather quiet, with sales of Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery at 36 1-2 cents per lb, No. 1 creamery at 35 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 34 1-2 cents per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 8,592 boxes, as against 10,141 for the same day last week, and 8,832 for the corresponding day a year ago. The exports of cheese from Montreal last week showed a decrease of 21,738 boxes as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 1,738 boxes with the same week last year, but the total shipments for the season to date show an increase of 51,919 boxes with the same period of 1924.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

"Where do we sleep?"

"Has someone called up by Long Distance and reserved our rooms?"

Reserve your rooms by Long Distance. It will take only a few minutes, and what a difference it may make to you!

The evening rate on Station-to-Station calls (after 8.30 standard time) is only about half the day rate. The night rate (after midnight, standard time) is only about one quarter the day rate.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24.

A rather conflicting state of affairs may be read from this day's planetary operations. While the mind may be alert as well as profound in its insight, yet there may be perplexities to unravel. It might be well to defer important change or travel, and also to be on guard against treachery and false friends. Those in the employment of others are under fairly favorable rule for recognition or preferment.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of complexity in their affairs. Their business may be kept in hand by sufficient attention and the deferring of change or journeys. Be on guard against treachery and false friends. Those in the employment of others are under fairly good rule. A child born on this day should have a studious mind, be stable and settled, but may make a better success in the employment of others than on its own account.

A THOUGHT.

ARE YOU A WOODCHUCK OR A BOBCAT?

A dog does not trade a bone with another dog, and in this respect a man does not resemble the dog.

But a man is an animal, just the same.

Take the woodchuck. In his native haunt, he is harmless; but the bobcat is a cruel beast.

Let the woodchuck get caught in a steel trap and he will gnaw off his leg to escape, but the bobcat with a big toe in the jaws of a marten trap will calmly await the inevitable. Put it this way: When caught, the woodchuck is a wonderful example of grit, but the bobcat is a coward.

The more we learn about animals, the better we understand men.

Everywhere!

Bank of England Executive Quotes Losses of Countries in Maritimte Schemes.

CRITICIZES U.S.A.

BRUSSELS, June 23—The important bearing the early settlement of war debts, has upon the economic situation of the world was again emphasized at the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Sir Alan G. Anderson, Deputy Governor of the Bank of England, speaking on shipping problems, declared that until the debts were out of the way the recovery of the languishing maritime trade would be impossible.

The British delegate bore rather harshly upon government owned shipping, asserting that it was partly responsible for world trade stagnation and furnishing figures to show how profitless it was. Australia had lost £11,000,000 on her fleet, the United States £34,000,000, Canada £6,250,000, and France £3,500,000.

"National maritime fleets," continued Sir Alan, "are an expensive luxury. Flag discrimination is more dangerous and catching than the plague. Even were these evils removed, there remained enough other ways in which governments can hamper the freedom of overseas commerce."

Sir Alan was understood by some of the delegates to allude in his reference to the United States in reserving coasting trade strictly to nationally owned vessels.

The British representative said that if the world trade returned to the point where it stood before the war there would be enough work for the entire world's tonnage, but twelve million tons of shipping was laid up, while some owners were breaking up their ships. The world carrying trade had decreased 23 per cent as compared with 1913 while tonnage had increased ten millions tons.

OLD CLAIM DISMISSED.

Montreal Law Suit Pending Ten Years.

MONTREAL, June 23 (Canadian Press).—A law suit commenced ten years ago came before Mr. Justice Surveyor for d ision in the Superior Court Monday. It was a claim of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated against the Quinlan, Robertson and Janin Company, contractors, for about $30,000, and was dismissed.

Counsel explained that since the action was instituted eight of twelve material defence witnesses had died, these deaths causing delay from time to time. L. T. Marechal, K.C., original counsel for the defendant company, subsequently went on the bench, and he also is dead.

The claim was for alleged damage to a gas main serving the city of Verdun, for which the plaintiffs sought to hold the contracting firm liable.

HIGH TARIFF WALL OR REPARATIONS?

This is Choice Given Nations By Economist Who Helped Frame Dawe's Plan.

By Webb Miller
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BRUSSELS, June 23.—The world must take its choice between protective tariffs and reparations payments by Germany, Sir Josiah Stamp, who helped frame the Dawes plan, told the International Chamber of Commerce session to-day. He warned, too, that high tariff walls could be an obstacle to inter-allied debt repayment to America.

The world he declared, cannot continue to erect tariff barriers and expect reparations to flow freely from Germany.

While favoring some protection for home industries, he held that the trend was for tariff barriers over the entire world which may "possibly hinder a real settlement of peace of general disarmament."

Mr. Kinsey moved across the court room and took the boy from his mother's arms, "wherever my boy goes I'll go," declared Mrs. Kinsey, and she followed the two out of the room and in the corridor embraced her son. When reporters saw them a few minutes later they were discussing their future.

WORLD-WIDE SUN DIAL.

BALTIMORE, June 20.—In Druid Hill Park here is a sun diel so arranged that it tells the time in all the principal cities of the world.

Mrs. Martin was a city bred woman. She knew no more about the country than cows know about milk bottles. Nature was full of wild and woolly somethings or other, that made her almost too frightened to see what it was all about. So, when we took her to camp with us, we had a contract on our hands, for it is one thing to buy a nickle's worth of gum in the corner drug store, admire the camera advertisements and say, "Aint nature grand," but it is another thing entirely to have a scared woman. They are hard to convince, and nature just "aint grand" at all, and Mrs. Martin was in that frame of mind, sitting in the dark before her tent, almost afraid to light a lamp, when a loon cried.

Now, when a loon cries at night, away in the summer places to which many of us go for our vacations, we are inclined to think that evil spirits are coming our way. This cry of the loon was what made poor Mrs. Martin think that an ice cream soda through a straw, with bright lights on the soda fountain, would be heaven by com parison. It was so strange.

I think the thing that makes these calls sound so weird is this: they generally come from far over the lake and are usually at that time of night when light has just gone and darkness is complete.

Mrs. Martin was certain that she would pack her belongings and go home the very next morning, but when morning came and she found her loons on the lake, in front of the camp, driving and laughing in the sunshine, she changed her mind, but she finds it hard to believe that these birds do this sad and mournful crying at night. Loons live on small fish, which they swim after and catch. If chased by a boat, they can dive and swim over half a mile under water and I have heard them call to other loons on other lakes, when a storm would be coming, then assemble on the big lake and play and laugh with wild delight at the breaking of the storm.

Health Rules

Here are rules for long, healthful living which Albert M. J hnson, insurance official, has drawn up:

1—Eat less, eat foods that do not fatten, eat regularly, eat what agrees with you.

2—Get married. Bachelors do not live as long as married men because their hours are less regular.

3—Don't be a professional, athlete. Heart strain is too common among them.

4—Take mild, steady exercise in the open air.

5—Don't be rich and don't be poor, because the former eat too much and too rich food and the latter don't eat enough. To deny yourself is as bad as to indulge yourself.

6—Hold your head and chest up.

7—Be religious in a true way. Church members on an average live longer because they keep more regular habits.

8—Don't be an actor. Stage life is one of irregular hours, irregular meals.

HOW SYSTEM HELPS

The word system has a stern sound, like the name of a taskmaster who keeps our noses constantly at the grind-stone. But its mission is really just the opposite.

It steps into our chaotic day, smooths out the wrinkles, and culls for us an hour of ease. It organizes our myriad tasks and brings order out of our haphazard methods. It makes head save heels, and one motion do where two were required before. It is as much needed in a home as in a factory.

To install system in your home, first make a definite plan of your work. Know what you want to do this day, this week, this month, this year.

System will help you discover how corners may be cut, how duties often separated may be combined. It will teach you to place the kitchen table near to the sink and the stove; to keep brooms, kettles, and paring knives where they are most frequently used; to do several upstairs jobs while you are in that section of the house; to make fewer trips to the cellar; to order groceries for several days with one phone call; to make ironing board and work table the convenient height; to plan menus for several days ahead; and to prepare dishes for two meals with one "session" in the kitchen.

System saves money by means of the budget; and by the purchase of one article which will serve varied purposes and which requires least effort to keep it in order. It saves the time we waste in wondering where we are "at" now and what to do next. It divides the work among the members of the family and gives each a fair share, thus making each appreciate home more.

System gives the children a regular hour for going to bed and for getting up, for work and for play, for washing, brushing teeth, and combing hair. With regular hours and regular habits, they do not have to be told every time and this makes them responsible individuals, and saves irritation.

If your life is rather hodge podge, give your attention to organizing it. See if you cannot practice system in the arrangement of the house; in the daily routine; in buying; in planning the meals; in selecting clothing; in saving money; and in physical care of the family. This will oil the wheels of your home life and make it run more smoothly.

BRANCH LINE IN POLITICS MORE THAN 30 YEARS

Nova Scotia Railway Project Has Historic Interest as Election Bait.

BEFORE SENATE.

Passed Second Reading and Was Referred to the Railway Committee.

OTTAWA, June 22 (Canadian Press).—The bill to provide for construction of a branch Line between Sunnybrea and Guysborough in the province of Nova Scotia was given second reading and referred to the railway committee in the Senate Monday afternoon.

In supporting the bill, Senator Tanner, of Pictou, made an attack on Hon. E. M. Maconald, minister of National Defence, for claiming that the Guysboro branch line had been killed last year 'by the Tory Senators." That constituted a challenge to the members of the Senate and was made more for the purpose of defeating the bill than for its success, said Senator Tanner. As for it having been defeated by the Tory Senators, the statement was "wholly untrue." Senator Tanner stated he would vote for the bill in the interests of the people of the district through which it would pass.

Speaker Bostock said he did not think the expressions used by Senator Tanner should be made in referring to a member of the Government, and quoted from parliamentary authorities to sustain his attitude. Senator Tanner replied: "I would be happy to comply with the rules of the House, but what I said was a fact."

Sir James Lougheed said that if the Guysborought line finally got built, nothing could take its place in Canadian politics for the historic and political interest it had aroused at election times for the past thirty years. He advocated that the bill be referred to the railway committee. Senator McLennan, Sydney, N.S., was opposed to the line on the grounds that it was not a part of any system. he railway work for Sydney, he said, shou'' take priority over the r lway construction proposed in the bill. Senator Dandurand, Government leader, agreed that the bill should go to the railway committee after second reading, which was then given.

SHEPHERD WILL TAKE STAND TO ANSWER FAIMAN

To Deny That He Used Typhoid Germs to Murder Nephew.

FAIMAN'S STORY.

Told in Detail of Supplying Shepherd With Bacilli—Mentioned Nephew.

CHICAGO, June 23. (Canadian Press).—William Darling Shepherd will have his day in court to-day.

He will take the witness stand and deny that he used typhoid germs to slay his millionaire foster-son, William Nelson McClintock, or that he ever dealt with his chief accuser, Charles C. Faiman.

Such was the positive statement last night of his counsel, William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien.

"This is no ordinary murder case," said Stewart. "If it was we never would consider putting our client on the witness stand.

"Here is a reputable lawyer, who has made statements to the men now prosecuting him and has nothing to fear. We maintain he is being persecuted as a step in the will fight, and he is anxious to take the stand and convince the jury of his innocence."

Shepherd will testify over the disapproval of at least one person vitally interested in the outcome of the long murder trial. Just before she joined the lawyers in a final conference with Shepherd late yesterday after adjournment of court, Mrs. Julie Shepherd, his wife, expressed a wish that he not appear on the witness stand.

"Oh, I don't think so, I hope not," said Mrs. Shepherd, when asked if Shepherd would testify.

Cross-examination of Shepherd will not be limited, and Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney, has expressed the intention to interrogate the defendant on every phase of his life since his cradle days.

Faiman had previously testified that he had explained to Shepherd the culture of typhoid bacilli and how they acted. He described himself as president of the "National University of Sciences."

Told How to Transfer Germs.

"I also told him how to transfer these cultures of typhoid bacilli," Faiman said. It was a very simple procedure. I just showed him how you take another tube and take the material from one tube and place it in the other, and they grow on the food on the agar media, which is a solid media.

We did not make any definite appointment at that time, but Mr. Shepherd said he would call me up. Along a few months later, in June or July, Mr. Shepherd called me up

MANY PERMITS FOR HOME-BREWED BEER

No Tendency Seen in Lindsay for Decrease in Amount Because of 4.4.

LINDSAY, June 23.—(Special).—That the introduction of 4.4 beer would have a tendency to decrease the number of permits issued by the excise department for the manufacture of home brew, is not borne out locally if statistics amount to anything. According to a statement made on Saturday by one who is entitled to speak with a thorough knowledge of the facts, there are over seven hundred "private breweries" in Lindsay and the surrounding district. A further statement was made to the effect that during the past month more permits were issued than in any previous month since the introduction of the O.T.A.

Kaiser and Princess Are Separated Over Election

BERLIN, June 22 (United News).—The former Kaiser and Princess Hermine, his wife, have parted temporarily, according to The Montag Morgen.

The paper intimates that Wilhelm's present melancholy is due to domestic disagreements regarding the tactics followed by the family after the election of President von Hindenburg. At the last moment, Wilhelm cancelled his holiday at the seaside, but Hermine did not alter her plans to visit a German health resort.

MESSAGE OF PURPOSEFUL LIFE TO STUDENTS OF GROVE SCHOOL LAKEFIELD AT CLOSING OF TERM

Rev. J. A. Dykes of Toronto Special Preacher at Last Chapel Service.

PRIZES PRESENTED

Fifteen of the Students Trying Matriculation Examinations—School Expanding.

LAKEFIELD, June 20.—The annual closing exercises of "The Grove" were held on Friday afternoon, June 19th. The ideal weather prevailing permitted the guests to stroll about the beautiful grounds and the green of trees made a becoming background for the bright-hued gowns of the ladies. There was a large number present, parents of boys and friends of the school.

The closing exercises were prefaced by service in the school chapel, which was filled to capacity. The beautiful service was read by the headmaster, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, and Rev. W. Cox, rector of the Parish of St. John's, Lakefield, read the lesson. The preacher, Rev. J. A. Dykes, of St. George's, Toronto, delivered a most appropriate sermon from the text taken from the gospel according to St. Mark, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

These words of our Lord, spoken not long before he left the world, have been used in hundreds of cases to induce young people to volunteer for service in the foreign field, but in the present instance, the speaker was not trying to induce the boys to be clergymen but to point a message to all which applies as much to masters and visitors as to the boys.

The first two words of the text, "Go ye," are most important and should be a personal call to each of us. God put us here to be of practical use each in some particular sphere.

We lack understanding of God's purpose for us and the world lacks it to-day, and is suffering for it.

Accelerating Pace.

In every department of life things are going on so fast it is hard to keep pace. We reap what we sow often before we realize what the harvest will be. The pace of life is growing swifter and the duration of opportunities shorter. There is no lack of ability or shrewdness but the fact remains that something is missing and life is not giving us what we desire. We can build a foundation quickly on sand, but in a bed of rock it is a difficult matter, requiring time and effort. Discontent is everywhere and has as many causes as there are groups in the world. The remedy is in the life of Christ and in His gospel. The religion proclaimed by Jesus Christ is in the gospels and is not a theory but a practical reality. In that group of twelve selected by our Lord for His work were men of all walks of life—fishermen, business men, tax collectors, etc., who caught His vision and went out into the world proclaiming His word and the world was better for their being in it. The world of science, surgery, medicine, art and law, as well as the ministry, requires men and the best they can give. Whatever the call may be answer in the best way, even as did Isaiah who, in answer to God's call, said: "Here am I, send me."

People say: "How can we tell the voice of God?" How does the telegraph operator know what is being tapped out on the keys of his instrument? He knows the code, and it is only by mastering the code of Heaven in the study of the word of God and by prayer and communion with God that we can master His code.

On the rugby field, the boys succeeds best who is able to take the advice of his coach as to the best course to pursue. Christ is the great coach for He knows the whole game and if we lay a foundation early we will know the better how to play.

In the great war, among the troops, was a young Canadian soldier from a small Ontario town, who was given a message to deliver in the front line; the danger was tremendous but the young man later reported to his captain: "Sir, your message has been delivered."

As ordinary people may not we (speaking with all reverence) go back to our headquarters and say to our captain, "Sir, your message has been delivered."

Mr. E. de C. Fletcher presided at the organ for the hymns and canticles, and for the last time this term, the chapel echoed with the clear boyish voices raised in hymns of praise to their Maker.

Presentation of Prizes.

After the service boys and guests gathered in the drawing room when the prizes were presented by Rev A. W. Mackenzie, headmaster of the school.

Mr. Mackenzie prefaced the prize giving by a brief, kindly little speech, welcoming the visitors and assuring all of the increased accommodation which next year will be available. The past year has been uneventful and very happy, but none of the boys will be more glad to break the tape on the last lap than the masters.

During the year the teams have been successful in the various sports and the old boys at R. M. C. and at Varsity have done well.

A special tribute must be paid to the Ladies' Guild, which has done so much for the school, and is going to level the football field and furnish the infirmary in the new wing. Every married man knows the value of the work of women who so vigorously see through what they undertake and the Guild has been a great benefit to the school.

The school has gradually taken up matriculation work and this year fifteen boys are trying the examination.

The new wing will not mean that there will be accommodation for many more boys as a larger school differs in conditions, and it is not possible for as much personal contact with individuals which is, at present, a pleasant feature of the school, but there will be more elbow room and more accommodation for athletic dressing rooms and shower baths, larger dining room and an infirmary. Mr. Mackenzie closed by paying a tribute to the work of the staff and to the prefects who so well supported the masters.

5 Reasons why you should wear WOODS HATCHWAY HAS NO BUTTONS

The skilfully cut shoulder-straps are carried over from the front to the back and when spread open allow you to slip the undergar quickly on or off your body.

These patented shoulder-straps stay well up on the shoulders, holding the garment in place. They cannot sag or curl, and help to make Hatchway more comfortable than any other undervest.

The back opening is generously cut and has a wide cross-cross flap which is held smoothly in place by the body and remains absolutely flat.

The effectiveness of this closed back flap is made possible by the support of a wide band of strong triple reinforced webbing, which keeps the opening tightly closed.

Our popular nainsook is a higher grade than that generally used. It contains 60 threads by 72 to the square inch instead of the customary 56, thus having a closer mesh and being more absorbent as has reached

Very dainty refreshments were served to about fifty guests.

The High School Teachers left on Friday night for their respective homes.

Miss Foster and Miss Wilson are returning to Madoc in September, but Miss Callip has accepted a position in Kenora. Miss Margaret Watson of Madoc has been appointed in her place.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson Smith of Belleville were the guests of Mr. D. E. K. Stewart on Thursday.

Carl Whytock of Montreal and Donald Whytock of Madoc are spending their holidays at Moira Lake.

OPEN AIR SERVICE WALLACE'S POINT

Rev. J. Gordon Gave Address — Junior Salvation Army Band There.

BAILIEBORO, Ont., June 22. — The Cavan and South Monaghan U. F.O. Sunday openair service was conducted for the 4th successive year at Wallace's Point, on Sunday afternoon, on the beautiful big lawn of Robert Cardwell.

The weather was all that could be desired for the occasion and about three hundred people, many of whom came from Peterboro, gathered on the spacious lawn in front of the platform to enjoy a splendid service.

In the past three years Rev. A. H. McConnachie has taken full charge of this annual event, and owing to his absence this summer his place was taken by Rev. Mr. Gordon of St. Andrew's Union Church, Peterboro.

Rev. Mr. Gordon's address was very impressive although brief. Our forefathers were all tillers of the soil, Mr. Gordon said, and I myself was born and raised on a farm, and although I might not be able to stand working steadily at farm work still I know how farm work should be done, and I will always have every respect for the farmer.

The text which the speaker chose was taken from the 19th chapter of Isaiah, 23rd verse. "There shall be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians." These countries were continually preparing to wage war against each other, but there came a prophet saying, "There shall be a highway from Assyria into Egypt, and from Egypt to Assyria, and by means of these highways Egypt and Assyria shall yet help each other." Rome could not have existed had it not been for its highways; good roads have enabled people to get acquainted as it has got them together so that they could understand each other and know that the people living in foreign countries were not enemies but neighbors. One must understand people in order that they may like them better.

The modern inventions of the present day, such as the railways, steam ships, telephone, radio, etc., are now bringing the people of different countries closer together. A man who lives 50 or 100 miles from us to-day is considered a neighbor by these wonderful inventions. We have at last got in touch with people from all parts of the world. We have at last discovered that the people of China can do things that we cannot do. This world has got to be a very small place. Twenty years ago in England it took two and three hours to travel a distance of 15 or 20 miles. God the Creator made this world small so that all nations should know each other and get acquainted. This good old world should be a neighborhood, instead of a world of strife and misunderstanding.

At present there is a row on in China and we all dread another war such as the one that has recently passed. In the last war every third man was killed and every eighth man wounded. Therefore we must have plenty of good roads so that we can get acquainted with other nations, get to know and understand them, and thus prevent strife and war. If a war does break out in China the Christian nations will be to blame; we shall surely be held responsible, if we do not see that religion is carried to China. Wonderful highways have now been built. Let us travel these highways sowing seeds of kindness and Christianity.

In closing the pastor stated that the hope of the world lies in good roads.

Salvation Army Band.

The junior Salvation Army band, under the direction of Commandant Smith, was also in attendance. The numerous selections by the junior members of the band were immensely enjoyed by the large congregation, and especially one selection led by a junior member, Master Willie Brooks, aged four years.

The secretary of the army, Mr. Leggit, rendered two splendid solos, and also gave a brief testimony along with Captain Martin. Commandant Smith stated there was one whom he sincerely missed from the congregation this year in the person of Rev. A. McConnachie, who had been a good friend of the army during the past years.

Dad Edmundson, a veteran soldier, also spoke briefly, and rendered two solos, "And that is what God and the Army, sir, has done for Jim and me," and "I can hear the Joy Bells ringing in My Heart.

Mr. Dutton of Peterboro very kindly provided means by which the boys of the band were carried to and from the Point.

Preparations are being made for a grand rally of the Young Conservatives of the south part of Hastings to take place on Wednesday afternoon, June 24, at the Agricultural Park here. A great time is promised as some eminent speakers are expected to be preesnt and address those present on the leading topics of the day.

Sports of all kinds will be indulged in, as baseball, races, dancing and everything else that is associated with a picnic.

Crops Gladden Farmers.

The farmers' hearts are glad these days, as good crops of all kinds are assured in this section, better than some places, according to reports that come from those who have been to Toronto and other sections west of this. The cutting of alfalfa and sweet clover has begun and the showery weather is not the best for that work, although of great benefit to the corn, potatoes and other growing crops, as well as the grain that is just heading out.

$150 for Memorial.

The memorial Committee were very successful in their venture of the "White Elephant Sale" on Saturday afternoon. It was surprising the quantity of articles of various kinds that had been donated from all parts of the village for the occasion. Mr. Henry Wallace was the auctioneer. He gave his services free, and realized nearly $150 for the ladies who had charge of the sale.

Presbyterians Fill Gaps.

At a Congregational meeting held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last Friday night, the places of those who held offices—and had seen fit to join the new United Church—were filled by others. This was also the regular preparatory service prior to the communion service which was held on Sunday morning. There was a good attendance at both these services. Thirteen new members were admitted to full communion in the church. Very impressive sermons were delivered by Rev. R. Simpson on each occasion. The managers of the church are to meet this week and arrange for an every-member canvass of the congregation, also to confer with a committee re the time and place for holding a congregational picnic.

I.O.O.F. Decoration Day.

The Oddfellows held their annual decoration service on Sunday afternoon. There were about 80 members of the Order in line, headed by the Foxboro Band. Brethren from Madoc, Springbrook, Frankford and other places were in attendance.

Messrs. J. M. McGee, A. Vandevoort, E. Carlisle and J. Thompson, who attended the Grand Encampment and Grand Lodge meetings at Hamilton last week have returned.

The Women's League of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met last Thursday, at the home of Mrs. David Wallace. There was a good attendance, and a lot of work was accomplished. The hostess served an excellent lunch at the close.

Berries Abundant.

Strawberries are plentiful, and selling at 2 boxes for 25c, with a possibility of being less.

Cheese sold at 19 5-16c at Belleville on Saturday. All the cheese made in this section is sold on Belleville Board. The various presidents take turns in acting as salesmen, thus saving time and expense for themselves and company. Milk teting 3 per cent butter fat in May was worth $1.38 per cwt.

Bridge is a Barrier.

The County Council will have to remove or do something else with the bridge across Squire's Creek, Mamora Road, 6th Concession, Rawdon, as it seems to be in the way of motorists. Recently a car came to grief by striking the corner of the bridge, and last week two cars had a head-on collision at the same place.

WEDDING BELLS

McNEIL—STAPLES.

CAVAN, June 22. — A pretty wedding was solemnized in Fairmount Union Church at one-thirty on Saturday afternoon, when Louella Pearl Staples became the bride of James Charles Leonard McNeil.

The church which had been beautifully decorated by the girl friends of the bride, was filled to capacity by friends.

The bride entered the church on her father's arm to the strains of the wedding march played by the groom's sister, Miss Bertha McNeil.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. S. Rorke, Peterboro, under an arch of ferns, banked with roses, peonies and other flowers, and having a large white bell hanging from the centre of the arch.

The bride wore a dress of Nile green georgette trimmed with crystals and wore a Leghorn hat. She carried a bouquet of roses and were the gift of the groom, a rope of pearls.

The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Staples, sister of the bride, was becomingly dressed in pink crepe de chine, and wore a white hat.

The groom's nephew, Mr. Tom McCamus, was best man.

The little Misses Mary Staples and Margaret Smith, nieces of the bride and groom, made charming little flower girls, daintily dressed in mauve crepe.

Miss Marie McBain sang "I love you truly."

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a ring set with saphires; to the best man, a pearl tie pin; to the flower girls bracelets; to the soloist a vanity case, and to the pianist a bar pin.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home where her father, assisted by his sister, Mrs. M. Sutton of Millbrook, received the guests.

The wedding dinner was served on the verandah on small tables. Hoopers of Peterboro, catered.

The bride's going away costume was a navy blue satin crepe dress navy blue coat, trimmed with fur, and a blue hat.

The bride and groom left by motor to spend their honeymood at Niagra, Grimsby, Burlington, Buffalo and other places.

They were followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

On their return they will reside at the groom's farm on the 8th line of Cavan.

Among the many beautiful gifts which the bride received was a large mahogany clock from the members of the Fairmount Sunday school.

CROOKDOM LOST ITS SLICKEST SAFE CRACK IN HARRY HAINES

His Regeneration is Stirring Tale That Carries a Sermon With It.

HELP CROOKS.

It Pays to Go Straight, He Says in Y.M.C.A. Office.

By GENE COHN.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Down in the Bowery's streets of furtive men they need no introduction to the steel-eyed, wiry-bodied little man in the brown business suit.

They knew him "when."

Over his head hung prison sentences aggregating four average life-times. Hidden away in various places was a good fortune in cold cash, "lifted" in some of the country's most spectacular "safe jobs." He could have taught even Gerald Chapman a thing or two.

Crookdom lost its slickest safe crack when Harry Haines "went straight."

With all his intelligence, his super-knowledge of locks and combinations and safe doors, Haines had found the crooked trail a short one with an abrupt ending.

And that is why you'll find him today in the Bowery Y.M.C.A. in a well-pressed business suit, his shoes carefully shined, his grey-streaked hair neatly brushed, his face clean-shaved, his mind fresh and his heart free.

It literally pays to go right even if being good results in what may appear to be the humblest of circumstances," he says. "Even a half-way job is more profitable than a criminal's game. A crook never has money long. It's a millstone around his neck and in one way or another it sinks him. Going right has moral and spiritual value, but it also has business value and that's what every youngster should think about when he contemplates going wrong."

He is spending the rest of his life trying to tell the Bowery drifters what he learned from years of the most varied experience. And the beginning of his story is always this: "There is no such thing as a man who has gone too far for reclamation."

Across his path come scores of men who had heard of him in the underworld, some of them dope-number specimens that he is able to help. But the largest group and the group he is able to help most is composed of homeless men of the metropolis. They are not crooks—just temporarily out of luck and friendless. They are the material out of which criminals are made unless a Harry Haines shows them a better way.

Harry Haines can "appreciate" their point of view, giving them straight-from-the-shoulder facts.

From the platform or in a quiet corner he tells them his story with the Scotch burr buzzing through his words.

"I ran away from Scotland when a boy and went to sea," he relates. "Coming to this country a stranger from first cabin gained my confidence. He said he would look after me. He got me a job as office boy in one of the big safe companies. And then, one day I learned that I was being coached by the head of the biggest crook ring in America. He was training me from the bottom.

"While employed at the safe company I was to steal blue-prints of safes, I was to learn the combinations and study the locks and report.

"Before long I knew safes inside and out and I was pointed to as the smartest beginner in the game.

"In the years that followed there was no part of the country in which I didn't work, no underworld where I wasn't known, no safe job too big for me.

"The years went by and my reputation spread. It got so that I would be called in on big jobs. They would send me from one city to another. The cops of the nation were looking for me. The Bowery became my hang-out. I had made political friends through election dealings of the old days.

"Finally I must have had something like $250,000 in loot. But, like the rest of the underworld, I had learned booze and dope and they were getting me. The bosses of crookdom knew it. They spent big money on cures. And I did jail time, but never got off the stuff. Nothing would have done any good if I hadn't happened to pass a place where a Salvation Army band was singing one night. That set me thinking. There was a spiritual and moral regeneration. I gave God a chance and got on the right trail at last.

"I went to Teddy Roosevelt. He was then just swinging into the mayor contest. I laid my whole story before him. I had something like 260 years to serve in prisons. Teddy looked at me completely nonplussed. Finally he said that if I really wanted to go straight he would help me. First I would have to give back every cent I had stolen and then I had to take such medicine as the law wanted to give me. But he promised to help.

"Well I gave back the money and I went to jail for a 15-year stretch.

Harry Haines, who quit blowing safes to lead crooks to better lives.

But I had found the cure—it was in the freedom of heart and mind that came with the birth of religion. When I got out of prison I was cured. I had mighty tough luck and a hard struggle, and finally I attracted the attention of people interested in fighting the dope menace. That's how I came at last to the Bowery Y.M.C.A."

Into this famous institution, known as the "College of a Second Chance," hundreds file in from the streets of furtive men. A full stomach is an immediate need and they get just that at once. But even this material help is preceded by contact with that friendly personality, Harry Haines.

Next to a bath, then to a doctor for examination, then to a huge cot-filled room. As they sleep their clothing disappears in a canvas bag and down a chute to a huge sterilizing container. If the clothing has possibilities it is patched and pressed; otherwise new clothing appears. The homeless man awakes in the morning to find himself clean, with pressed suit and shined shoes. A barber is at his disposal.

"To revive or stimulate the latent self-respect, first make the man look respectable," is one of the Haines aphorisms.

Then to a psychologist who tries to help the man get a good mental picture of himself. This expert in life guidance, once a college man, also was one of those familiar with the rounds of the underworld. He, too, "knows." Next is a job placement bureau and finally a job.

"And the poorest job is preferable to the richest haul," concludes the Gerald Chapman of his time.

ORDINATION OF ELDERS MARKED UNITED SERVICE

Continuation of Inaugural Services at United Church in Millbrook.

ATTENDED BY 400.

Elders Charged to Set Example of Virtuous Life.

MILLBROOK, June 23.—A congregation numbering about four hundred people gathered at the United Church on Sunday morning when the inaugural services, which began the previous Sunday, were continued, the chief feature being the ordination and induction of the ten elders elected during the preceding week, the solemn and impressive service concluding with the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Owing to the special character of the service some of the usual items were omitted to prevent undue length, and although no sermon was preached, the intense spiritual atmosphere which prevailed throughout, the solemnity of the charges as the elders were called to their high office, the response of about thirty new members who were received into full connection on profession of faith, left an impression not likely to be soon effaced from the minds and hearts of those privileged to attend.

Rev. Joseph Wilks led in the opening prayer, and the choir selection, "I'll arise and return to My Father," Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan, and Mrs. H. W. Johnston taking the duet, being listened to with much pleasure by the congregation.

The hymn, "Come, Holy Ghost, our hearts inspire," made an appropriate introduction to the ordination service which was conducted by Rev. G. S. Gervan, the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, and Rev. J. Wilks joining with him in the laying on of hands as the ordination prayer was spoken: "We solemnly ordain you to Christ's work, in the Name of Jesus Christ, and in the Name of the United Church of Canada."

"As members of the session, the elders form the highest court in connection with each church, under the Basis of Union, and are pledged to set an example of a virtuous, and religious life, having the discipline of the local congregation, the order of service, the passing of the elements when the sacrament is observed, and the care of the sick, under their charge."

The elders ordained and inducted were: T. H. Aiden, J. Whitfield, P. Stinson, H. W. Johnston, W. E. Ball, G. E. Burnham, W. Fred Fallis, A. J. Brown, H. A. Earle. Dr. A. Jemison, who had been ordained some years ago in the Presbyterian church, joined the others for the reception of new members, the pastor taking charge of this part of the service.

The administration of the sacrament followed the plan adopted at the Arena for the great Inaugural Service on June 10th, and proved a suitable arrangement, though along rather unaccustomed lines, for the congregation on Sunday morning.

About fifty members of J. B. Hall Lodge, A.F. & A.M., attended divine worship in the United Church on Sunday evening, Rev. F. H. Howard preaching an appropriate sermon.

Mr. Howard is a member of the Masonic Order, and so was able to speak with understanding of the ideals and possibilities which may grow out of this branch of fraternalism, the life being the test of whether the members are living up to the demands Masonry makes upon them.

A quartette, "What a Friend we have in Jesus," was sung by Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, and the choir number, "The Recessional," was exceptionally well rendered.

The usual votes of thanks were passed upon returning to the Lodge room. Worshipful Brother, J. H. Yake, is Master of the local Lodge.

Personal Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas, of Cavanville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hooton, Fairmount, on Sunday.

Next Sunday, June 28, Rev. R. T. Richards, who has been pastor for three years on the Cavan circuit, will preach his farewell sermons. Mr. Richards is succeeding Rev. R. Bamforth at Mark street church, Peterborough. Rev. J. Totten is the new pastor coming to Cavanville.

The many friends of Mrs. A. Ferguson, who reached her 90th birthday on Wednesday of last week, will regret to learn that she has since been seriously ill, with practically no hope of ultimate recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Harrington leave on Tuesday morning for Toronto, continuing their trip by motor to Niagara on Wednesday where Mr. Harrington will attend the annual convention in connection with the Hydro-Electric Company. Mrs. Harrington will visit friends in Buffalo for a few days, and on the return trip they will call at Freeport to see her brother, Mr. W. Forsyth, who has been in poor health for some time.

Mrs. C. C. Garside, and two children, Audrey, and Freddie, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Garside, Peterborough.

Former citizens are being welcomed back to the village in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Collins, and daughter, Bernice, who have motored up from Clearwater, Florida, and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith, and other friends in Cavan, Port Hope and Peterborough. They will remain in this neighbourhood until after the celebration of the Twelfth of July which takes place in Millbrook this year. Mr. Collins is most enthusiastic about the growth and attractions of the "Sunshine State," from a financial, as well as other viewpoints.

A progressive, and popular, citizen during his residence in Millbrook, Mr. Collins has evidently found added friends and prosperity in his new home, and amid other surroundings.

Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Price, of Orillia, are guests of her mother, Mrs. R. J. Doak. Mr. R. A. Doak, of Toronto, was also here over the week end.

Miss Nellie Hetherington is visiting friends in Marmora, and will be absent about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Elson left last week on a trip to the West, and will visit their daughter, Mrs. C. Sled, of Regina, Mr. Elson going on to the Coast before their return.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones, of Toronto, motored from the city and were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatherly, last week.

Fallis Line appointment withdrew its service on Sunday on account of the Decoration Day service under the auspices of Millbrook Lodge, No. 308, I.O.O.F., at which the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, was one of the speakers.

Rev. B. Greatrix, of Peterborough, preached in Centreville Presbyterian church on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Doxee, Sr., went to Toronto on Monday, called to the city through the unexpected news of the death of her eldest sister, Miss M. Kent.

Mrs. McBrien, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. Wilson, motored to Emily on Sunday and will visit her neice, Mrs. J. Fee.

Miss Marie Kenyon, who attended the Continuation School here during the past year, staying with her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, has returned to Odessa.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, and Miss M. Needham, motored to Port Hope recently and were guests of Miss E. Hansman.

Mrs. W. H. Byam is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. Graham in Cartwright. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam expect to motor over this week, bringing Mrs. Byam, Sr. home with them.

"Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, is holding its annual picnic at Harwood on Thursday, June 25th, cars leaving the Lodge room at 1.30 p.m. The committee in charge includes: Sisters Z. Bentley, P.N.G., C. Harkness, V.G.I., Fallis, N.G., J. Henderson, Treas., A. Ball, and M. Garside.

Miss Nugent, missionary on furlough from India, and Mrs. J. Lowes, of Bethany, are guests of Mrs. R. Howden, 12th Line, Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker, of Los Angeles, California, are guests of her mother, Mrs. R. Lowery, Fallis Line.

The Ladies' Aid of the Continuing Presbyterian church is holding its annual garden party, which this year takes the form of a strawberry festival, on Tuesday, June 13, at the home of Mrs. John Miller, Fourth Line, Cavan.

The Millbrook band will be in attendancce, and a truck service, conveying those wishing to go from the village, is being provided.

The annual garden party, under the auspices of Centreville Continuing Presbyterian church, will be held on the grounds next the manse on Thursday, July 2nd. A good programme will be provided.

International Military Organization Seeks World Control, Says Unamuno

MIGUEL DE UNAMUNO.

By MILTON BRONNER.

PARIS, June 23.—"I am convinced that today there exists in the world a powerful reactionary military international organization of which people have heard practically nothing.

"It is opposed to liberty of the press, of speech and of assembly. It sets its face like flint against all popular movements.

"It's main aim is to maintain the supremacy of armies and in this it enlists all the rapacious elements in big business and society."

The man who said this to me is the greatest living Spaniard, Miguel de Unamuno. Great as an essayist, as writer of tales, as poet, as critic, as scholar, he was the Dean of the University of Salamanca.

Rescued From Exile.

He was shipped off by Rivera, the military dictator of Spain, to the barest and loneliest of the Canary Islands without even the formality of a trial.

From there he was daringly rescued by Henri Dumay, the American-trained journalist who directs the great French newspaper, "Le Quotidien."

Now he lives an exile, in a quiet little hotel in Paris.

"This organization," resumed Unamuno speaking at various times in French, German and English, "has made its power manifest not only in Spain, but in Greece, in Jugoslavia, and over in Chile, South America. The keen militarists of Germany undoubtedly belong to it and likewise the monarchist officers of Hungary.

"In my country the real master is the army. The master of the army is the military junta. And the master of that is a general who is rarely seen in public, because he is both physically and mentally deficient. Rivera is merely his puppet. So, of course, is King Alfonso.

"The king the world knows is a figment of fiction. He is a creation by imaginative writers.

"The real king, who was a posthumous son, was reared by a mother who was virtuous in such a way that she made virtue hateful. Spaniards have never been able to consider Alfonso as a Spaniard. He is a Bourbon and a Hapsburg. Therefore, he does not look upon Spain as his patrie (country), but as his patrimony.

Calls Alfonso Coward.

"He is a coward, not physically, but in his attitude toward the big national interests and in his subservience to the military junta.

"You must understand that everything that is mostly wrong in Spain is due to the military and once again to the military.

"Men in uniform have their strong arm on all activities of the nation. To think for yourself is a crime. To express your thoughts is another. Especially if your thoughts lean toward liberalism, no matter how modest.

"Spain is wondering what will happen when Alfonso dies. He's sickly by inheritance, but his children are worse. They are defective. They would be mere playthings in the hands of the junta.

"The soldier masters of Spain can't even bear the idea of a democratic king such as England, Belgium, Sweden Denmark and Norway have. They know that such kings are merely hereditary life presidents of the states of which they are the heads and they know that in such constitutional kingdoms the Parliament is the real master.

"And the Parliament springs from the people, not from the inner cliques of an army."

MADOC FIRM GETS BRIDGE CONTRACT

Quinlan and Robinson Book Two Million Dollar Order.

MADOC, June 23.—Quinlan and Robinson, who own and operate the sand and gravel pit at Fuller and who are well known as Montreal construction contractors, have recently booked a contract for the erection of a two million dollar bridge at Montreal. Owing to the Government's condemnation of concrete work in connection with heavy structures it became necessary to resort to the old methof of using stone for such purposes. To meet this requirement they have purchased the north stone quarry at Crookston from Thomas Blue, and now have a crew of men there putting the quarry in shape for operation. As soon as the latter can be made ready for the cutters there will probably be from one to two hundred men engaged at Crookston.

A CITY OF CAESARS THAT WEAVES YOUR BRUSSELS CARPETS.

Tournai on the Scheldt is one of the cleanest and most picturesque cities of Belgium. It was a city and fort in Caesar's day when it was called Civitas Nerviorum. To the modern business man, it stands chiefly for its coal mines, but I like to remember that the Flemings who brought the art of carpet weaving to Europe from the Saracens in the times of the Crusades, started here to weave the first Brussels carpets. Many of them are still made by the weavers in their own dwellings. It was also from Tournai that Napoleon secured the golden bees that he sewed on his imperial robes as symbols of his rise to power, which were taken from the tomb here of Childeric I who died over 1500 years ago.

WHERE THEY SEE THE GHOST OF SHELLEY.

A century has shown great changes in Viareggio where Shelley's body was washed ashore and Trelawney and Byron watched its cremation. It was then by all accounts a lonely shore. Today it welcomes a hundred and fifty thousand visitors a season. Puccini and La Duse spent years of rest here, even as also did Paoline Bonaparte in an earlier day. The same balsam pines that fed Shelley's funeral pyre still stand. The natives, I found, maintain that they often see the ghost of Shelley sailing the sea or walking that shoreland. Viareggio is at the foot of the Luni Alps where the white marble mountains of Aronte rise, mountains that furnished Michael Angelo with his purest marbles.

EPIDEMIC NEEDED.

LONDON, June 23.—During the periods of sleeping sickness, when the patient is conscious, he is much more quick witted than normally, a British physician insists. "An epidemic in the House of Lords would do a world of good," he added.

PRENTER MADE HIS NAME IN CANADA

CLEVELAND, June 23.—William P. Prenter, who succeeds the late Warren S. Stone as acting president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is one of the quietest but most influential men in the labor movement today.

As first vice president and treasurer of the brotherhood he has been in full charge of all financial arrangements for years, and the expansion of the brotherhood's cooperative bank into a $140,000,000 institution was as much his work as it was Stone's.

Prenter was born in Philadelphia. He moved to the northwest at an early age and became a fireman on the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

After serving his apprenticeship he became an engineer, and graduated into the executive ranks of the brotherhood some twenty-five years ago.

Quiet and uncommunicative, he never attained the national prominence that Stone knew, but when the brotherhood began to expand its banking activities, gaining a foothold first in Cleveland, later in New York, and then in many other cities, Prenter was the man behind the scenes who did a good share of the planning.

He is now the oldest ranking officer in the brotherhood, and at the time of Stone's death was cashier of the bank.

Prenter is 68. He lives in a comfortable home here with his wife and daughter.

His subordinates describe him as a man who works 12 hours a day and shuns publicity.

TIMELY TIPS ON OUTDOOR LIFE

By MORRIS ACKERMAN.

When gathering wood for the camp fire it is well to remember that white, yellow and black birch, red or hard maple makes a quick, hot and flaming fire.

Hickory, oak, white ash and rock elm will provide long-burning coals.

All green pines, cedar, hemlock, and white elm should be avoided.

Avoid cutting trees for fuel. Use down timber wherever possible.

Green elm, poplars, maple and red oak make excellent back logs.

Lord Jellicoe at Banff Station, Wembley

PHOTOGRAPH shows Sir George McLaren Brown, European General Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, shaking hands with Lord Jellicoe at the miniature of Banff Station at Treasure Island, Wembley. Lord Jellicoe officially opened Treasure Island on Wednesday 13th May and after making a speech from the "Golden Hind" proceeded to Banff Station where he was met by Sir George McLaren Brown. Together with his son, Lady Jellicoe, and his party, and accompanied by many of the attendants of the Exhibition, costumed as characters from children's plays and story books, such as Robin Hood, Robinson Crusoe, Cinderella, Alice in Wonderland, Peter Pan, Puck, Tweedledum and Tweedledee, etc., he took a trip on the little model of the Canadian Pacific train which goes round the Island.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful Flapper marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . . but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford to pay her wages. Gloria has swamped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an actor. She lends him money, and finally, when he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. He spurns her, telling her he has just married a Russian actress. Then Gloria tries to land a job as a chorus girl and fails. Discouraged, she comes home to Dick.

He takes her back, but not as his wife. One night Gloria leaves him to work late at the office with SUSAN BRIGGS, his secretary. While Gloria is at home alone, the house is robbed. Dick doesn't get home until almost morning. Gloria wonders if he was with Miss Briggs all that time. But next morning she learns that he was at the house of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, who had killed himself because of the love affair that existed between his wife MAY and JIM CARWE.

Gloria goes to Dick's office to tell him about the robbery, and to make one last attempt to win him again.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

"Who did all the heavy housework? Not you, I know," Dick said, unbelievingly.

But his eyes swept Gloria from her untidy head to the hem of her bedraggled apron. He had never seen her like this before. . . .

She certainly looked as if she had been working!

"Who do you suppose did it?" she snapped at him. "The army of servants you've hired to help me? . . . Of course I did it, and I'm all in."

Every bone in her body ached. She dragged herself wearily past Dick into the kitchen. "Dinner's ready," she threw over her shoulder as she went.

The meal was done to a turn. The chicken was richly brown, the vegetables tender, and the salad chilled and crisp.

With the first thrill of housewifely pride that she had ever known, Gloria set the dishes down on the spotless tablecloth.

Marvelling, Dick sat down to eat.

"I hope everything's as good as it looks," he said doubtfully. Gloria sent him a look of fury.

"It is!" she said.

And so it was. As he ate, Dick's sense of wonder grew. Had his wife become an expert cook over night?

But when Gloria brought in the dessert, the mystery was solved for him. "It was Mother, bless her!" he said. "No one in the world makes chocolate custard like that but her!"

"It was not your mother," Gloria said with honest indignation. "I made that custard all by myself! All your mother did was to sit out in the kitchen and give me orders. . . ."

Dick nodded. "Sure, I knew she bossed the job," he said. "You couldn't cook a meal like that alone, on a bet! . . . What's she doing? Giving you cooking lessons?"

Gloria grunted.

"She's been giving me orders, mostly," she answered. "She said she'd come over and help me out. But all she did was to cut a lot of your best roses and strew them all over the house! . . . She's some kid! She ought to be a gang boss! She'd make a peach. . . ."

"I wish you wouldn't speak about my mother in that way, Gloria," Dick interrupted. He looked annoyed.

"Oh, blah, I'll do as I please," the girl answered, bitterly. "I'm tired of being slammed all the time. It's time I began to pan a few people myself. . . . You treat me like a doormat, and expect me to like it!"

"If I've treated you like a doormat I'm sorry," Dick apologized. He got up and walked out onto the front porch.

That was just like Dick! Whenever he was getting the worst of an argument, he got up and walked away. He was simply maddening!

Well, this was one time when he wouldn't get away with it! She'd walk right out after him, and say what she had to say to him!

Suppose the neighbors did hear it. . . . ? They probably had a few family battles themselves, at times.

But just as Gloria opened the screen door to go out, Dick walked down the front steps and around the house to the backyard.

Gloria ran upstairs and put a touch of rouge on either cheek. Then she followed him out to the garage where he was tinkering with the car.

"Dick," she said in a quiet, even voice, "I can't go on living like this. For three days I've been doing my housework just as well as I know how to do it . . . and I'm willing to go on with it, if you'll only treat me decently. Won't you, please?"

Dick turned toward her. He had taken off his coat, and rolled up his sleeves. His hair was ruffled, and there was a smear of grease across his cheek. He looked boyish . . . absurdly boyish.

Gloria took her handkerchief from her apron pocket, and rubbed the grease from his face. Her hand dropped to his shoulder and stayed there.

"Dick," she said, "I'm so unhappy . . . ."

She looked up at him. In the dusk her eyes were black and luminous, her mouth like a dark flower. "I want you to kiss me, Dick," she murmured, "Let's be friends. . . . It's terrible, living at arm's length, this way. . . . ."

"'Two falcons in a snare,'" Dick quoted. He moved a step or two away from her.

"Now, just what do you mean by that?" Gloria asked sharply. She hated Dick to quote things that she didn't understand from the books he was forever reading.

He shrugged his shoulders. "It doesn't matter," he said, "But I know, myself, that we can't go on living this way. It's impossible. I see it, too."

Gloria dropped. She braced herself against the side of the garage door.

"Well, what are we going to do about it?" she asked. "Do you want me to leave you? Do you hate me as much as that, Dick?"

He did not answer at once. He took his old pipe from his pocket and filled it.

"It's like this, Glory," he said finally. "I don't hate you, at all. But Wayburn . . . he's there, between us, somehow. You see, I can't ever kid myself again that you care about me. I know that you'd be in New York with him now, if he'd wanted you to be there . . . A man doesn't forget a thing like that. No one but a boob like me would ever have had you in his house again, on any terms. . . ."

"But I didn't do anything wrong!" Gloria defended herself. "What are a few silly kisses?"

Dick sneered.

"Yes . . . I know that's the way you look at it," he said, "but no decent woman would let any man but her husband kiss her, Glory. She wouldn't soil herself that way."

Gloria tossed her head impatiently. "Oh, you're so old-fashioned," she answered. "Think of all the petting that goes on at wild parties. And it doesn't mean a thing."

"That makes it all the more rotten, then," Dick pointed out. "Love isn't a game or a toy. It's bigger than any of us. . . ."

He broke off abruptly. And when he spoke again his voice was quite cold and matter-of-fact. "Come on, let's go into the house. The mosquitoes are beginning to bite out here." He stooped to scratch his ankle.

They went in. Silently Gloria cleared the table, piled the dishes on the sink, and put the clean milk bottles out on the back porch.

Then she went into the living room to join Dick. But he didn't look up. He went on reading as if he were all alone in the house. . . . He was utterly unaware of Gloria.

"Well," she said after ten or fifteen minutes had crawled by, "You treat me just as if I were a piece of furniture or something."

Dick closed his book and laid it on the table. "Did you want to talk to me?" he asked.

"Yes," Gloria answered. Her words came with a rush. "I've been thinking over what you said about StanWayburn having come between you and me . . . . And yet you keep Miss Briggs working in your office when you know she's in love with you . . . and that I want you to get rid of her!"

Dick gave a short laugh. He picked up his book and opened it.

"If every man, whose wife wanted him to, would fire his stenographer, half the girls in the country would be out of a job tomorrow morning," he said. "No, I'm not going to fire Miss Briggs. Why should I? . . . She's a good worker. I'd have a hard time filling her place."

There was a flick of finality in his voice.

"Very well, you keep her," Gloria answered. "I should worry. I'm going home to my mother tomorrow, anyway."

Dick made no sign that he had heard her.

"You don't care if I go, do you?" she asked, hoping he'd say he did care.

"I want you to do whatever you think will make you happy," Dick said gravely. "You know you can stay here as long as you like. But if you'd rather live with your mother and father, I'll take care of you. I'll send you all the money I can spare, every week. So do as you please."

Gloria tried to smile . . . a poor little smile that barely lifted the corners of her mouth. Her throat swelled, and her eyes ached with unshed tears.

"All right, old dear," she said, trying to make her voice light and careless But a high note of agony ran through it

Incredibly she went straight to sleep, her worn-out body throbbing in every nerve. And at dawn the next morning she awoke.

She sat up in bed and looked around her room . . . the familiar room with its wide window-seat, its flowered cushions, and silver picture frames.

Tomorrow morning she'd be waking up in the shabby little bedroom in her father's shabby little house. Shuddering, Gloria thought of it . . . the brown spot on the ceiling where the rain had leaked through the roof, the blistered woodwork, the battered iron bed.

How she had always hated that little room that was too cold in the winter, too hot in the summer! And how utterly glad she had been to escape from it, when she had married Dick Gregory!

A tear slid down Gloria's cheek as she thought of all the mornings of her future . . . the lonely awakenings in that little room.

She lay with closed eyes and heard Dick stirring in his room, whistling in his bath, singing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" as he dressed.

Later the sound of his car leaving the yard. Then silence. She would not see him again, she knew. . . . .

The doorbell rang. Gloria slipped her naked feet into bedroom slippers, threw a kimono around her, and ran downstairs.

Through the net curtains on the front door, she could see May Seymour standing on the porch. What in the world did May want, coming at that time of the morning?

"Hello, Glory, how's every little thing with you?" she asked, as she came into the hall. Her face was white as paper under her black crepe hat, and there were faint mauve marks under her eyes.

"Fine as silk," Gloria answered, borrowing the brave phrase that her father used when things were at their very worst. "And you . . . How are you, May?"

May tried to answer. Then, suddenly, she collapsed upon a chair, buried her face in her hands, and burst into horrible, shaking sbs.

She opened her handbag and took from it a folded bit torn from a newspaper.

"Read that," she sobbed.

ANNUAL PICNIC BETHEL SCHOOL

Sunday School Scholars and Friends Enjoyed Good Afternoon of Sport.

EAST EMILY NEWS

EAST EMILY, June 23.—The members of the Bethel Sunday school held their annual picnic in Mr. E. Storey's grove on the fourth line on Wednesday afternoon. An exceptionally good time was enjoyed by all present. The races were enjoyed by the younger members of the school.

The main event of the afternoon was a girl's soft ball game between the Millbrook girls and Bethel girls. The score was 16 to 6 in favor of Millbrook.

The Bethel boys played a good game of ball with the Omemee ball team on Friday evening.

The annual garden party at Bethel church will be held on the church lawn on Wednesday evening, June 24.

Boarding House Opened.

Mr. Wilbert Fee and daughter, Francis, have moved to their summer boarding house at Fee's Landing, near Cavans' bridge on Pigeon river.

Mr. Fee has erected a new boarding house and can accomodate quite a number of guests. Mr. Fee is also having a counter for selling ice-cream, candies and soft drinks.

Static electricity is the principal cause of fire in cotton gins during the ginning process.

SHEPHERD WILL

and we made an appointment for luncheon at the Atlantic Hotel. He said he wanted to see me about some things and I went down there just before noon and we had luncheon in the grill room of the Atlantic Hotel and resumed our former discussion on the bacteria and kept talking about reviewing some of these things we had spoken of before. Also we were talking of family or personal affairs.

Mr. Shepherd told me that he had an adopted son, that he was guardian of the boy, and I told him it was nice for him, as he did not have any of his own, and he said that the boy was worth lots of money, probably one or two millions, and he told me what his name was. His name was Billy, and we spoke about him. I asked him how old he was, and he said he was becoming of age now, and I told him it would put him in kind of a bad fix to lost him when he becomes of age. I asked him about if he arranged any will for him, and he said he had arranged his will, that he could do practically as he wanted with it, and I told him it was very fortunate for him to have an adopted boy, especially one with a lot of money.

I told him that that was about the only way you could give them to be anywhere near sure of an infection, because if they were given with food they wouldn't be very liable to catch in the body, and also told him that all persons were not susceptible to the disease, regardless of how virulent it is, because they have natural immunity to them, and in that way some survive and some don't.

Explained Bacteria.

I told him definitely how the bacteria worked in the body, how they cause death by three or four definite means, either by settling in the pyers patches in the intestines and perforating them and causing a peritonitis death, or by an eroding into the arteries and veins of the intestines and producing death by hemorrhage or just by general toxemia of the germs throughout the body.

I also explained that nobody would hardly be able to diagnose the disease for at least two weeks after the onset because the symptoms are so varied and indefinite and irregular in varying degrees. He asked me about the treatment of the disease and I told him that it was hard to treat except that the patient had a strong natural immunity to the disease and he asked me about the vaccines that were used in the army and I told him that if used as a prophylactic they were successful but as a treatment were not used very much because they didn't do any good. The best treatment was just hygienic, natural methods.

The meeting was just of a short duration and I left him at the Randolph street entrance and I walked straight up to the Briggs house, where a friend of mine lived and he went the other way. He told me he would call me later and tell me how things were progressing.

So, about two weeks later or three, probably Mr. Shepherd came out to the university and asked me how we kept our records there, and I told him that we didn't have many records to keep, outside of the letter files and records of the graduate students, and they were standing right by the entrance in the hallway and our letter file is right alongside of the desk there. I told him that that is all there was to the letter file. He said that he thought I had something in there that was of great importance to him, but I didn't think for a moment what it was; I didn't consider the file of any value, because he left it lying right in the hallway.

I told him to take whatever he wanted in there, any letter, and so he opened the file and turned to the letter "S" and took out the letter that he had written to the university requesting the information about the course in bacteriology and the apparatus—bacteriological apparatus.

Gets $50 For Letter.

I told him that it was not very common for somebody to come in and take something out of the school, and he said that he would take care of me all right. I told him I didn't like that taking care of. I told him that I ought to be getting something out of this thing, and so he gave me $50 for the letter—and told me that the other matter was going along nicely; and I told him we ought to get down to some definite arrangement on how I was going to come out of this proposition, and he asked me what I thought it would be worth. I told him I ought to get a fourth of it, a fourth of the million dollars; and he kind of laughed at it, like it was a lot of money, or something. I told him I had a lot of money sunk in my place there and I didn't like to take chances on something irregular if there wasn't plenty of money in it. It would be worth my while.

Asked For $200,000.

I told him it ought to be worth a couple of hundred grand, anyhow, and he said that was too much money, so we finally compromised on $100,000 for me if everything was all developed all right.

I asked him how long it would take to find out about those things and he said it would not take more than three or four months for him to get the money. I think that was all at that visit at the university.

A counle of weeks later Mr. Shepherd called me up and I made an appointment with him at the Hotel Morrison. I met him in the lobby and he seemed a little disturbed. I asked him how things were going and he said that Billy had taken sick and was very sick, and he told me—I asked him if he had gotten a doctor for him and he said he had Dr. Stolp. I asked him about the treatment and he said he just gave him some cathartic.

He did not speak about the vaccine at all. We did not sit down there. It was just a few minutes we were in that blind lobby that is facing toward Clark Street, not the entrance on Madison. He told me he would see me soon.

I did not hear from him then until, I think, Billy was buried, at the end of the week, or Friday or Saturday, and this was the first of the week; after that he called me up and said that he was leaving the city for a few weeks, that he was going south for a few weeks and that was all there was on that telephone conversation.

Says Shepherd Was Confident.

Then these things came out in the paper, and he came back from down south, and called me up, and I told him I was getting kind of scared of this thing, and I asked him if any of the help, if any of the servants around there knew about it. It seemed a lot of people knew about the case, and he said that they did not know about it, and that there was nothing to worry about, everything would be all right. That was after he came back from down south.

Defence Witness.

It would have been almost impossible for William Darling Shepherd to preserve deadly typhoid germs for a year and then inoculate Billy McClintock, Dr. John Fischer, a bacteriolist, testified yesterday.

"Utmost caution and expert handling is necessary to keep typhoid germs virulent," Dr. Fischer said. "I doubt if Shepherd could have done it."

Dr. Fischer's testimony was used by the defence in an effort to discount "Dr." C. C. Faiman's confession that he gave Shepherd typhoid germs and told him how to use them to cause Billy's death. Faiman said he gave them to Shepherd about a year before Billy's death.

"You might as well believe that you learn to fly an airplane by the correspondence method," the witness said, "as to teach a man to handle typhoid germs."

Dr. Fischer then testified that Faiman had once been in his employ and that his reputation was "very bad."

Shepherd seemed pleased with Dr. Fischer's testimony, but was somewhat restless, anxious to take the witness stand in his own defence.

FIRST WATER TRIP OF PUBLIC NATURE

Oddfellows' Triple Link Club Had Outing on Saturday.

(Contributed.)

The first water picnic of the season, available to the general public, took place on Saturday last. There had been an all-day outing on the previous day up the lakes, under the auspices of the Normal School authorities, when, for a wonder, the merrymakers had a fine day—for it is almost proverbial, now, that it always rains hard on the Normal School picnic day.

But Saturday's outing was open to the world at large, provided the aspirant had the wherewithal to buy his or her passage.

The Start.

This trip, which was organized and engineered by the Triple Link Club of the Oddfellows, was, of course, carried out by our good sturdy old friend, "The Stony Lake," with its capable and genial Captain Scollard in command. Another well-known pleasant face, too, was on board— I allude to Mrs. Godfrey, who was acting as stewardess—and a capable hand she is at this work.

The start was effected from the George Street wharf at 1.30 p.m., where we had embarked a large number of passengers. A few minutes took us across to the Mark Street wharf, where we embarked still more, and eventually at the street railway wharf we took on a further contingent. By this time the sturdy little steamer had on board as many as it could comfortably carry.

The Weather.

It was a delightful day for such an outing. The sun shone gloriously all the time. It was warm, without being too hot, for the temperature was at summer heat and there was a pleasant cooling breeze blowing; altogether, had the weather been made to order, it could not easily have been surpassed.

The Trip Down.

The trip down the river was simply delightful; the foliage was lovely, all looking so young and fresh, added, doubt less, by the recent rains. Everything was at its greenest in this, which is to my mind, the loveliest part of summer. It may not be so hot, as we nticipate later on, but it is the freshest and most welcome part of the summer time.

The Destination.

The objective of the trip was Wallace's Point, which of late years seems to have become quite a favorite rendezvous. For there are plenty of swings, slides, switchbacks and seesaws for the kiddies, good lounging places for the aforesaid kiddies' elders, and ample sport grounds.

At three o'clock we drew up alongside the quay and our party landed. Some began an afternoon tea, and in a half hour's time the sports began. There seemed to be prizes for everyone.

A Girls' Ball Game.

The proceedings opened with a well contested baseball game played between the young ladies of the Canadian General and the Canadian Woollens, which eventually resulted in 36 to 12, the C. G. E. aggregation being the winners. The pitchers were Grier and Langton and the catchers, Mortimer and Todd respectively, C. Veeman acting as umpire.

The Programme.

Then followed a large number of field sports, of which the programme is given below:

Flat race, 30 yards, six years and under, girls—1, Gertrude Lemmings; 2, Alien Scholes; 3, Frances Webb.

Flat race, boys, six years and under, 30 yards—Ray McWilliams, Jimmie Slaughter, Herbert Vallery.

Flat race, 40 yards, girls, eight and under—Margery White, Ruth Ellis, Hilda Freeman.

Flat race, boys, eight and under, 40 yards—Allin Fair, Clifton McKinstry, Billy Petrie.

Flat race, girls, 10 years and under, 50 yards—Annie Williams, Emily Hemphill, Audrey Craig.

Flat race, boys, 50 yards—Tom Wallace, Orval Craig, Geo. Scholly.

Girls' potato race, in two relays, 50 yards—Irene Slaughter, Audrey Freeman, Ethel Muir. Marion Pilling, Florence Clements, Lillie Ellis.

Boys' sack race, 50 yards—John Young, Teddie Moore, Fergus Mougraw.

Girls' shoe race, 50 yards—Audrey Freeman, Pearl Thomas, Marion Pilling.

Girls' three-legged race, 50 yards—E. Muir and M. Hemphill; D. White and E. Batley.

Boys' three-legged race, 50 yards—Romeo Mougraw and Oswald Price; Ted Dormer and W. Merrett.

Boys' boat race—D. Blagrave, H. Wright, H. Mowry.

Pipe and needle race, 65 yards—L. Ellis, M. Gaskell.

Flat race, married ladies—Mrs. Hepburn, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Wyatt.

Ladies' foot race, 75 yards—M. Evans, C. Taylor, M. Hemphill.

Flat race, married men, 100 yards—M. Gaskill, Mr. Hodson.

Flat race, fat men, 100 yards—E. Stanley, W. Hepburn, C. Mowry.

Donkey race, 50 yards.—J. Warde, J. Marshall, C. Mowry and W. Merrett.

Nail Driving Contest.

Then came a contest in nail driving. Four-inch spikes were to be driven into a piece of scantling, and the test was to see in how few blows the nail could be driven home. The results varied from 9 to 34. Miss White and Miss Taylor did the trick each in nine blows, and Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Clarke and Miss Langton doing it each in ten strokes.

After the sports supper became the order of the day. Some partook of their meal on board, others on shore. Personally, I was the guest at the captain's table and right heartily I enjoyed the good fare provided by the able stewardess, Mrs. Godfrey.

The Homeward Trip.

At 7.45 the final whistle sounded and in a minute or so our steamer was headed back towards the city. On the trip back, although dancing was in great vogue, sheets of popular songs were distributed and there was a lot of community singing of well-known old songs—English, Irish, Scotch and Plantation—which sounded very pretty and sweet in the evening breeze.

Dancing and Singing.

Barely had we started on our outward journey when dancing began and right merrily the couples tripped it to music supplied by the Fallis orchestra, and while the orchestra was at their supper, willing, able and nimble fingers kept the piano going. Some clever step-dancing was also contributed by some of the young ladies present.

Everybody seemed very happy, and all appeared to have thoroughly enjoyed the day's outing.

Home Again.

In due course we reached our respective home wharves and at 9.30 we finally docked alongside the familiar George Street wharf, made our various adieux, and separated on our respective homeward ways, after a delightfully pleasant afternoon's water picnic. May such a one happen again soon.

The Committee.

The committee who so successfully carried out the day's enjoyment were Messrs. G. Hillier, R. A. McWilliams, C. Mowry, J. Lancashire, W. Fair, R. J. Martin, George Benton, E. Stanley, R. S. Cotton, &c.

Great credit is due to those gentlemen for their unremitting care and attention to the comfort and welfare of their visitors, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to them.

The same applies to the officers and crew of the Stoney Lake who, as ever, were constantly doing all in their power to promote the happiness and comfort of those who so appreciated their efforts.

WOMAN TELLS HOW FARM GIVES LIVING

Operates Canning Plant, Has Pure Bred Cattle and 2,000 Chickens.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 23. (Canadian Press). — Showing how a woman could make a living for herself from each of a number of lines on the farm, Mrs. Aitken, of Beeton, Ont., told of her own experience on a forty-acre farm in an address given before the Manitoba Federation of Women's Institutes.

Among other work of the farm, a canning plant which turned out 10,000 cans of fruit and vegetables last year; a herd of pure-bred Jerseys and 2,000 chickens were three lines which had proved very profitable, Mrs. Aitken said. The produce for the canning was all raised on the farm and a ready market had been found for everything. Opportunities for women in agricultural work were to be found in all the lines of which she spoke, the speaker averred, poultry, cattle, gardening and canning being profitable and interesting.

LADY HAS NEVER BEEN IN COACH

Interior of Train Still a Mystery to Toronto Woman.

TORONTO, June 23. (Canadian Press)—To have lived within a short distance of Toronto for more than forty years and yet to have never seen the interior of a railway coach or engine has been the rather unusual experience of Mrs. Joseph George Fisher. Mrs. Fisher was born in the town of Napanee 41 years ago this summer. When a babe of three weeks her parents moved to Toronto. They travelled by team to Kingston, there embarked on a sailing vessel for Toronto, and upon arrival in this city travelled overland to Fairbank. During Exhibition time, Mrs. Fisher has several times decided to see the inside of a train when coaches were being placed on the siding, but on each occasion the coaches are too crowded for her. She takes an annual summer vacation, but travels by motor.

Threaten Coal Strike Throughout Britain

LONDON, June 23.—A possible general strike in the coal mining industry in Great Britain is being considered. Unless some compromise is reached in the next few weeks a strike or a lockout is almost certain, with resultant peril to the trade of the country.

The Miners' Federation will hold a final conference of delegates from all Britain in London on July 3 to consider action. The owners will submit their proposals for a new wage agreement to-day and the Miners' Executive Committee will debate it.

The basis of the proposed settlement is five days of eight hours, with six hours on Saturday, making a total of forty-six hours weekly, instead of forty-two as at present. The owners further propose to discontinue the 14 per cent. increase in wages which was granted because of the decrease in the number of working hours, due to the lessened production and the establishment of a seven-hour day. The old agreement expires on June 30. The owners plead decreased profits and also say the present wage scale keeps prices too high.

LOST HIS FOOT ON TAKING OUT POLICY

Suspect That Man's Wife Cut Off Foot to Get Money.

VIENNA, June 23. (United Press) —Emil Marek's foot and the way he left it are the subject of a police investigation.

Marek is a prominent inventor and electrical engineer. Recently he applied to the Anglo-Danubian Lloyd Company for $400,000 accident insurance and got it. The morning after the policy arrived Mrs. Marek put in a claim, alleging that Emil's foot had been cut off by the blades of a machine upon which he was working.

Medical examination indicated that the foot had not been lost through accident, and established that Emil could not have cut it off. The police are endeavoring to determine whether or not Mrs. Marek chopped off the foot.

FUR EXPERTS PRAISE SKUNK

Census Recently Taken of Fur Bearing Animals in British Columbia.

VALUES GIVEN.

VICTORIA, B.C., June 23. (Canadian Press).—This is the age of the skunk and muskrat, according to fur experts, and British Columbia's game board is using its best efforts to not only conserve these species but to develop them so that the province may share in the high prices that are now offered for them in the world's fur markets.

Muskrat and skunk, however, are not the only species that are given the attention of the game board. One of the reasons why these two varieties of fur have gained such prominence is that some of the others have become practically unobtainable and have ceased, consequently, to be a factor in the market. Each year British Columbia is becoming more important as a source of fur, because of the gradual depletion of the supply in other regions.

According to a census recently completed, there are approximately 725,000 muskrats in this province at present, the value of the pelts sold last season being $905,000. The beaver population is placed at 122,000 with the value of the season's fur takings at $1,764,000.

Population figures for the other fur animals and the value of the takings are as follows: Fisher, marten, mink, otter, weasel, 289,000, $3,265,600; coyote, lynx, wild cat, wolverine, 43,250, $849,650; bear, 11,000, $101,570; raccoon and skunk, 28,000, $106,000; silver, cross and red fox, 5,200, $181,026.

Besides these there are on farms 665 silver foxes, 29 cross, 29 red and 80 blue foxes; 71 beaver, 92 mink and numerous other animals.

WAR DENOUNCED BY LITHUANIAN

Princes Radziwill Says No Disarmament Until Political Security Exists.

AT HOME LADY ALLAN

MONTREAL, Que., June 23. — Canadian Press. — "We can have no disarmment unless w have political security, which is a truth that few people will deny," said Princess Radziwill of Lithuania, who is a member of the secretaries of the League of Nations and head of the information bureau in connection with the League at Geneva, when speaking of the aims of that body before a large gathering of women at "Ravenscrap," the home of Lady Allan. "Everyone can help in the league," she said. "Every one who stands off and scoffs, can count himself as a criminal and expect his children to curse him in time to come. Everyone knows how Canada fought and sacrificed in the Great War. Let us kill war. I know that the league cannot do it without the help of Canada."

The princess had nothing but praise for the work of Sir Herbert Ames, a Canadian, who is actively engaged in the work of the league. "His great ability as financial director," she said, "has enabled us to erect a new administrative building on the economies that he has brought about."

HOW TO KEEP WITHIN THE INCOME WHEN YOU ARE TEMPTED

HOW TO KEEP WITHIN THEINCOME WHEN YOU ARE TEMPTED.

MRS. YOUNG BRIDE—"Oh, dear it's so hard to keep within the budget! I've just spent my quota on these stockings with the printed serpent instep, and there are leopard prints and hose with Egyptian heels!"

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Bathing Caps

NEW YORK, June 23 (United Press)

A cross-word hound sat on the ground
And gazed at a bathing belle Dressed in cross-word cap and cross-word wrap
Her outfit was a "sell."

The puzzled chap was in a trap
And he knew it fully well
The squares on her hips
But these words on his lips—
They ain't done right by Our Nell!"

If you haven't a head for cross-word puzzles perhaps you have a head for the cross-word puzzle bathing caps. With a three-toed sloth represented by three white blanks on one's skullcap, one is as amusing as a Follies favorite. Rubberized capes in cross-word design offer untold agonies to the puzzle-hounds who are sure to be parked on the beach with pencils in hand.

But—there is just one fly in the ointment. The designers who made the puzzle togs failed to supply us with the questions. And sometimes they place more blank squares together than there are letters in the alphabet.

Not only are these caps and capes of rubber carried out in the black and white square idea, but reds, greens, blues, etc., are popular colors. A white rubber cap has red squares alternating with white ones with puzzle design used as a border.

Many of the season's frocks are also using cross-word designs in less conspicious motifs. Some of themre quite effective since they are softened by a multiplicity of colors. Scarfs likewise utilize the puzzle designs and recently the cuffs of gloves have gone in for the cross-word effect.

One surely hopes that hosiery with small cross-word clocks will not be over-popular, since they are rather hideous things to say the least. In fact, any clocked stocking is unbecoming to the leg, since the clock reminds one of a "run" or accentuates the anklebone.

DAINTY HOUSE FROCKS

Cretonne or Chintz Provides Attractive Material — Simple Style.

During summer, the housewife will want to have a few dainty yet practical frocks that she can slip into in the mornings, ones which will serve as pretty porch dresses as well. No longer does one wear the ugly calico house dress that was entirely lacking in style and beauty, or the homely old-fashioned gingham that our mothers knew.

For an attractive house frock, there is nothing so lovely as cretonne or chintz, and in the old English flowered patterns, one can fashion some delightfully quaint models. A simple one-piece frock that slips on over the head, with short sleeves and oval, round or square neck, is becoming and easy to launder.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

She Describes a Summer Ensemble Suit.

Today was rather warm, and Gaby and I decided we would have to do something to wake up a bit.

A glance at the clock showed me that lunchtime had arrived, so Gaby and I hastened out to get a bit to eat and take a walk.

"Let's go over to Park avenue for our walk," I suggested to Gaby and away we went.

We had no sooner turned the corner than Gaby said:

"Now I consider this woman coming toward us the coolest-looking, most smartly dressed person I have seen to-day."

I looked in the direction she indicated and saw a very pretty-looking young person coming toward us. She was dressed in green.

"You can't get around it, green is the loveliest color one can wear in the summer time," I commented.

"That's why I say people should avoid it in the winter," Giby added. "It is not as attractive then as later Spring and summer are assuredly the green seasons."

By this time the young lady was very near us. I saw that the cool costume was an ensemble and that the material was crepe.

There was braid in double rows at neck and hem and above the cuffs. I could see that the green frock beneath had a square neck, and this was also edged with two rows of the braid.

"That touch of braid in yellow, red and silver is simply lovely against the green background," Gaby remarked.

"It was stunning," I agreed.

"I also liked the flare front to her coat and the fact that an inch or two of the tighter skirt of the frock showed beneath the coat," Gaby remarked.

"And I loved her darker-green silk hat," I added.

"We must make green frocks for hot days," Gaby said.

This Green Suit is Trimmed with Tri-Color Brand.

Plated utensils for general cooking on the range are not a wise choice, as the plating ultimately wears through, particularly if you use abrasives for scouring.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BETTY FINDS A NEW WAY TO REMEMBER HER LESSON.

When Gocomeback, the wee little travel elfin found Betty sitting on her porch step, he had to laugh at the expression on her face.

Then he hopped right down upon the page of the book she held in her lap. "What's all the cross looks about?" he asked.

"Excuse me," and Betty wiped a tear from her blue eyes. "I'm sorry you found me cross this morning. But, honest, Gocomeback, I just can't remember my lessons. Tomorrow we have a test and I have to write about Mexico, and I know—"

"Just a second," said the wee little travel elfin. "Come along. I think I can show you through Mexico and tell you how you can remember the trip."

Before Betty knew what was going on, she found herself seated on the book, beside the elfin, sailing through the air.

They sailed so fast that Betty was astonished when Gocomeback began to steer the book towards the ground.

It was a strange place. M st of the folks wore great broad-brimmed, tall, pointed hats, and gay colored blankets around their shoulders.

"This is Mexico, all ri ht," called Gocomeback, "and would you believe it, those blankets they are wearing are woven so that neither wind nor water can get throu h them. Those mountains you see in the distance are just filled with mineral wealth. Most of the people here are miners."

"That's a Queer Thing."

"Oh, look at the low, flat houses!" Betty cried as the book floated up again over a little town. "And what in the world has that fellow on his back?"

"That fellow, with a tank strapped to his back?" the elfin asked. Betty nodded. "Why," continued Gocomeback, "that's a water vender. Water is very precious and water venders carry those tanks of water from one house to another."

Every way Betty looked she could see little mules loaded down with things. The streets were so steep that horses and wagons couldn' make them, so Gocomeback tol! Betty.

At last they sailed over Mexico City, with its broad streets and its lovely flower markets. Everyone seemed to be wearing a flower. The street cars were drawn by little mules that led to the plaza or main square. Here were quite a number of public buildings and towering above them stood the magnificent Cathedral.

"That is the richest Cathedral in all the world," said Gocomeback as they hovered over it. "It has more gold and silver in it than any other place of worship in the world."

"There's a queer thing," cried the elfin, as the book sailed on over the Cathedral to the meadows beyond. "See that fellow in the big hat hitching himself along over the grass? Well, he is cutting the grass, and the only thing he has to do it with is a piece of glass."

Soon after that Betty was sitting on her own doorstep. "Now when you go to bed tonight put your book under your pillow and before you close your eyes think over every thing you have seen and you'll remember it." Then, like a puff of smoke, Gocomeback disappeared.

Betty tried Gocomeback's idea and it worked fine.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

June is the month of roses and brides. Here is a timely recipe for bride's cake, from Mrs. G. A. Goheen, 293 Dalhousie street:

1 lb. flour.
¾ lb. butter.
¾ lb. sugar.
¾ lb. Sultana raisins.
¾ lb. currants.
¾ lb. eggs (weighed in shell and preferred overweight than under).
¼ lb. blanched and chopped sweet almonds.
¼ lb. chopped mixed peel.
½ oz. mixed spice.

For the almond icing which finishes this cake, allow one-half pound ground sweet almonds to one pound of icing sugar. Mix together and put in oven until hot, then mix in whites of four eggs to one pound of icing sugar. Mix in enough tartaric acid to cover a five cent piece.

Home-Making Helps

By Wanda Barton

Art centers, tea rooms and gift shops, as well as the various exchanges for women's work, are all collecting and telling of the value of our grandmother's bed quilts. The least observant can see that the prices have jumped in ways that would have made grandmother's eyes open wide could they have known what was going to happen to their handiwork.

The wonderful quilting is being copied from the old quilts for modern use, not only on quilts, but on gowns and trimmings. For years we have looked upon the quilted silk robes for lounging and Winter comfort as strictly Chinese. To-day Southern handicrafters are making the robes with newer style, or revival in style, quilting on robes of silk, crepe de Chine, cotton crepe, and even velvet. The quilting is done in the favorite rose pattern that lends itself delightfully as border trimming for the robes. And they are also cut in modern shape and design, so that they fit buyers according to sizes.

But the quilting is not confined to wearing apparel by any means. Bedspreads are made in six-inch stripes, blue and white, pink and white, and other colors. The quilting is done in white stitchery on the colored stripes, which is very effective.

Another fad is the curtain with the quilted borders. Any desired material may be used and the border is quilted and added. Sometimes the stitchery is done in the contrasting color, which makes the work stand out in a very noticeable way. In some instances there is a thin sheet of cotton batting put under the quilting to give the flowers a raised appearance. This idea is especially effective in the silk trimming.

Another idea is to applique cutouts from cretonne or from designs made in linen. Then when they are in place, the old serpentine quilting surrounds them and makes a most unusual trimming. One such quilt had a finish of crocheted scallops around the edge, done in silk. It can be done, however, in mercerized cotton.

The Business Girl

Georgette underwear is easily laundered and can be ironed while damp.

Close the eyes and relax for a few moments each day at three o'clock and the business day during warm weather will not seem so long.

Tub silk frocks are fashionable. They can be kept dainty during warm weather by frequent laundering.

A light luncheon and a long walk at noon will make eyes bright and complexions clear.

Cuff protectors of glazed chintz are decorative and practical for the girl who works at a typewriter.

A few fresh flowers will add a refreshing note to the office during warm days.

GOOD MANNERS

The sympathetic listener is the delight of delights. The person who looks glad to see you, who is seemingly eager for your news, or enthralled with your conversation, is the one to whom the palm for the art of conversation would undoubtedly be awarded.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie: I am a girl nineteen years of age and am engaged to a young man three years my senior. He says he still loves me and I think I love him.

I also have been going out with another young man whom I met a year ago. He says he loves me and wants me to marry him. I think I don't really know which I love best.

Please advise me what to do.

—Lonesome Orphan.

Lonesome Orphan: If you doubt your love at all, you are not in love, my dear, and it would be unwise for you to marry someone you do not love. I would suggest that you write your fiance explaining the situation and asking his permission to break the engagement. Then continue the friendships you made before your engagement, take an active part in the social life if your community, and forget about the problem of love for a while. Then when you really and truly fall in love you will be too certain of your emotions to question them for an instant.

Weddings

VINCENT—WOODHEAD

WELLAND, June 22.—This afternoon, Rev. Archdeacon Perry, at Holy Trinity Church, united in marriage Miss Clara Alberta Woodhead, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woodhead, Burgar Street, to Cecil Vincent of Maple Avenue, Miss Dorothy Butler of Peterboro acted as bridesmaid, and Thomas Woodhead, brother of the bride, acted as best man. After a honeymoon trip to Peterboro and other points, they will take up their residence on West Main Street, Welland.—Toronto Globe.

DAVIS—GROSE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Parsonage of St. James' Methodist Church, at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Hazel May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Grose, 231 Princess Street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Dorsey Lloyd Davis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Davis, Lansdowne Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jas. D. Richardson.

The bride looked charming in a dress of sand colored flat crepe, trimmed with knife pleating, and wore hat to match. She carried a ternoon train for Akron, Ohio, of the valley. Her sister, Miss Marion Grose, who acted as bridesmaid, wore pale yellow Georgette, with hat to match, and carried pink roses.

A brother of the bridegroom, Alvin Davis, acted as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Davis left on the afternoon train for Akron, Orio, where they will reside. The bride travelled in a printed crepe dress of rust color, with coat to match, trimmed with red fox fur, and rust color felt hat.

The young people were recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts.

A PRESENTATION.

Mrs. P. Gosselin Received Tea Service on Occasion of Her Marriage.

Mrs. P. Gosselin (nee Mary Hanna) was taken very much by surprise the other evening when she was the recipient of a beautiful tea service from the staff and employees of the Colonial Weaving Co., Ltd., where she has been employed for the past six years. The following address was read by Miss Edith Jenkins and the presentation made by Mr. James Heffernan:

"We ask you to accept this small gift as a token of our appreciation for your kindly and genial disposition during your long service with the company. We sincerely wish you in the step you have just taken a long, happy and prosperous life.

The address was signed by Edith Jenkins and Gladys M. Rew, for the staff and employees.

The bride, although taken by surprise gave a very suitable reply.

What Will the New "Seal Walk" Do to Women?

Beholding the Doom of the Double Chin, Science and Beauty Join in a "Hurrah" for the Freaky, Flippery Hop, the Latest Innovation from Paris

OUT of Paris, via Piccadilly and Fifth Avenue, a new walk has wafted into America. Soon, unless American women have changed materially their habit of "following the style," the new walk will be the smart thing on every Main street from coast to coast. Already doctors, beauty experts and mere gossips are asking—what will it do to women?

There are excellent reasons for the question. Walking always has been a contraversal subject, for styles in walking have been as varied as styles in clothes. From the mincing step of Colonial days down to the free flapper stride that came in with bobbed hair and sports clothes, the carriage of woman has been vitally important to her.

As late as a year ago the "debutante slouch" was causing a rumpus that resounded in pulpit, classroom and home. Noted educators declared the "slouch" was ruining the health of American girls. The slumped shoulders, concave back and protruded abdomen called for by the "slouch," were—in the opinion of many physicians—much worse for flappers than cigarettes or cocktails. Before any organized "anti-slouch" campaign was waged, however, the "slouch" passed along with last year's birds' nests.

The coming of the "seal walk" might be the signal for another uproar of protest were it not for the fact that, however freaky its name, the "walk" seems destined to help women rather than to hinder them in the matters of health and beauty. It will, say the doctors, sound the doom of the double chin if it does nothing else.

The "seal walk"—or the trained "seal slide," as its more juvenile exponents call it—was not invented as a caprice. It was demanded by the change of style in women's clothes. As the spread of French heels years ago resulted in a new fashion in walking, so the new gowns of 1924 call for a radical change in the way one wears them—and walks in them. No longer, in brief, does the costumer cut the cloth to fit the woman; he cuts the woman to fit the cloth.

It seems that the approach of the Fall season found the Paris designers in somewhat of a hole. The new frocks with their slender sleekness and gracefully rippling flares could not be displayed to full advantage by any of the old, accepted walks. And so, anatomy meaning nothing in the young life of Mistress Fashion, it was necessary to devise a new mode of ambulation.

It is reported that many hectic hours were spent over the Parisian conference tables at which, with vexed brows and jagged nerves, they feverishly sought the new way in which women must go if the millions of dollars invested in costuming were not to be ill spent.

Mannikins of New Bond Street, Practising the "Seal Walk" and Not Quite "Getting" It. When the Walk Is Correctly Done, the Body Is Not Pushed Forward

The "Free Stride" of British Women Shown Here by Mrs. Troyte-Bullock and Her Daughter, Miss Cicely, at a Local Racing Meet, Is Destined to Go, Declare Parisian Modistes.

Diagram Illustrating the Advantage of the "Seal Walk" to Women with Tendency to Double-Chin. At Left, the Head in an Ordinary Position, with the Double Chin Prominent. At Right, the Head Lifted as in the "Seal Walk," with Detailed Diagram of the Neck Muscles Stretched So That the Double Chin Disappears.

One idea discarded, another tried, twisted and found wanting. And so it went until all concerned were near the breaking point, and then, no one clearly remembers just how—some declare it was a miracle—the "trained seal slide" was born.

Still more days of nerve-racking toil ensued while mannikins were trained in the new step. Home gymnastics were necessary to limber tight muscles. Long hours were devoted to patient posing before great pier glasses, many weary miles were walked as the mannikin slowly stepped the length of the long rehearsal hall, turned and slowly came back, only to turn again, repeating the performance ove and over until they were able to appear, triumphant, at the Paris openings.

Entirely different from the slumping shoulders, flat chests, protruding "tummies," drooping heads, all giving the general appearance of collapse seen so previosuly along the smart promenades, the new walk makes woman a creature of Royal carriage.

First, one must stand erect. The head is thrown up in quite a queenly manner, the chin is pointed at an "How dare you, sir!" angle, the shoulders are thrown back, the chest pulled up, the "tummy" pulled in and the hips pushed back as in the days when hips were hips. To all of which a noted physician cynically remarked:

"Too good to be true; too sensible to be fashionable."

But the physician wasn't aware of the joker—namely, the arms, which are held tightly to the sides with the hands pointed straight back, palms downward, and the fingers closed together so that the hands resemble the flippers of a seal. It was this feature that suggested the name, "the trained seal slide" for the new walk.

The standing position is not diffcult to master. True artistry is displayed, however, when one has learned to walk in the new way. The steps are longer than those dictated in previous fashionable walks. The body moves forward with a slow, undulating grace quite unlike the short, quick steps noticed in the various flapper modes. The new steps are easier and more elastic than the jumping gait of the "debutante slouch." When walking one should follow the slow rythm of a dreamy waltz, keeping the entire pose of the body as outlined in the standing position.

It is considered extremely smart to hang a small vanity case from the left wrist while the right hand holds one of those lacy trifles known as the feminine hankie.

Whether or not the new walk will gain widespread popularity in this country depends entirely upon how deeply rooted the American woman's faith is in the French designer.

That it is not absurd, as so many of the past ones have been, is clearly demonstrated by the erect and graceful carriage it gives to the body.

Several fashionable beauty specialists, consulted on the matter, have seen great promise in it. One in particular declares that if women do adopt the "trained seal slide" that double chins will entirely disappear within a short time. She said:

"Double chins among our women will be an utter impossibility if they adopt this new walk. Keeping the head back and the chin up will exercise the under chin muscles to such an extent the flesh can't become flabby and hang. It will also do away with stooped shoulders and hollow chests."

So, all in all, the "seal walk" may be a blessing in a very freaky disguise.

The beauty experts are one in predicting that American women will adopt the "seal walk" no matter how freaky it seems, America, they say, is the only country in the world that actually disputes the fashion leadership of Paris, so—"if Paris can get away with it America is certain to do so."

England appears to be more conservative in matters of this sort. When the "debutante slouch" was making converts even among women in the Orient, British women refused to succumb to it. They kept to the free, mannish stride so characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race, wearing flat heels and tilting the body forward just as they have always done.

But American women, though they are independent, have always been noted for their "smartness." Ergo, argue the beauty experts, if smart clothes demand the "seal walk" to display them smartly, the "seal walk" will become the walk of the American woman.

PATHWAY AHEAD IS ALONG SOUND ECONOMIC LINES

Problem is to Maintain Type of Agriculture That is Not Improverished.

TAXES HEAVY

Takes Four Times the Produce to Pay Taxes Now That 1914 Required.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 23.—The problem of the present and of the future is to maintain in America a type of agriculture that will not impoverish the soil and that will not permit itself to be impoverished in character or leadership, Louis J. Taber, of Columbus, Ohio, master of the National Grange, told Kiwanians today in his address, "The Farmers' Pathway ahead" at the 9th Kiwanis International convention being held in this city.

"What we want is an agriculture that will maintain American standards for the American farmer and produce an abundant food supply for the multiplying population of our national life," he said.

Pathway Is Economic.

The farmers' pathway ahead is along sound economic lines, believes Mr. Taber, who is a member of President Coolidge's agricultural conferences. "The farmer asks no special favors, no government legislative privileges or assistance, but wants but a square deal and the equality of opportunity with industry, finance and labor."

"What the farmer most needs today is team-work, organization and co-operation. Though the farmer in this country today produces more than any other on the face of the earth, the efficiency has not prevented agriculture from passing through a period of great economic deflation. And this deflation is so serious that today it affects the fabric of our industrial life."

Problems to Be Solved.

With the problems of the farmer being ecomonic and not political, seven principles were pointed to toward making a more prosperous future. The marketing system, with agriculture making use of the machinery that industry has found essential, that of organization, standardardization and also advertising was urged. Co-operative production, or production guided by intelligent information, was given as another vital need. "We should all understand that it benefits no one and injures agriculture to produce that which the market does not need and will absorb," said Mr. Taber.

A reduction in the cost of government. "Heavy taxes are eating into rural prosperity everywhere," he remarked. "A recent survey shows that it takes nearly four times as much produce from our farms to pay our taxes, direct or indirect, as was required in 1914. The farmer favors progress, but economy and efficiency in government are needed for our very lives."

Eighteenth Amendment.

"The American farmer is standing like the rock of Gibralter for the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment because his prosperity, his welfare and his future are dependent upon maintaining in our land "Orderly Liberty under Law."

Better rural organization was given as another milestone towards the farmers' progress. "The Grange is 58 years old and has a membership of more than 800,000, and the Farm Bureau, Farmers' Union and others have a big membership and rendering service, but until agriculture is thoroughly organized, with agencies to develop community interests, rural life will not prosper as it should."

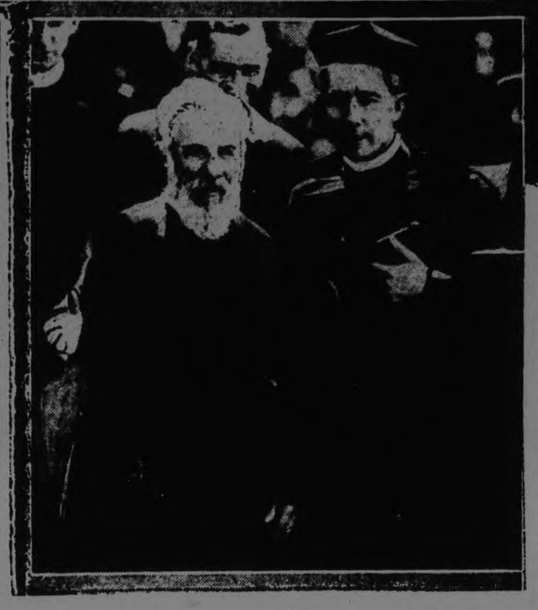
Develop Waterway.

That the St. Lawrence water way should be built, so as to bring our inland empires to the sea, was urged by the speaker. "It will broaden our markets, it will move westward our industrial expansion and add to a greater growth."

The development of a better understanding between the country and the town, one of the major objects of Kiwanis International itself, must also be realized to make both prosper, according to Mr. Taber.

The Hawaiian "outrigger" canoe recently rescued three people from a disabled motor launch 14 miles out from Honolulu, despite a heavy sea. According to Hawaiian history, the island was settled by peoples from the South Seas who made the trip in the same kind of canoe.

Pilgrims to Site of Martyrdom of Missionaries



Thousands of people flocked to old Fort Sainte Marie, on the Wye river, near Georgian Bay, on Sunday, where on the site of the old fort, a monument was unveiled to Fathers Brebeuf and Lalemant, who were martyred by the Iroquois in 1649. Above is shown a pretty worshipper kneeling at the foot of the monument to obtain relics to commemorate her pilgrimage. Rev. Father J. C. Cadot, S.J., the venerable and veteran missionary to the Georgian Bay Indians, is also seen telling the story of the Jesuit martyrs of Huronia to Rev Father J. H. Filion, head of the Jesuit Order in Canada. A special train carried a thousand pilgrims from Toronto.

See-sawing up and down George street I saw Ken Throop, who yesterday celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of his wedding day....Saw Mayor Turner, just returned from Toronto, and he intimates Hydro wants to hand over the street car system and the gas works here .... Wonder what that has to do with his carrying their luggage for a bevy of young ladies yesterday morning .... Saw an automobile from Oxbow, Saskatchewan, which shows the habitual grousers that Peterboro must have some charms....

With a view to making a camping trip this summer, was enquiring of friends the nature of black bears, whether they resented tents being pitched in their domains and so on. "Oh! No, my friends said. They run away when you come near." Then did read in yesterday's Examiner about one that did not run away.

Which shows again that friends dont' know.

MILK IS MISSING FROM DOORSTEP

South End Lady Has Visitor In Early Morning Who Helps Himself.

TAKES ONLY PART.

Some one down in the south end evidently believes what the doctors say about drinking plenty of milk, but, not wishing to expend money in purchasing the nourishing fluid, is taking it off the doorstep of a residence in that part of the city. A lady on Perry street, who takes four quarts of milk every day, reports that several times recently, on going to the door to bring in the milk which a driver from the Peterborough Milk Products Company leaves on her doorstep at 3.30, there have been only three quarts there, although four tickets were put out the night before. That the missing bottle had not long been gone is evident from the fact that the imprint is still in the door mat on which the bottles stand. If this practice keeps up, she will have a box made with a lock, one key to which will be handled by the milkman and the other kept in the house. The first bottle missed was taken from the front verandah but the depredation continued even after the milk had been placed on the back doorstep.

G. A. Gillespie, president of the Peterborough Milk Products Company, says that there have been a number of complaints about milk, money or tickets being stolen since the drivers started making the rounds early in the morning. The complaints, however, have not been nearly as frequent as they were last year, when for some time, an apparently well organized band made systematic rounds, taking a different district of the city every night.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS

The following is the text of Warden H. B. Rye's address to the Members of the County Council on the opening of the recent session.

Once more we are permitted by a merciful God to assemble here at the June Session of The County Council of the County of Peterborough, and, at this Session that I believe it is customary for the Warden to address you. The Divine promise given to man that seed time and harvest should not fail gives evidence of being most bountifully fulfilled this year, for I believe that not for several years have the crops shown better promise of a plentiful harvest. Nothwithstanding the general quietness in trade, there is much that is satisfactory in the situation. Perhaps the most outstanding feature, which, sooner or later must produce a general improvement in general business, is the adjustment of the farmers' position. Not only did last year's crop bring better prices, but operating expenses were somewhat lower and, undoubtedly, the prices of things he has to sell bear a far better relation to the things he has to buy.

As you are all aware all grants were, at the January Session, deferred to this Session and perhaps it was a step in the right direction as it affords you more time for consideration of the merits of the various requests. At the January Session you received a letter from Mr. Sherry setting out in detail the handicap under which he is endeavoring to carry on his Office. Some few years ago (1920) I believe, you had a similar letter and I think a Committee was struck to look into the matter of providing more accommodation. I would respectfully suggest to you that some definite action be taken in this matter. Fully recognizing the ability of the Chairmen of the various Committees to take care of and report to you the results of the work entrusted to them I feel it would be unseemly on my part to make any comments, but there are two subjects on which I crave your indulgence and they are the House of Refuge and County Road System. I felt at the time and still feel that the stand taken by this Council at the January Session of selling the stock and renting the farm was wrong, and the Board of Management of the House have as the Chairman will report to you found the position absolutely untenable.

It has been generally conceded that the mileage of the County Road System was far too great and that that if we wished to get any results from the money we could afford to raise, the mileage must be reduced. The Department of Highways has submitted a map showing a revision of the road mileage suggested by them and which I trust you will honestly consider. Looking for the best results for the money expended and rendering the best service to the general public of our County whose servants we are. There are two other matters in connection with Highways I would particularly draw to your attention. The Act abolishing Statute and Commuted Statute Labor. This Act, as it stands, is in many Municipalities unworkable. The Contributory Negligence Act, an Act which practically makes the municipalities insurers of the highways; millions of dollars have been spent by Governments and municipalities in building and improving roads. In the face of this expenditure, in making and providing safe roads for the use of the public who make a reasonable use of the highways by careful driving, it is not fair to ask the taxpayer to pay heavy damage to the driver, who, through his own recklessness, meets with an accident. It is in my opinion that these matters should be taken up by all counties with a view of sending strong deputations to the Provincial Government with the object of having these acts rescinded or amended. The Chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee has no small undertaking on his hands when he attempts to maintain the old bridges of the county, many of which are of timber construction and at the time of their building were not required to carry the weight or volume of traffic to which they are now subjected and, on account of their age, lightness of construction, are deteriorating very rapidly, so much so, that extensive repairs appears to be money wasted, I am sure the time has arrived when we should replace all bridges and culverts with reinforced concrete structures as rapidly as funds will permit. So, for the Chairman of the Roads and Bridges, I bespeak your united support.

The Chairman of the Committee on Finance (Mr. Curtis), has, in his Budget, provided for the meeting of Bridge, Highway, House of Refuge purposes, without issuing debentures, saving much interest to the ratepayers. This is undoubtedly good business, not only has he done this without raising the general rate but has also affected a saving in the total amount required from the ratepayers, giving an evidence of much time and thought to the discharge of his Office as Chairman. And now gentlemen let me again thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me by unanimously electing me Warden of the County of Peterborough for the year 1925; and I hope and trust that we all be spared many years to enjoy the friendships that have made during our tenure of Office.

MANY ENROLLED.

OTTAWA, June 23. (Canadian Press).—The question of the appointment of a Canadian Envoy at Washington was again brought up in the House of Commons this morning when S. W. Jacobs (Liberal, Etienne Cartier) enquired whether it was the intention of the Government to fill this office at Washington during the coming recess or to let the matter go over until after the general election.

Premier King, in reply, stated that he had every hope that the appointment would be made shortly after prorogation.

BIG NEW CRUISER PASSES IN CANAL

Built at Orillia For Montreal Financier—a Wonderful Boat.

A wonderful cruiser, owned by J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, passed through Peterborough, spending last night at the George Street wharf. The boat, which was built by Ditchburn of Gravenhurst for the Montreal financier, will be used for deep water cruising. It is 105 feet long, 19 feet beam and draws 6 feet 6 inches of water. This is about 10 feet longer than the Stoney Lake, the largest vessel plying these waters, and the draft is a little more than was figured on when the upper portion of the canal was built. As a result the boat scraped along the bottom at a few points, where the depth is supposed to be six feet. No serious difficulty was experienced at any point, and from Peterborough to Trenton there will be no trouble at all as there is, at all points, at least eight and one-half feet of water.

The builder, Ditchburn, was obliged to build the cruiser at Orillia, instead of in his own yards at Gravenhurst, as it would be impossible to get a boat of this size out of the Muskoka Lakes. It is one of the most beautiful specimens of the boatbuilder's craft seen here, no expense having been spared in her construction and decoration.

Power is supplied by two Diesel engines of 150 h.p. capacity, which were built by Winton of Cleveland.

Dan McAllister of Gores' Landing, who is one of the most experienced pilots on the Trent Canal system, piloted the cruiser out of Lake Couchiching Sunday morning at 10.00 o'clock. Sunday night was spent at Bobcaygeon. Monday morning they left Bobcaygeon and arrived in Peterborough about 7.30 last night. They sailed from Peterborough this morning at 8.00 o'clock and expect to reach Trenton some time today.

Dissolve Dirt! Don't rub.

Gillex does just this. It dissolves the oil that glues the dirt particles to dirty textiles. When the oil is gone, the dirt just rinses off.

No boiling, no scrubbing to strain your back and wear out your clothes. With Gillex your sheets and towels are truly white—antiseptically clean—have that sweet fragrance that only a thoroughly cleansed fabric can have.

Because it is an oil solvent, Gillex cleans greasy fry pans, kitchen and dairy utensils, easily, quickly, thoroughly.

For paint, linoleum, bathtubs, toilets. Gillex will not harm the most delicate surface.

And Gillex leaves your hands so soft and white. Try a tablespoonful in your bath water.

One 12-oz. package of Gillex equals four to five large boxes of ordinary borax cleanser—goes farther.

A magnifying glass shows dirt as sharp-edged fragments clinging to the fabric. Rub or scrub and the sharp edges cut the fine threads that make the cloth. With Gillex you just soak and rinse.

Strong soaps and bleaches fray and make brittle these tiny threads. You say chemicals rot the fabric. Gillex contains no grit or harmful acid. Use no more than quantities specified in directions.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Listed as Fault 6 is Gripping Tightly With One Hand and Loosely With the Other. This is sure to cause something to happen with the ball unless the player is lucky enough to have his hands work together in spite of himself. In the grip the hands should be snugged closely together so that the thumbt o the left hand is pressed against the palm of the right hand. After you think your hands have been put close together force the right one up still closer to the left one. This has a tendency to equalize the pressure, whereas if they are far apart one hand is likely to grip too tightly. Gripping tighter with one hand often is prescribed as a means to cure some fault of golf, but usually the pro suggests this because he plainly sees the player is too loose with his grip in one hand. Both hands must hit and hit as one.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, June 23. — Two old rivals met on Friday afternoon when the baseball team from Shea's school journeyed to Petherick's Corners and played their last game of the season. This was the most exciting game of the year. As the Petetherick team has been at the game so much longer than the other team they succeeded in keeping the score in their favor, the final score being 9 to 5.

The line up for the Shea school was as follows: Douglas Ingram p; Clare Ingram c; John Clough 1b; Stewart Bedford 2b; E. A. Fairman 3b; Douglas Lloyd, Clarence Miller, Clarence Longmuir, fielders.

Petherick team was as follows: F. Fry p; Millard McKenzie c; Gerald Barnum ss; Gerald Peterick 1b; Ray Thompson 2b; E. S. Fairman 3b; Jack Thompson and Lloyd Petherick, fielders.

LONDON, June 23. (Canadian Press).—In the county cricket championship game concluded yesterday between Kent and Warwickshire, Kent won by seven wickets, and two of Kent's players, Hardinge and Woolley, distinguished themselves by making runs exceeding the century mark, the latter not being out when stumps were drawn.

Warwickshire scored 137 in the first innings (Calthorpe 69) and 246 in the second innings (Santall 71). Kent scored 42 in the first innings and 343 for three wickets in the second innings (Hardinge 114 and Woolley 136 not out).

FIRST LACROSSE GAME IN NORWOOD

Petes Stack Up Against Havelock-Norwood Combines.

The Peterboro lacrosse team plays its first game of the season in Norwood on Wednesday at 3.30 against the Havelock-Norwood combined team. Cars will leave the Y.M.C.A. at 1.30 p.m. It is hoped that as many fans as possible will make the trip to give the team the moral support of their presence.

The Blue and White realize that they have a big job to face against the eastern combination, which includes Andy McGee, captain of the Toronto University team, and one of the outstanding players in Ontario; also Weir and Doug. Brennan, Jim Hooper and other well-seasoned stick men.

The Petes are an untested aggregation, but they may spring a surprise before the season is over. In Pete King, Irvin Bailey and Wilfrid Ranger they have a smart trio that should strengthen any man's team. Other home men are Ira Dundas, a graduate of the juniors of three years ago, Doug. Miller, from whom much is expected in view of his experience since his last appearance in the Peterboro colors; Jack O'Toole, Jack Killoran, the White brothers, who learned the game in Campbellford, and several others. Lou LeBarr will start in the nets. He has played some fine lacrosse in his junior days, and should be good this season. It was not known last night whether Bert McLeod could get away for any of the games. He has been out several times to practice, and so impressed the fans that they are all anxious to see him with the team. He would be literally a tower of strength to the Petes' defence. Old-timers regard him as being even better with a lacrosse stick than in hockey, and that is a comparison the hockey crowd would appreciate. McKinnon, of the Collegiate staff, is keen for the game and has made a big impression with the team and its followers. Taylor, White, Fred Goodfellow and several others are available for defence positions, and are all capable performers. In a pinch George Mein may jump into a uniform, and while "Shock's" best days are over, he is in good condition, and would by no means weaken the defence field.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22—St. Louis halted the Athletics' winning streak at six straight by taking the last game of the series here today by a score of 9 to 2. Bush's smoke ball proved too much for the Philadelphia sluggers and eight were strikeout victims. Bush also helped his own cause with a home run in the 8th inning. BOSTON, June 22—The Detroit Tigers cleaned up the three game series with the Boston Red Sox by winning today, 8 to 4, behind the steady pitching of Whitehill. An unusual feature was the noni-ssuance of any base on balls by the winning pitcher. Errors by Lee and Wambsganss were partly responsible for three Detroit runs in the second inning. In their first Eastern trip Detroit had a record of 9 wins and 6 reverses. Score:

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

In nine games Peterboro's pitching staff has issued but nine complimentaries. An average of but one batsman hit or sent to first on four balls per game over a stretch of nine games must come pretty close to a Central Ontario League record.

* * * * * * * * *

Al. Heckman is being given plenty of time to get his arm in shape for the battle down the stretch. It is Manager Johnston's intention to save Frank Whitehouse for use in Saturday's game against Kingston, as the Ponies do not care a great deal for left-handed pitching, and Jeff Hardill will likely get the assignment in tomorrow's game against Belleville. The youngster has turned in two great games, and with any hitting behind him would have two wins to his credit. Goyer will work for Belleville tomorrow, and the Railroaders will make a big effort to win and tie the Petes for third place.

* * * * * * * * *

The Kingston Ponies, still leading the parade by an eye-lash, although they have been going none too well for a fortnight, will be the attraction at Riverside Park on Saturday, and the Petes are hopeful of giving the Easterners a warm reception. They expect a fight on their hands this time, but count on Whitehouse to subdue the hard-hitting Ponies.

* * * * * * * * *

There are fans who apparently go over to Riverside Park for the sole purpose of riding certain members of the Peterboro team. Such supporters are of very doubtful value, and Peterboro is not the only city that possesses them. Morrison, the Oshawa shortstop, for some reason or other usually gets panned in his home games, while Quinn, the young Kingston catcher, has not been helped very much by the remarks of some of the Kingston fans. Down in Belleville, however, they are all 100 per cent. Belleville boosters, and probably that accounts for the recognized fighting spirit of the Railroaders.

* * * * * * * * *

The Petes, who used to specialized on sacrifice hits, seem to have lost the knack this season, and they are not making up for it by base running. A well-placed bunt has helped break up many a ball game.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

In plays where a baserunner fails to touch a base, where a runner leaves his base too soon on a fly ball that is caught, or where a player bats improperly, what should be the attitude of th umpire?

In baseball the three situations cited are known as appeal plays. Even if the umpire is aware of the mistake, he must overlook same unless the team in the field makes the proper play and requests a ruling on the matter.

It is not unusual for players to fail to touch the bases in their proper order, leave a base too soon on a caught fly and bat out of order. In all probability they get away with it more often than they are discovered and penalized.

The position of the umpire in a ball games is merely the judge of plays. He is there to give decisions, not to make plays.

When a player fails to touch a base, leaves a base too soon or bats out of order, it is up to the team in the field to observe such slips. It calls for alert, heads-up baseball. If the team is playing such baseball, it will profit by having the runner or batsman declared out for failing to observe the rules of the game.

If the umpire made rulings on such plays it would remove the premium that goes to the alert team or individual, would place the slow thinker and poor observer on the same plane with the smart player.

At various times it has been suggested that the umpire be authorized to act on such plays without appeal, but it never got very far. It would be an unwise move, as it would destroy initiative on the part of the player and make more trouble for the umpire, who already has plenty.

The local C.G.E. team met defeat at Cobourg on Saturday afternoon by the Toronto C.G.E. by two goals to one. They had to hand over the Director White Trophy, which was won last year from their opponents.

A special attraction is billed for Wednesday at the Douro celebration between the De Laval versus Dummer United. Kick-off at 4 o'clock. Cars will leave the plant at 3 o'clock. George Blowers, referee.

The Junior Association are sending a team to Lakefield on July 13th to play against North Dummer. Any player desiring to participate in this game are requested to notify the Junior Association Secretary. Valuable prizes will be given.

In the Juvenile League De Laval juveniles meet Woollen juveniles at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Referee, W. Downer.

An international game has been arranged to take place on August 1st between England and Scotland.

Mayor Taylor's Cup series takes place on Saturday afternoon at the King Edward Park between C. P. C. versus Dummer. Referee, Frank McKinley.

A benefit match will be played next Tuesday evening, June 30th, at the King Edward Park. C.G.E. team will wear Woollens' uniforms and select a team from the Quaker Oats. Kick-off at 6.30 prompt.

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

THE PLAY.

Player on third attempts a steal of home. The batsman, in an effort to make the touching of the runner a more difficult matter for the catcher, fakes an attempt to bunt at the ball.

The ball breaks in sharply toward the batter in the act of bunting at the ball. He cannot get out of its course and it ticks his shirt slightly.

The contact with the batter didn't change the course of the ball enough to interfere with the catcher handling it. He got the ball in advance of the runners and touched him out.

What is the proper decision?

THE ANSWER.

The bunting at the ball by the batsman, even though he had no intention of hitting it, constituted a strike when he missed the ball.

When such a pitch, at which the batter had bunted and missed, came in contact with the person of the batsman, the ball immediately became dead.

The fact that the catcher was able to handle it and make the play at the plate cannot be given any consideration. The ball was dead when it struck the person of the batter, a strike was charged up against the batsman and the runner who was apparently retired at the plate was entitled to return to third base.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

To enjoy a camping trip you must have a comfortable bed.

The best rig I have used is the sleeping bag. With a sleeping bag the cover is always over you and in place.

Two light blankets are warmer than one heavy one. The amount of blankets used in the bag depends on the weather.

The outer covering is of waterproofed material. Some are equipped with air mattresses.

You can make a sleeping bag by folding your blankets lengthwise and sewing them down the sides. Then cover completly with a tarpaulin.

The eiderdown robe is light, warm and most desirable.

SISLER'S COMEBACK MAKES NEW RECORD

ay Off a Year Due to Eye Trouble—Looks Good Now.

George Sisler seems certain to be the first big leaguer to reach the century mark in base hits.

Sisler's added comeback is most remarkable. At the opening of the season he predicted he would hit at least 40 points better than last year.

After a year's lay-off due to eye trouble he managed to hit just 305 last season, a drop of more than 100 points from his mark in 1922 when he was considered the most valuable player in the American League.

Starting with the opening of the season Sisler went 34 consecutive games in which he made one or more hits. It looks as if it would be a cinch for him to make good on his spring prophecy.

Low ball pitching, which bothered him last year, and which was considered his weakness by American League pitchers, is not causing him any trouble this season.

The fact that Sisler is hitting the ball to all fields this year is almost conclusive proof that he has entirely recovered his great batting eye.

CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF.

I watched the great Bobby Jones in an exhibition match recently. I was impressed with the ease with which Jones played practically perfect golf.

Of course, stars in all sports—masters of their art—do their work with little or no effort.

Walter Johnson pitches with ease and grace, Ray Schalk handles a majority of the offerings of his pitcher with his gloved hand, Bill Tilden seems able to make the tennis ball behave as he would have it, without going through any great number of preliminary motions.

The constant waggling of a golf club before every shot by a great many players, has always been a mystery to me. It seems wasted effort.

I noticed that Bobby Jones didn't indulge in several minutes of club shimmy. He would simply lay his club back of the ball and then start his backswing.

Since Jones is a fair-to-middling golfer, it strikes me as if a great many players who slow up the game with the waggling of their club before every shot could profit by the champion's system.

LUCK OF THE GAME.

The insertion of pinch-hitters in a ball game is merely a gamble on the part of the manager.

If the substitutes come through, it is labeled strategy. If they fail, the manager is credited with at least trying.

It seems that when a team is winning, the manager always gets the breaks with his pinch-hitting selections.

When the Athletics had a mortgage on last place, Connie Mack seldom got a beaak with his so-called strategy. The real reason was lack of talent.

Now that he is again piloting a winner, Dame Fortune is once more smiling on him. In a recent fray against Chicago he sent in three pinch-hitters and all of them delivered, winning the ball game.

One of the timely hits came in the sixth inning, driving in two runs, evening the count. In the ninth inning, sending up two pinch-hitters in succession, both came through. Three more singles followed by regulars, netting three runs, winning the game.

True, the winner in baseball always seems to get the breaks. Often the ability possessed by the winner makes the breaks that may appear on the surface to be pure luck.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

FATE DECIDES SPORTS' LIVES

Walter Johnston Failed to Secure Franchise for Minor League.

IN BIG RING AGAIN

Fate plays many peculiar pranks. Witness the case of Walter Johnson.

At the close of the 1924 world series, from which Walter Johnson emerged the great hero by his brilliant pitching in the final game, after two previous failures, he was positive he was through with the big show.

"I have pitched my last game in the majors if things break as I hope they will," remarked Johnson to me after the all-important thriller that decided the championship.

"I have several reasons for so thinking. First, I hope to buy a minor league franchise that should prove more profitable than a mere big league salary.

"Second, I am not sure that I still retain enough stuff to be a consistent winner. I want to quit the American League before the batters force me to such a decision.

"I got the breaks in the series after I had apparently "flivvered." It would be impossible for me to be in a better position to capitalize on my work."

Johnson failed to secure the minor league franchise that he had in mind. Much persuasion was brought to bear upon him to return to the Washington club. A fancy salary was the most alluring inducement.

Big Winner.

When a club wins a world championship its greatest hope is that it will continue to be a strong contender the following season. That makes it possible to cash in on the title.

Prior to the start of the present season some of the experts expressed a doubt as to Washington's chances to be strongly in the running. Already such fears have been put to rest, the Nationals must be strongly reckoned with.

No less a distinguished personage than Connie Mack says that Washington is the club that must be beaten for the pennant. He dopes it a smart club, with a great defense and a pitching staff that knows what it is all about.

In the 1925 showing of the champions no one player has done more to keep the club in the race than Walter Johnson. He has been the team's most consistent winner. Incidentally, his batting has been a potent factor in a number of his victories.

As a matter of fact, Johnson's batting has been even more remarkable than his pitching. In every one of his first ten games he has made one or more hits.

It was indeed fortunate for Washington that Walter Johnson failed to land the desired minor league franchise. He has been the team's big threat in more ways than one.

Yankees' Woe.

For a team to be out in front it must have the punch to put over a winning streak at stated intervals. Inability to do that very thing has kept the Yankees in the second division up to date.

It is rather unusual fact that at no time during the first 50 games of the season were the Yankees able to win three games in succession. Several times they have scored two consecutive victories but a trio of straight wins proved too big a task.

When a team is winning it has the old confidence and seems to do everything right. When a club is losing the deciding breaks always seem to go against it.

The Yanks have been such a club this year. A base on balls invariably turned into a run, an error usually proved costly, the timely base hit has been conspicuously absent.

When the team got good pitching it failed to hit and vice versa. Things just naturally went wrong. True, the Yanks are slipping but they are going to make plenty of trouble before the close of the 1925 campaign.

THREE PARS.

Triple Tie Leads Quartette in Second Place in Golf.

SUMMIT GOLF CLUB, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—With three-quarters of the 88 entrants in the third annual Ontario Golf championship in from their first eighteen holes of the thirty-six hole event there is a triple tie for leadership, two Hamilton professionals sharing first place with one from Toronto, and the trio, each of whom returned par 73 are two strokes in front of a quartette of 75's, two of whom are amateurs.

Nicol Thompson, of Hamilton, and Andy Kay of Lambton, Provincial open champion 1923 came in about the same time with 73's and they held the lead until after two o'clock when T. McGrath of Hamilton Glendal, formerly of Chatham, inserted another par score.

LAST CALL, HE SAYS.

Inspector Reid Will Insist on Registration of Car Drivers.

Inspecter Reid says that 318 drivers of motor vehicles have registered, but that there must be 50 who have not yet complied with the regulations.

The Inspecter specified car salesmen who acted as demonstrators and teachers to prospective motorists as well as garage helpers, whose duties involved testing the care in process of repair.

These men must register as licensed drivers. There are also a great number who have registered but who have not yet given the number of the button.

The Inspecter states positively that this is the last intimation which can be made public. Following this he says more drastic and affective measures will be adopted.

GAME POSTPONED UNTIL THURSDAY

Rain Prevented Formal Opening of Midget Series of City League.

Jupiter Pluvius unfortunately interfered with the ceremonial opening of the Midget series of the City League. The event was scheduled for last night, and an imposing array of talent had been secured for the formal pitching, catching and hitting of the first ball.

The game has been postponed until Thursday night, and the same gentlemen have kindly consented to take part in the opening. Charlie Cook, president of the Kiwanis Club, will do the hurling, and Jack Seels, president of the Rotary Club, will catch any ball which City Solicitor Joseph Wearing does not hit. After the formal opening, two balls teams, Kiwanis and Rotary, will join battle in the first game of the Midget series. Capable managers are handling these teams, which are backed by the clubs whose names they wear. This series has always provided a high class of ball, and twice the Ontario championship of this class has been captured by a Peterboro team.

MASS OF PEONIES IN GARDEN OF A PETERBORO MAN

"A Thousand Peonies" Would Seem to be the Grower's Slogan.

EXOTIC PLANTS

Garden of J. H. Callander is Not Entirely Devoted to Native Flowers.

"A thousand peonies" must have been the solgan with which J. H. Callander planted the roots which have yielded him these and possibly as many more in the last few weeks since the big flowers commenced to bloom in the acre of ground in the rear of his residence at 575 Weller street. In pure whites, in creams and pale yellows, in the loveliest shades of soft pink and mauve and in deep magenta red, peonies are blossoming and dying, many of them, in the big expanse.

There are Marie Stuarts, named after the romantic queen, pale pink, closely folded, like a rose; there are deep red Rachels, that any Jacob of a flower grower might be glad to serve seven years for, to see them in their rich perfection; the closely-cupped yellow Duke of Wellington and the pink and white Agnes Mary Kellway, the pale pink Triumph, La-Rosiere, resembling a water lily, with a yellow centre and white enfolding petals and Madame Emily Lemoine solid white and mauve like a big, feathery 'mum Resembling a water-lily too is the lovely Joan of Arc, its pinkish mauve shell surrounding a cream centre. They are beautiful things, these exquisite blooms, with their crinkly-edged petals and soft colorings, and they have an odor all their own, more refined than the memory of peony blossoms of some years back. Their season will be soon over, possibly a few days more will see the last of them, but they are gorgeous things as they turn their faces up to the light in hundreds in this big garden.

Here too are Oriental poppies, glowing bits of vermilion, a bed of odd Siberian white iris, the Anchusa, the giant Cape forget-me-not, and the sky blue of delphinium. The "Thousand Beauties" rose, a pale shell pink, foregathers with the strawberry beds, there is the white flaky prettiness of "snow in summer", and the rich reds and pinks of sweet william. Painted daisies with deep cerise petals and yellow centres make a dignified display, and there are periwinkle shades in the long-spurred columbine.

In this garden is a good example of the irrigation system that allows a gentle shower to fall on the flowers at will. It is interesting to watch this operation, with fine streams of water gushing out of the long overhead pipes, creating an artificial shower for the driest day.

In the little hothouse with glass sides and roof are the cactus plants which are a hobby of Mr. Callander's brought from the desert by special vendors. The night-blooming cereus with the huge flower that resembles a glorified water-lily is just about to burst into bloom, there are the cockscomb monstrosities, twisting themselves into weird shapes, the giant cactus that will grow to sixty feet, if untrammeled by roofs, the white hair of the "old man," and the squat shape of the "water barrel of the dessert." Interesting and out of the ordinary are these cacti, and here too is the banana plant and the yellow-leaf geranium.

Outdoors, even while the peonies strew their lovely petals on the ground, the soil beneath is ready to yield up more summer treasures.

Within a few weeks gladioli will be blooming in all their rainbow tints there will be beds of odorous bergamot and blue scabiosa, phlox and Canterbury bells and, later, the asters. The procession of floral wonders has no mis-steps in its marching rythm. The peonies, with their thousand blooms, may go, but other flowers, equally as lovely, come to replace them in this quiet garden.

SCOUT HERO SMILES THROUGH.

BY MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, June 20.—Little Jimmy King, palid-faced, broken, suffering but smiling, is the Boy Scouts' one best bet as Exhibit A in the art of keeping smiling. And he modestly disclaims any such merit.

"Oh, it ain't much to smile," said Jimmy. "Who wouldn't smile when he knew ten thousand pals were praying for him? I'll get well all right. Bound to, with such backers."

Three years ago Jimmy was as well as anybody. In fact he was the life of the party in his Wolf Club camp out in the South African veldt. But one night a pal, in fun, jumped on his back as he lay sleeping on the ground. There was a faint groan of pain from Jimmy. He tried to get up but could not. He has been bound to a stretcher ever since—his back broken.

South African doctors sought to cure him, but in vain. Then a wave of emotion swept Boy Scoutdom of South Africa. All over that vast dominion the Boy Scouts levied six cents per head on themselves. They organized bazaars, concerts. They raised money anyhow, anywhere, for they were determined they would secure such a bank account that it would be possible to send Jimmy the long 7000-mile journey to England where a famous Liverpool specialist hoped to help him.

But bad luck continued to dog the boy. His father was to have gone along with him and three days before the ship sailed, this parent died. The mother couldn't go. So Jimmy had to wait until his grandfather could come all the way from England to go back with him. When finally he started on his long journey strapped to a stretcher, 10,000 children in Capetown sang farewell songs to cheer him on his way.

And as soon as the ship sailed, they made plans for weekly concerts whose object will be to pay for Jimmy's keep in England, to bring him back to South Africa and help pay for the three years' education he has lost. It's the most spontaneous movement Africa has ever known.

ENGLAND PUTS UNEMPLOYED AT WORK ON ROADS

Good New Highway Finished After Years of Work.

OTHERS PLANNED

Completion of Enterprises Will Require Many Millions, Sterling.

LONDON, June 23 (United Press).—The opening of a new arterial highway, the Great West Road from Kew Bridge, London, to Bedfont, Middlesex, at a cost of over one million sterling marks a further stage in Britain's economic recovery from the effects of the World War.

As long ago as the year of Queen Victoria's accession, the construction of this road was contemplated. It took renewed life in the nineties, from the activities o f the Roads Improvement Association, but it was the recognized need for post-war employment that actually brought the enterprise to comple-e tion.

Reputed to have the finest roads in the world, British surveyors and engineers have surpassed themselves during this enterprise. Fashioned on the principles laid down by the Romans during their civil reconstruction program after the conquest af Britain in the Caesar boom days, this latest outlet for the ever growing congestioin of traffic to the west is the most expensive road ever built in this country, costing as it did nearly two hundred thousand pounds per mile.

Although only eight miles long, it has taken five years to complete, and during its construction seventy houses had to be demolished—despite the intense housing problem—a canal and four railways had to be dealt with in a way that did not upset the scheme as a whole.

A drive over this highway impresses one with its magnificence. For the greater part of its length the new road has a width of 120 it., and the carriage way is bordered by stretches of greensward, 25 ft. wide, while on each side, for five miles, are stripling trees that in a few years' time will form a magnificent avenue. The foundations are of enormous strength, intended to with stand the strain of modern traffic. Its foundation includes 12 in, of solid hardrore, on which is laid 9 in. of reinforced concrete, surfaced with 2 in. of rock asphalt. Some of the reinforcement used was taken from the famous mystery towers at Shoreham.

H. T. Wakeham, the county engineer for Middlesex, who prepared the engineering arrangements, did not live to see the completion of the project. Nevertheless his foresight will be ever remembered by the county authorities. He made it a cardinal feature of the scheme that all sewers, drains, pipes and cables should be placed under wide footpaths, so that they can be repaired and attended to without disturbing the traffic. Where it was necessary for them to cross the road, he arranged that they should be taken under it by a subway.

This undertaking is only one of a series of schemes which are in progress or which have been completed with a view to improving traffic facilities and beautifying the country. Only a few weeks ago the Duke of York opened a new broad highway to Southend. A roadways program which has been formulated provides for a North circular road and a new Chertsey road.

When completed these enterprises will have cost many millions of pounds. Despite a huge floating debt, Britain's financial house is in the best of order. She is paying her just debts, taxation has been lowered, the exchange rate of the pound is normal or thereabouts, her credit is as good ever it was. By adopting a policy of countrywide civil improvements she is attempting to adjust her greatest problem—unemployment.

SEEKS INFORMATION.

Fred Tom, of Scotland, Seeks Uncles or Descendants Here.

Inspector Reid of the Police Station has received a letter from Fred Toms, 30 Church Street, Maxwellton, Dumfries, Scotland, who is enquiring the whereabouts of two uncles who emigrated to this country about 70 years ago. In his letter he states that the men, Isaac and James Toms settled in Hastings township of Asphodel County.

For several years they were engaged in the tanning business which was at that time quite prosperous. Finally communications ceased and no word has since been received.

The parents and brothers of the missing men are long since deceased and lived at Grenville, Dorset.

Should this notice reach the men in question or attract the attention of the Tom's brothers, Fred Toms desires that they communicate with him as he is the only relative now living and is naturally interested in the fate of his uncles.

NEW GUIDE BOOKS.

Ontario Government Boosts Tourist Possibilities of Province.

The Ontario government has issued two new publications which are of special interest to the tourist and vacationist. These consist of a provincial road map and an illustrated brochure.

The map has been prepared for the use of the American tourist, and shows in different coloured inks the various roads whether paved or gravelled as well as the main connecting highways boundary lines and navigable waterways.

All roads are numbered, for instance the highway from Port Hope to Peterborough is signified by the character 12a and all numbers and names of roads are listed in an index which also gives the mileage. Symbols and characters will be placed upon poles this summer which will greatly facilitate the labours of our Southern visitors as they search for camping sites.

The booklet as a small volume of 72 pages which contains pictures and descriptive matter of Ontarios' popular camping places. There are a number of illustrations contained of Peterborough district, one of which depicts Chemong Lake.

The original edition of 25,000 has already been distributed and another edition has been prepared.

DAWSON CITY HAS BEEN MADE TIDY

Record-Breaking Floods Last May Made Lake of Some Parts.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

DAWSON, Y. T., June 23(Canadian Press).—Dawson City has just completed the tidying up and reconstruction processes necessitated by the recorded-breaking floods of mid-May. Never before has this town experienced such conditions. The flood reached its height at 5 p. m. on May 14, after rising steadily all morning and afternoon. Some people living in the low parts of the city had only time to seize their clothes and get away, leaving their household possessions to the mercy of the flood while a number of the inhabitants had to be rescued by boats.

On the morning of May 15, the water dropped to the lowest point, but again commenced to rise, so that in a number of places where the people had gone back to their houses they were forced out a second time. The White Pass docks were badly damaged by the rush of water while it was necessary to vacate the Canadian Bank of Commerce building until the water subsided.

Minto Park, in which the government administration buildings are located was converrted into a lake with canoes tied up on all sides for some time. The side-walk in front of the administration buildings, made of wood, floated away and wandered all over the town before the waters receded. Other sidewalks carried away by the flood have not been seen since. The approach to the Klondike bridge was also carried away leaving the city without light or its regular supply of water for two weeks.

The townspeople were thankful that no loss of life resulted from the floods, but the property damage was very extensive and it will be some months before everything is restored.

In their two previous encounters the Electricians have managed to come out on top.

AT THE ROYAL

DIX SCORES IN "A MAN MUST LIVE"

Clever Comedy on Same Bill

The Royal was comfortably filled last night to see the second of the new Richard Dix series. From the expressions heard on all sides, Dix is fast becoming a great favorite with the ladies, and in "A Man Must Live, he has the kind of a story that he does best.

"Manhattan," Dix's first production as a full-fleged star, was the kind of picture to make you laugh, although there was plenty of real action in it, too. "A Man Must Live" is an appealing romance, a picture that will [illegible] to your eyes.

Dix, in the role of Geoffrey Farnell, returned World War veteran, has a good word for the world and everyone in it—even though he did get more or less of a rough deal himself. His first assignment as a reporter is to get a story on "Mops" Collins, a girl he had met just before his departure for France. What a change a few years has made in this girl—once the toast of Broadway and twice divorced, now she is a dancer in a dingy cabaret. She is ill and about to be hauled away to a hospital. Jeff, listening to her pleading, takes her to his rooming house and places her under a doctor's care.

Penniless, Farnell cannot buy medicine for the dying girl. In sheer desperation he goes to his editor and asks for a week's salary, promising within that time to bring in a real story—and little does he know what that story is to mean to him. Where he thought it would mean his happiness, it almost ruins it; where he had thought to gain much by it, he almost loses all.

"A Man Must Live" is a story made-to-order for Dix. In it he makes the hit of his career.

There is a comedy called Baby Blues on the same bill, with just about the cutest thing in babies we have seen on the screen. All over the house, you could hear: "Ah's" and "Oh's" and 'Isn't he cute," etc You'll like this programme at the Royal—Fan-Fan

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE WAY OF A GIRL."

"A tight rein and a spade bit" was the recipe for horses and women that the young suitor in "The Way of a Girl" enunciated as a brilliant bit of wisdom, when he consulted the father of his lady love as to the chances of winning her hand. The lady overheard him, and proceeded to cut loose and show him exactly where he got off at. The idea was a good one, but the producer failed to carry it out. In fact, he let the story drop at a peculiar point, and the audience goes home with a sort of baffled feeling.

A rather unique method of handling a picture is shown in this feature, where the scenario writer is pictured in all the throes of his mental agony, grinding out the story from a weary brain, and consuming countless cigarettes in the process. The story is halted at intervals to permit the figures who play in it to make a visit to the author and give advice as to its spinning out.

Eleanor Boardman is the heroine of "The Way of a Girl," and makes an excellent central figure, as the jazz-loving young thing who goes to prize fights in preference to theatres, and smashes her car in a furious race around mountain precipices. This is a thrilling bit, showing the excitement-made girl racing to destruction along narrow pathways. The manner in which she becomes involved with two escaped convicts, and the resultant trouble which accrues to her, with a peculiar ending, wind out the feature picture, with a final close-up of the groggy author beaming at his little marionettes.

The small reels which accompany the feature picture are especially good this week. The Pathe Review shows a very interesting bit, in the race between the famous Century Limited, and two tiny speed boats; there is "The Scourge," illustrating the life of the cabbage white butterfly, a dancing diversion shown in detail, and some lovely colored pictures of New Orleans. "Felix Follows the Swallows" is one of the entertaining animated cartoon specialties, and Hal Roach presents Arthur Stone in "Bad Boy," a laughable comedy.—Jeannette.

Many Picturesque Customs of British Columbia Indians Disappearing.

FEW TOTEM POLES

VICTORIA, June 23. (Canadian Press).—Native art, such as the of totem poles and the fashioning of silverware, is fast passing from the Indians of British Columbia and with it some of the most picturesque tribal customs of the aborigines. Not long ago every village had its own totem carver and the silversmiths and basket-makers were numbered by the score. Skill at these arts is today limited to only a handful of aged men and women who learned how in their youth and who have followed their calling through the years because it was their only trade. In some villages not a single craftsman may be found to-day, and practically none of the younger generation is learning the old arts once so universally practiced among the natives. Miniature totem poles, artistically carved, may still be obtained from old men of the Haida tribes on Queen Charlotte Islands and at Nootka, on the West Coast of Voucouver Island.

The provincial archives department here highly treasures a set of Indian masks presented to it recently by Kitty White, an octogenarian Indian women of Sooke, near Victoria. She was born near the north end of Vancouver Island, but when a little girl she was kidnapped by members of a southern tribe and carried off to a village near where Port Renfrew now stands. She was lost to her family for years and then her brother found her. In his rejoicing he made for her and other members of the family a set of masks which were to be worn at a ceremony to demonstrate their happiness to the tribe. These masks were long ago stored away in a cedar chest. Kitty White, the last survivor of her family, realized that she would soon be gathered to her fathers and decided to give up her treasure to the government. The masks will now serve as an important link with the tribal customs of other days.

The masks resemble the heads of totem poles, two of them being shaped like birds. Painted eyes may be found opening and closing by the manipulation of strings. The coloring of the masks is clear and vivid as though the paint had just been applied, and the carving so well done that it would seem impossible to perform such work without modern implements.

DRAGOONS MAKE GOOD PROGRESS

Fast Reaching High State of Efficiency For Inspection on Thursday.

PLENTY OF SPORT.

Daily trips to the rifle ranges are being made by the Third Prince of Wales' Dragoons, and the drill they are receiving under the capable instruction of Sergeant-Major T. A. Aisthorne, D.C.M., M.M., of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, is fast preparing them for the general inspection, which takes place Thursday morning. The instructor appeared well satisfied with the progress being made, and is keeping an eye on everything, instructing the men in the little things which go to make camp life more comfortable, both for men and horses.

To-night at 7.00 there will be a softball game between C Squadron and Headquarters. Last night the Officers beat B Squadron 13.11. After the game to-night there will be a band concert and smoker. The Salvation Army Band, which played at the camp service Sunday morning, is following up that act of kindness by providing music for the men this evening. A good programme will be furnished and the public will be made welcome.

The schedule for Wednesday calls for more drill at the rifle ranges in preparation for Thursday, which will be a full day in the life of the troops. At 9.30 a.m. they will be inspected at the rifle ranges by General Elmslie, officer commanding the Third Military District, and G. S. O. Colonel Brook. The officers have arranged a scheme of attack and defence, so that the troops may show their efficiency under conditions as near actual warfare as possible.

Thursday afternoon a long programme of sports will be put on, under a committee consisting of Lieut. D. A. Loomis, Capt. C. H. Stewart, Capt. M. R. Sloan, and Lieut. H. C. Mason. The ringmaster will be Sergt.-Major Aisthorpe, assisted by Squadron Sergt.-Majors Payne and Stewart. The judges will be Colonel T. D. Johnston and Major H. W. Powell.

COMMANDER MAUDE REFUSES ANY AID

Is England-Bound in Yawl Without Crew—All Ship-Shape.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., June 23 (Canadian Press).—The yawl, Half Moon, which left Mayne Island, near Victoria, on March 31, with Commander Eustace B. Maude, Royal Navy, retired, acting as skipper, and crew, was sighted last Friday morning by the Matzon liner Mahukonan, sailing before a stiff wind, and with the London mariner, contentedly smoking his pipe at the tiller. The Mahukonan arrived here on Sunday from the Hawaiian Islands. England is Commander Maude's destination. Commander Maude reported to the steamer that he was "ship shape," well supplied and contented, and refused assistance.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Grain Markets Take Sharp Upward Trend

CHICAGO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Owing largely to an unexpected advance in wheat quotations at Liverpool, the wheat market here took an early upward swing today. Further reports of black rust infection of wheat fields in South Dakota were received. There are also advices at hand telling of too much rainfall in some sections where Harvesting of winter wheat is in progress, especially parts of the southwest and of Ohio Valley. Opening prices, 1-2 to 1 3-8c higher, July 154 1-4 to 154 3-8, and Sept. 153 to 153 5-8, were followed by something of a reaction and then by a rise to 155 1-2 for July and 158 7-8 for Sept.

Corn and oats symvathized with wheat strength. Opening unchanged to 1 1-4c higher, Sept. 106 1-4 to 106 1-2. The corn market later advanced all around, Sept. touching 107 3-8.

Oats started at 1-8c to 3-8c gain, Sept. 48 3-4. Later additional upturns took place. In line with hog values and grain, the provision market was firm.

Atlantic Sugar Active On Toronto Stock Mart

TORONTO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—A number of substantial advances were recorded during the active session of the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, British Columbia Fishing, Mackay and Winnipeg Rails particularly showing strength. Atlantic Sugar was active leader and a half point higher at 31 1-2. British Columbia Fishing climbed 1 1-2 at 41 3-4. Mackay Common 1-4 at 125. Winnipeg Rails 1 1-8 at 47 1-8 and Bank of Commerce 1-2 point at 204 1-2 touching 205 during the session. Canners issues were fractionally stronger, and Brazilian shared in the general upturn with 3-8 advance.

Crude Rubber Reaches New High Mark For Year

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press)—Stock rices failed to develop definite trend in Wall Street during the morning, although the undertone was firm with good buying support provided for American Can., Baldwin, and a number of other standard industrials. Marking up of the renewal rate on call money to 4 per cent. was used as a pretext for further selling by bear traders, but they suspended operations when they discovered that they were not bringing out much long stock. Good inquiry was noted for seasoned dividend payers. Steady accumulation of Pennsylvania Railroad, which advanced a point before noon, apparently was based on speculative belief that the road would benefit by proposed realignment of eastern systems. Establishment of a new high record for the year by Crude Rubber brought fresh buying into tire stocks; Kelly Springfield being one of the early favorites. Havana Electric broke nearly 7 points on a few sales.

Hattie Leads List Of Active Mining Trade

TORONTO, June 23—(Canadian Press). — Trading on standard mining exchanges was active this morning as transactions numbered 173,165 shares. Hattie with 74,000 shares headed list opening steady and advancing fractionally to 11-2. Trading in Buckingham was also fairly heavy at decline of one point to 2 1-2. Victory silver was steady at 16 while McIntyre made an advance of 13 cents to 177 1-3.

It was not the only unwise statement but it was the most outstanding, rubbing more people the wrong way than almost anything else Miss McPhail could have said.

Milk is again being stolen from people's verandahs after the milkman makes his rounds in the morning. A few weeks ago

Sneak Thieves. Brock street was afflicted by prowlers who stole a bottle every night off one verandah. Now it is Perry street, almost too far off to be blamed on the same person. At one place the thief drank the milk and threw the bottle away within a block of where it was taken, showing that it was not because of family need that he stole the milk.

One victim of the prowlers said to the Examiner: "If the person who takes the milk is in need I will donate a pint a day, but I don't like being fooled. Every day I have to go to the store when my supply runs out."

The trouble is the thief is hard to catch. Apparently the only way is to sit on the verandah all night, and that might not meet with success.

It is a mean kind of sneak thievery.

DRY FORCES FIGHT THROUGH BLUNDER

Two Officers Killed in West Virginia—Parties Seeking Still.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 23.—(Associated Press.)—Two prohibition officers were killed and a third probably fatally wounded in a gun battle along Camp Creek in Cabell County early to-day between two groups of officers, who mistook each other for moonshiners.

William F. Porter, Chief Federal Prohibition officer in the Huntington district, was killed instantly, and George Ball, Chief of State Prohibition officers, died a few hours later in a hospital here. W. H. Workman, another State officer, is not expected to recover.

F. J. Poe, a State officer, was arrested and committed to the county jail on a homicide charge in connection with Porter's death.

Homer Joy, another Federal officer, said he was sleeping on a hill overlooking the scene of the suspected still they were seeking when he heard shooting. He flashed his light and recognized Bell in the State forces, yelled to the men to stop shooting, but could not be heard above the din.

Porter had thrown Poe to the ground and was grappling with him, Joy said. Porter was believed to have recognized Poe and started to let him up, thinking Poe had also recognized him. Then, Joy said, Poe fired and Porter fell. Joy covered Poe with his gun and ordered him to disarm before Poe realized that he was fighting fellow officers.

A party of young women returning from a hay ride came upon Workman and Porter lying by the roadside on the Wayne road and brought them to Huntington. Porter was dead and Workman was shot through the head and shoulder and died in the Huntington Hospital.

Porter and Homer Joy, Federal officers, and Workman, a State officer, were hidden near the still waiting for the moonshiners to appear when Ball and Poe, State officers, entered the hollow, also looking for the moonshiners.

A shot rang out in the darkness and Ball fell. Poe said Workman fired the shot. At the time, Poe said, he was carrying a rifle and was preparing to use it when some one took the weapon from him. Then, Poe said, he drew his pistol and fired. A pitched battle followed until Poe and Ball recognized Joy's voice.

Poe now is under indictment, charged with killing Chelsey Childers, 18, while attempting to arrest the youth on a charge of possessing liquor some time ago. He was indicted by a County Grand Jury, but the case was transferred to Federal court for trial. Poe, it is claimed, shot Childrers in line of duty.

DAVID H. ARMSTRONG.

The many friends of David H. Armstrong will regret to learn of his death which took place at the home of his son in law, Mr. S. J. Hunter, Cavan, on Monday morning, June 15.

Deceased was in his 82nd year, the eldest of a family of eleven children. He had been gradually failing in health for some time but was able to be about until a week ago. He was a son of the late [illegible] and Mrs. John D. Armstrong of Millbrook, and was born on the fourth line of Cavan, on January 1, 1844, where he resided until about 20 years ago, when he moved to Millbrook and lived there until until about three years ago, when his wife died. He then lived with his daughters, Mrs. S. Hunter and Mrs. David Deyell. He was united in marriage on Feb. 22, 1868, to Letitia Perrin of Bailieboro, the ceremony being performed by Rev. James Douglas. To this happy union three children were born: one son, H. J. Armstrong of Millbrook; Mrs. S. J. Hunter of Cavan, and Mrs. David Deyell of Peterborough, all of whom survive their parents. The sorrowing brothers and sisters are: James Armstrong on the 4th line Cavan; Mrs. James Kerr, Toronto; Mrs. Henry Mulligan, Mrs. G. Hetherington, and Mrs. R. J. Doak of Millbrook. Four brothers and one sister predeceased him, viz., Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Ottawa; John of Owen Sound; A. T. of Millbrook; Robert of Melita, Man., and Mrs. Douglas of Ogdensburg, N. Y.

In religion deceased was a Presbyterian, being an elder of the Centerville church for many years—in fact until he moved to Millbrook. He was also leader of the choir at Centreville for several years, and was a great worker for the interests of the church he loved. He was a true Christian and his word was as good as his bond; a kindly neighbor, and a faithful friend. Politicall, he was a staunch Liberal. Mr. Armstrong had the first mail route from Millbrook about 12 years ago and gave it up on his 80th birthday. In fulfilling his duties he was hit by a car, and thrown from his vehicle about three years ago and received a hard shaking up and from which he never fully recovered.

The funeral on Wednesday afternoon to the Presbyterian Cemetery was very largely attended and his remains were laid at rest beside his wife whom he has sadly missed since her demise. Rev. G. S. Gervan and Rev. R. M. Patterson conducted the services at the home of Mr. S. J. Hunter, and at the cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Alex. Hunter, William and John Moncrief, George Eagleson, Thos. Wood, and James Hutchinson. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

WILLIAM W. STINSON.

The sudden death occurred at Hastings on Tuesday morning of William Wallace Stinson in his 76rd year etoa shar m m mamebb a parlytic stroke a week ago, from which he was apparently recovering, but Tuesday morning he lapsed into unconsciousness and passed away suddenly. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson and was born in Prince Edward county, where he lived several years with his parents, later moving to Percy township on the Dutch Line, where he has since made his home. The surviving relatives are, his widow, and four daughters, Mrs. B. Preston, Mrs. J. Oliver, both of Hastings, Mrs. David Merrills, Warkworth, and Mrs. Wm. Europeans Killed in Fight with Chinese

BRITISH TROOPS INVOLVED IN A CLASH WITH RAIDERS; WOMEN AND CHILDREN FLEE

British and Japanese Consuls Ask Their Governments For More Warships—Canton Government Warned Of Its Responsibility For any Renewed Outbreak.

CRISIS ANTICIPATED WITH DRAGON FESTIVAL.

All Legations Take Precautions To Meet War-Like Movement—Five Hundred Women and Children Refugees on British Steamer—American Women Also Flee.

Conditions in China assumed their most threatening attitude today, when several foreigners were killed in shooting that followed an outbreak last night. Warships have been asked for by British and Japanese consuls; British infantry units are standing by under arms; British marines have already been involved in defence of Shameen the European quarter of Canton; British women and children are fleeing from the threatened districts aboard American, British and French ships, their destination the British fort at Hong Kong; foreign legations have warned the Chinese government that attacks by Chinese will meet with armed resistance, and martial law has been proclaimed in Shanghai.

All foreign governments are holding their breaths in anticipation of the clash that is intimated by despatches as inevitable during the Dragon Day Festival tomorrow. The huge demonstration arranged by the Chinese insurgents is expected to indicate the course to be taken by them. The British House of Commons has information showing that agents of an unnamed foreign power have taken part in the stirring up of animosity among the Chinese insurrectionists. British troops are being sent to the affected district. The Manchurian mutiny is assuming greater proportions daily.

EUROPEANS KILLED.

CANTON, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Several Europeans were killed and many others were wounded to-day when fighting broke out between Chinese agitators and residents of Shameen, the foreign concession here.

Women Flee.

Women and children are fleeing on the U. S. S. Asville, preparing to leave for Hong-Kong to-night. The situation is extremely serious.

Five hundred British and other foreign women and children left Shameen at six o'clock this morning aboard the British steamer Honan for Hong-Kong. The British infantry regiment was ordered to stand by in case of need. The break to-day came after demonstrators fired in the direction of Shameen yesterday, killing one Frenchman and injuring two British subjects.

HONG-KONG, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—The British Consul-General at Canton, it is learned, sent a note to the Canton Government on Monday, prior to yesterday's shooting incident, warning the Chinese authorities that any attempt to penetrate the Shameen foreign

HOME BANK BILL MAY BE KLLED

If Senate and House of Commons Stand on Prerogatives.

QUESTION RAISED.

OTTAWA, June 24.—Canadian Press.—Sharp differences have developed between the Senate and the House of Commons over the Home Bank depositors' relief bill, and there is questioning in political circles if the whole bill is not now likely to fall through in consequence.

Summarized the situation is as follows.

The Senate amended the bill and the House declined to accept the Senate amendments while at the same time questioning the constitutional power of the senate to amend a money bill.

This morning the Government leader in the Senate, while re-affirming the right of the Senate to amend a money bill, moved that the Senate do not insist on its mendments. Sir James Lougheed, the Conservative leader, has moved an amendment that the Senate do insist on its amendments.

If the Lougheed amendment is carried, and each House insists on its stand the bill will be killed.

DOURO EXHIBITS SHOW EVOLUTION OF HARVESTERS

Everything From Primitive Reaping Hook to Modern Binder Shown.

FINE CARRIAGES.

Jumper, or Ox-Sleigh and Two-Wheled Ox-Cart In-Two-Wheeled Ox-Cart In-

One of the most interesting features of the reunion at Douro is the large collection of relics, curios and old time appliances on view.

In the field where the sports are being held are a number of exhibits whereby one may trace the evolution of harvesting machinery from the primitive reaping hook down to the old reaper which was in vogue until the introduction of the most modern machines. Particularly interesting is the reel of a combined reaper and mower in use in the '70's which was the property of the late Richard Short. This implement required the attendance of two men, one to drive and another armed with a wooden rake with which to push off the hay. There is on view an old-time cradle the property of John Leahy and a horse rake belonging to J. Shearer, Otonabee. Labelled "Our Forefathers' Automobile" is a jumper or ox sleigh which was used alike in summer and winter. One can also see the two wheeled ox-cart which marked the first advance on the use of rounded blocks of wood drawn by oxen as a means of transportation; an ancient cutter the property of Richard Carbeth, Douro, and the first carriage used in Douro, which has been lent by John Leahy.

Curios in Museum

Within the Harmony Hall is a museum with a wide assortment of objects ranging from the jaw bone of a walrus to a cannon of the time of William IV salvaged from a wreck in the St. Lawrence. Old flintlocks and swords of the war of 1812 some weapons used in fights with Indians hang cheek by jowl with rifles used in the South African War and Ghurka knives that tasted the blood of Germans in the Great War. There is also the sword used in the rebellion of 1837 by Col. Birdsall who made the first survey of Peterborough County.

Domestic utensils of every kind used by the pioneers of the district are on view. There is at least one specimen of every gradation of spinning wheels in use in the 18th and 19th centuries. Quite interesting although scarcely the latest in feminine fashions is a wedding dress 100 years old. Dating a century or more back are a flax jenny brought from Ireland in 1821. A maple sugar kettle brought from the United States by a U. E. L. family, the Choates, of whom A. F. Choate, postmaster of Warsaw, is the present day representative; a reel for winding yarn. A table cloth 125 years old used at the wedding supper of 8 generations, the first in Ireland.

Pipes of Peace

Memory of stirring times are conjured of by some specimens of Indian pipes of peace. Equally stirring perhaps are those recalled by an Irish shillalah which is claimed to have been actually used at Donnybrook by a sturdy Tipperary peasant.

Something ingenious in the way of carving is shown on a stick made by James Sullivan whose relatives still reside in the township. Although quite a short stick one can easily discern on it the figures of a beaver, a fish, an alligator, a bird, a snake and a mud turtle.

Some interesting extracts from the old Council books show the earliest Douro by-laws and some accounts for public work done are illuminating as to the standard of wages in those days. One account shows the payment for a man and a team of oxen—$14 per month.

French Chamber Besieged When Riot Signal Given

PARIS, June 24 (Canadian Press).—When the fighting began during Tuesday's turbulent session of the French Chamber of Deputies, a young substitute for the aged Eugene Pierre, permanent secretary general of the chamber, pushed the wrong button, adding unexpected seriousness to the situation.

He intended to give the signal that M. Herriot had suspended the session, but instead, he pushed the "alarm signal," which is supposed to be used only in case of riot and revolution.

The result was that for five minutes the Chamber of Deputies was in a state of siege. All of the doors were locked, soldiers automatically went on guard and the Chamber building became a fortress until the error was explained.

CONFERENCE TO ADJUST FREIGHT RATE PROPOSED

Englishman Advises Larger Traders to Meet With Railways

FIGHT NEEDED

Powerful and Insistent Fight Before Railways Will Lower Rates

WINNIPEG, Man., June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Appointment of a committee of the larger traders of the dominion to meet in conference representatives of the railways and so adjust freight rates fair to all parts of the country, is advocated by W. Easterbrook, of Liverpool, England.

"My experience has taught me that it needs a powerful and insistent fight to get railways to lower their freight rates. If, however, Canada adopted this "conference idea, a fair equalization of rates would be obtained," Mr. Easterbrook stated.

Discussing the prospects of migration of Britishers to Canada, Mr. Easterbrook believed that the Canadian authorities should let it be known on the other side just exactly what is being done to assist the new settlers here. "This is even now not known in Great Britain generally," he said. If a man was prepared to break up his home and try his luck in a new country, he was a settled worth having and it should be known throughout Great Britain that everything is being done in Canada to assist the newcomer. Canada, Mr. Easterbrook added, should obtain the majority of the British immigrants. "I know I would choose this dominion if I had to change," he said.

Mr. Easterbrook is the general sales manager of Lever Brothers.

Kansas City Not Concerned With Evolution Until J. Pluvius Cinches Corn and Wheat Crops

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24 (United Press).—At least one State in the Union is not worrying whether man sprang from monkey or not.

"Kansas," said William Allen White, internationally known editor of Emporia, and one of the State's famous sons, "is not bothered about abstract theories right now."

"We need one more good rain back there to cinch the evolution of the wheat and corn crops.

"The people in Kansas will wait until after harvest is in to cogitate on whether the monkey made the man," White concluded. The Kansas editor arrived here en route to Honolulu, where he is to attend the Pan-Pacific Conference which convenes on July 1.

SENATE TRENCHING ON PRESERVE OF COMMONS BY AMENDMENTS TO HOME BANK BILL, ROBB ASSERTS Upper Chamber's Action Is Contrary to Constitution, Says Acting Finance Minister.

MOTION OF PROTEST.

Proposes Note of Disagreement to be Sent to the Senate.

OTTAWA, June 24. (Canadian Press).—Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, moved in the House Tuesday afternoon that a message be sent to the Senate to acquaint their honors that the House of Commons disagreed with their amendments to the Home Bank Bill.

Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, declared that the Government in its motion had read a long series of resolutions involving its view of constitutional doctrines and the application of that doctrine in respect to a variety of amendments. The House should not be invited to vote upon the motion without the slightest exposition of the principles or an explanation of the amendments made by the Senate. Mr. Meighen did not think that the matter in the circumstances should be discussed and a vote taken right away.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, stated that he could not understand the protest made by Mr. Meighen. The Senate would have to declare whether it insisted or not on the amendments. If it insisted on the amendments it would result in deciding whether such amendments should be accepted or the bill dropped.

Constitutional Issue.

Sir Henry Drayton, in comment on the resolution, said that the Order-in-Council had originally been a political one. Now the situation was being made a constitutional fight between the Commons and the Senate, which might end with the depositors getting nothing, or at least having to wait a long time. The resolution was not asking for a conference with the Senate, but rather telling them that their action had been outside their power. If the Government had been insincere in the matter of reimbursement to depositors, they could not have chosen a more calculated manner in which to defeat the bill, and to follow the procedure already taken.

Hon. E. M. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence, interrupted to say that the present procedure was merely calling for a conference in the ordinary manner.

Sir Henry replied that if the OTTAWA, June 24. (Canadian Press).—By a vote of 131 to 19, the House of Commons this morning sent back to the Senate a bill to provide relief for Home Bank depositors, declining to accept the amendments made by the Senate. The original bill providing for an expenditure of $5,450,000 was amended by the Senate to $3,000,000.

From time to time Citizens request the weekly band concerts be alternated between Victoria and King Edward Parks and To-night opens the season at King Edward Park. No doubt the Parks Committee will continue the arangement providing their efforts and the efforts of the various musical organizations who play in Parks other than Victoria, are appreciated which may be evidenced by large crowds turning out to enjoy and applaud the performers.

IMMENSE SEAMS OF COAL FOUND

Rich Mine Unearthed in British Columbia at Hat Creek.

900,000,000 TONS.

VANCOUVER, June 24 (Canadian Press).—That the recent development work on coal claims at Hat Creek, on the Pacific Great Western Railway will eventually prove the field to be one of the greatest ever located, is generally believed here following considerable assessment work. Already three seams of coal, two of them of unbelievable thickness—269 feet and 177 feet—are reported to have been shown to exist by the use of the diamond drill where Dove Brothers, Ltd., have been working for several months past. The total thickness of the coal seams is said to be 253 feet, of which 380 is claimed to be pure coal. It is estimated that four square miles of the district are underlaid by coal measures which roughly contain nine hundred million tons.

Quality of the coal is shown by analysis to be highly favorable for development, since it has a lower ash content than any other coal in Canada, and its hardness is proved by the fact that 85 per cent. of the diamond drill core was taken out in unbroken lengths.

Plans are being laid to produce and market about one hundred tons of coal daily, and that will be increased as the demand develops.

WEATHER

Last night was again cool, in fact there was a lower temperature than the preceding night. The temperature was down to 42 degrees. Cool nights, plentiful rains, and pleasantly warm days, are ideal conditions for the growing crops, and some of the farmers say that prospects never looked brighter. Yesterday's highest point was 74 degrees. Here is a little verse I came across this morning:

"Each climate needs what other climes produce,
And offers something for the general use;
No land but listens to the common call,
And in return receives supplies from all."

Or in other words, no country is entirely self-sustained, but is dependent, to some extent, on others. —W. P.

WESTERNERS IN COMMON SPLIT OVER GRAIN ACT

Amendments Giving Farmers Broader Rights Opposed By Forks and Crerar.

GOES TO SENATE.

Conservatives and Liberals, Including Hon. Mr. Motherwell, Solidly Against It.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 24. (Canadian Press).—The new Grain Act passed all stages of the House of Commons Tuesday. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The Commons wrestled four hours over grain receipts. Three or four amendments were submitted, which would have given farmers the right to specify to what terminal elevators their grain should be sent. These were designed chiefly for the benefit of members of the Western grain pools. Opponents to the proposal, who included Robert Forke, Progressive leader, and Hon. T. A. Crerar, former Progressive leader, took the ground that this would be a one-sided arrangement and that country elevators, which are compelled to accept grain when offered to them, would have no right to say how it should be handled. The question of the elevators' liability for grade and dockage also was involved.

O. R. Gould of Assiniboia, W. J. Lovie of Macdonald, L. H. Jelliff of Lethbridge, and G. G. Coote of MacLeod, moved the amendments in favor of the pools. The first three were voted down in committee, only the Coote amendment which came on the motion for third reading, when the Speaker was in the chair, was a recorded vote. The vote was 114 to 40 against the amendment, and third reading then carried without further discussion.

The Progressive party split on the Coote amendment. The great majority supported it but about a dozen headed by Robert Forke and Mr. Crerar, opposed it. Liberals and Conservatives lined up solidly against it. There was some ironical cheers from the Progressive benches when Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, voted against the Coote amendment in the division.

The effect of Mr. Lovie's amendment would be to restore to the bill the clause concerning grain receipts as it read before the Agriculture Committee amended it. This would give the farmer the right to specify the terminal elevator. It would also remove the paragraph which relieves country elevators for liability for grades and weights after an affidavit of weight had been delivered to the owner of the grain, except where the "subject to grade and dockage ticket" had been issued.

John C. Evans, Progressive, Saskatoon, urged that the amendment moved by Mr. Lovie be accepted. Farmers had been driven into a co-operative movement and it was now desired by certain interests to kill that movement. He could not see where any injustice would be done by the acceptance of this amendment.

Mr. Lovie's amendment was put to the committee, and lost on a standing vote, 62 to 40. The section as drafted in the bill then carried.

N. H. McTaggart, Progressive, Maple Creek, later on moved an amendment to the effect that each applicant for a car should be "informed by the railway agent of the allotment to him of a car in good order and condition." The section, he pointed out, provided that every applicant should within three hours declare his intention and ability to load the car available; but there was no assurance that such applicant would be informed. The amendment, therefore, would insure his being informed by the railway agent, and allow him three hours after notification to declare his intention. This amendment carried without division.

Wm. T. Lucas, Progressive, Victoria, moved a further amendment, permitting 48 hours during September, October and November for the loading of a car secured instead of 24 hours. This amendment would have the effect of abolishing the exception for these three months of the year. Mr. Lucas's amendment was put to the committee and lost without division.

BRITAIN'S SIGNATURE TO PACT INCOMPATIBLE WITH ISOLATION DECLARES AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN

Interests of Peace Demand Britain's Influence and Power To Prevent War Breaking Out Again — Must Be Prudently Exerted, Says Foreign Secretary.

OBLIGATIONS MUST BE DEFINITE.

Guarantees of Rhine Frontier Cannot Be Involved By Wrongdoer to Shield Him in His Wrong — Denies Personal Policy of His Own.

LONDON, June 24 (Canadian Press).—Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain today told the House of Commons that Great Britain's obligations under the proposed Western European security pact "must be definitely limited to the frontier between Germany on the one side and France and Belgium on the other."

He added that "Our guarantees of that frontier cannot be invoked by a wrong-doer to shield him in his wrong-doing."

He said abstention of the British Empire and of Great Britain in particular from European affairs never had served and never would serve the interests of peace. Great Britain's signature to the covenant of the League of Nations was incompatible with isolation.

"Our safety is not in seeking an impossible isolation," he said, "but in a wise and prudent use of our influence and power to obtain peace and prevent war from breaking out again."

The foreign secretary denied reports that he had been pursuing a personal policy of his own, and that he had fallen a victim to the atmosphere at Geneva and to the personal wiles of his friend, M. Briand, the French foreign minister.

DISCOVERER OF BODIES SOLVES POLAR MYSTERY

Stefansson's Lost Party Found Dead, Beside Half-Made Shelter.

MISSING SINCE 1914.

Five Members of Crew Under Ship's Doctor, Perished of Exposure.

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Another mystery of the polar region was solved yesterday when H. A. Snow, big game hunter and explorer, just returned from two years photographic exploration of the Artic regions, announced the discovery of the remains of missing members of the Vilhjalmur Stefanson's North Pole Expedition in 1914 on Herald Island.

Snow's discovery clears up the 11 year old mystery of the fate of five members of the crew, one of two parties in which the expedition was divided, who quit the ice-locked and sinking "Karluk" and started out on a long trek back to civilization.

The first party led by Stefansson completed the long journey after terrific hardships. The other party, led by the ship's doctor, was never heard from and relief expeditions found no trace of it.

Snow declared he came upon, the remains while taking pictures on Herald Island, which is about sixty five miles from the spot where the "Karluk" was lost. A half-completed camp attested their ineffectual attempts to build a shelter. He believes the entire party perished of exposure and starvation a short time after they reached the Island.

Identification of the party was made positive, Mr. Snow said, by relatives of the men to whom he brought personal effects found on the island, near the bodies.

ONLY METHODIST CHURCH TO VOTE

Polling June 30 By Congregation of West Kildonan Church.

OWN DECISION.

WINNIPEG, June 24 (Canadian Press).—With the charge that Rev. D. D. Millar is out of harmony with the feelings of the majority of the congregation on the question of Church Union, supporters of the continuing Presbyterian Church have taken action seeking his resignation from Old Kildonan Church.

Seventy-two members of the church have signed a petition calling for Mr. Millar's immediate resignation.

Mr. Millar has been pastor of the church for the past three years. Monday night the seventy-two nonconcurring members unanimously voted in opposition to Union. Unionist supporters did not attend the meeting, which was declared by Mr. Millar to be illegal, as it had not been properly called.

West Kildonan Church, declared to be the only Methodist Church in Canada to make an individual decision, will vote on Church Union, June 30.

NEED A BETTER UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN RACES

Conference On Pacific Relations Is Being Held to Discuss Problem

ALL REPRESENTED

Honolulu Is Logical Place for Gathering As All Races Meet There

VANCOUVER, June 24 (by the Canadian Press)—Much interest is being taken in Canada in the Pacific Institute conference on Pacific relations which will open in Honolulu on July first and continue for two weeks. A very representative committee of Hawaiians, headed by ex-governors, bankers, editors, university heads and commercial leaders has been working on the project for nearly two years. Recent disturbances in China, reflecting an ominous condition which has been regarded with deep concern for some time by students of Oriental conditions, gives special significance to the forthcoming conference.

Honolulu is the natural stage for such a gathering as the Hawaiian Islands are the racial laboratory and clinic for the world. There men of all colors have been forced to face the fact that as Occidental and Oriental must live together, and hope to trade with one another, a better understanding between them is vital.

The committee mentioned has been carrying on negotiations with prominent men in all the countries bordering on the Pacific and those attending are doing so by invitation. It has been realized that such a gathering cannot be official, but must be representative. Although none of the governments of the countries concerned will have official representatives, the gathering is being watched with intense interest by public men in the hope that out of it may come the beginning of a better relationship which will simplify and ease the international dealings of the governments concerned.

There will be approximately 125 representatives — men and women —from Hawaii, Japan, China, Korea, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, the Philippines and the United States. The delegates have been chosen with a view to their ability to contribute to the discussions and to exert influence and provide leadership, unofficially, when they return home.

It is intended to make the Institute a permanent one, and to constitute in it a fact-finding organization on all matters that involve the relations of the races. Its discussions will be informative rather tha argumentative; and the effort will be emphasized along common interests rather than points of difference. The emphasis will be on the method of approach to the various questions. Many of the subjects like immigration, intermarriage, assimilation, racial equality, land tenure, citizenship, etc., have in them elements of discord, and there will be no attempt to avoid their discussion or the consideration of any relevant theme on that account. But the approach will be benevolent and Christian, though the conference will be in no respect a religious gathering. The delegates will consider contacts and conflicts but only that they may foster understanding and co-operation.

Among those who have been active in promoting the gathering and some of whom who will attend are Dr. Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford University; Dr. L. S. Klinck, president of the University of British Columbia; President Burton, of Chicago University; former U. S. Secretary of Commerce Redfield, of New York; former Attorney-General Wickersham of the United States; Dr. Blakeslee, one of the founders of the Williamsport School of Politics; William Allen White, journalist; C. F. Hsu, commissioner of foreign affairs, Shanghai; Chang Poling, president of Mankai University; Fan Yuen Ling, former Chinese minister of education; Miss Tseng Wan-Tseng, Chinese delegate to the International Labor Congress at Geneva; Jabin Hsu, editor of the Chinese Press; Professor Anesaki of the University of Tokio; Mr. Yusuke Tsurumi, former official of the Imperial Japanese railway and son-in-law of Viscount Goto; Mr. Chuichi Ariyoshi, former chief administrator of Korea; Count Soejima, member of the Japanese House of Peers; Mr. Sanji Muto, member of the Japanese House of Representatives; Bernard Baruch, noted New York financier; John H. Finley, president of the New York Times; Hon. J.B. Gow, New Zealand; C. M. Luke, a former member of the legislative council of New Zealand; Lee Sang Chai, from Korea; Professor J. McKellar Stewart, Adelaide, Australia; Sir Joseph Carruthers, of New South Wales, and many others.

The Oriental nations have shown perhaps the deepest interest in the gathering, and some of their keenest literary, political and economic thinkers plan to be present. Among them is Mr. Hu Suh, the literary revolutionist of China; B. K. Liu, of the government bureau of economic information; Dr. W. T. Wei, one of the ranking secretaries of the ministry of foreign affairs and Dr. T. Z. Tyau, a noted writer on international law.

Most of those attending from North America are sailing from San Francisco on June 24th. It was hoped that Hon. N. W. Rowell, Canada's outstanding internationalist, would head the Canadian party but if he is able to attend it will be only toward the close of the conference when on his way to Australia. The Canadian delegates are Stanley Brent, of the National Council, Y.M.C.A., Toronto; Mrs. Foster, Dominion field secretary, Y.W.C.A., Toronto; George Cowan, a former member of Parliament for Vancouver; Miss Jean Bollert, dean of women's work, University of British Columbia and Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson, Vancouver.

AMUNDSEN WILL TRY TRIP AGAIN

Has Gathered Valuable Information on Unsuccessful Flight Just Ended.

PLANS IMPERFECT.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, June 24.—(Canadian Press.) — Roald Amundsen and other members of the expedition which recently made an ineffectual attempt to reach the North Pole by airplane from Spitzbergen, will sail to-day from King's Bay for Oslo, Norway. They will take with them the seaplane which brought them back from the Arctic Circles to Spitzbergen.

Amundsen told the Associated Press that he looked upon the expedition just ended as experimental, his dream for years having been to make a flight over the pole, landing in Alaska. For this project he had now gathered much additional and valuable knowledge, but he was unable to say as yet when he would undertake the next flight. He said he believes land exists near the North Pole, on the Canadian side, which he purposes to discover. His plans for the immediate future have not been decided.

Lieut. Lutzow Holm, of the Norwegian relief expedition and H. Jalmar Riiser-Larser, one of Amundsen's pilots, have gone by the steamer Heimdal to North Cape to recover plane N-25 which was extricated from the ice near Pilot and brought the expedition back to Spitzbergen. The plane was found in Brennvin Bay, 150 miles away, and was flown back to King's Bay.

SPARK PLUGS.

Faulty sparkplugs often cause missing engines. Here are three faults. First, the spark may jump from shell to terminal because of a short shank and a wide gap. Second, the points may touch due to screwing the plug too tightly into the cylinder head. Third, wire may have become loose from terminal.

PRESBYTERY OF PETERBORO IN FINAL MEETING

No Unionists Who Were Formerly Methodists Sat as Delegates at Brighton.

HELP MINORITIES.

Ministers Without Positions to be Provided For in Short Time.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BRIGHTON, June 24. — It was the Peterborough Presbytery that met here Tuesday morning but so unusual was the personnel that it appeared as if only the name remained. None but United Church Ministers and elders, who were former members of the Presbytery, sat as delegates. Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Baltimore, Moderator of the Presbytery before the historic 10th of June presided, and P. L. Jull of Lakefield, who was elected clerk to succeed Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings who held that position for over 20 years and who for 43 years was a member of the Presbytery, acted in that capacity Tuesday He will hold the same position when the Union arrangements are perfected.

No Unionists who were formerly Methodists sat as delegates on Tuesday, although two was extended the courtesy of being admitted as corresponding members. There were Rev. Dr. J. I. W. S. Wilson of the Brighton United Church and Rev. F. H. Howard of the United church Millbrook. Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings was also made a corresponding member.

It was given out that this was probably the last meeting of the Peterboro Presbytery as at present constituted and that the new Presbytery of the United Church will probably be ready to function by September. The ministers and elders who constituted the Presbytery were as follows:

Ministers:

Rev. A. K. McLeod, Brighton.
G. I. Craw, Springville.
P. L. Jull, Lakefield.
W. A. Bremner, Cobourg.
T. W. Anderson, Port Hope.
T. M. Wesley, Norwood.
J. S. Ferguson ,Baltimore.
S. H. Moyer, Grafton.
T. McCord, Roseneath.
G. S. Girvan, Millbrook.
J. Archibald, Keene.
J. A. Black, Omemee.
J. W. Gordon, Peterboro.

Elders:

G. Evans, St. Andrew's, Peterboro
J. McIntosh, Springville.
John Dick, Warkworth.
W. Forsyth, Cottlesloe.
B. C. H. Beck, Brighton.
Wm. Buttars, Baltimore.
Robert Likster, Grafton.
D. Armstrong, Keene.
A. J. Young, Lakefield.
R. Libble, Garden Hill.
Robert Deyell, Centreville.

It was during the afternoon session that the question of helping the minorities was brought up by Rev. W. A. Bremner convenor of the church union committee. Mr. Bremner said he had little to report outside of the result of the vote with which all were familiar. Personally he would be glad to forget all about the recent controversy but the situation had to be faced. Some of those whose convictions had induced them to remain out of the union should look to the majority to help them. He believed that it was possible to make some arrangement to ameliorate the condition of these minorities. The committee would be glad to receive information regarding those in need of help.

"The circumstances," said the speaker, "are regretable but we are here to make the best of the situation. We have a right to take care of those ministers who are out of positions. People who have stood by their convictions should not be allowed to suffer."

Rev. J. W. Gordon suggested that the union committee be continued to watch over the minorities and to consult with them as to their needs. What they require is care and advice to enable them to line up to the convictions.

On motion of Rev. G. S. Gervan, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Jull were added to the union committee which now consist, besides these two, of Revs. W. A. Bremner, (convenor), Rev. C. F. McIntosh of Campbellford and Rev. A. H. McConnachie of Centreville.

Mr Black of Omemee asked if the committee had done anything for the ministers out of positions and was informed by Mr. Jull that the entire Synod all of these, with the exception of 11, had received offers. It was hoped that in a short time all would be provided for.

Rev. J. S. Ferguson, the moderator, said that the ministers without charges should be given first consideration in the matter of supply within the Presbytery and that was agreed to.. The new Presbytery will be called together in September when the field will be organized and then more places will be available. In the meantime, the idle ministers are being kept in touch with vacant charges.

Mr. Black, of Omemee, said that he had refused an offer to become associate pastor of United Church in that village as he regarded the field too small for a principal and an assistant.

The New Presbytery.

The new Presbytery will include the committee of Northumberland and Durham and the Townships of Whitby and Pickering in Ontario County. It will be known as the Cobourg Presbytery. Some of the congregations in the present Presbytery will be transferred to Lindsay.

Mr. Thomson Speaks.

Rev. D. A. Thomson spoke once only, during the session and that only referring to sesion and that was to say that some system of co-operation was necessary in order to settle points raised at the meeting such as disposing of property, over the ownership of which there are disputes. Mr. Bremner approved of this suggestion.

On motion of Mr. Bremner, it was decided to hold the next session in St. Andrews Church, Peterborough, on Tuesday, September 29th, unless something transpires in the meantime to render such a meeting unnecessary. It is believed that by such time the new Cobourg Presbytery will be ready to function.

On motion of Rev. J. W. Gordon, the home mission committee was given the authority of Presbytery in the matter of dealing with the home mission grants.

Mr. Craw Resigns.

Rev. G. I. Craw for the past 11 years minister at Springville and Lakevale, resigned his charges. The church at Springville goes into the Union while the one at Lakevale retains the former status Mr. Craw desired to resign only the Springville charge but it was stated that the congregation at Lakehurst had failed to report the result of the vote that church automatically passed into the jurisdiction of the Unionists.

Mr. Craw amended his resignation to include both charges and in this form it was accepted.

On motion of Rev. W. A. Bremner, Dr. Richard Davidson, professor of Old Testament History in Knox College, was nominated for the positon of Professor of the New Testament.

or under close relatives, went his testimony.

Today, at the age of 49, he owns two parcels of real estate and a few shares of stock to show for his life's work, he admitted under interrogation of Mr. Crowe.

In McClintock Home.

After a visit to Mrs. McClintock here in 1909, he and Mrs. Shepherd became tixtures in the widow's household, Shepherd admitted, and since 1912 never had paid for the livelihood obtained from Mrs. McClintock and, after her death, the boy Billy.

"She simply made the proposition to me to keep me, not because she wanted me to stay so much, but she wanted my wife with her, and this work was simply to keep me from taking another position," Shepherd explained.

"My time was taken up, whatever she wanted me to do, whatever it might be," he said in describing his duties.

At the end of his cross-examination, Prosecutor Crowe gained from the witness an admission that he knew Billy McClintock had ordered the McClintock-Shepherd home sold, and that he had written to a young woman that he was "broke" and the future looked doubtful.

Minister Testifies.

Before closing its case with Shepherd's testimony, the defence called five witnesses, including the Rev. A. C. Naumann, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, of which the Shepherd's are members.

The minister said the attitude of the Shepherds towards Billy was that of parents towards a child, that they treated him with love and affection. The Shepherds also appeared friendly towards Miss Pope, whom he had seen upon three or four visits during Billy's illness.

The opening address to the jury was begun by George E. Gorman, first assistant State's attorney. No time limit was set upon the speeches, but it was indicated Mr. Gorman would require about three hours. He had been talking two hours when court adjourned.

After he concludes today, Stewart will open for the defence, and will be followed by W. W. O'Brien for the defence.

Prosecutor Crowe will close for the state.

SENATE TRENCHING

Government wanted something definite done, it shouldn't "decorate its coat with quite so many chips."

Robb's Reasons.

Hon. Mr. Robb, in his motion, gave the following reasons why the House should disagree with Senate amendments to the Home Bank Bill:

(1) Because the said amendments, which consist in changing the title and adding a preamble as well as new clauses, are foreign to the bill passed by the House of Commons on the 10th of June, 1925, the said preamble setting out that certain representations have been made to the Governor in Council and that the Government's moral responsibility to the Home Bank depositors, is not admitted, and also defining the principle on which pecuniary aid may be afforded to a limited number of creditors—thereby giving expression to recitals on behalf of the Cabinet and the House of Commons which have not been authorized either by the Government or the House of Commons.

(2) Because Clause 2 of the bill, which had been passed by the House of Commons, on the recommendation of the Crown, and which provided that the amount therein be voted for the purpose of paying the Home Bank depositors such proportionate parts of their deposit as they would respectively be found entitled to in the liquidation proceedings, has been struck out and new clauses have been substituted determining another mode of payment based upon a different principle and fixing the amount to be paid at a sum not to exceed $3,000,000, besides changing the proportion for the distribution of these public moneys and establishing classes of persons who may be paid or denied payment, according to the provisions of the said new clauses.

(3) Because Clause "A," added to the bill, provides for the appointment of a commissioner and the organization of a lengthy and costly procedure, thereby entailing a large expenditure which the Senate has no right to make a charge upon the public revenues, and which could only be authorized if it had first been recommended by the Governor-General and voted by the House of Commons under sections 53 and 54 of the British North America Act.

No Right to Alter.

(4) Because it is provided by clause seven of the said bill as passed by the House of Commons that "the Governor-in-Council may raise by way of a loan, temporary or otherwise, upon such form of security and upon such terms and conditions as the Governor-in-Council may approve, such sum or sums of money as are required for the purpose of making the payment authorized by this Act, and any sums so raised, shall form part of the consolidated revenue fund," and the raising of any loan as a charge upon the consolidated revenue fund is the undoubted and sole privilege of the Commons — the Senate having no right to alter the same, whether by increase or reduction.

(5) Because the title, principle, policy and economy of the said bill as passed by the House of Commons, have been completely altered and a new bill has been substituted by their honors, and the action of the Senate in the premises is contrary to the constitution and against the principles of British Parliamentary practice.

(6) Because the House of Commons, adhering to the British North America Act and the fundamental principle embodied in Rule 78, cannot renounce its inalienable right to initiate and regulate the voting of all aids and supplies granted by Parliament, and it has never acknowledged the right of the Senate to make amendments to money bills.

WEDDING BELLS.

CLARKE—LONGMUIR

TRENT RIVER, June 24—Trent River Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, June 20, at eleven o'clock, when Gertrude Lillian, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Longmuir, was united in marriage to Bruce Burnett, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clarke of Havelock, by Rev. E. O. Seymour.

The church was prettily decorated for the occasion. A large white floral bell was suspended where the bridal party stood, while Maple leaves with wild roses entwined adorned the front of the altar.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her eldest brother, Bruce, to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Minnie Williams, and looked charming dressed in white flat crepe and veil of embroidered tulle which was arranged in cap effect with wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was attended by her sister, Pansy, who was gowned in peach crepe de chine with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. The groom was supported by Mr. A. Yule of Toronto. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Arthur Russell sang sweetly, "I Love You Truly." After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, at which forty guests were present. The happy couple left on a motor trip to the Thousand Islands, and points in the States, the bride travelling in a honeydew crepe falconne dress and coat of sandalwood Poiret twill with hat, shoes and gloves to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a black crepe leather club bag; to the bridesmaid, a white gold bar pin, and to the best man, a yellow gold tie pin set with a pearl. Among the many beautiful gifts which the young cople received were substantial cheques from the bride's and groom's parents.

RAIN SPOILED GARDEN PARTY

Verandahs of Jas. Seymour's Home in Cavan Provided Shelter.

200 ATTENDED.

MILLBROOK, June 24.—The annual garden party in connection with the Fairmount United Church (Twelfth Line, Cavan) was held at the home of Mr. Jas. Seymour on Monday evening.

Unfortunately the heavy rain which came on shortly after six o'clock prevented many from attending who intended being present, though some came from Peterboro, and finally about two hundred gathered, the wide verandahs being largely used for their accommodation.

It was practically impossible to serve tea on the lawn as had been intended, but one long table was utilized, and everybody was looked after, once the downpour ceased.

The Peterboro Male Voice Choir, which was to have been present, was sent a message not to come when prospects were so unfavorable, but Mrs. McKee Bingham, who was to have been associated with them for the programme, having arrived from her summer home at Rice Lake, proved a host in herself. Miss Marie McBain, who had not expected to take part, but generously contributed a number of solos, assisted Mrs. Bingham, and an excellent entertainment was provided.

Cars were utilized to accommodate the audience, when all the verandah space was occupied, and illumination was accomplished by the use of gasoline lanterns.

Rev. R. T. Richards was chairman, filling the position capably, his fund of amusing stories keeping the audience in good humor throughout, and giving the artists, whose selection of numbers was necessarily an impromptu one, a breathing space between calls. The insistent demand for an encore after each appearance of both Mrs. Bingham and Miss McBain, showed the warm appreciation of the listeners.

Mrs. Bingham's numbers included "How the War was Settled" (Jean Blewett), "Me an' Jim," "In Sunflower Time," "Madeleine Vercheres" (Drummond), "Grandma Pays the Bills," "Sister's Beau," and "The Middle Girl."

Miss McBain's solos were: "Just a Song at Twilight," "Bonnie Mary o' Argyll," "Loch Lomand," and a piano solo before the concluding selection by Mrs. Bingham.

The financial receipts were as satisfactory as could be expected in the circumstances.

Ministerial Meeting.

The June meeting of the Ministerial Association was held on Monday at 9.30 a.m., Rev. M. G. B. Williams, president, being in the chair.

Rev. R. M. Paterson of Fraserville who goes to Janetville for his new charge next month, was the speaker, delivering a fine address on the tonic, "Do the four gospels contain all that is necessary for the way of salvation?"

Seven members were present: Rev. G. I. Craw of Springville, Rev. R. T. Richards of Cavan, Rev. W. Wilkinson of Pontypool, Rev. F. H. Howard, Rev. G. S. Gervan, Millbrook, Rev. R. M. Paterson, and the president.

Monday's meeting was the last one in connection with the local association for four of the members: Revs. Craw, Richards, Gervan and Paterson, all of whom are changing their circuits this year.

An important meeting of the Unionists of the Centreville Presbyterian Church will be held in the United Church of Bensfort on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. W. R. Bremner, chairman of the Union Committee of the Peterboro Presbytery, and Rev. Jas. Gordon of Peterboro will have charge.

The many friends of Mr. J. McBride will regret to learn that he is seriously ill.

Married: In the United Church, Millbrook, on Saturday, June 20th, at 1 p.m., Evelyn Fallis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Fallis, to Mr. Edward Armstrong, both of Cavan. Rev. F. H. Howard officiated.

Mrs. A. A. Smith and Miss Rose Macnamara were delegates from the Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas Church to the recent district W.M.S. convention at Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, Miss Ella Elson, and Dr. A. C. Richards are on a motor trip to Montreal and intervening points this week.

Miss A. Hampton is visiting Rev. S. T. and Mrs. Tucker at the parsonage, Orono, returning with her host and hostess, who were guests of friends in town on Wednesday.

EXPECT TO FIND RELICS IN BOG

Party from Ontario Is Searching for Fossils In Saskatchewan

HAMMER FOUND

SASKATOON, Sask., June 24 (Canadian Press) — Within the next two or three weeks the fossil hunters of the Royal Ontario Museum, who are searching an ancient bog on Dr. J. J. Finn's farm, near Dundurn, Sask., expect to know whether they have located a valuable deposit of prehistoric remains.

According to L. Sternberg, who is in charge of the work, should the bog produce relics of genuine value, the party probably will be busy all summer, otherwise their labors soon will be finished.

Last week an Indian stone hammer was unearthed. These Indian relics, however, are not regarded of any particular significance in this search. What the Museum is chiefly seeking is some authenic trace of prehistoric man. Should remains of his bones or handiwork be discovered, the find will be of the greatest significance, as it is believed that the Red Indians occupation of the country is not particularly ancient, as the paleontologist measures time, and it is hoped to find some record of his predecessors.

The exploration party has erected a good-sized diaphragm pump on an elevated platform beside the bog. Through a hose, the water is sucked out of the pool each morning and run away on a flume past the elevation of land until it can run off by natural gravity. This takes about three hours, and the rest of the day is devoted to digging in the bed of the sand. To date about four feet of the sand has been removed. It is supposed that the bed is 10 feet in thickness and it is in the bottom few feet that the searchers hope to discover the really valuable relics.

Their bag so far consists of an extinct and hitherto unknown species of antelope, a quantity of buffalo bones and Indian relics. It is supposed the pool served as watering place for man and beast for thousands of years, and it is therefore believed that in the lower strata of its sand will be found the imprint of the hitherto unknown North American pre-historic man.

"In His Quiet Moments"

A True Story

Always 'the life of the party' everybody admires Ted Carruthers for his breezy good nature and winning personality. He is a real man through and through.

But in his quiet moments—

Poor Ted has his personal problem from which he cannot shake himself free when alone. A recent illness, the price of overwork, left his health impaired. The doctor says it is only a matter of time.

He now has only a few short years in which to provide for Mary and the children. What is he to do? He is not able to get life insurance and cannot save much more than $300.00 a year. In five years this will be but $1,500.00—not nearly enough!

'Tis now he realizes just what it would have meant if he had insured when able, to provide for his wife an income of at least $100.00 a month ($1,200.00 a year) as long as she lived. At his age (35) $6.40 a week with the London Life would have guaranteed it, and worry would not now be further sapping his strength, killing any chance he may have had of recovery.

The future may easily be made safe for loved ones by insurance, and worry removed from those who have dependents.

THE REVOLVER MENACE

The proper way to deal with the revolver menace has been discovered by Gold Commissioner Dodd of British Columbia who has issued an order that no revolvers must be taken into the new mining area in the Cassiar district.

If some of the common sense shown in this edict were to be generally adopted in connection with the regulation of the sale and manufacture of revolvers the number of homicides would be materially reduced.

An Ottawa contemporary is not far off the mark when it declares that ninety per cent of all the crimes of violence committed on this continent are committed with the aid of revolvers.

The easily-concealed, too easily-used weapon, serves no useful purpose; but it does an immense amount of harm.

The sooner the folly of allowing the manufacture of the deadly revolver is realized, the sooner will the toll of murders decrease.

The Commissioner has solved the problem so far as the district under his control is concerned.

GIVE SOLDIERS A CHANCE

There seems to be considerable justification for the contention advanced by Progressive members of Parliament that the land held by ex-service men under the Soldiers' Settlement Act be revalued.

The Government produces to reduce the liability on the live stock owned by these soldier settlers, but western members do not think this measure of assistance goes far enough and they are pressing to have the land included.

It is pointed out that the war veterans who settled on the land after their return to Canada were sold farms at prices that were much too high and as a result they have had a constant struggle to keep their heads above water; some of them in fact have had to give up the fight and abandon their farms because they could see no prospect of making a success of them.

It would surely be good business for Canada to keep these soldier-farmers on the land under conditions that would ensure them some chance of prospering—better business than to bring immigrants—many of them unable to speak English and of a type difficult to assimilate—to take up land in the western provinces.

They have shown themselves Canadians of the best possible stamp inasmuch as they did not hesitate to risk their lives when the call to arms was heard.

If a revaluation of their farms would make it possible for them to succeed as farmers the case in favour of such a measure of relief is very strong, indeed.

ALBERTA COAL

The Ontario Government has good ground for protesting to Sir Henry Thornton against the cancellation of the arrangements for the movement eastward of a 25000-ton trial shipment of Alberta coal.

The explanation offered by the head of the Canadian National Railways for abandoning the plan does not explain anything.

What the inquiry into freight rates has to do with the scheme arranged some time ago does not appear on the surface, nor can the answer be found by digging deeper.

The plan to bring Alberta coal to Ontario was an experiment designed to establish a market for the Western fuel in this province and to ascertain definitely what the cost of haulage would be.

The $7 per ton rate decided upon was not thought of as a permanent rate.

It was merely a special rate set for this one shipment of 25000 tons and in no way could be regarded as a precedent.

The freight rate inquiry surely does not enter into this question at all.

The action of the Canadian National Railways in refusing to carry out the arrangement is a nasty blow to a definite attempt to make Ontario independent of the United States coal fields.

It is the more deadly because it comes simultaneously with an announcement from over the border that a strike in the anthracite mines before next autumn is regarded as a most likely development.

The people of Ontario were willing to try Alberta coal. Dealers have advertised it. Citizens have made contracts with the coal men to purchase the western fuel. The coal is ready to be shipped and at this stage of the proceedings the bottom is knocked out of the whole scheme.

The experiment would have been invaluable as an introduction of Alberta coal into this province and as offering a definite test of the exact cost of transporting it to Ontario.

The withdrawal of the Canadian National Railways will be regretted not only by the people of this province but by the citizens of Alberta.

THE SOFT DRINK TAX

"In all our business experience the trade has never been confronted with regulations that are so irksome and vexatious as the regulations issued under the authority of this act."

Such was the protest of a deputation of the Retail Merchants' Association which waited upon the Provincial Treasurer on Monday to protest against the tax on carbonated beverages.

The language was strong but none too strong.

The soft drink tax is undoubtedly the cause of more trouble than any other levy passed in years.

Apparently the Ontario Government is attempting in the enforcement of this tax to defy the British North America Act—which gives it no authority to tax manufacturers—by making it desirable for the manufacturers of soft drinks to overlook the illegality of the thing and pay the tax themselves in order to retain their business.

Ostensibly the tax was to be collected from the consumer and some dealers who retail soft drinks are handling them in this manner.

The majority of such dealers are charging six cents a bottle for the beverages, thus adding eighteen cents to their profit on every case for the beverage tax amounts to six cents a case.

Other retailers are refusing to handle brands the manufacturers of which refuse to absorb the tax.

The whole soft drink business is in a turmoil and to make the tax even more objectionable it is charged by the Toronto Star that the government is using scores of inspectors who have incited the retailers to stop buying from manufacturers who will not pay a tax that is unconstitutional.

The same paper says that there is evidence that some of the inspectors have gone so far as to name firms from which they could get supplies without having to handle or pay for stamps.

The beverage tax so far as soft drinks are concerned should be scrapped; it is an unjustifiable burden upon an industry of considerable importance, a detriment to trade and an annoyance to the public.

THERE'S NO ESCAPING IT.

Down in a Pennsylvania town the other day, rival firemen fought one another with the hose. They had been called out to stop a fire in a barn. While they were fighting, the barn was burned to the ground.

That, you will say at once, is a funny idea, says the Border Cities Star. It is a grotesque situation, and therefore ridiculous. But look deeper, and you find the ominous part of it. The analogy to our own affairs is too close to be comfortable.

People quarrel with their physical systems, and set one part warring against the other, because they abuse their constitution—Result, death and utter vanishing. Men and women quarrel in their homes over trivial things—Result, the children leave it, love departs and the home itself disappears. Industries and business have their wage and other disputes; rival interests take their field while they are fighting over a few dollars, and the disputing industry or business disappears. Nations go to war, and while they use every resource to weaken each other, mutual extermination sets in, and another takes their place of dominance; the warring nations vanish as entities.

Always the undying flame—enemies of civilization are reaching out for the structure of that civilization. Always the primordial instinct and the germ world are striving to regain the dominance they once held and lost. Always the barn is in danger. If we turn the hose on each other instead of on the fire, the barn will burn down. There is no supposition in that; it is absolutely inevitable.

Since we cannot change this natural law, our only salvation is to obey it.

WE MUST REALIZE IT.

A warning is issued by the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada that cities of Ontario and Quebec are not decreasing their expenses for government, but are continually, and with hardly one exception, moving in the opposite direction, while in some of the western centers there has been an actual decrease.

The bulletin just issued says that a comparison of three years shows that governments have not decreased expenditure in proportion to the decreased paying power of the taxpayer. Prices of many commodities have decreased since 1920, and, judging from income tax returns, incomes have also decreased. Not so with the cost of provincial, federal or municipal government.

When the taxpayers as individuals find their personal revenue decreasing they must cut their expenses, otherwise they are going to find themselves in trouble. Governments do not often see things in this light. When revenue ceases to be buoyant there is an effort at once to seek new forms of taxation. The ability of the people to pay is not the measure by which the taxes are imposed—it is judged by the desire of governments to spend.

It may be impossible for municipal councils or governments to whittle down expenses to suit the ability of the people to meet them, but there should be a firm stand against new debt until we see some way of discharging what we owe now.

There is a constantly increasing pressure on Ottawa to spend more money, and there are times when it appears that the resistance is not sufficiently strong against it. A very good case can be made out by the localities that will benefit from the expenditure, but that does not edge away from the plain fact that right now we are nursing a larger public debt than we can carry. A private individual can put up a number of very excellent reasons why he should put an addition on his house, he needs the extra space, he would use it to advantage and it would make home life much more comfortable. Yet if he hasn't got the money, and has no prospects of being able to secure it, he must make the best of what he has.

The government of Ontario has also given a very plain illustration of a method that is bad, by adding new taxes and at the same time adding new reasons for levying them. The government knew it would face a deficit; its own estimates showed that, and instead of vigorous simplicity and a severe attempt to cut expense and keep it down, it deliberately increased sessional salaries about $90,000 per year; instead of taking less money from the people it put on new taxes on beer and gas and increased some of the amusement levies. It gave no leadership at all to a movement that is pressingly urgent toward bringing provincial levies down to a basis that would meet the paying power of the people and be commensurate with the value of the service rendered.

This criticism is no more aimed at governments than it is at the people who are always ready to use their political influence to nudge governments on the elbow and point to a convenient spot where the stage is all set for the spreading out of public money.

We must realize our cities are in debt.

We must realize our province is in debt.

We must realize our dominion is in debt.

And above all we must realize that we have got to get out of it instead of farther into it.—London Advertiser.

Wise and Otherwise.

Variety is the spice of life. But things pall when life is all spice.

When a man can't get a grip on himself someone else can.

The only reliable thing about some people is their unreliability.

It's a lucky June bridegroom who gets a good looker and a good cooker.

One thing about bathing suits is you no longer have to take a girl at face value.

Silence is usually mistaken for sense.

Every man has a lame excuse for getting his leg pulled.

One way of getting what you want is by wanting nothing.

The value of a hug depends upon the law of supply and demand.

Some women are so foolish they should have been men.

Work, was invented by people who were too nervous to sit still.

A popular person is one who enjoys being bored.

An Arctic explorer would be safer if he would wait and go with his relief party.

Opportunity doesn't knock. It boosts.

A cynic is one who got mad and quit playing.

The practical man puts two and two together and gets four. The dreamer gets 22.

What is so rare as a swim in June?

These are the days when you can't tell if it is a sawmill or a mosquito.

A THOUGHT.

PULL!

A horse can't pull while he's kicking,
This fact I merely mention;
Aid he cannot kick while pulling,
Which is my chief contention.
Go imitate the good old horse
And lead a life that's fitting.
Just pull an honest load, and quit
Your everlasting kicking.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 23. —Situation generally reported very strong. At this season of the year prices usually decline but prices at the present time are firmer on the best grades and steady on the undergrade This situation is attributed to the earlier development in the export demand for Fall delivery. The early falling off in production and the continuance of a good consumptive demand as a result of the much better quality of average receipts than formerly at this season. The present Egg grading regulations has done much towards keeping the consumptive demand good, as formerly consumers ceased eating eggs in hot weather.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 23—Wheat prices to-day proved responsive to increasingly numerous reports about the presence of black rust both in Canada and the Dakotas. Actual damage by the plague was reported from America, N. D. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 1 1-2 to 2 1-4 cents net higher, July 155 1-4 to 155 1-2, and September 154 to 154 1-8, with corn unchanged to 5-8 cents up, oats at 1-8c decline to 1-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to 20c lower.

An unexpected advance in wheat quotations at Liverpool did a good deal to help lift values here. The chief stimulus to buyers, however, was news that black rust has been found widespread in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Meanwhile, particular attention was also taken of word from Chicago crop expert that between Aberdeen, S. D., and Fargo, N. D, black rust was prevalent in many fields.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, June 23 —Sterling exchange were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand $485 1-2.

Sterling cable $4.86 7-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, June 23. — There was an increased demand today for ocean grain room out of Montreal and a fairly ctive business was done including engagement of several tramp vessels to carry full cargoes of grain to the continent at 9 and 9 1-2 cents per 100 pounds for heavy grain, and at 10 1-2 to 11 cents per 100 pounds for oats for June and July loading. There was also a good demand for broken lots, and a number of loads were taken at these rates. The market for United Kingdom room was quiet, and the undertone was easy.

A firmer feeling prevailed for car lots of oats and prices were marked up 1-2 per bushel.

POULTRY PRICES.

There were no new developments in the market for cold storage dressed poultry, prices for all lines being maintained under a continued steady demand for supplies which were ample for all wants, and the volume of business was fair for the season of the year with sales of 10 to 12 lb. turkeys at 40c to 43c per lb., 5 to 9 lb. birds at 32c to 39c per lb, milkfed chickens at 35c to 40c per lb, selected chickens at 32c to 36c per lb. selected foul at 18c to 28c per lb., selected ducks at 26c to 28c per lb., and selected geese at 18c to 22c per lb.

The receipts of butter were 2,229 packages, as against 4,769 for the same day last week, and 968 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market, prices being fairly maintained for all grades with a fair amount of business passing for export account and the market in this respect was moderately active, but there was no improvement in the demand from domestic buyers owing to the fact that buyers seem to have ample supplies on hand for the present and are not disposed to operate for future requirements at the present level of prices. Eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 36 1-2c per lb., No. 1 creamery at 35 1-2c per lb., and No 2 creamery at 34 1-2c per lb. A fair trade was done in a wholesale jobbing way, there being a steady demand from grocers and other dealers for small lots and sales of finest creamery were made at 35c per lb. in solid packages, and at 37c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

Cheese a Little Firmer.

The receipts of cheese were 21,246 boxes, as compared with 18,074 for the same day last week, and 19,339 for the corresponding day a year ago There was some demand from over the cable and as the prices bid higher in some cases a little business was done with sales of Western white and colored at 96c per cwt. and in odd cae as high as 96s 6d per cwt. But the market on the whole was quiet and prices showed no important change with western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 19 3-4c per lb., and Eastern No. 1 white and colored at 19 1-2c per lb.

On the local curb market there were 1,800 packages creamery butter and 3,000 boxes of cheese offered for which the demand was ample to absorb. Sales of No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter were made at 35 at 34 7-8c per lb, and No. 2 creamery at 33 7-8c per lb., while the cheese sold at 19 1-8c per lb, delivered here.

The movement of baled hay continues fair and the market was moderately active with suplies ample to meet all requirements at steady prices. Sales of good No. 2 Timothy Hay were made at $14 per ton, No. 3 Timothy hay at $11 to $12 per ton, and Clover mixed hay at $10.50 to $11 per ton, F. O. B. cars here.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK

TORONTO, June 23. —With yesterday's offering practically all cleaned up at the close ,trade was comparatively quiet to-day. Prices holdng steady at the advance, and buyers were still taking the best they could find, but neglecting the common and plain grassers. There were few heavy export cattle in, and none of the extra choice top-priced cattle of yesterday. A few exporters were bought at from $7.50 to $8.25.

Choice butcher cattle were just as much in demand as yesterday, choice up to $7.50 to $7.75.

Calves steady.

Lambs, poor quality and $1 lower at $15.50 to $16.50.

Hogs settled late yesterday at 25c advance to $13.50, thick smooths, off cars. Steady to-day at the advance.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

AGOOD CHIEF.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—D. E. Whetung, Jr. is again Chief of the Curve Lake Indians, for his fifth consecutive three-year term. He was elected in opposition to his cousin, Roy Whetung, who polled 21 votes of the council against the victorious 45 gathered in by D. E. Whetung, who was first eelcted in 1913. He has ever since been working hard to improve the Reserve. First. He secured 3 or 4 acres of land, got his ment to level it for exhibition ball games and other amusements and has graded and graveled the road from the Indian villge to the church, which is 5½ miles. Why should a man like him be put out of the chiefship. Others that wish to take his place, if there was a road or public work, they would rather send a man in their place than to go themselves.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, JUNE 25.

According to the predominant lunar and mutual figures there may be uncertain and unfavorable conditions in business as well as in all other affairs. There is a sign which may be read as bringing deception and fraud, and this may probably be in strong operation in domestic and affectional matters unless these be safeguarded from subtle attack. It might be wise to be alert also in all new projects and business operations. Likewise be conservative in all personal and business expenditures.

Those whose birthday it is may be under a threatening rule for the year, which may be beset with difficulties mainly through deception, fraud and subtle attack—in business as well as in all personal affairs. Conserve the funds and shun all extravagance. A child born on this day should receive early training in thrift and frugality, as it may incline to waste and extravagance, especially in personal indulgence and show. It may be subject to subtle attack.

It will have a number of studios and exhibition rooms and living quarters for a number of Esthonian painters and sculptors.

BRIDGE ACROSS NIAGARA PLAN

Application to Build Toll Bridge Between Buffalo and Fort Erie.

AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 24 (Canadian Press).—The International Joint Commission, now in session here, had before it Tuesday an application for the construction of a toll bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie across the Niagara River. The question of whether navigation will be obstructed by the bridge is to be considered by the commission and a hearing on the ground will be conducted in September. The definite date is to be fixed later.

The Rainey Lake questions will be reviewed by the joint body when it meets at International Falls on August 3, and at this meeting lake levels and construction of additional retention works will be reviewed.

An official announcement on the commission's decision of Monday to allow the New Brunswick Electric Corporation to proceed with its Grand Falls project, is expected within the next few days. Certain formalities are awaited before the announcement is made. Charles A. Magrath, chairman of the Canadian section of the joint body, declared at Monday's meeting that the Grand Falls project would involve an investment ranging between $6,000,000 and $12,000,000.

ROME DEPLORES MODERN WORK

Say That Architecture Has Become a Travesty of Artistic Ideals

SHOULD CONFORM

ROME, June 24.—The vandals who swept down upon Rome in the early centuries of the Christian era, destroying wantonly the great monuments of the empire, and the gentry of the Middle Ages who continued the desecration by tearing down such magnificent structures as the Colosseum to obtain free stone, did less to destroy the beauty and personality of the city than modern architects and builders are doing.

This is the lament of hundreds of Italian and foreign artists and lovers of architectural beauty who complain that the curse of standardization has fallen upon modern Italian architecture. The charm of old Rome, they say, will have been sacrificed within a decade to the ill conceived idea of making the city a weak imitation of some bustling unbeautiful middle-west American town.

Scores of ugly apartment houses, each like the next, with no architectural distinction, are rapidly being built in the new Prati and Ludovisi quarters and in many other sections of the city, while most of the new buildings are distinguished only by their ugliness.

Italians do not object to the construction of houses with modern improvements, but they maintain that some effort should be made in the external decorations to conform with the already existent beautiful examples of medieval and ancient architecture.

Chinese Prisoner Held In Vancouver Is Refused Bail

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 24 (Canadian Press). — The habeas corpus application of Wong Foon Sing, Chinese houseboy awaiting trial on a charge of murdering Janet Smith, was refused yesterday by Chief Justice Hunter, in the Supreme Court Chambers.

An application for bail was suggested by His Lordship, to which W. D. Carter, K.C., deputy attorney general, agreed. His Lordship and both crown and defence counsel agreed that bail application should be made today.

SHEPHERD DENIES EVER HAVING SEEN DR. FAIMAN AND AVOWS HIS INNOCENCE OF NEPHEW'S MURDER

Dramatic Conclusion to Chicago's "Germ Murder" Trial —Argument to Jury Begins.

SHEPHERD IN BOX.

State Attorney Demands the Death Penalty For "Calculated, Brutal Murder."

CHICAGO, June 24 (Canadian Press).—Three minutes of denial of all State charges and an hour and a half of cross-examination in which the accusation was not touched upon, filled William Darling Shepherd's day of days when he testified yesterday in his trial for murder.

As he stepped from the witness stand after a cross-examination which left a crowded court room gasping at both its brevity and trend, the defence announced: "That's all, that's our case," and the prosecution echoed: "State rests."

Five minutes more and the first State argument to the jury was under way.

It was a demand for the death penalty for Shepherd for the "coldly calculated, brutal and atrocious murder" of his millionaire foster-son, William Nelson McClintock.

Climax of Drama.

So into one brief session of court was crowded more drama than in the previous days of the five weeks and one day the case has dragged through court.

Detail by detail Shepherd was led through a denial of each of the twenty-two counts in his indictment for the youth's murder.

Replying in a calm, firm voice, Shepherd completed his denial of all the State alleges by stating that prior to the investigation of Billy McClintock's death he never had seen Charles Faiman, his chief accuser, nor John P. Marchand, a Faiman associate, nor ever had written a letter to Faiman's National University of Sciences concerning a course in bacteriology.

Dr. Amante Rongetti, who said Shepherd discussed germs with him, likewise was unknown, Shepherd testified, adding, upon a brief redirect examination that he never had owned a private laboratory.

Traced His Life.

From his cradle days, year by year, on through his life Shepherd was forced to account for his time, when Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, undertook cross-examination.

Shepherd never was a successful business man, virtually throughout his life until he and his wife went to live with Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of the youth he is charged with slaying, working with

Berlin Conductor's Gout Treated As Fractured Leg

BERLIN, June 24.—Patrons of the Berliner Theatre have witnessed nightly the odd spectacle of the conductor, Herr Schmidt-Genter, being carried by two stalwart men into the pit and gently placed in his seat.

The conductor was injured by a fall and the first doctor who examined him diagnosed his injury as a fractured leg. The member was placed in a plaster cast, but as the intense pains continued a second doctor made an X-ray examination, but found no trace of a fracture. Instead, Herr Schmidt-Gentner was suffering from gout, but he insisted upon fulfilling his contract with the theatre.

Little Country Has Made Large Contributions By Encouraging Research.

DOCTORS MEETING.

REGINA, Sask., June 24. — Canadian Press. — Several hundred members of the Regina men's and women's Canadian clubs, and the Medical Association, attended a luncheon on Tuesday given in honor of the visiting doctors here for the 56th annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. J. G. Fitzgerald, of Toronto, who was the principal speaker, contrasted the progress made in Canada in the war on tuberculosis with that attained in Denmark, one of the most advanced countries in the world in this field.

Much was being accomplished in the Dominion, and doctors in this country, the speaker declared had contributed much toward the fight against the dread scourge. In Denmark, however, even greater advance had been realized and this little country, he asserted, was to-day showing the way to the rest of the medical world in the encouragement of fundamental researches.

Denmark boasted of a foundation for the maintenance of scientific laboratories in Copenhagen which during the past ten years contributed greatly to the advancement of knowledge in physics, physical chemistry and other scientific subjects.

The afternoon was taken up with the business meeting of the Saskatchewan Medical Association and continuance of the council meetings of the Dominion Association, which is dealing with professional and public health matters prior to the opening of the convention proper to-day.

The attendance figure was boosted well over the hundred mark, among the latest arrivals being H. W. Carson, F.R.C.S., senior surgeon of the Prince of Wales Hospital, Tottenham, England. He will deliver a scientific address on abdominal surgery this afternoon.

CIGARETTE CAUSES $500,000 FIRE LOSS

JERSEY CITY, N. Y., June 23.—(Canadian Press). — The careless flip of a cigarette into a trickle of gasoline flowing across the sidewalk of a west side avenue from a three storey brick building housing the Barnes Manufacturing Company, led to the destruction within a few minutes of the factory building, damage of city carpet cleaning works, across the street and the burning of the outfield fence of Jersey City International League Baseball Park yesterday. BUFFALO BONES IN MOUNTAINS

Huge Pile Also Contained Bones of Mature Human Being

PROVE CONTENTION

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., June 24.—(Canadian Press).—While excavating on the new Akamina highway to Waterton Lakes National Park, workmen recently opened up a large cave in which were found a heap of bones including the skeleton of a mature human being. It is believed the bones are those of a hunter or prospector who pushed his way into the mountain wilds in search of ore.

Buffalo bones appear in the collection, indicating that there has been a landslide or upheaval of the earth.

The finding of the buffalo bones in the mountains, students declare, bears out the contention that the buffalo roamed into the mountains from the prairies. Two years ago a head of a large buffalo bull was unearthed at Blairmore in the Crows Nest Pass. It was buried eight feet below the surface of ground in an ancient river bed.

MRS. T. H. McQUADE

OMEMEE, June 24. — Mrs. Thomas Henry McQuade passed peacefully away on Saturday evening following a long illness. Deceased lady had reached the good old age of seventy-eight years, and until three years ago was active in home duties. About that time Mrs. McQuade was stricken with paralysis from which she rallied several months later and was again able to visit friends in the village. Eleven months ago, she was again stricken and has been a helpless invalid ever since.

Mrs. McQuade, known perhaps better by young and old as "Aunt Jane," was in her happiest mood when entertaining in her home her many relatives in this community. She was always deeply interested in the work of the Women's Institute and on different occasion gave practical demonstrations to the society.

The funeral, which was held on Monday afternoon, was very largely attended. The service was conducted by the Rev. A T. Weir, of Christ Church. Many beautiful flowers were placed on the casket as a token of love and esteem.

Left to mourn the passing of Mrs. McQuade are her aged husband and an adopted son, Harry, and daughter, Mrs. R. J. Cornwall, as well as three brothers, Reeve Fee, of Omemee, George of Emily and Joseph of Mount Pleasant.

SCHOOL MUSIC HAS A DRAWING POWER

Children In Any Capacity Will Draw Large Audience of Friends

In thousands of communities, really worth-while concerts are promoted by the school music supervisor. Some of these are given by imported professionals, but more are the result of constructive work in school and community.

School children love to appear in public performances, and the supervisor who capitalizes this natural desire not only is able to stimulate the childish musical ability, but also furnishes the adult population with a chance to hear worth-while music. For no musical effect can be more beautiful than the voices of children singing with correct tone production and with an appreciation of the meaning of what they sing.

As for the drawing power of school entertainments, the presence of a large number of children in any capacity always will bring out an admiring audience of relatives and friends. They are put on in many places as money-making ventures; but their chief merit lies in their ability to interest the public in music and particularly in school music. In small and remote communities they constitute valuable additions to social life. Certainly, they add more to a town's enjoyment and edification as the best of moving pictures; and, if carefully planned their performances may be of genuine educational value.

GET PLAYGROUNDS IN CAMPBELLFORD

Swings and Equipment Expected Daily — Near Town Jail

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23.—The swings and other equipment that was ordered for the public playground that will be established on the vacant property adjoining the town jail, will arrive any day and will soon be available so that the children may enjoy the innovation during the school vacation. Deputy Reeve Palliser and Councillor Wiggins, as a committee from the Town Council, looked over the grounds on Monday and arranged for the locations of the equipment.

Government Says "No."

It was understood that the vacant land in the rear of the Armories was to be fitted up as a play ground for the children on the west side but the Military Department refuses to permit the use of the lot for any such purpose, so that this proposition will be abandoned. The Department believes that the location is not a proper place for children.

Talk of Rest Room.

The police committee of which Reeve Davidson is chairman, was instructed at the June meeting of Council to have the Jail put in condition for the reception of prisoners but nothing has yet been done. Some of the Councillors are in favor of abandoning the building as a Jail and converting it into a rest-room for the accommodation of visitors from the country. Negotiations are pending for the purchase by the Town from the C.N.R. of adjoining land and the idea of those who have the improvement in mind is to convert the land so acquired, and which can be acquired at a nominal figure, into a park.

WASHINGTON, (United Press).—A new monthly record for automobile production was set in April when 391,301 passenger cars and 47,664 trucks were placed on the market, according to the Department of Commerce. This was the second time in the history of the industry that a production exceeded 400,000 cars per month.

Here is a funny combination; the nighthawk and the whip-poor-will are cousins, looking as much alike as the Emperor of Russia used to resemble King George of England. That is easy enough to understand, for it is no easy thing to tell the whip-poor-will from the nighthawk, when seen side by side, unless we know them well. It is easy to tell them apart when we hear their calls, for we all know the whip-poor-will call and the "Peant-peant-peant" call of the nighthawk, which sounds sweet coming from away high up, and when we see a drop and a sudden turn upward, with a "Zoom" kind of sound, that also is the nighthawk. But here is the odd thing about it all. These two birds have some distant relationship, a kind of forty-second cousinship with the chimney swift and the hummingbird.

It will be news to most of the followers of Nature Lore, but it is so.

Right now, the nighthawks and chimney swifts are both in the sky eventide, for they both live on insects gathered into wide open mouths during flight, but how different they look. We sometimes call the swift a chimney swallow, for it is very swallowlike in many ways, and it is hard to swallow that it is not a swallow.

How there ever came to be such a muddle and a mixture of feathers and names in this group of birds is more than I can tell, but muddled they surely are.

The nighthawk should have been given a nice name such as "Twilight Zoomer" instead of the misleading names tacked on him. He is called goatsucker, bull-bat nighthawk, night-jar, mosquito hawk, and he is no hawk at all, and has nothing to do with bats or goats either.

It is easy to tell a nighthawk on the wing, for it has a plain white spot on the wing, whereas, the whip-poor-will has not wing spot like that. Look for that white spot this evening.

Picnicking

HALL COCHRANE DAILY POEM

Come father, come mother, come sister and brother we'll hie on a picnic today. We'll fume, and we'll fuss till we're all in the bus and then merrily off on our way.

We'll fill up our laps, and I don't mean perhaps, with the finest of grub we can buy. We'll all have a hunch were we'd best spread our lunch, and we'll argue, though no one knows why.

Agreement we'll reach on a trip to the beach, where there's plenty of water and air. Our sandwiches grand we will spread in the sand. Then we'll eat of the sand which is there.

Be sure, son or daughter—forget to bring water, or spirit of picnic goes flop. Theres' always the rub that you wash down your grub with a lukey warm bottle of pop.

Come on, now, get busy; let's hop roam. 'Twill make a big hit—but, roam. 'Twill make a bit hit—but, of course, I'll admit, you'll be mighty dern glad to get home.

WINNIPEG, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Greater use of the airplane in the cattle raising districts of Western Canada was suggested in an interview here with W. E. Robins, of Brisbane, Australia, who declared that in his country airplanes were used extensively to locate cattle herds.

In the Northern part of Australia Mr. Robins stated, there was a cattle stations covering immense tracts of land, and on these ranches it had been discovered that planes were exceptionally efficient in locating the cattle, which in some districts numbered in many thousands.

OLD BOYS AND GIRLS RETURN TO DOURO FROM FAR AND NEAR FOR CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS

Ideal Weather Greeted Them on the First Day of Old Home Festivities.

FORMAL OPENING.

"Home Sweet Home" Sung, After Which Speeches Were Made.

Ideal weather favoured the opening proceedings of the Douro Old Boys and Girls Re-Union yesterday when the President P. G. Towns welcomed old and new faces at 11 a.m.

The sky was a vast expanse of blue, flecked here and there by white fleecy clouds; the sun shone brightly and warmly, on the enclosure, surrounded by fields of growing crops by undulating pasture, and by woody dell—a perfect setting for the playground of a rural community en fete the Union Jacks studded around the field and the profusion of flags and pennants stretched across the road from the church to the row of elms opposite, fluttered gaily in the mild breeze which pleasantly tempered the heat of the sun

Old Residents Return.

Quite a number of former residents re-visited Douro specially for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hogan and baby motored from Barrie; Mrs John Blackburn arrived on Saturday from Lansing, Michigan. Others who came were: Stewart Carveth, Peterborough; J. W. Stewart, Peterboro; Messrs John Whibbs, John Doyle, and Mr. and Mrs. John Cavanagh motored from Buffalo, N. Y.; Matthew Sullivan, Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan; Mrs. Mary Leahy, Peterboro; Herb. Molony, Detroit; Mrs. Samuel Clancey, Toronto; Mrs. Margaret Lynch, Peterboro; Mrs. James Conlin, and baby, Peterboro; Michael Sheehan, Wabasheen; R. A. O'Connor motored from Coppercliff, Ontario; Miss Lillie O'Connor, Rochester, New York; D. J. Fitzgerald Butte, Montana, returned to Douro after an absence of 43 years. All records for distance were eclipsed by J. Malony who travelled all the way from Edmonton, Alberta.

Mr. Arthur Caveth called on the Douro choir to open the programme The choir consisting of Misses Mary Quinlan, Mabel Allen, Serapnine O'Brien, Margaret Sullivan, Olive Russel, Lillian Russel, Olga Miller, Clara Condon, Messrs Arthur Carveth, John Sheehan, Charles Condon, G. J. Brown rendered "Home Sweet Home" and "Auld Lang Syne". Mr. G. J. Browne, Peterboro, sang "My Wild Irish Rose", assisted by the choir.

Mr. Arthur Caveth called on the ed P. G. Towns, President of the re-union committe to address the gathering.

P. G. Towns.

Mr. Towns said that public speaking was really out of his line, but he felt he could not decline the request of his co-workers to say a word of welcome to those who had gathered together to celebrate the centenary of the settling of Douro. He was glad to see the return of the old boys and girls, many of whom he knew, had come long distances. These old boys and girls were welding links connecting past and present. It was a good thing to see old schoolmates, chums from childhood, meet again and discuss old times once more. Lack of sociability was a characteristic of the present generation, which did not mar the generations that had preceded. They had lost the sociability of their forefathers. It was this sociability that enabled their forefathers to pull through. They had met to celebrate 100 years of settlement in Douro, to think back to their brave forefathers who had come into the unknown territory and changed it from a wilderness, settled only by wolves and bears, to a fruitful land. Look at the fences, the drained swamps and the cultivated fields. What would the young people of to-day do, if they were confronted by the tasks of their forefathers? Why, they would wilt. There were no automobiles then, there were none of the amenities of life among these old settlers, yet they struggled on and overcame all difficulties. There were many names in history which were far less deserving of honor and renown than their brave, undaunted forefathers.

He hoped all those who had come would be happy and was sure they would receive every courtesy and consideration. He cordially thanked all who had come and all who had co-operated with him to make this thing possible. To the old boys and girls he tendered the thanks and the congratulations of every man and woman in Douro.

For the Visitors.

On behalf of the visitors, Mr. Edward Gavin, of Lakefield, expressed the thanks of the former residents of Douro. He felt himself quite unable to make an adequate reply to the splendid address they had just heard from Mr. Towns. If he strayed from the point, he asked the audience to bear with him, because he would be brief and therefore could not stray very far. He wondered if they all sufficiently realized and appreciated the splendid heritage that had been transmitted to them from those who had gone before. They must always think of the men and women who had prepared this place for settlement. He was delighted to stand there in celebration of the centenary of the founding of the best township in the county. He was not speaking boastfully but was simply giving the results of his observation and experience. He knew Douro well. He knew all the other townships well, and he could honestly say that Douro had them all beaten. He had not been born in Douro, but he was only four years old when he came there, and he had lived nearly all the rest of his life in Douro. He thought one of the ladies should have made this speech of reply to the welcome extended to them. The ladies had borne the heavy burden all these years. The settlers who left the Old Country and came into what was then a barren wilderness, must have had stout hearts, but the women excelled the men. He supposed the men of the old days were pretty much like the men of the present. Just like the men of to-day, they would go out from home and have a little set of their own. It was the women who had made the settlement a success. The young people should be glad to live in Douro and in Canada. They did not realize or appreciate enough their privileges. As a community, they were greatly indebted to Mr. Towns, who had worked for three years to make this event a success. Mr. Towns had done his best; it was up to the rest of the people to carry on.

There were nearly 500 present in the afternoon watching the sports. During the events the Peterborough Rangers Band played several selections.

76 Year Old Jumper.

Perhaps the most interesting result of the sports was the feat of Michael Sheehan, Wabashene, who in spite of his 76 years of age, made the creditable record of 8 ft. 4in. in the standing broad jump. This was surpassed by a younger competitor, but Mr. Sheehan was awarded a special prize.

The other results were:

Race for girls of 12 and under—1 Marie Allan, 2 B. McMurray, 3 Philomena Garvey.

Boys of 12 and under—1 B. Allen, 2 P. Allen, 3 Clare O'Brien.

Girls under 16—1 A. Dench, 2 Marie Allen, 3 Philomena Garvey.

Boys 16 and under—1 R. Mongraw, 2 Francis Towns, 3 Bernard Allen.

Single ladies' Race—1 A. Dench, 2 K. O'Leary, 3 Josephine Allen.

Boys' boot race—1 R. Mongraw, 2 K. Cavanagh, 3 P. Allen.

Men's 100 yard race (preliminary heat)—1 G. Heffernan, 2 Frank O'Brien, 3 Herb. Maloney. The winners contest the final on Thursday.

Men's hop, step and jump— 1 George Heffernan, 35 ft; 2 Frank O'Brien, 33 ft. 7 in.; 3 J. Walsh, 33 ft. 4 in.

Men's running high jump — 1 George Hffernan, 4 ft. 7 in.; 2 C. Towns, 4 ft. 3 in.; 3 Frank O'Brien 4 ft. 2 in.

Men's running broad jump—G. Heffernan, 16 ft. 2 in; 2 Frank O'Brien, 16 ft.; 3 Herb Maloney, 14 ft. 9 in.

Putting the shot—M. Coughlin, 38 ft. 8 in.; 2, G. Heffernan, 33 ft. 11 in.; 3 Frank Kennedy, 33 ft. 6 in.

Men's running hitch and kick—1 M. Coughlin, 2 A. Carveth, 3 G. Heffernan.

Men's standing broad jump—1 G. Heffernan, 10 ft. 9 in.; 2 Martin Coughlin, 9 ft. 9 in.; 3 Charles Towns, 9 ft. 1 in.

Tuesday's quoit match was won by John and William O'Brien.

The finals of the hop, step and jump, the running high jump, the running broad jump and putting the shot and of the quoits competition will be played off on Thursday.

In the evening there was an impromptu dance, got up by some of the younger visitors.

A ladies' softball game between Warsaw and Peterborough Thistles resulted in a win of 41-8 for the latter.

Softball Game.

An exciting and keenly contested men's softball game was played by teams representing North Douro and South Douro. North Douro lined up as follows: Pitcher, C. Towns; catcher, M. Coughlin (Reeve of Douro); 1st base, G. Heffernan; 2nd base, Raymond Walsh; 3rd base, W. Whibbs; short stop, W. Towns; centre field, C. Coughlin; right field, G. Allen; left field, R. Whibbs. South Douro was represented by Pitcher Frank O'Brien; catcher. R. Tedford; 1st, base, F. Fitzgerald; 2nd base, Len Kennedy; 3rd base, Lawrence O'Brien; short stop, H. Maloney; centre field, J. Allen; right field, J. Maloney; left field, H. Fitzgerald; B. Dench was umpire and W. Hayes base umpire. The game ended 15-2 in favor of North Douro.

A concert attended by about 250 closed the programme for the first day.

Remember, it's often tropically hot in Canada. So when you feel lazy—when the heat seems to "get to you"—a dash of ENO in a glass of water will cool your blood, clear your head and buck you up for work and play. DECORATION OF I.O.O.F. GRAVES

Lakefield Lodge's Annual Commemoration Service at Cemetery Largely Attended.

P. G. M.'s ADDRESS.

LAKEFIELD, June 23.—The annual Decoration Day of Lakefield Lodge, No. 358, I. O. O. F., was held on Sunday with a large turnout of members and a very large crowd of citizens on foot, and in motor cars, for, what is primarily an I. O. O. F. gathering has become a community event, one honored and respected by every person in the village, as is evidenced by the quiet reverent behaviour of the onlookers. The parade was headed by the Citizens' Band which presented a very smart appearance, the bandsmen wearing their new caps, and as nearly all the men wore navy blue clothes, the effect was especially good, and at first glance one felt that the new uniforms, so long desired, had become a reality. The music was excellent and showed evidence of faithful practice and careful training.

Following the band came the members of the Oddfellows' Order, bearing in their hands bouquets of the beautiful flowers, so plentiful at this season, with which to decorate the graves of those who have gone on to join the vast majority in the Great Beyond. The procession started from the lodge room at two o'clock and marched to Hillside Cemetery when the grave of Bro. Milton Nelson was decorated with appropriate ceremonies and then reforming the procession went to the Lakefield Cemetery, where the graves of Bros. Wm. Curry, George McWilliams, Gordon Roseborough, William Hamilton, James Jory and Melville Pammett were decorated and when Rev. Walter Cox, past Grand Master of the I. O. O. F., spoke of the union between God and humanity, and the message of the flowers and the significance of the ceremony.

The setting was beautiful at both cemeteries, the tree-bordered road, the fields of verdant green in many shades, the Sabbath calm over all, and the sweet strains of the old hymn, tunes which were learned in childhood and loved always, and then the tribute of remembrance paid to those who will never bear any active part in these parades again, but whose memory abides in the hearts of their brethren.

Such is the brotherhood of man, helping in life and after life's journey is over, perpetual remembrance.

S. S. W. Fair.

The S. S. W. Club held a very successful fair on Mrs. H. J. Stuart's lawn on Saturday afternoon. The grounds were decorated with flags and bunting, and the festive appearance lured many customers from among the passersby. A fish pond in a tree was a unique feature, which received splendid patronage. A gaily decorated booth, presided over by Miss Constance Stuart, did a splendid business in lemonade (ice cold and delicious), lemonade and sandwiches were served by Miss Marion Wagar in a refreshment tent and on the lawn outside. Cake, candy and dolls' clothes were also on sale and were in great demand, Miss Lilian Stuart superintending this department, and Master Harding Stuart was in command of the fish pond.

The proceeds, which amounted to about $8, more than realized the hopes of the young people.

A large number of Lakefield citizens are planning to visit the Douro reunion, held this week. The Lakefield post office, established in 1847, was first known as North Douro, and until its incorporation in 1875, Lakefield was a part of the township with the exception of the part of the settlement known locally as Kentucky and situated on the west of the river.

The annual picnic of St. John's A. Y. P. A. will be held on Thursday afternoon and evening at the Lakefield Park.

HUB CAPS.

When a hub cap is to be removed and there is no hub wrench in the tool kit, a strong rag may be found useful. Wrap the rag tightly around the cap, twist it down well and get a good firm hold. Then press down on a spoke of the wheel with your foot, so the wheel will turn in a clockwise direction. The trick of loosening the cap lies in the firmness in which the rag is held.

TOOK BIG BAND ON LONG TRIP

Mountie Escorted Eleven Hundred Indians 180 Miles Without Aid

TRIBES ON WARPATH

CALGARY, Alta., June 24.—(Canadian Press)—Among the veterans of frontier day strife in Western Canada who will participate in Calgary's historic parade and pageant to be staged on July 6, is Daniel Davis, 70 years old, who served with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police fifty years ago.

Known to his intimate associates as "Peach", Davis nearly half a century ago, as constable in the force, escorted 1,100 hostile Indians from Fort Walsh, near the United States border, to the Indian reserve at Eagle Hills, Saskatchewan, a distance of 180 miles, without aid.

Mr. Davis was a mere youth when he joined the R.N.W.M.P. at Ottawa in 1876, and following a short period of training he was sent to one of the Western outposts at Fort Walsh. It was only a few years later that the young constable started on his eventful march.

The American government had requisitioned two companies of cavalry to round up between 800 to 1,000 renegade Canadian Indians, who had for some time been particularly troublesome. Following a successful round-up, the commander of the troopers sent word to Fort Walsh, asking that a police escort be despatched to conduct the Indians across the line.

A troop of police was not called out, but instead Constable Davis was commissioned to bring back the mob of Indians. When Davis reached the border, he introduced himself to the Cavalry officer, and stated that he had "come for the Indians." The officer looked at him in astonishment. "Where's your squad of police?" he inquired. Davis hesitated for a moment and then replied, "he's down at the creek washing dishes," and before the major could ask any more questions, Constable Davis was among the Indians, ordering them to prepare for the journey to the fort.

No sooner had the Indians been quartered a Fort Wals.., when hostile tribes, camped nearby started on the war path and for a time the situation appeared extremely menacing. Again Davis was called upon to make a hazardous trip. With a small force at the fort, the commandant was obliged to send him alone with the Indians to the safer confines of the reservation near North Battleford.

Although threatened from time to time by hostile tribes, Constable Davis with great fortitude carried out his commission successfully It was necessary to speed the caravan as much as possible and during the long trek a number of the elderly Indians succumbed to exhaustion on the way.

On his arrival at Fort Battleford at the end of an 18-day journey, his only reward was the encouraging greeting, 'Well done, Davis, the force is proud of you," from Colonel William Herchmer, the officer comanding the police detachment at Battleford. Sometime later the story of the mounty's feat, resounded through the whole Northwest, and Davis was personally congratulated by the commissioner of the force.

Only Photograph Of Shepherd Trial!

(Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.

Here is the first and only picture yet taken of the trial of William D. Shepherd in Chicago, for the murder of Billy McClintock. The photographer who took it disregarded explicit orders barring all cameras from the room, taking his instrument in under his coat, and snapping the picture without anyone becoming aware of it. State's Attorney Crowe is seen standing, addressing the jury, just selected, while Shepherd sits at the extreme left beside his attorneys.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful Flapper marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . . but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford to pay her wages. Gloria has swamped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an actor. She lends him money, and finally, when he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. He spurns her, telling her he has just married a Russian actress. Then Gloria tries to land a job as a chorus girl and fails. Discouraged, she comes home to Dick.

He takes her back, but not as his wife. One night Gloria leaves him to work late at the office with SUSAN BRIGGS, his secretary. While Gloria is at home alone, the house is robbed. Dick doesn't get home until almost morning. Gloria wonders if he was with Miss Briggs all that time. But next morning she learns that he was at the house of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, who had killed himself because of the love affair that existed between his wife MAY and JIM CAREWE.

Gloria goes to Dick's office to tell him about the robbery, and to make one last attempt to win him again.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

Gloria unfolded the little clipping, curiously.

"Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Millbrook of Gilmore street announce the engagement of their daughter, Margot, to Mr. James Neale Carewe, formerly of Boston. The wedding will be an event of late October," it read.

"Jim Carewe engaged!" Gloria cried aloud. "Why, did you ever hear of such a thing! And who's the girl, for goodness sake?"

May looked up at her with wet ,red-rimmed eyes. "She's a little cousins of Myra Gail's," she said. "A young thing just graduated from school this month. She can't be more than twenty . . . and Jim's thirty-six, if he's a minute! Talk about cradle robbing . . ."

Gloria shook her head slowly. "But May," she said, "You never cared a snap of your fingers about Jim. I've heard you say so a hundred times. It was always Jim who was wild about you."

"I know it," May answered, "But Jim's like all men. He wants to be respectable. He'd never marry me in a million years since this . . . this scandal about John's . . . suicide."

She pressed her handkerchief hard against her lips for a moment. Then she went on bravely: "This girl can give Jim just what he wants. Respectability, a houseful of friends, youth . . . everything clean and new and shining. Perhaps he still does care for me, but he's not going to marry a scandal! He's too selfish to do a thing like that! He thinks too much of himself."

She took off her black hat and tossed it down on the hall table.

"You haven't any coffee on the stove, have you?" she asked. "I haven't had any breakfast."

I haven't had any, either," Gloria answered. "Come out into the kitchen. I won't promise to cook anything for you. But Dick left some coffee on the stove, and there's jelly and rolls."

She stopped and looked hard at May for a minute. "Well," she said. "I guess we're both out of luck, my dear. I'm leaving Dick this morning. We've agreed to disagree. And I'm going back home to my people."

They stood there looking at each other with empty eyes. Neither had a word to say.

It flashed through Gloria's mind tha they were like moths dancing around a light. They had flown too close to danger and had had their wings singed and broken. . . . .

But Stanley Wayburn and Jim Carewe were safe enough! One married, the other engaged to be married! They had escaped. Men always did.

It was the woman who took all the slurs, the snubs, and the pain. The man went scot-free from one love affair to another. . . . .

"Gloria," May said suddenly. "Let's get out of this town! Let's go away where nobody knows us, and start over again. . . ."

But Gloria shook her head. "No," she said, "I tried that once . . . The time I went to New York. And I almost died from homesickness. I . . , I wanted Dick."

May stared at her. "Well, you poor little fish, why are you leaving him, then? she asked, "If you care anything about him?

"It's Dick who wants me to go," Gloria answered. "He . . . he's —— Gloria answered. "He . . . he's through with me."

"Oh, you're crazy," May answreed. "You might tell that to some people, and get away with it! But I know Dick Gregory . . . and he's in love with you, and always has been

After May had gone, Gloria thought over what she had said. Was it possible that Dick still loved her?

. . . . No, May was wrong. Dick couldn't love her any more, or he wouldn't let her go this way, would he?

All morning as she made the beds and washed the dishes, Gloria listened tensely for the phone to ring. . . . There was just a bare was just a bare chance that Dick would call her from the office to ask her not to go away from him.

. . . But no, Susan Briggs was at the office. And Dick was completely under sway. He was probably not even thinking about his wife at home. His wife, packing her trunks to leave his house, forever!

Hadn't Dick said that Miss Briggs was the one person in the world who gave him sympathy and understanding! A man didn't talk that way about a woman unless he was in love with her, Gloria told herself dejectedly.

She locked her trunks, and presently the expressman came for them.

There was nothing more to do . . no excuse for staying. And still Gloria lingered in the house that had been the House of Dreams for her and Dick . . . .

House of Dreams?. . . . Heartbreak House was more like it!

Gloria laid the key to the front door down on the hall table, where Dick would be sure to find it. She picked up her little handbag, and went out. The door closed behind her. It closed on a chapter of her life. . . .

The Sunday after Gloria's return to her father's house, Aunt Dorcas came to dinner. She brought Uncle Henry along with her . . . a small, silent man. He had been married to Aunt Dorcas for twenty-four years. And he showed it.

"I told you that Glory had left her husband, didn't I, Henry?" Aunt Dorcas asked between bites of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding.

Uncle Henry made a tired sound in his throat.

"And a very good thing it was, too," Aunt Dorcas went on. "A very good thing!"

Gloria raised her eyes to her aunt's large, florid face. "Why is it a good thing for a woman to leave her husband?" she asked.

"That's not what I said," Aunt Dorcas answered, sharply. "But in your case it was. When a girl . . . a poor girl . . . married the son of rich parents, and they treat her as the Gregorys treated you, the best thing she can do is to clear out!"

Gloria looked down at her plate.

"They've been very nice to me . . ; both Father and Mother Gregory," she said. "They gave us the money for our honeymoon, you know. And Mother Gregory gave us the family silver for a wedding present."

Aunt Dorcas raised one hand like a traffic policeman. "A-aah!" she cried, "but that was for their son! . . . What did they ever do for you? . . . Did old Mrs. Gregory ever give a party to introduce you to all their high-and-mighty friends? Not she! She left you right out in the cold, as far as I can see!"

Aunt Dorcas folded her hands on her magnificent chest, and looked around, darying anyone to deny what she had said.

No one did. The meal came to an end at last.

Gloria followed her father and Uncle Henry out on to the front porch, leaving her mother and aunt to clear away the dishes.

There were times when she couldn't stand Aunt Dorcas in large doses. . . . Today was one of them.

She sat down on the front steps, and looked through The Examiner. Suddenly the photograph of a house in the advertising section caught her eye. It looked like their house . . . Dick's and hers. It was their house!

"Owner must sell," read the cut-line beneath the picture. "Six room house, with finished attic. Everything in good condition. Good terms if buyer takes furniture. Call Mr. Gregory, Bradburn Building."

So Dick was going to sell the furniture, too! Everything that had been theirs. . . the friendly yellow lamp in the living room, the cunning white kitchen table, the gold-colored Chinese rug that had lain like sunlight on the floor of the dining room.

"I suppose he'll sell even the little red smoking-stand I gave him for Christmas," Gloria thought miserably, "and my little tea-wagon!"

The little tea-wagon had been the pride of Gloria's heart. It had looked so homey with its blue tea cups, and the little silver teapot that had been Dick's grandmother's.

"I think I'll telephone Dick and ask him for that little tea-wagon," she made up her mind that night, as she lay in bed.

But when the morning came she did not telphone. She decided to go to Dick's office to ask him for the tea-wagon. She didn't know why . . . but she wanted to see him! She wanted terribly to see him again. . . .

She spent two hours bathing herself, brushing her hair, making herself lovely for Dick's eyes. Her beauty was her only weapon against Miss Briggs. She must keep it bright and shining!

"Thank goodness, I'm still young!" she thought. "Years younger than Miss Briggs, who must be at least thirty.

"After a while I shall be thirty, and call myself twenty-nine," Gloria said to herself, "but I'll bet I won't look like Sue Briggs! So long as there's a grain of powder or an inch of lipstick left in the world, I'll have it, by jinks!"

Her heart was light as she hurried down the street to the street car line. She hummed happily, as women do when they are going to meet the man they love. . . . But did she love Dick? She didn't know. She knew only that in a few minutes she would be seeing him again. That was enough.

. . . She had hardly stepped from the street car when she did see him. He was not ten feet away from her, walking along the pavement. And beside him, looking up into his eyes, was Susan Briggs!

COTTESLOE CHURCH IS 61 YEARS OLD

Anniversary Services Were Held Last Sunday and Monday

WARSAW, June 24.—Cottesloe church held its sixty-first anniversary services on June 21 and 22. There were two preaching services on Sunady at 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Rev. J. Wesley, formerly Presyterian minister of Norwood conducted both services and the church was well-filled. The morning subject was "There Shall Be an Highway." Mr. Wesley began by saying that Egypt had left practically no influence upon the world. Greece had left a strong influence on the world in art, of all descriptions; and the influence of Rome was felt in all law matters, road-building and kindred things. However, it was left for the little land of Palestine to give a highway for the people of the world. Christ came to that country, and he is a highway for all the people of the world. He said, "I am the way...." —not for any one nation, nor any one sect, but for all; one has as much right as another.

In giving the announcements Mr. Wesley said that, for the present he would have charge of Cottesloe United Church congregation (formerly Presbyterian) and of South Dummer United Church congregation (formerly Methodist). Services would be held at South Dummer church at 1.30 p. m. and at Cottessloe at 3 p.m. These arrangements may be changed later especially the times for service.

The former Methodist church in Westwood is close and the former Presbyterian church is accomodating the United congregations.

Pastor Leaving.

Rev. F. G. Weir preached his last sermons as pastor of Warsaw circuit on Sunday at Bethel in the morning, Carmel in the afternoon and Warsaw in the evening. Though he had had the invitation to remain a fifth year, and dreaded leaving Warsaw, there were several reasons which made it seem to him better that he should go.

The summing up of his last message was an earnest appeal to follow in the footsteps of the Master, that the lives might be such as would do good to all. He ended by repeating the "Crossing of the Bar."

Rev. Mr. Manning of Peterboro will conduct the services on the circuit next Sunday and the following Sunday the new minister will be here. During his four years on Warsaw circuit Mr. Weir has endeared himself to almost every one.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Brethour and Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove of Sunderland spent Sunday with friends in Warsaw.

Mr. Sargent reports that a good many poultry owners who were sending eggs to the pool are not able to send as many as the hens are not laying so well.

UNION JACK IS ONLY FLAG FOR DISTRICT LODGE

Strong Resolution of Protest Against Move to Adopt New Flag.

LOOSEN TIES

Remember Orangemen Who Died to Uphold the Glorious Old Emblem.

LINDSAY, Jun. 23. — The semi-annual meeting of the Loyal Orange County Lodge of Victoria County convened in the Orange Hall, Peel Street, Lindsay, on Saturday last, with a large number of delegates and visitors present. The session was presided over by W. Bro. S. M. Scott, County Master, with W. Bro. Walter Magee, of Omemee, in the deputy chair.

Much business of importance to the Order in this County was transacted.

The secret work for the year was given to the District Masters. Quite a discussion took place in regard to the King Government appointing a committee to try and change the old Union Jack, when the following motion was carried unanimousy:

"That the Loyal Orange County Lodge of Victoria here assembled do hereby strongly protest against the action of the King Government in proposing to adopt a National Flag for Canada other than the Union Jack. We regard this as a step not conducive to strengthening the ties of Empire that bind us together and the adoption of any flag other than the Union Jack is strongly opposed by this County Lodge. We take this action in remembrance of the thousands of members of the Loyal Orange Association who have fought and died to uphold the glorious old emblem which has been an inspiration to us through the darkest days and which we hope will long continue to be the Flag of Canada.

"Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, and the press."

Among the other motions introduced was one to uphold Regulation 17 of the School Act of Ontario, in regard to French in the schools of Ontario.

A letter of sympathy was ordered forwarded to the family of M. W. Bro. Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, Sovreign Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, extending the sincere sympathy of the County Lodge on his serious illness, with the earnrest hope that he may soon be restored to health.

PARENTS LIVE IN FOOL'S PARADISE

Winnipeg Professor Would Close Dance Halls of Certain Type

SABBATH BROKEN

WINNIPEG, Man., June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Mobilization of Christian opinion behind a campaign to put an end to the sale of salacious literature in Winnipeg; to get certain dance halls and places of evil repute closed; to end race track gambling and to stop Sunday sale of gasoline, is urged by Prof. F. W. Kerr, of this city.

Fathers and mothers, he declared were living in a "kind of a fool's paradise" in respect to certain dance gardens, and he was particularly bitter in his denuncition of the auto tripafter the dance, saying this kind of joy ride should now be called the "ride of death."

While Prof. Kerr explained that he was not opposed to horse racing in itself, race courses he asserted now were being built with only one purpose in view, and that was of becoming "carnivals of gambling." He called upon the Christian community in a recent statement to boycott places that sold goods seven days of the week and oil-filling stations that remained open on the Sabbath.

WANT BUFFALO PARK

Manitoba Old Timers Are Asking Authorities for Establishment

WINNIPEG, Man., June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Old timers in Manitoma have joined in petitioning the federal authorities for the early establishment of a buffalo park in the province.

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, recently announced his readiness to supply a necleus of a herd from the national park at Wainwright, Alta. About 400 to 500 acres would be required as an enclosure for the herd, but the chief difficulty, promoters of the scheme declare, will be the financing of the fencing costs. It has been suggested to inaugurate a campaign for public support of the project.

While the location of the proposed park has not been determined, a vast stretch of country near Gladstone, Man., is favored as an ideal grazing range and suitable spot from the standpoint of beauty.

SHUN!

Sergeant (drilling awkward squad) — "Company! Attention company, lift up your left leg and hold it straight out in front of you!"

One of the squad held up his right leg by mistake. This brought his right hand companion's left leg and his own right leg close together. The officer, seeing this, exclaimed angrily:

"And who is that blooming galcot over there holding up both legs!"

You can't be your "better self"—with a corn

No man can be at his best—with a throbbing corn shooting pain-messages to his brain. Corns put a wet-blanket on enthusiasm, dampen the spirits and sour the disposition. Many pessimists are optimists with corns. For a corn taxes the whole nervous system. It makes one feel mean all over and act that way. Anyone may acquire a corn, but it is bad business to keep it. Blue-jay is the business man's favorite way of banishing corns. It stops the pain the moment you put it on—and ends the corn in 48 hours. It is business-like and efficient

Blue-jay leaves nothing to the user's guesswork. You don't have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each plaster is a complete standardized treatment. It has just enough of the magic medication to rout the corn. The thinking is all done for you at the laboratory. You apply the plaster—it does the rest.

GRADUATION 7 CITY NURSES

St. Alphonsus' Lyceum Was Packed For St Joseph's Hospital Exercises Last Night.

MANY VISITORS.

The Assembly Hall o St. Alphonsus Lyceum was packed last evening for the Graduation Exercises of the Training School for Nurses, St. Joseph's Hospital. A class of seven graduated last night, and the exercises were marked by the presence of several distinguished visitors, including Bishop McNally of Hamilton, Monsignor Blair, Rev. Fathers Kline and McCann of Toronto, and Rev. Father Gale of Hamilton. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien gave the address to the graduating class. Dr. A. Moir acted as chairman. At the conclusion of the exercises, a reception was held in the upper room by the Catholic Women's League, the president, Mrs. C. J. Snider, and members of the executive, receiving the guests, and supervising the service of refreshments at tables daintily arranged with flowers and yellow crepe paper.

The stage in the assembly hall was a mass of flowers, ferns and palms, making a pretty setting for the graduates, in their white uniforms, with arms filled with roses. Present also last night were a large number of the nurses-in-training, also in uniform.

The entrance march was played by Miss Lillian Hurley, followed by the opening remarks from the chairman, Dr. Moir, who congratulated the graduates on the completion of their course in training, on the future which lay before them, one which should be filled with happiness when passed in the service of others rather than self, and on their initiation into the great secret of life, that it is what we put into it, rather than what we take out of it that counts.

Dr. Moir spoke in terms of hearty appreciation of the great co-operation afforded the managing board at the hospital by His Lordship and the Sisters, and of their desire at all times to do everything which would make for the efficient conduct of the institution.

Means a Great Deal.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, addressing the graduating class, said that the diploma of a registered nurse means a great deal. It shows that she has fulfilled the promise of a splendid character made when she presented her credential at the beginning of her training course.

"It needs a deal of character to withstand whims and the grunts and the growls of a sick person, particularly a sick man." This diploma shows also that they are persons of

HER GAME OF CHECKERS - - - - - - - By Juanita Hamel

Of course you know how to play checkers. But have you ever played the game of "love checkers"? Certainly you have, or you will at some time. Cupid provides the board and then it's up to you to make the moves in such a way that the man you have selected—the man whom Love tells you is the one to make you happy—will be the man who reaches the king space first. But be careful. For the wrong move may wreck your happiness and kill the love dreams that every girl cherishes.

Let's Talk It Over

OVERCOMING UNPOPULARITY

"Unpopular" is nearly twenty years old, and "not once has a young man asked to take her out!" She wants to know how to get the "attention every girl craves."

You've helped so many, perhaps you can help me. This is my tale of woe: I am nearly twenty years old and not once has a young man asked me out. People say, "Oh, you have plenty of time," but I always think of my cousin. She's thirty-four and as pretty and dainty as can be, and she can count the times she has been out with a young man.

Mind you, I wouldn't expect to go out very often like most girls—just once in a while. Oh, when Friday night comes with no place to go, I just get disgusted. I've tried to analyze it to see what's wrong with me, but I can't find anything big enough to keep me from all the fun. I am not beautiful, but I'm not a prude and wouldn't object to a tiny bit of petting. Believe me, my real peeve is because no one has yearned to kiss me.

Once in a while I go to a party. Invitation given me by a girl, generally. I'm not a wall flower, I dance fairly well and always have all the dances, but never hear from any of my partners again. Just how far can I go to further the acquaintance between us?

I've studied the actions of the girls who are popular. Some of them I wouldn't try to ape at all—they're empty headed. There are those though, who act natural and pleasant and have a good time. That is what I try to do. But it doesn't seem to get me anywhere. Oh, please help me. Tell me how to get the attention every girl craves.

Of course I don't get to meet many young men in my work, but out of those I have met I certainly should have become friendly with a couple of them. Tell me, if I should invite a few to my house how could I entertain them so they would not become bored? I am always so sure that other girls are far more clever than I am and that holds me back in everything. Answer this, and you will give help to others who like myself have not a "taking way".

UNPOPULAR.

Haven't you answered your own question, Pal? Isn't it just that fear that is keeping you from the good times that other girls are having? A little shyness is natural to all normal boys and girls and you must remember that the boys you would like to know better are often shy and as incapable of making advances as you are.

The girl who makes it easy for the young man to approach her is the one who receives the most invitations and has the most "beaux." You can invite several boys and girls to your home for informal evenings, and then, after you have become better acquainted, ask one of them to come alone. Never worry about entertaining a man. The most popular entertainment for any man is the sound of his own voice. No, I'm not saying that in a sneering, cynical way. Men like to talk about their work and ambitions—and such talk is usually worth listening to. Give a man or boy a friendly background, and the talk will come.

SAME SIZE BUTTONS.

It is a good plan when making children's clothes to use the same size of buttons on all. Then there is no difficulty from replacing odd sizes.

TODAY'S FASHION

By Vera Winston

Deep Green Chiffon Is Used for This Evening Gown.

The dainty evening gown sketched above is most becoming to the complexion and it suggests the coolness of a mossy violet bank in its color combination.

The chiffon is a rather dark green like violet leaves, and the suggestion is carried out in violets for trimming. There is a bunch of velvety silk violets at the shoulder, there are two more bunches on the overskirt, while a third mass of violets is posed beneath, on the foundation skirt.

The frock is completed by violet colored satin slippers, worn with flesh stockings.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A recipe for maccaroons that is decidedly different and very easy to make, is from the book of Mrs. H. M. Niven, 463 Gilmour street:

Three quarters of a pound of grated cocoanut and one tin of condensed milk is all that is required for these maccaroons. The ingredients are mixed together and dropped on buttered tins from a spoon first dipped in cold water. Cook until brown.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl eighteen years of age and have been going with a young man of nineteen. He seems to love me very much, but hasn't proposed. It seems as if he wants to. Will you please give me your advice?

BONNIE.

BONNIE: Even if you are sure that the young man wants you to be his wife and that the only reason why he doesn't propose is because he is stricken with a bad case of timidity, it is not your place to broach the subject. There have been shy suitors ever since the world began, but somehow they have all managed to stammer the important words. So be patient and wait.

But remember, Bonnie, that both you are very young—too young to think of marriage now. I would suggest that you continue in the social life of your community and wait until you are a few years older before you think of marriage.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

FACE CREAM.

I find that my readers are always interested in recipes for good cold creams. For women are ever on the lookout for creams and lotions which promote beauty and health, and new concoctions of this type will always be interesting.

It is true, too, that while there are numberless very excellent cold creams and skin foods on the market, ready prepared, many women like to prepare their own toilet aids. They find it fun to procure the ingredients and mix the creams themselves, or they like to experiment with new recipes, and have their druggist mix them according to directions.

Now, a few words on the subject of the clear, brilliant complexion, which almost all women, without exception, like to have. Of course there are some women in this day who prefer the pale and wan tint to their complexions but it seems to me that these women are growing fewer.

If you want your skin to present a smooth, beautiful aspect to all beholders, you must live a well-regulated life. You must sleep enough, you must eat wisely and well, especially of green vegetables and fruits. You must exercise and—last but still important—you must apply good skin foods and cold creams when needed.

Keeping the pores of your face absolutely unclogged is a very important measure. Perfect cleanliness is of course inseparable from the perfect complexion. Here is a good cold cream which will cleanse your face perfectly:

Spermaceti	500 grams
Pure wax	100 grams
Oil of sweet almonds	500 grams
Rose-water	50 grams

Crush the spermaceti and the wax. Have at hand a small double boiler, or two sauce pans, one small enough to fit inside the other. Put a small amount of hot water in the larger pan, or underneath in the double boiler.

Now put your oil of sweet almonds and your rose-water in the top pan, add the wax and spermaceti which have been crushed together, and stir gently until the latter two are melted.

Next, pour the mixture into a marble mortar or on a marble slab, as many people do with pull-candy. Allow the mixture to cool, then stir it very gently with a wooden spoon, beginning at the surface and gradually working to the bottom. When it is well blended, add six drops of essence of roses and beat and stir the mass again until it is perfectly white. This makes an excellent cleansing cream to use at night.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY AND DEE VISIT MRS. STRIPED CHIPMUNK.

"Here it is! Here it is!" Dicky cried at the top of his voice. "Come around this way, Dee, and head it off,' and he jumped up and down and squealed. "Head it off and we'll catch it," Dicky cried as Dee came running up to his side.

Mrs. Striped Chipmunk sat down on a stone and looked up at the children and smiled.

"Gracious me! Don't get all out of breath," she chuckled. "I can run so fast you never could catch me if I wanted to, but why should I run? I have never done you any harm and you will do me no harm either. Why do you want me? Can I help you in any way? Are you in trouble?"

Dicky looked at Dee, and then they both laughed.

"'Pon my soul, Dee, did you hear that chipmunk speak?" Dicky cried. "Well, you must be a special chipmunk to be able to talk so folks can understand you."

"Not at all," chuckled Mrs. Striped Chipmunk, "only you two youngsters just happen to be standing on a twig of the magic bush and can understand me. Are you in need of me that you chase me so? If not, I'll return home to my babies."

"Oh, Mrs. Chipmunk," Dee cried excitedly, "please may we go with you? I have never been up in a chipmunk's house."

"Certainly. Now that we are all friends, come along," she said. Then she led Dicky and Dee down the path to the old stone wall around the orchard.

"Where Did You Put the Sand?"

There among the rocks was the entrance to the little chipmunk home.

She led the children down a long tunnel until they came to a cozy little bedroom down under the ground. Here on a nice bed of grasses and leaves were five wee little baby chipmunks.

"Now, if you hadn't been standing on that magic twig you never would have been able to get into my house," declared the proud mother chipmunk. "I'm glad you stepped on it, aren't you?"

"I certainly am glad," replied Dee. Dicky was busy looking around the place.

"I know what you're looking for," said Mrs. Striped Chipmunk. "You wonder where my supplies are kept. Here they are." She led Dicky and Dee through another passageway into a good sized storeroom that was almost filled with nuts and seeds. "I have another storeroom, but it isn't connected with my house. You see, I have to be foxy or my cousins, the squirrel family, will steal every thing I have. You never would have found my home if I hadn't shown it to you, would you?"

"I should say not," laughed Dee, "and I wondered why, at the time. Where did you put the sand you dug out of your house?"

"I carried it out a back doorway and when I finished building I closed up the doorway in such a way that no one could ever find it," chuckled Mrs. Striped Chipmunk. "Now I must go and hunt some food for the babies." Then she showed Dicky and Dee out the front doorway again. Dicky and Dee promised they would come and see her again some day, and bidding her goodbye, they hurried on back home.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Trousers for Ladies

NEW YORK, June 24 (United Press).

Men are wearing bouffant pants
While girls—their weak side kickers
Are wearing sailor trousers
In preference to Knickers.

Boys will be girls and girls will be boys this season, if they continue to dress as they now do.

On Riverside Drive, where one gets no nearer to sailoring than gazing down upon the Hudson River, the flapper element is actually wearing white sailor trousers with accompanying white middy blouses. At Grant's Tomb on a recent Sunday three trim young misses, dressed in snugly-fit sailor trousers, were sitting with their rather effeminately dressed escorts, whose colors schemes verged on lavenders, pale grays and baby blues.

The policeman on the beat did not deem it necessary to accuse the young girls of parading in masculine attire since, in spite of their boyish haircuts and trousers, the girls' curves were so apparent that their disguise was incomplete. Because of excessive heat no one seemed to take notice of the trouser fad among young females, which we saw repeated along the Drive.

The younger set is forever springing some new fad which only the young dare attempt. In the Motion Picture colony in Hollywood they are wearing skirts to the knees, half socks and hand-painted knees and calves. The decorations run to floral motifs and to animal fettish designs. Clara Bow, considered the reigning flapper of the Motion Picture colony, was the first one to 'wear' hand-painted legs in public. She has many followers at the California beaches.

College girls are tying their bobbed forelocks out of their eyes with pastel baby ribbons. Some of them tie little bows at the sides of the forehead while others wear narrow ribbon about the head with the bow at one side or on top of the head.

Etiquette

The Spirit of Courtesy.

"The secret of success in society is a certain heartiness and sympathy. A man who is not happy in the company cannot find any word in his memory which will fit the occasion. . . . A man who is happy there finds in every turn of the conversation equally lucky occasions for what he has to say."—Emerson.

The spirit of courtesy springs from a desire to contribute to the comfort and happiness of all. This makes one look and behave so as to give pleasure to those with whom he associates. It means to take a real interest in those about you, to treat all kindly, though not patronizingly, to be gentle and sweet-tempered, to show deference to the persons and opinions of all.

It means to be unselfish, looking out for the pleasure of others, at the expense of personal sacrifice. It leads one to say to the other, "sit higher," while he himself takes the lowest seat. It never crowds to the first table, treading upon the toes and rights of others.

If one cannot conform to the spirit of courtesy, he may as well give up hope of attaining the gloss of a polite manner. His natural boorishness will be sure to crop out sooner or later, and he will be valued at what he is, and not what he has been trying to fool society into believing he is.

STICK IT, SCOTTIE.

Three times the red faced "prospect" had pushed the young Scotch insurance agent down a long flight of stairs. The third time he turned to to his work satisfied that he had seen the last of the persistent young man.

But no! The door opened and a smiling Scotch face peered in. "Weel, now," said the agent, "we've had our little bit of fun togeth . . so all joking aside, how aboot the insurance?"

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

TWO WISE DINNERS FOR WARM DAYS.

It is sometimes difficult to plan simple dinners for warm days where different tastes are to be considered.

The following menus may aid the housekeeper in making her selection of proper combinations.

MENU
Fruit Cocktail
Broiled Fish Baked Potatoes
Asparagus, Hot or Cold
Cucumber and Onion Salad
Saltines Fruit Shells
Coffee

The cocktails, made of fresh fruits in season, should be chilled before serving. The fish should be carefully broiled, well buttered and lightly dusted with pepper and salt, then garnished with parsley, lemon quarters and deviled eggs. The salad is cold, crisp and dressed with French dressing. The fruit shells are made of short piecrust, filled with fresh, chopped fruit, berries, drained stewed fruit, or even dry apple sauce, and top it with whipped cream.

MENU
Chicken Bouillon, Hot or Cold
Wafers
Creamed Chicken Loaf
Escalloped Potatoes Peas
Stuffed Tomato Salad
Cheese Wafers Fruit Jelly
Sponge Cake Iced Tea

A large chicken makes the bouillon and the material also for the creamed chicken. Select a young, tender chicken, short and thick.

Put on to boil in water to cover, adding a large onion cut to thick slices, some stalks of celery, half a bayleaf, a few sprays of parsley, a leek sliced and a sliced carrot.

When the chicken is done, remove it and set it to cool. When cool enough to handle, strip the meat from the bones and cut up as much as is needed. Boil gently until the quantity is reduced to a little over a quart, then strain it. Next, set aside to let the grease rise; then remove it. The bouillon is then ready to serve, hot or cold.

Make a rich cream sauce for the chicken and serve it in a loaf of bread hollowed out. Use the top crust as a lid.

The Fit of A Collar

Already you have caught the idea I have in mind. If your collar is too tight, it may easily cut off a very considerable quantity of blood.

The brain cannot function as it should unless there is a never-failing suply of the cobweb-removing and cleansing blood stream. Grass cannot live, wheat cannot grow, flowers cannot bloom, nothing in Nature can survive without a constant moistening of their roots. How can you expect the roots of the nerves and the cells of the brain to flourish unless they are constantly irrigated by the rich, red blood for your heart?

A tight collar may easily disturb the circulation. In consequence, the blood vessels are squeezed and harm results. One of the early symptoms is headache.

Whenever you suffer from headache, my advice to you is to loosen the collar. You will be surprised to find how many times relief comes in a short time if you do this sensible thing.

Speaking of headache, it seems to me there is no more annoying symptom than this. It takes your attention from your work, it makes you grouchy and cranky, it makes you miserable and takes the joy out of life for your friends and family. If a tight collar is responsible for your symptoms, for goodness sake, change the kind and size—provide yourself with a collar which will leave the blood vessels of your neck uncompressed and will permit a free circulation of blood to the brain.

If you have never thought about it you will be surprised to find how the neck dress of your friends varies. Some of the ladies you know never wear collars. Some of the men you know have collars which compress the neck as a rubber band might do. If I had to choose between one or the other extreme, I would certainly go without the collar.

Bear in mind that the way your collar fits may have a lot to do with your usefulness as a citizen.

The most tempting cakes and pies are made from Purity Flour as well as the richest, most nutritious bread. You get both quality and economy in intelligence, when one remembers the nature of the examinations they are required to pass, and that they are imbued with the spirit of work and industry. "The motto of our hospital, is, literally translated: "Let everytning be done for charity." The graduate nurse can look forward with anticipation to success in her chosen calling. She has been disciplined by the rules of the institution in which she has trained and has proved herself worthy of the best traditions of St. Josephs Hospital."

His Lordship thanked Dr. Moir for his appreciative remarks and said that the doctors were doing their part nobly. The staff was sympathetic and progressive, and no hospital in Ontario, in his opinion, could surpass St. Joseph's in efficient working.

Bishop McNally of Hamilton was then called on for a few words. He spoke of the nursing profession as a work of charity, but said also that nurses and doctors do not go into their professions simply for altruistive motives. However, there was no more outstanding opportunities anywhere than in either calling for the exercise of the works of charity. He recommended to the nurses an active interest in the spiritual welfare as well as the bodily good of their charges.

Special Prizes.

Dr. J. V. Gallivan, reiterating the words of congratulation of the previous speakers, presented medals and diplomas to the graduates. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, presented his special prize, a ten dollar gold piece, awarded for General Proficiency, to Miss Veronica McFadden, of Hastings, and Dr. G. S. Cameron made the presentation of the prize for bandaging, given by the staff of the hospital, a handsome silver Eversharp pencil and pen, to Miss Beatrice A. Brennan, of Cumberland.

Brief addresses to the graduating class were made by Drs. Cameron, Neal and McNulty. Dr. Cameron extended his personal thanks to the Superior and Sisters of the hospital and appreciation from the doctor's for their co-operation and support. Dr. McNulty remarked on the different standards in judging a nurse's ability. A sick man might think he had a perfect nurse who was sympathetic and kind, and would place her hand on a fevered brow at the psychological moment, but a doctor considered a nurse's ability from the standpoint of promptness, accuracy and attention to instructions.

Dr. Neal spoke of the acid test of practical experience which awaited the nurses and recommended a personal training for each in powers of observation in connection with their work. Poor or incorrect observation, he said, was worse than useless, and might be dangerous. To think of the patient first, he profession second and herself last, was the best rule for a nurse on duty; while when off duty, she should reverse this process of thinking.

Rev. Fathers McCann and Kline of Toronto, also spoke to the class, congratulating them on their success.

Musical Programme.

A very enjoyable musical programme interspersed the session. Miss Hilda Sullivan played a pianoforte solo, "Echoes from Erin," the Misses Mildred and Alma Archambault gave a pianoforte duet the "Lustspiel Overture." Miss Helen Weatherhead played a violin selection, the "Berceuse," from "Jocelyn" with accompaniment by Miss Geraldine Weatherhead, and Mr. A. J. Reynolds, accompanied by Miss Mary Reynolds, sang an Irish song, "I want to go back to the County Mayo," in a manner that brought him much applause, and elicited an encore, in "The Irish Courtship."

A semi-chorus, by eight young girls, accompanied by Miss Lucille Nolan, was a pretty rendition of "A Song of Summer." Those taking part were Mary Scollard, Helen Archambault, Eleanor Grisdale, Noreen MacPherson, Isabel Flint, Hilda Sullivan, Mary Reynolds and Marion Fitzpatrick.

At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served, and a dance held until midnight, the Dixie six-piece orchestra providing excellent music. Mrs. H. Owen was in charge of the dancing.

Graduates of St. Joseph's Hospital Training School for Nurses this year are: Sister M. St. Denis, Miss Rita Marie Condon of Douro, Miss Mary Marguerite Curtin of Lindsay, Miss Margaret Ann O'Loughlin of Lindsay; Miss Veronica M.Fadden of Hastings, Miss Beatrice Anastasia Brennan of Cumberland, and Miss Anna Bernardine Scollard, of Ennismore.

CANADAS CHURCHES TO JOIN ALLIANCE

United Bodies Have Applied For Membership.

CARDIFF, Wales, June 24.—Both united churches of Canada, elements of which were formerly the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Congregationalist and Methodist Churches, and Continuing Presbyterian Church of Canada, have applied for membership in the Alliance of Presbyterian Churches, whose quadrennial council is now in session here.

Cross channel travelling from England to France will be made more luxurious by the new type of steamer which has glass sided lounges instead of open decks.

A physician's formula for excessive perspiration

SOMETIMES Nature's wisest provisions become a source of keen distress. Perspiration, for instance—a wonderful means of regulating the body temperature.

Yet it is a very common thing, even in the healthiest persons, for this function to become so extreme in certain parts of the body as to cause great discomfort and embarrassment. This is due to a local irregularity of the sweat glands which physicians call Hyperidrosis.

Medical authorities agree that this condition should be corrected by local application.

For this very purpose Odorono was first formulated years ago by a physician. It has been brought to scientific perfection by years of laboratory research and study of abnormal perspiration. Physicians and nurses recognize its value and use it in hospitals as a safe, scientific corrective.

The regular use of this clear, antiseptic liquid just twice a week gives complete relief from the discomfort of excessive moisture; keeping your clothing fresh, dry and unstained. And, most of all, you may have absolute assurance that you will never offend with that unpardonable lapse of personal daintiness—underarm odor!

3,000,000 people now depend upon Odorono as their one safeguard against disagreeable perspiration moisture and odor. You may enjoy perfect relief in this harmless way which physicians recommend. Odorono is obtainable at all toilet counters, 35c, 60c and $1, or sent by mail postpaid. Address The Odorono Company, Ltd., 107 Duke Street, Toronto.

Weddings

MILLARD—BLACK

A very pretty wedding took place at eleven o'clock this morning at All Saints' Church, which was decorated for the occasion with quantities of daisies and peonies, when Nellie Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Black, became the bride of Aubrey John Millard, son of Mrs. Susan Millard and the late Mr. Millard of North Monaghan. The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. J. D. Paterson.

The Wedding March was played by Mr. R. J. Devey and Miss Edith Tucker, during the signing of the register, sang very sweetly "At Dawning." Ushers were T. Griffin and Stanley Black.

The bride was charming in a gown of white silk canton crepe, trimmed with knife-pleated ruffles edged with Val. lace. She wore a white tulle veil and wreath of orange blossoms and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Grace Griffin, wore pale green silk poplin, with cream hat and bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. Elmer McLaren acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon to a number of friends and relatives, was served at the home of the bride's parents. The table was daintily arranged with a centrepiece of pink roses and pink tulle, suspended from an overhead cluster of white bells.

Mr. and Mrs Millard left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for Toronto and Niagara Falls. The bride's travelling costume was of poudre blue silk crepe, with sand coat and grey fox fur neckpiece. She wore a Leghorn hat with mount of tangerine flowers. On their return, they will reside in Peterboro.

The bridal couple were recipients of many handsome and useful gifts. The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a string of pearls, to the vocalist an Eversharp pencil, and to the best man a pair of cuff links.

HUTCHISON—FANNING

Hutchison, of Penetanguishene. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Paterson.

The bride wore an ensemble suit of grey georgette, with platinum fox collar, blue hat, grey shoes and stockings, and carried an arm bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Hazel Fanning, was dressed in poudre blue georgette, with blond hat and bouquet of sweet peas.

HATS.

Hang your hats from the top of your car, if it happens to be of the dwindling open variety. Two strips attached between the top bows over the tonneau make a good hat rack.

Cynthia Grey Says

The failure of marriage is the most glaring fact in the world today. It is our biggest problem. For marriage has something to do with the lives of all of us, in one way or another.

And it seems to be crumbling before our very eyes. The divorce courts are working overtime.

To Yucatan and Paris and Reno . . . the places where divorce is almost as easy as getting married . . . women are flocking by the score, demanding their freedom from the marriage-yoke.

I say "women." For the divorce court judges are agreed that it is the wives who are dissatisfied with married life, except in rare cases.

So that it would seem that the failure of marriage is the failure of men as satisfactory husbands!

As a matter of fact, a great many men who are "good providers," who are sober and decent and hard-working, are bores as husbands because they cease to be lovers before the honeymoon has set.

The effort of winning their bride seems to have fatigued them so that they have no energy left to court or amuse her, or even carry on conversation with her, afterward.

As that impudent and painfully truthful Irishman, Bernard Shaw, remarks:

"They settle down like balloons that have lost their gas . . . and the process of settling down goes on until they settle into their graves."

That is exactly what a great many husbands do.

In the days of their courtship they told the girl of their choice all about themselves. They spread out before her their hopes, their ambitions, their dreams.

They courted her with their brains as well as with lovemaking.

They made her a comrade.

But after marriage, how many men do this? Not one in a hundred. The average stenographer or secretary knows more about a man's everyday life than his own wife knows.

The pals who "hang around" the golf club or the billard parlor see more of him than the woman who waits for him at home.

Home is . . . just home, a last resort, a place in which to let down mentally, so far as many men are concerned. And the Little Woman is part of the dullness of domesticity.

A peck on her cheek by way of a kiss . . . and their duty toward her is done. All's then right with the world! Or should be . . . .

However, I honestly believe that more homes have been wrecked, more love shattered by the little pecking kiss that the Average Husband gives his Lawful Wedded Wife than by any other method!

For we women, at heart, are simple, elemental things. We can cheerfully endure poverty, disgrace and deeper troubles if only there is a little Love to lighten the load.

Take, for instance, the case of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. She was an invalid, singularly unattractive and six years older than the good-looking genius who married her. Yet she was one of the happiest women who ever lived.

She was happy because Robert Browning always let her know that he loved her. She had none of that killing doubt of her husband's feeling toward her that spoils the lives of so many wives.

At the end of their life together, he was as much of a lover as he had been years before. He dedicated his greatest poem to her, at that time, thus:

"Take them Love, the book and me together,
Where the heart lies, let the brain lie also."

How could any wife fail to adore a husband who said that to her? It goes without saying that their marriage was a glittering success!

Of course, no woman is foolish enough to hope that the Tire Business Man whose mate she is, is going to write poetry to her.

But there's just a chance that she wishes, at times, that he would tell her that her new hat's becoming, or that it doesn't matter if she did burn the cream of corn soup . . . he likes it that way!

Or perhaps she might like it if he kissed her occasionally as if he meant it . . . or if he took her downtown to dinner once in a while, as he did before they were married.

To be a good husband is just as much of an art as the art of wifehood. And sometimes it is just as important to pay a woman a compliment as it is to pay her bills.

Money covers a multitude of sins, but Love makes up for anything!

SLIP OF THE TONGUE

"Why, pa, this is roast beef!" exclaimed little Jim one evening when Mr. Brown, a guest of honor, was present.

"Why, you told ma this morning that you were going to bring an old mutton-head home for dinner this evening!"

YOUR GARDEN

THE GARDEN COMPETITION.

This is a decidedly lengthy subject, and so I shall confine my advice to a few points that occur to me as being important, taken from my own experience.

In the first place the structural aspect or general layout is most important, and in a close competition the home owner who has exhibited the most skill in the interpretation of good landscape design, will win out.

Ideals will differ among judges, and the competitor is consequently at a certain disadvantage where the judges are changed frequently. There are, however, certain principles of design on which all are agreed, the first of which is the open lawn. By open lawn I mean one in which the planting is mostly confined to the boundaries, and is not cut or cluttered up by beds of plants, and specimen bushes either scattered promiscuously, in pairs or in rows.

In the second place, paths, walks and roads should be placed so as to cut up the area as little as possible. In small backyards, especially, the area is often unnecessarily intersected by paths, whereas a panel of lawn with boundary beds would give an impression of greater extent.

Thirdly, grading is very often badly done and militates against the beauty of the general layout. I am convinced that a great deal of the terracing one sees is entirely unnecessary. Usually such terraces do not begin or end in any particular place nor can a good reason be given for their particular form. They just happen and often are the cause of much poorly placed planting material. In most cases they are probably a very poor effort to do something with the material from the cellar foundation. What is known as a gentle "ogee" or gradual change of slope from level to level will prove much more pleasing and be much easier on upkeep costs. A fairly steep slope from the building to the street or lawn level is permissible and the level immediately about the house may very well be lowered and the foundation hidden by planting.

The lawn is of sufficient importance to be usually scored separately, and indeed it is the foundation or base of the whole home lot. The grass itself should be well cut, dense mat of growth free from weeds and bright and healthy-looking.

Upkeep is very important, and may be summed up under neatness and cultivation. Grass edges, along walks and beds are perhaps the most neglected. These edges should be kept sharp and clean by the aid of the edging tool and edging shears at all times. Freedom from weeds will count in a competitors' favor, though recent rains or watering have washed away evidences of cultivation. A weedy bed can on no account be condoned. Neatness should be interpreted in the broader sense of good planting material, well grown (free from dead flowers or dead wood), and not useless fussiness and trimming and consequent unnaturalness. Taller perennials and flowering plants should be reasonably tidily staked and tied in as natural a way as possible. Do not bunch the flowers up tightly or tie them precisely and stiffly.

The combating of insects is a very noticeable factor in neatness and nothing adds to the raggedness of the place so much as badly eaten plants.

In the vegetable garden, the succession of crops should be watched carefully and the plot kept going at capacity. As fast as one crop is harvested the space should be again seeded. Even though at the time of judging the gardens may have many gaps, evidences of succession crops will count greatly in the competitor's favor. On no account though should stubs of cauliflower and cabbage, or tops of vegetables be left about on the ground.

Variety of planting material and gayety of bloom are difficult to obtain on a small plot, but can be accomplished with a good deal of thought. Well kept window or verandah boxes and tubs placed up close to the building or paths aid very materially in brightening up such a small lawn. For details of the placing of such features the reader is referred to previous articles. In this regard, choose a large percentage of plants that will flower freely over a long season such as Annual Phlox, Petunias, Verbenas, and Salpiglossus rather than Salvia, for instance, which shows but foliage over a long period.

Peterborough's June Weddings

These June weddings now:—

It is the popular belief that the greater part of the annual marriage quota uses this month for beginning the Great Adventure, but statistics fail to bear this out.

June—sunny June—happy June, when birds are mating and selecting building sites, when flowers vie in a riot of bright colours, when the whole world shakes itself from the torpor of winter and moves at a faster clip to burn up the surplus energy which courses through tingling arteries.

June—when Old Sol begins to shoot his flaming darts and when the first swimmers proudly exhibit burned and blistered shoulders.

It is then that youth, forgetful of gaping furnace maws and general winter depression, is lured into the commitment of itself to marriage.

While that might be given as a reason for a greater number of marriages in June it still remains as a fact that only 12 per cent of the weddings solemnized in Peterborough took place in that month. Furthermore it was discovered that the weddings for the year were fairly distributed through the twelve months.

There have been 15 licenses issued by the City Clerk to date of this month, 20 were issued in May 23 in June 1924 and the same number in June 23, while in '22 the June catch consisted of 11 only. From June 1 last year to the present time 194 marriages were solemnized by Peterborough clergymen.

Methodists Lead.

The greatest number of marriages have been performed by the erstwhile Methodist parsons who have a total of 64. Following them come the one-time Presbyterians with 39, Roman Catholics 34, Anglicans, 27, and other smaller denominations making up the balance.

The Marrying Pastor.

Rev. W. Harold Young is the most popular marrying minister as, during the past twelve months he has united 35 pairs in the holy bonds of matrimony, called by one correspondent martyrmony. Two Presbyterian ministers take second and third places, Rev. M. C. Mackinnon 18, and Rev. Robert Pogue 16; then come Rev. H. J. Langford 15, Rev Paul Costello 15, Rev. J. D. Paterson 13, Rev. J. D. Richardson 12 and Rev. J. W. Gordon 12.

No Elaborate Ceremony.

The ceremony of to-day is not as elaborate as in past years when the contracting parties appeared formally rigged in swallow-tailed coat and plug hat, while the blushing bride was inevitably swathed in many yards of tulle and lace and deemed herself incomplete unless there was a 20-foot train trailing after.

Now the groom usually appears in a business-like suit of blue serge and the bride in a costume not so detrimental to transportation.

Throwing Things.

The ancient custom of throwing things at the bridal pair continues and it is little wonder that rice is one of the main Chinese exports as tons of that otherwise edible commodity are hurled after flustered parties annually.

The shortest ceremony on record was detailed in a recent American exchange when a truck driver asked his boss for twenty minutes off in order that he might get married. He changed his clothes, 'got hitched,' changed clothes again and was back at work within the specified time.

In some rural districts the return of the honeymooners is greeted by a special function known as the charivaree, when all the youth of the county side gather all manner of noise making instruments such as pans and shot guns and camp on the door step of the newly weds.

After much yowling and caterwauling, banging and whanging of guns and pans the irate groom appears and distributes largesse in order to rid the premises of its odious incumbrances.

In many cases however the roystering assemblage is invited in and a merry party results with singing and dancing while many a quip and jest is bandied about.

The wedding parties usually desire above all peace and quietness, which beautific qualities are usually denied. There is the hustle and bustle of preparation, then there is the hurry and scurry of the day itself, and finally, after the ceremony is all over, there is the hurry and worry for the male participant in order to support the added responsibility.

The Honeymoon.

If the honeymoon is to a strange place there follows the consciousness that train men porters, hotel clerks, are giggling behind spread fingers and, if the honeymoon is a visit to some friend or relatives all conspire in pulling off embarrassing jokes.

Then there is the examination of the contents of club bags. And one is forced to marvel at the ingenuity of practiced jokers who can tie one hundred and fifty seven knots in one leg of a pyjama suit. Other articles are extracted amid showers of confetti. Truly the trials of the newly wed are many and varied.

But from time immorial intrepid couples have persisted in enduring all things in order to consumate bliss and attain ideals nor is it likely that one of the most ancient customs will quickly fall into disuse so the amusing spectacles at which the cynics jeer and old heads commiserate will still be in evidence at railway stations. Organs will still throb with Mendelssohn's famed refrain.

Looking Back.

The old Romans believed that June was a most lucky month for marriage. All marriages during that month were especially blessed by the gods, though it is not known why the gods preferred that particular month for weddings. And the luckiest time of this lucky month was at the time of the full moon or the conjunction of the sun and moon.

When christianity swept away the pagan religion, this superstition was retained, along with many other customs in connection with marriage, such as the giving of a ring. The ring had not particular significance itself, at first, It was the usual thing for the groom to give the bride presents, and a ring was usually among them. These presents are a survival of the old method of buying a wife. The presents denoted the completion of the contract. The ring, however, acquired in time a greater significance. Its form came to be regarded as a symbol of eternity, and it became a main feature of the wedding ceremony.

The June bride of today who leaves the "obey" out of the ceremony has come a long way from the ancient form. In the old days of England the bride was taken "for faired, for fouler; for better, for worse," She promised to be "boxom and bonny" to her promised husband. And then the father presented the son-in-law with one of the bride's shoes. Whereupon the bridegroom whammed his fair bride on the head with the shoe, token of the transference of authority, and the wedding was considered fitly ended.

DRAGOONS HAD A JOLLY NIGHT

Salvation Army Band and Y. M.C.A. Entertain Troops in Camp Here.

FIELD DAY.

A full programme was provided for the Dragoons at their camp in the Exhibition Grounds last night. At the band stand near the George Street entrance the Salvation Army Band dispensed suitable music which was thoroughly appreciated by the soldiers and also by the citizens who were present. In the Manufacturers' Bldg., the Y.M.C.A. had a movie projector and the comic films shown were enjoyed by a large audience of soldiers and small children. After the films had been run off, the men had a stag dance, the tuneful harmonicas of several members providing the necessary music, while other members obliged their comrades with songs and recitations. Some of the boys also showed great skill in playing the piano.

After the band concert, the bandsmen were entertained in the officers' mess tent, where light refreshments had been prepared for them

Tomorrow's Events.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.

Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church Scene of Pleasant Event.

A very successful strawberry festival was held on the lawn of the Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church on Tuesday evening. A crowd of between three and four hundred people gathered and a splendid strawberry supper was done ample justice to, after which the chairman, Rev. W. G. Edgar, called upon the 50 L.O.L. Band which was in attendance to open the programme with a musical selection. The chairman then made a few remarks, in the course of which he told a humorous story illustrating the danger of attempting to do too many things at once.

After the chairman's remarks, the following items were gone through:

Miss Marion Dryland, a tiny tot, gave a very nice reading. Miss Daisy Murray of George Street Methodist Church, rendered in her usual fine style a solo, which was encored.

Three speakers were present in the persons of the Rev. Dr. Rose of Murray Street Baptist Church, the Rev. S. G. Pinnock of the Bible Society, and the Rev. P. H. Neville of the Bridgenorth Methodist circuit.

Dr. Rose contented himself with introducing his friend, Rev. S. G. Pinnock, in a brief and amusing speech.

Mr. Pinnock, who has been a missionary in South Africa for 35 years, gave some very humorous reminiscences of his work on the Dark Continent. He told some amusing experiences of his visit to the palace of the native king which brought roars of laughter from the audience.

The Rev. Mr. Neville was in a valedictory mood, as next Sunday is his last Sunday in this district.

Solos were given by Miss Mary Lewis and Miss Daisy Murray, which were heartily applauded. Little Phyllis Moore, always a favorite, gave two very optimistic readings, which were very much enjoyed.

Mrs. McNeely, an elocutionist of a high order, rendered in fine style, Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," which brought an encore, entitled "She Didn't."

Throughout the evening, the band discoursed excellent music, which was greatly appreciated and added largely to the evening's enjoyment.

By special request, Bandmaster Ford and Mr. Gilbert gave a cornet and trombone duet, which was encored.

NAMES FOR UNITED CHURCHES.

New names for congregations of the United Church of Canada are being given by the people without wait ing for any general policy. Fredericton Methodist church has become Wilmot United Church, in memory of a deceased member, Hon. Lemuel Allan Wilmot, one of the Fathers of Canadian Confederation.

A union of Methodist and Presbyterian groups in Calgary, has resulted in the name of Cushing Memorial Church in honor of Hon. W. H. Cushing.

Oakville Methodist Church and the former Presbyterian Unionists of that Ontario town have hit upon the name St. Johns United Church in recognition of the contributions to Christianity made by John Knox, John Wesley and John Robinson, pastor of the Pilgrim Fathers.

Renfrew Methodist church has become Trinity United Church.

Others are believed to be seeking the names of the sainted and faithful, as titles of the churches in which they are to worship together. Some are resorting to street names as descriptive if not inspiring. Few are abandoning such names as Knox, Chalmers or Wesley in favor of merely geographical designations.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Pulling Across the Ball the seventh of the faults I list, results from plain pulling across, from pulling away from the ball and from pulling up at the moment of impact. This action of the body pulls the clubhead directly across the ball, imparting the slice spin. The persistent slicer usually is guilty of this fault. The action with the club, from driver to putter, is straight forward. Go forward with the club, forcing the clubhead with your hands and fingers, and let the body follow after. The precise way to do this is to have the body move unison with the clubhead, but for demonstrating purposes it is better to let the body follow after. From the top, stand squarely on your right foot and dive downward and straightforward with the club, making it go slightly outward through the ball.

TENNIS JESTER IN GRIM FIGHT

Jean Barotra Pushed to the Limit to Win From Turnbull.

PLAYED 60 GAMES.

WIMBLEDON, June 24. (Canadian Press).—Home players fared rather badly in yesterday's matches in the coveted All-England lawn tennis championship, and the hopes of Great Britain now rest on J. B. Gilbert. That he is a man to be reckoned with was amply demonstrated in his play yesterday afternoon when he won handily over M. Ferrier, of Switzerland, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

It was a day of great matches, and the outstanding one was easily that between O. G. N. Turnbull of England, who played sixty games with Jean Borotra of France before the Frenchman finally emerged at the long end of a 10-8, 5-7, 7-5, 10-8 score. Turnbull, a veteran, displayed game mastery of tactics and stroke seldom seen outside of a championship final. The lithe young jester of the courts, Borotra, was given a grim struggle.

It was his doggedness, his determination to cast aside all jumping-jack strategy and pull the match out of the fire that gave him the victory. In the final set Turnbull had the score of 4-1. Borotra let the Englishman get one more then he evened at 5-all and eventually took the victiry.

All the Frenchmen, Borotra, Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet, eliminated their opponents, Lacoste defeating H. V. Summerson of England, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, and Cochet winning from A. Zerlendi of Greece, 6-3, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0.

The brilliant Italian player, Count de Mornurgo, easily accounted for A. N. W. Dudley of England, while Australia's hope, J. O. Anderson, had recovered yesterday from his faults of Monday and defeated V. Burr of England, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

The six United States players, R. Casey, R. S. Garland, L. B. Bailey, L. B. Rice, R. Hennesy and L. E. Williams, all won easily with the exception of Garland, who was forced to the limit by C. G. Eames of England, in a game that went to 2-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California won in the first round of the women's singles from Miss J. G. Brown, England, 6-3, 6-4.

LESKARD WON FROM KIRBY AT FOOTBALL

Good Game at Pontypool Garden Party — Blackstock Won Ball Game

The game was followed by a concert consisting of music by the Lanetville male quartette, Mr. Preston and Mr. Ashley and reading by Miss Ida Payne.

The league baseball game between Blackstock and Pontypool was played at Blackstock on Saturday evening, the decision being in favor of Blackstock 11-7. It appears that the play off in this league will be Nestleton and Blackstock. The next league game will be vs. Pontypool at Pontypool, Wednesday, June 24th.

GETTING A LIGHT OF.

Tourists and campers needn't worry about the alck of matches to start their campfires, if their automobile is in running order. All they need is to soak a cloth in gasoline, detach a line from one of the spark plugs and start the engine. By applying the gas soaked cloth to the plug and terminal of the ignition line, a light will be obtained from the resultant spark.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

YOUTH TRIUMPHS

All other things being nearly equal, youth invariably gets the decision in sport.

The recent meeting between Tommy Gibbons and Gene Tunney is offered as proof of the above statement.

I have never witnessed a more disappointing bout. I liked the chances of Gibbons to win. I thought he knew too much for Tunney. As a matter of fact, Gibbons never had a chance.

Tunney, in great shape, and making the best showing of his career, simply outclassed Gibbons.

The moment that Gibbons entered the ring I had my doubts as to his chances of winning. He didn't look fit physically, appeared much too fat.

If I didn't know that Gibbons was a most conscientious chap, I would surmise that he didn't train very hard for the Tunney go, did no t care whether he won or not.

The Gibbons beaten by Tunney was just a ghost of the Gibbons I have seen in action any number of times.

THE EVER SUSPICIOUS

Either Tunney is a much better fighter than he ever has been given credit for, or Gibbons has long been an over-touted one. I guess it's about "50-50."

Gibbons was fat. He lacked aggressiveness. Showed none of the hitting power that has caused any number of fighters to take the count. He was largely on the defensive, showed nothing you would expect of a man who had gone 15 rounds with Jack Dempsey.

Whenever a much touted individual or team in any line of sport is soundly trounced it causes the ever suspicious to say unkind things.

There was much talk in New York after the bout and it wasn't all complimentary to Gibbons.

The St. Paul fighter really sat down more than he was knocked down when the final count was tolled off.

My thought is that Gibbons put up a rotten fight but the best he had. And right here I want to say it was one of the most disappointing championship bouts I have ever seen.

I see where Gibbons wants a return match. I don't know who would care to see the two in action again. I wouldn't and I went through the press gate, didn't cost me a cent to see the affair.

If Gibbons' showing against Tunney was his best, and I am of the opinion that it was, Tommy should wisely invest his bank roll and retire.

BOUTS DISAPPOINT

As a matter of fact, it is doubtful if any two widely advertised bouts ever "flivvered" as badly as did the McTigue-Berlenbach and Tunney-Gibbons.

At each show, several of the preliminary bouts were far more interesting than the main go.

Berlenbach, in winning the title of light heavyweight champion from Mike McTigue, did nothing to make you enthuse over his ring ability.

Gene Tunney, in disposing of Gibbons by the knockout route, was more impressive, but he didn't loom up like a real challenger for Jack Dempsey's crown.

Jack Delaney, Young Stribling and Jimmy Slattery, all of whom sat at the ringside and saw Berlenbach score a rather hollow victory over McTigue, are better prospects than the champion.

STRANGE CASE OF WAITE HOYT

Star Pitcher Unable to Win Game in First Two Months Of Play.

By BILLY EVANS

One of the greatest pitchers in baseball yet unable to win a game during the first eight weeks of play.

That is the peculiar position in which Waite Hoyt, star right hander of the New York Yankees, finds himself.

The inability of Hoyt to win consistently is one of the several reasons why the much-feared Yankees have been trailing in the second division since the opening of the season.

American League batters will tell you that no pitcher in the League has a better fast ball than Waite Hoyt. His change of pace is most deceptive. His fast-breaking curve is very puzzling.

Included in Hoyt's pitching repertoire is a slow curve. It seems every pitcher has his hobby. Using the slow curve, usually in the pinch, is Hoyt's.

Opposing batters say that Hoyt's slow curve is the least effective of all his deliveries. Knowing his faith in such a ball, they look for it in the pinch.

Hasn't Finished Game.

They do say that Hoyt would be 25 per cent. more effective if he eliminated entirely the slow curve from his repertoire. However, that is just part of the story.

Waite Hoyt, boasting perhaps the best fast ball in the major leagues and a dazzling change of pace, during the first two months of play in the American League, has been unable to win a single ball game.

Even more surprising is the fact that he hasn't been able to finish a ball game. Ordinarily with the season one-third over, a pitcher with Hoyt's stuff should and would have from six to 10 victories to his credit.

Certainly a jinx seems to be on Hoyt's trail this season. In at least a half dozen games he has appeared certain of victory only to have some tough break deprive him of it. Either he has lost the game or some other pitcher has received credit for the victory.

Just to illustrate the workings of the jinx: In a recent game with St. Louis, two out in the ninth and New York leading, 5 to 2, it looked as if Hoyt would surely go over a winner.

If Hoyt has one fault, it is an inclination to grow careless. With two down, the next batter hit weakly to Hoyt. He played the ball rather nonchalantly, it got away from him and the batter beat the play. It should have been the third out, ending the game.

Caused His Removal.

The next St. Louis batter hit a home run. That made the score 5-4. The following batter hit another home run, the score was tied. Hoyt was removed and Pennock finished. The Yanks won the game in the 10th inning.

However, a bit of carelessness had wasted eight innings of superb pitching.

Some idea of Hoyt's effectiveness is shown by the figures of the past four years. Once he won 17 games, once 18 and twice he scored 19 victories.

Despite past performances and a world of stuff, Hoyt has failed to win in 15 times out, covering two months of play.

Yes, baseball is a mighty uncertain pastime, as Waite Hoyt will admit.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Central Ontario League race in its present form with its twenty-four game schedule, the first and second clubs to play, is presenting the most interesting race in its history and with a little over a third of the schedule played all four teams have a chance for the pennant. For the first two weeks Oshawa and Belleville looked like the weak sisters but the doings of the last fortnight have changed the complexion of affairs and right now the dopesters are all at sea trying to pick a winner in any particular game, let alone name the champion.

On Saturday the Kingston Ponies will be here and the Petes have to hand the leaders another walloping although they don't expect any 15-1 score on this occasion. The last time the Ponies were here they were away off colour but they will be a different proposition when they visit Riverside Park on Saturday. Whitehouse is being groomed for this game. The left hander made a good job of stopping the Kingston gang on their last appearance here and should be able to repeat the trick this time. The Ponies always draw a big crowd here and Saturday's game will furnish no exception.

The Petes now have the distinction of possessing the two youngest pitchers in the Central Ontario League in Hardill and Whitehouse while Hall in the outfield gives them a third player well under the junior age limit. The policy of developing players in the younger series is bearing splendid fruit.

Oshawa are scheduled to play a twilight game in Kingston this evening and it would occasion no surprise if Duke Dainty pitched the Motorists to a victory. An Oshawa win would leave them tied with the Ponies for the league leadership.

JUNIOR LACROSSE.

Campbellford Team All Set For Norwood.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 24. — Manager Heayn of the junior lacrosse team has been giving the boys strenuous workouts every night in preparation for their important O.A.L.A. fixture with Norwood at the Fair Grounds on Friday afternoon. Freddie Ingram and Horkins will move back to the defence, with Cochrane and McArthur and Alex. Kemp's youngsters will have their work cut out getting goals, while Ibey, Parsons and company will give the defence end of the striped jerseys plenty to worry about and should get enough goals to be on the heavy end of the score. Both teams need the game to stay in the running, and a real good game should result.

NEW GOLF STAR ON TROON LINKS

Moses O'Neill Turned in the Lowest Score in Qualifying Round.

FEW SURPRISES.

TROON, Scotland, June 24 (Canadian Press).—A new star loomed in the golf firmament yesterday at the end of the qualifying round for the British open golf championship, when Moses O'Neil, a lanky Irishman from the Robin Hood Club, led the field of the 81 who qualified by turning in a card of 75, which, added to his 71 of Monday, gave him the lowest score of all the contenders.

There were few surprises yesterday. Most of those who were expected to win through succeeded, while most of the "small fry" fell by the wayside. Numbered among the fallen, however, was that grand old man of golf, James Braid, who is remembered by a former generation for his wonderful play and his many championships. The in exorable influence of Father Time was responsible more than anything for the failure of the veteran golfer.

"My eyes are getting weak," he said. "I cannot judge the distance flag as well as I used to."

Braid's scores were 80 and 79, a total of 159, which left him one stroke outside of the selected fold.

Following O'Neill by one stroke came the professional of the St. Cloud Club of Paris, Aubrey Boomer, a native of the Channel Islands, birthplace of several celebrated golfers of an earlier day, among them Harry Vardon and Edward Ray. In a tie with Boomer for second place were Ernest May and Arthur Compson, both British professionals.

Havers Recovered.

The features of the qualifying round were the magnificent recoveries of Arthur Havers and the veteran, J. H. Taylor who, when play started, appeared to have little chance, but later showed fine fighting spirit. Taylor went out in 38. He holded a twelve-yarder at the tenth in two, and negotiated the eleventh, which is 500 yards, in four. Thereafter he was unable to make a mistake. Havers, whose swings went mysteriously wrong Monday, took a long time to recover. He looked hopeless when he turned in a 39, but played the final six holes magnificently in 22.

Cyrill Tolley, who led the amateurs Monday was disappointing. Included among those who qualified are all the renowned American players, the Frenchman, Arnaud Massey, and all the notable British-ers except George Gadd and James Braid.

KEENE TEAM WON.

Cognawagas Lost 7 To 3 at Keene Yesterday Evening.

KEENE, June 24.—A fast game of ball was played Tuesday evening between Cognawagas and Keene, resulting in a win for Keene the score being 7 to 3.

Robertson pitched splendid ball for Keene, especially in the pinches, and having perfect control, not issuing a single complimentary. Smith for the Cogs, pitched good ball, but Keene had their batting eye in good shape and got hits when hits meant runs.

The Keene infield played snappy ball, only one error being chalked up against them. The Keene outfielders had only one fly to handle and only two other hits went to the outfield.

Davis, for the Cogs, caught a good game, his throwing to second being good.

The line-up:

Keene—Robedtson c., C. Nelson r.f., M. Renwick 3b., F. Hall l.f., E. McCarthy 1b., R. Comrie c.f., M. Robertson p., A. E. Fletcher 2b., M. McCarthy s.s., *W. Fletcher c.f.

MY EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS

IN THE HEART OF SWEDEN

Too often the tourist misses a real Swede, because he simply ca at Stockholm on his way to so other land. Stockholm Swedes cosmopolitan and cosmopolitans the same everywhere. One of best places to find the real Swe the tall, powerful uncommunicat but hospitable Swede, is among Dales-men of Dalarna and La Siljan. Here the old-fashioned c tumes, industries and customs live. These men are calm and d liberate and know what they wan and happy is the tourist who ge their friendship. If you could a tend the quaint church service, as did, at Leksand at the south of th lake, with the worshippers coming some in the old long narrow row boats, all in the flower of their Sunday costumes, you would have a picture of Sweden that you would never forget.

TO LA GRANDE CHARTREUSE.

A few days in Grenoble is always an interesting and happy experience, but I think I go there, and take others there, chiefly for the automobile trip to La Grande Chartreuse. This famous old monastery, for centuries the headquarters of the Chartreux monks, is to-day but an empty shell, but left high in the hilly woods near here, like a beautiful seashell on the shores of time for the pleasure of our eyes. It was founded by St. Bruno in the eleventh century and reconstructed in the seventeenth century. The forest hillsides about it are a paradise of flowers this time of year (May) and I found the hunter and the fisherman, the artist and the photographer already camping near by, for it has something for all.

EVERYBODY GOES TO GOES.

Everybody goes to Goes, they say, when they land at the beautiful Island of Zuid-Beveland in Holland. Here is where the tourist sees the most becoming lace caps on the most becoming maidens of Zeeland, who have provided artists with quaint beauty for generations—white wings for smiling faces! Here you may see Dutch fisherwomen on their way to Middleburg, delightful old houses, a superb Gothic Cathedral and everywhere water to work in. The girls work as well as the men and as they retain the upper half of the Goes costume and replace their petticoats by high waders, the effect is extremely quaint.

TENNIS TIPS

Too many people, either in starting the game of tennis or in playing it through years, use equipment which retards their game. The idea of this article is not to set hard and fast standards for equipment, but to indicate what is used by the best players in tennis.

The Racquet: Any standard make will do. Get as good a one as you can afford. It should weigh between 13F and 14½ ounces and should have a handle between 5 and 5¼ inches in circumference. There should be a strong, even tension in the strings and the shape should be an elongated oval, rather than the rounder hape. At the bottom of the stringed portion, the neckpiece should be concave, father than convex. (Tilden uses such a racquet.)

Balls: Use new ones, or nearly new ones whenever possible. They should weigh from 2 to 2 1-16 oz. and be between 2½ and 2 5-8 in. in circumference. Do not use them after the fuzz is gone.

Shoes: For general, all-around tennis use, the shoe with the crepe rubber sole and light leather or canvas upper is best. This applies to all types of courts.

Clothes: Wear tennis clothes if you can. Light cotton undershirt, white duck of flannel pants, wide belt, white shirt—usually with short sleeves and open at the neck. Have a sweater to put around you between matches or after the finish of a match.

Any player who wishes to change this general outline should do so only when he has some real reason for doing so, but if you have a real reason—do not hesitate to make changes.

FARMERS CROWD INTO CITIES FROM RUMANIAN LAND

No Friendly Landlords Left to Back Tenants When Crop Failed.

DESERTING LAND

Crop Failed and Seed Grain Was Eaten, Leaving None to Plant.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, June 23 (United Press).—The Roumanian government is having an increasingly hard time impressing on the Transylvanian peasants that "tenant-ownership" of land is the Utopian goal for all small farmers.

A hundred or more years ago the great landed Hungarian nobility found labor costs mounting to such an extent that they decided to encourage immigration from the East, where people were not accustomed to very high pay. With open arms, therefore, they welcomed thousands of Roumanian peasants as tenant-settlers.

Gradually these Roumanians pushed the higher-calibred Hungarian farmers back in Hungary. In many sections they soon outnumbered the Hungarians ten to one.

From the proprietors of the estates on which they lived, these Roumanian peasants received their seed-grain each year, and to the proprietors they paid their rents in grain following each harvest.

When times were bad, or when the crops failed, they were not troubled because the proprietor stood by to see that they did not starve. They had even fewer worries than did the Negro before the Civil War.

With the close of the World War, however, and the subsequent division of the old Austro-Hungarian monarchy inta many small states, conditions changed entirely. In accordance with the theory of "self-determination," Transylvania was given to Roumania in its entirety, even including those parts in which Hungarians were in the majority. The great estates were confiscated and the landlords hounded out of the country bymost cruel and in many cases unfair methods.

The estates were divided into small farms, and each of the former tenants was encouraged to take one of the farms as his own. The old "carpet-bagger's" politics of "forty acres and a mule" were duplicated almost in detail, the only difference being that oxen took the place of mules.

For a time all went well. Crops were good for several seasons in succession; and the peasant regaled themselves in special luxuries which they had not been able to enjoy in the days when a large share of their crops went to the "oppressive" Hungarian landlord.

The fat years were followed in time by the customary lean years, however; and then a great howl was heard. No friendly landlord stood by with full barns from which could be drawn a living ration of grain until another harvest. The seed grain was eaten; and, when ths was exhausted, thousands of farms were offered for sale. There was a great exodus from the country to the towns in search of work.

It is this problem of the "flight from the land" which is now sorely perplexing the Roumanian Government. Laws have been passed which practically forbid the sale of farms, and which place heavy [illegible] those who desert their grants; but the exodus continues daily. peasants are offering their holdings at almost any price; and some, who are unable to sell, simply pack up and leave anyway.

VICTUALLERS FACE STRONG OPPOSITION

Astor Group Condemned at Meeting—Want Longer Selling Hours.

LONDON, June 23 (Canadian Press).—There was not much of the genial, hearty Boniface—"warmest welcome at an inn and so forth—in the sentiments expressed at the Licensed Victuallers Defence Convention at Eastbourne. According to the President, Mr. Wigley, of Derby, "the trade" is subject to violent and persistent attacks by unscrupulous opponents. The Astor group of politicians came in for special condemnation. The Viscount, with his power in the press and his influence as a peer, added to the activities of other members of his family in the House of Commons, called for vigilance and counter action.

The most vigorously debated motion was one submitted by Mr. Rogers (Swansea) asking for a redemption of the promise to restore an extension of the hours of selling, and hoping the Government will deal with the matter at an early date. "You cannot regulate a man's stomach by the clock," declared Mr. Rogers. "We used to be open for 17 hours." A voice: "We were slaves then."

Mr. Rogers: "I think we should be willing to be slaves again if we could make as much money as we made then." (Cheers and dissent.)

The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company have on exhibition in Ald. Denne's office window, some views of the mammoth dust - collecting machine built for and now being installed in the Quaker Oats Co. mills. These huge machines have been running in the Dominion Dustless Sweeper plant for the past month to test every working part, and the size of the machines may be gathered from the fact they must be dismantled to instal in the Quaker Oats plant, although the openings in their buildings are larger than usual. These machines vacuum clean the air in the dusty operations of the mill, leaving it sweet and pure—eliminating danger from combustion, and making it a clean, healthy place of employment.

While the huge machine was being tested, many out-of-town representatives came to the city on a personal inspection for their companies, with a view to installing machines of proper size to take care of their needs. This opens a wide field of work, as the machine is applicable to elevators, stores, foundries, seed warehouses, grinding mills, and everywhere where dust must be taken out of dusty operations.

EMPLOYMENT IS GOOD FOR SOME ENGLISH TRADES

Coach Builders, Brick Makers and Building Trades Have Work.

Over Eleven Per Cent. Are Unemployed of Those Having Insurance.

In the month of April employment was good in Great Britain on the whole, with coach builders and brick makers, with most of t skilled operatives in the building trades, in the jute trade, and in some branches of the cotton trade. It was fairly good with millsawyers and brushmakers, in the furnishing and carpet trades, and in some sections of the metal trades. On the other hand, in the wool textile industry, in coal mining, in the iron and steel industry, in tin plate and steel sheet manufacture, in the marine and heavy engineering trades, and in the shipbuilding industry, employment was bad, according to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service.

AT THE CAPITOL

"OLD HOME WEEK" TO BE CAPITOL FEATURE.

"Old Home Week," the new Paramount picture, which opens at the CAPITOL To-Morrow for a three days run, offers the rare combination of an exceptionally interesting story and a brilliant star.

It was written by George Ade, famous American humorist, and serves as a starring vehicle for that personable and popular screen idol, Tommy Meighan. Tom Geraghty, one of t he best known scenario writers in the business, wrote the film adaptation and Victor Heerman performed the directorial honors.

Meighan has a particularly sympathetic part in this picture —that of a likeable young chap who fails to make a success in New York and returns to his home town. The fun begins when the local citizens get the mistaken impression that he is the president of a big oil company of New York. For a time Tom is a veritable hero, but his triumph is short-lived. Even "the only girl," turns against [illegible] is publicly [illegible]

"A MAN MUST LIVE" CL[illegible] RUN

Richard Dix's newest Paramount picture, "A Man Must Live," his second starring production of Famous' Famous Forty, which was shown for the first time in Peterboro at the Royal Theatre on Monday last, will close its run there today.

The picture is Paul Sloane's first directorial work and includes Jacqueline Logan, Edna Murphy, George Nash, Charles Beyer and others in a high class cast.

The story is an adaptation of "Jungle Law" by I. A. R. Wylie. It offers Dix his finest screen opportunity and he has made the most of it.

Better than "Manhattan"? Judge for yourself!

"BEHOLD THIS WOMAN" LOVE STORY OF HOLLYWOOD AT ROYAL THURSDAY

Three Leading Women Required for Photoplay—Irene Rich, Marguerite de la Motte and Rosemary Theby in "Behold This Woman."

"Behold This Woman," which will be shown at the Royal Theatre on Thursday, is a peculiar photo-drama in that it has three leading women, of three distinct types and all about of equal importance. Irene Rich portrays the movie star, who ultimately wins out and marries the hero. Rosemary Theby handles the role of dancer and "vamp" who tries her best to lead the hero astray. Marguerite de la Motte is cast as a real pal and wins most of the sympathy, although she loses out in her struggle for the hero's love.

These three women were selected [illegible]m a score of possibilities because [illegible] were most admirably suited to [illegible]roles through their personalities [illegible]popular appeal. They are three [illegible]e most popular leading women [illegible]ble today and have a large [illegible]ing with picture audiences.

[illegible]old This Woman" is so ar- [illegible] that none of the three roles [illegible]ny way subordinated to the [illegible]and each one might be term- [illegible]ellar role. Each calls for in- [illegible]motional acting and great [illegible]ic ability.

[illegible]mary Theby is afforded am- [illegible]portunity to display her terp- [illegible]an ability; Irene Rich, her [illegible]mly appeal and charm; Mar- [illegible]te de la Motte her sincerity and [illegible]en frankness. It is seldom that such a combination is found in a single production.

The three principal male roles are about equally divided. Charles B. Post, because of his herculean build, was selected as the hero, Anders Randolf portrays the cold, reserved woman-hater who is bent on saving her brother from the wiles and caprices of women at any cost. Harry Myers has the heavy role, but even this is different from the average conception of a movie "villain." He is one of the lovable type with a good heart, who is always ready to do the right thing when shown that he is in the wrong.

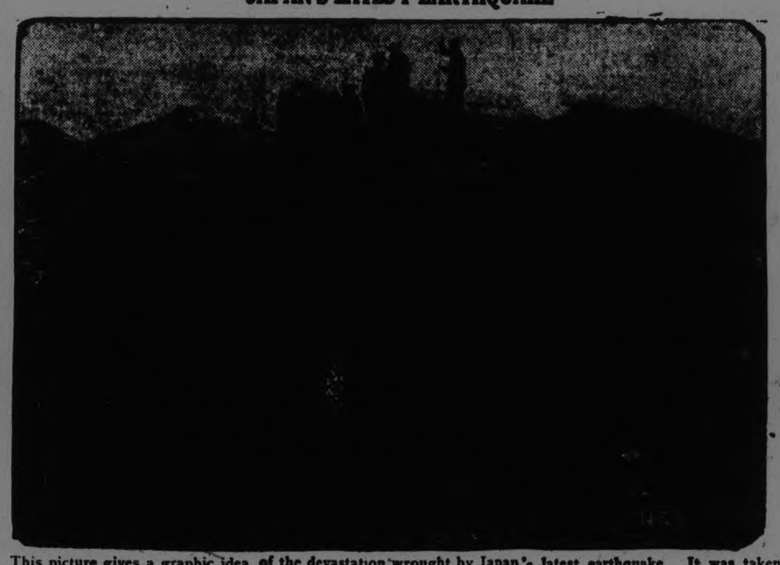
JAPAN'S LATEST EARTHQUAKE



This picture gives a graphic idea of the devastation wrought by Japan's latest earthquake. It was taken at Toyooka as members of the military searched ruins for the dead while those who survived hoped for the recovery of loved one. Fire in many communities added to the horror after the earth had opened in 21 places as the tremor shook the island.

I. MEMORIAM.

WALSH—In loving memory of little Walter Walsh, who passed away, June 24th, 1922:
Dearest Walter you have left us,
Much we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.

Memory is a golden chain,
Death tries to break but all in vain;
Memories drift to scenes long past,
Time rolls on but memories last.

Rust In Wheat Belt Causes Bullish Market

CHICAGO, June 24 (Canadian Press).—Brisk upturns in the value of wheat took place early today. Further reports of black rust infections of spring wheat gave lively impetus to buying. According to advices from leading crop experts, black rust was found in every wheat field that he entered between Grand Forks, N.D., and Detroit, Mich. Besides, additional rains in winter wheat belt where harvesting is in progress had an evident bullish effect on market here. Opening prices 3-8c to 1c higher, July to 156 1-4 and Sept. 154 1-2 to 154 3-4 were followed by an advance to 158 for July, and 156 1-8 for Sept.

Corn and oats were governed by the action of wheat. Opening at 1-8c lower to 3-4c higher, Sept. 106 1-8 to 106 1-2, corn scored moderate further gains.

Oats started at 1-4 to 1-2 up, Sept. 48 3-4. Later the advance continued.

Provisions were easy in absence of any aggressive demand.

Extension Of Pools Animates Public Utilities Into Activity

NEW YORK, June 24.—(Canadian Press). — Forenoon operations in Wall Street indicated that pools were extending their activities to new quarters, with Chemical Sulphur and minor tobacco shares showing pronounced strength. The formation of new holding companies and reported organization of new super power systems galvanized public utilities into renewed activity. Motor shares also displayed more animation as squeezing of short accounts in these issues followed a 4½ point rise in Maxwell B certificates. At the same time short covering was considered responsible for a spurt of almost five points in Texas Gulf Sulphur. Rumors linking Wabash Railway with new loree system promoted buying of Wabash shares, Preferred A advancing to 67 before noon. Although oils recovered from recent sluggishness under the leadership of Pan-American, Texas and General Petroleum Standard of New Jersey Preferred re-acted to 116 3-4 on reports that the issue would be retired next fall 115. Call money renewed at four per cent.

settlement would be resisted by force and that the Government would be held responsible for the consequences.

The Consul-General said he was drafting the document because he had learned that during the planned patriotic demonstration the student elements intended "making martyrs of themselves, by attacking the bridges leading to Shameen."

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

PEKING, June 24. — (Canadian Press).—The one-day strike proposed for to-morrow has been called off owing to the opposition of business men, but a large demonstration of students, workers, and merchants is planned to begin at 7 a.m. with a parade and a memorial service for those killed in the Shanghai rioting. The Chamber of Commerce proposes to establish pickets and search shops for British and Japanese goods.

ASK FOR WARSHIPS.

HONG-KONG, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—The situation in Amoy, Fukieen Province, is reported to be more serious owing to the insistence of students in demonstrating against foreigners in the international concession.

The Chinese authorities believe they can control the position, but the British and Japanese Consuls have requested their governments to despatch warships to Amoy. Meanwhile a steamer is ready to take off foreign women and children should the necessity arise. Amoy is situated on an island of the same name. British and Japanese own exclusive concessions within the city.

MANCHURIAN UPRISING.

LONDON, June 24. — (Canadian Press). — The Daily Telegraph today claims to have full corroboration of its report of yesterday that ominous and serious disorders have broken out in Manchuria, and are spreading. It declares mutinies have occurred on a fairly large scale among the troops of Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian director, who is now absent from Mukden, the capital.

The sudden departure of Chang Hsueh-Liang, son of Chang Tso-Lin, from Shanghai was due to the situation in Manchuria, the paper says, his father having sent him an urgent message to return immediately to deal with the trouble.

MARTIAL LAW EFFECTIVE.

SHANGHAI, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Reports received here indicate that elaborate preparations have been made in the various cities of China for demonstrations tomorrow, which is the dragon day festival. It is believed here that the success or failure of these demonstrations by the Chinese will materially affect the general situation throughout China.

Martial law in Shanghai and its suburbs reduces the danger of excesses here, and all additional precautions deemed necessary have been taken. Preceding despatches have said martial law was in effect in the suburbs of Shanghai. Apparently this regime now applies to the city itself as well as the vicinity. There has been no recent announcement of the proclamation of martial law in the foreign concessions.

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce has decided that the banks, recently closed, should re-open tomorrow. However, this decision is opposed by Chinese extremists, and the outcome is uncertain.

READY FOR WAR.

LONDON, June 24. — (Canadian Press).—The Daily Mail's Pekin correspondent reports that all Legations have taken precautions to meet any war-like movement. British nationals are advised to go to their Legation if trouble arises and rescue parties have been arranged. Trouble is feared on Thursday at the dragon festival.

BRITISH TROOPS THERE.

HONG-KONG, June 24.—(Canadian Press.—A detachment of British Indian troops left to-day for Shameen, the foreign settlement of Canton, as a precautionary measure following the outbreak there.

CHINESE OPENED FIRE.

CANTON, June 24. — (Canadian Press).—British and French marines protecting the British concession used machine guns yesterday against Chinese demonstrators who were parading along the Bund and around Shameen, the European quarter. One man was killed and several were wounded.

Thousands of students, workmen, citizens and soldiers took part in the parade and demonstration. Opposite Victoria Hotel, in the British concession, firing broke out. The British and French marines replied immediately, and the firing lasted twenty minutes.

The Chinese soldiers fired from the western side of the Bund.

A French merchant, J. Pasquier, was killed, and Commissioner of Customs Arthur Edwards, a British marine, and two civilians were wounded. All evidence, it is declared, indicates that the first shots were fired by the Chinese from the Bund.

ANOTHER GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, June 24. — (Canadian Press).—Colonial Secretary Amery told the House of Commons to-day that the British Government has the Hong-Kong situation well in hand, and is able to provide law and order there. Foreign Secretary Chamberlain was asked whether he has evidence that the disturbances in China have been fostered or aggravated by agents of another government. He replied affirmatively, but did not specify the government to which he referred.

Mr. Chamberlain gave the assurance to the House that England is not giving, and will not give, any support directly or indirectly, to any of the rival factions in China.

Life For a Life.

HONG KONG, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)— Britishers employed on the Canton-Kowloon railway arriving here to-day said they had been warned privately by Chinese friends to seek safety because "the Chinese are determined to kill one foreigner for every Chinese."

BANDITS GET BIG HAUL OF DIAMONDS

Armed Men Pull Coup in Jewellry Store on Broadway.

NEW YORK, June 24. —(Canadian Press). —Two armed robbers held up the diamond store of Marcus Feldman on Broadway in the theatrical district this morning and escaped with diamonds said by the employees of the store to be worth between a hundred and fifty and two hundred thousand dollars.

The robbers with pistols drawn, entered the store and tied up the two clerks on duty. They then ransacked counters, piling diamonds and jewelry into a bag and made their escape before an alarm was given.

The hold up occurred shortly after 10.30 o'clock when Broadway was crowded.

BRITISH CONSUL GENERAL HAD A NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH IN CHINESE HAIL OF BULLETS

Can Swear to Fact That Hostilities Were Opened By Chinese.

ATTACK PLANNED.

Woman Missionary Refugee Tells of Plot Under a Russian.

HONG KONG, June 25. — Canadian Press. — The Chinese civil governor of Canton, in a note to the British consul General, regarding Tuesday's shooting in Canton, places the blame entirely on the foreigners.

"The killed and wounded," says the note, "totalled more than 100, and this brutal killing was premeditated and secretely planned."

Replying to the note, the British Consul General declared that the defence forces of the ..British ..and French concessions had merely replied to an attack made upon them by Chinese troops or military students from the other side of the canal which separates Shameen, the foreign settlement from Canton proper. The Consul Gener added:

"I can from evidence of my own eyes make the statement on oath that the firing was first started by the Chinese. A British senior officer and myself were standing unarmed by the bridge for the special purpose of guarding against precipitate or nervous action on the part of the defenders. We only escaped with our lives out of the hail of bullets directed against us.

"It was only then in self defence that fire was opened from Shameen and by the French forces who were similarly attacwed Firing from Shameen ceased even before the sniping from the tops of the houses on the opposite side was discontinued by the Chinese.

Attack was Planned.

Miss Julia Meadows, missionary, arriving here from Canton, declares the Canton government was warned two days before Tuesdays shooting that a plot was on foot to attack the the foreigners but that it took no adequate steps to prevent bloodshed.

Firing from Bund upon Shameen, the foreign settlement, she says, was deliberately started by Chinese Students under the leadership of a Russian. Shameen, she says, now is adequately protected by gun boats and troops.

CAN'T DECLARE WAR.

LONDON, June 25. — (United Press).—The Chinese Government can't declare war on Great Britain, but it might sever economic relations, Liang Sun Chi, secretary to Tuan Chi Jui, central executive, told the students at Tien Tsin, according to a Central New despatch from that city to-day.

HEAVY SLAUGHTER.

By Alfred Hicks
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

HONG-KONG, June 25.—The only foreign casualties in the clash at Shameen, involving Chinese students and British, were one Frenchman killed and one Britisher, two Japanese and two French wounded by shots from the Chinese demonstrators. An American woman refugee who did not wish to disclose her name, reported that there had been heavy slaughter among the Chinese demonstrators when the British and French marines responded to the fusilade of the Chinese against Shameen.

PEKING WELL GUARDED.

By Randall Gould

PEKING, June 25.—With barbed wire, Chinese soldiers and gendarmes guarding the entrances to the foreign Legation quarter, Peking to-day held parades and demonstrations but on a smaller scale than had been anticipated.

KITCHENER, Ont., June 25. — (Canadian Press).—Despondent owing to nervousness, Mrs. George Schneider took her own life some time on Tuesday night by jumping into a cistern, the trap door of which opened into her kitchen. Mrs. Schneider died from shock, the water being only four feet deep.

LEVEL CROSSING AGAIN TAKES TOLL

One Killed and Five Hurt When National Train Hits Motor.

KITCHENER, Ont., June 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Ward Hymmen, aged 15, of this city, died in Kitchener and Waterloo Hospital as a result of a level crossing crash between the car he was driving last night at 7.15 and a Canadian National train. His right arm was torn off above the elbow, his skull fractured and his hips and legs were badly lacerated. Mrs. Homer Hymmen, his mother, is also in hospital with lacerations of her head and internal injuries are feared, while Keith Hymmen, another of her sons, aged 13, has a fractured hip and wrist. Eric Hymmen, aged 10, another son, is also in hospital badly shaken up, while Miss Sarah Leis, maid in the Hymmen household, is suffering from fractured ribs. Homer Hymmen, father and husband of the injured family, has two broken ribs.

Tragedy occurred at 7.15 when the Hymmen car, driven by Ward Hymmen, was driving to Kitchener. A small car, alleged to have been driven by L. Bruder, of New Germany, caught up to the Hymmen car and the two were running along about even as they approached the railway crossing at from 20 to 25 miles an hour. Apparently Bruder saw the train, for he stopped in time. The driver of the Hymmen car did not see the train until too late.

SENATE TO CONFER WITH COMMONERS

Discussion to be Held of Home Bank Bill Amendement.

OTTAWA, June 25. — (Canadian Press).— The House of Commons has requested a conference with the Senate in respect to the Home Bank Bill amendement. Shortly before the House rose at 1.30 this morning Premier King moved that a message be sent to the Senate requesting a conference on the amendments to which the House of Commons could not agree and upon which the Senate insisted. The motion was carried without debate.

CRITICAL CONDITION.

Broad, Consistent National Policy Will Be Necessary, He Says.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 25 (Canadian Press).—"Canadian industry needs a new policy. Manufacturers are not asking for privileges, all they want is a tariff that will enable them to keep their factories running and their workers employed, and a reasonable return to the people who have entrusted them with their money for investment," said Col. Arthur F. Hatch, of Hamilton, former president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, speaking here today at a convention of Municipal Electrical Utilities of Ontario, being held here.

The manufacturing industry in Canada is in a critical condition," Col. Hatch declared. "Electric power cannot be developed unless a broad and stable policy is laid down and followed; the same is true of manufacturing."

If one policy is followed this year and another next year, who is going to invest in industrial enterprises? If the industries of ths country are to make progress," he sad, "a broad consistent national policy of developing Canada is urgently needed.

MANY NAMES ON LIST OF NURSES WHO GAVE LIVES

Impressive and Inspiring Service Held Last Night in Their Memory.

"USES OF MEMORY."

Rev. J. W. Gordon Gave Stirring Address, Recalling Days During War.

At the G. W. V. A. Hall a Memorial Service was held under the auspices of the Local Council of Women in connection with the unveiling of the Five sisters Window in Yorkminster, England, to commemorate the sacrifice made by Canadian Nursing Sisters. w

Conducted by Rev. W. H. Young who was supported by Rev. J. D. Paterson and Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose, the service was one calculated to make a permanent impression on the listeners, many of whom were nurses in uniform.

Rev. Mr. Young explained that on one panel of the tablet unveiled today were inscribed the names of all Canadian Nurses who had devoted their lives to the cause of humanity.

The names of 43 Canadian Nurses comprise the list among which appears the name of Miss Agnes Florian Fornier whose father resided in Peterborough for some time.

It was mentioned that Miss May Overend who was a former Peterborough girl and went with the American Expeditionary Force was killed overseas.

During silent prayer the names on the list were read.

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, accompanied by Mr. Charles Peaker, Mus. Bac., sang "There is no Death," a largo by Bach. Mr. Peaker presided at the piano for all musical selections on the programme.

The Uses of Memory.

The address was presented by Rev J. W. Gordon who used as his subject the uses of memory. He commented on the sad and sweet visions which memory flashed on the consciousness of a being as it recalled bygone days and events which left their ineradicable imprint quoting the poets frequently to show that

FOOD VALUE OF MILK IN DOUBT

American Doctor Says Was Intended For Food in Infancy.

MAY INJURE MAN.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The value of milk as a food for adults was questioned by Dr. John P. Sutherland, former Dean of the Boston University School of Medicine, in an address Tuesday at the eighty-first annual meeting of the American Institute of Homeopathy.

Medical science, which for ages has regarded milk as "the perfect food," is changing its mind, said Dr. Sutherland. He offered the opinion that the question, if properly studied, may lead science to a more comprehensive idea of the kinds of food which produce brainy and muscular men.

In questioning the value of milk as a food for adult consumption, Dr. Sutherland declared that "given a more appropriate food the mental power of the race could be materially improved."

Here is Nature's conception of milk, as explained by Dr. Sutherland:

Milk was intended to serve as a food only during infancy.

Milk of one species was not intended to be used by other species except when very closely related.

Milk was not intended to serve as food for the adult of the species.

Says Use May Injure Man.

Dr. Sutherland said in his paper that he believed the free use of milk might be more injurious than of benefit to mankind and that the use of sub-human milk as food by mankind might be one of the factors which produce some of its deficiencies and diseases.

"It is not generally known yet what varieties or quantities of mineral salts are to be found in well-developed human brain cells, but certain very definite elements are there, and the elements must be supplied in the food given to infants and children and the growing body.

SENATORS WON'T PASS BILL FOR REIMBURSEMENT

Parliament Has No Right to Act on Purely Compassionate Grounds.

AMENDMENTS GOOD.

Favorably Received By Press and For Protection of Small Depositors.

OTTAWA, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Senate reaffirmed its position in respect to Home Bank reimbursement legislation yesterday afternoon by rejecting by a vote of 35 to 11, the motion of Senator Dandurand, Government leader, to the effect that the Senate do not insist upon its amendment although reaffirming its right to amend money bills. Sir George Foster made a motion which was carried, stating that the Senate had not exceeded "its well understood and long established right in respect to money bills." In amending the Government bill for the relief of Home Bank depositors.

The motion that the Senate should not insist on its amendment to the bill as passed by the Commons, was defended by Senator Belcourt, who stated that the Parliament of Canada had no authority to deal with the matter on purely compassionate grounds. To act on that basis would throw open the door for future claims of all kinds. The message from the House of Commons in its refusal to accept the Senate amendments had been "absolutely correct in logic and law."

Senator Beaubien said the amendments of the Senate to the Home Bank Bill had been favorably received by two-thirds of the press of Canada. Under the Senate amendments, 47,000 out of the 53,000 depositors were in exactly the same position as under the Commons bill. The Senate stood for the protection of the needy, while the other House by its bill was defending those who who were not in need.

After the passing of Sir George Foster's motion, the Clerk of the Senate was instructed to convey to the House of Commons the attitude taken by the Senate in support of its amendments to the Home Bank Bill.

AN APPRECIATION.

"The most agreeable recompense which we can receive for things which we have done is to see them known, to have them applauded with praises which honor us."—Moliere.

Excellent work planned by Edward W. Borbridge, vice-president of the B. F. Ackerman and Son Co., Ltd., and its execution in the form of a catalogue have brought commendation from the largest firm of tanners in Canada, The Lang Tanning Co., Ltd., Kitchener.

—Writing to the big Peterboro harness firm, the Lang Company says: "We are in receipt of your harness catalogue, and wish to compliment you on the style and general appearance of this catalogue. We have a number of these sent to us every year from our American, as well as Canadian, customers, but we can state truthfully that your catalogue excels anything we have ever seen."

The book referred to is attractively printed on highly calendered paper, its 128 pages being bound in a beautiful mottled green cover with embossed silvered letterings. Illustrations, described in easily-read letterpress, decorate every page in a clear-cut way that shows the ultimate in typographical workmanship. Its forcefulness and its peculiar appeal come not from a jumble of pictures and type that sometimes passes as a way to compel attention, but through its simple and clear presentation of its story.

Mr. Borbridge, whose preparation of the copy was the fundamental upon which the catalogue was built up, has reason to be proud of the tribute paid by so experienced a firm as the Lang Tanning Company, and The Examiner Job Department, whose experienced workmen produced the book, appreciates the praise that indicates its high standing in producing quality workmanship.

And the B. F. Ackerman, Son and Co., Ltd., cannot fail to benefit through the prestige the circulation of a catalogue of the obvious excellence of this publication will give. The motto of the firm is "Quality and Service," and it is recognized that quality goods must have quality advertising and quality presentation to the prospective buyer.

SYDNEY, N. S., June 25. — (Canadian Press). — Awaiting Commander Donald MacMillan when he arrived here yesterday enroute to the Arctic was a message from Raold Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth of the Amundsen and North Pole Expedition thanking Commander MacMillan for the plans which he had made for their relief when they were unheard from on the recent flight and wishing him a "Glorious journey.' The message came by way of New York from John C. Lagorce, vice-president of the National Geographical Society and read as follows:

"Prentiss of New York received cable: 'Please convey to MacMillan our deepest gratitude and appreciation. Wishing him glorious journey. (signed).—Amundsen and Ellswort h."

BRITAIN READY TO TALK PLANS

Will Join Other Great Powers in Conference on Armaments.

SAYS CHAMBERLAIN.

LONDON, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—This country will join with the other great Powers in any conference for the limitation of naval armaments or reduction of land armaments, Foreign Secretary Chamberlain declared in the crowded House of Commons last night.

"Perhaps the initiative in naval matters, if they are to be treated separately, might better come from the Power to whom we owe the summoning of the Washington conference, the first decisive act of disarmament the world has known," he continued.

—"If we are think of land matters security is a necessary preliminary and we and the United States, who have reduced our forces to a scale no larger than a police force for the interests we have to guard, are perhaps not in the best position to summon a land conference."

He denied that under the proposed Rhine security agreement, the French would have the right to invade Germany to help Poland under the Franco-Polish alliance. "The right to move troops across another country to the assistance of a third country derives if at all from the existing provisions of the covenant of the League of Nations," he declared.

GRANTS REDUCED FOR C. N. RAILWAYS

Two Other Estimates Also Withdrawn By Rt. Hon. Graham.

OTTAWA, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—When the estimates came up in the House of Commons last night, Right Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, moved that $7,500,000 additional money asked for on behalf of the Canadian National Railways be not voted but be struck out of the estimates. His motion carried. This is the reduction in estimated requirements of railways which Mr. Graham intimated in a recent speech. that National roads intended to get along without. Mr. Graham withdrew two other estimates, one of $6,500 adjustment of war pay for employees of his department, and another of $40,000, re-vote for the St. Lawrence Canal in Ontario. The latter, he said, had been put in by mistake and was not needed.

Most of the estimates for the Department of Railways and Canals had been adopted when the evening sitting of the House began.

Winnipeg was chosen only after advances from Budapest, Hungary, and Atlanta, Georgian, had been considered and rejected.

NEW ORGANIZATION OF GREAT WAR VETERANS IS EXPECTED TO GROW FROM G.W.V.A. ACTION

British Legion in Canada is Name Suggested For New Body.

UNDER EARL HAIG.

G.W.V.A. Willing To Merge Identity for the Cause of Unity.

OTTAWA, June 25. — Canadian Press. — An organization of veterans to be known as the British Legion in Canada, is expected to grow out of the action of the Great War Veterans' Association, which in annual convention here yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution placing its assets, totalling approximately 8,000,000, and membership of about 80,000, at the disposal of Field Marshal Earl Haig, in accordance with the expressed wishes of the former commander of the British armies in France for complete unity among Canadian ex-service men.

While the identity of the G.W.V.A., which has been the senior ex-soldier organization in existence since the armistice, would be submerged by the proposed formation of a legion of all war veteran organizations, the guarantee is asked that in the event of Earl Haig concurring in the proposal, the ideals of the G. W. V.A. be preserved, that organization will not be allowed to disintegrate during the transition p. which is not to exceed one year; and that the adjustment bureau for veterans be not impaired.

A provision is also made that Earl Haig be requested to nominate a board of trustees whose duty it would be to see that the intent, purpose and spirit of the resolution was carried out. It was intimated that some outstanding Canadian would be asked to conduct the association during the period of transition, and the name of Lieut. General R. E. W. Turner, V.C., was mentioned among the delegates as a possibility. The G. W.V.A. it was stated, was seized with the full knowledge that unity among ex-service men in Canada was never more desirable and necessary than at the present time, and the record of the association's desire for unity, expressed at Port Arthur in 1921, and reiterated in Vancouver in 1923, was recalled in the resolution Presented to Aide.

The resolution was presented to Lieut.-Col. T. Nangle, Aide-de-camp to Earl Haig, who arrived here on Sunday. Addressing the convention, Col. Nangle said it was the great moment in the history of Canada, and he was sure it would live forever. He recalled that Earl Haig, when the moment came for him to see that by living aloof, the war could not be won, he gave way and moved that Marshal Foch should take the

Old Boys' Re-union in Douro Is Extended One Day More

Such is the success of the Douro Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion that it has been found necessary to extend the time to include to-morrow, June 26, to allow all the residents and visitors a real chance to take part in the festivities of the occasion. The three days did not provide sufficient time for this, so that the committee last night decided to extend the time.

DRAGOONS HAD SHORT PARADE ON INSPECTION

Downpour of Rain Marred Big Event of Yearly Training.

GOOD WORK DONE.

General Emslie, of Kingston, Expressed Satisfaction With Drill.

On account of the heavy downpour of rain, a modified scheme was substituted this morning by Lieut.-Col. Johnston and the officers of the 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons for the extensive programme that had been planned for the inspection of the troops by General Emslie of Kingston, general officer commanding Military District No. 3.

The arrangements made for mounted manoeuvres on the Rifle Range were abandoned when the ground became saturated, and instead the troops paraded on foot within the Exhibition Grounds before the General. He also inspected the horses, saddles and equipment, which he pronounced excellent.

General Emslie expressed himself as being favorably impressed by the bearing of the men on parade.

JAPANESE ARE BRINGING MEN

Landing Party Arrived at Canton To-day—Attack Expected at Noon.

MORE PRECAUTIONS.

CANTON, June 25. — (Canadian Press)—Situation resulting from the anti-foreign agitation is even more intense to-day. Chinese threatened to attack the foreign settlement at Shameen at noon but the attack did not occur at that hour. Additional fortifications have been erected in the British and French concessions.

Japanese landing parties have arrived.

A Chinese party carrying the banner of the foreign office arrived this morning at the foreign settlement gates claiming to be bearers of a dispatch stating that the demand for damages would be made when the dead had been counted.

The American consul received a letter requesting him to enter the Chinese City to consult with officers of foreign affairs. The letter, however, was not properly signed and was disregarded.

RUM RUNNER CAR IN FATAL CRASH

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Dashing along at a sixty mile clip near the Capitol yesterday, a suspected rum-running automobile crashed into a small sedan occupied by two Catholic Sisters of Charity, killing one of them and probably fatally injuring her chaffeur. Speeding in pursuit, a motorcycle policeman came upon the scene and arrested Clifton Young and Estelle Robinson, negroes. The women's husband was killed a month ago in a similar chase.

TORONTO, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—The first arrest in the case of the holdup last week which resulted in the death of William Bell, gasoline station attendant, was made when William Fox was arrested today. MIGHT TRY IT.

Sunday Bathing Pool On Alderman Phelan's Flooded Lots.

An amusing incident occurred last night at the meeting of the Board of Works, when various streets were under discussion for improvements.

Alderman Phelan referred to some vacant lots he owned on certain East City Streets which he visits once a year after receiving his tax bills.

This year was no exception and when recently visited found they were water lots, the creek running through them having overflowed its banks.

Suggestions were at once offered to dam the stream, making a fishing reserve for Spring. Bathing Pool for week-days and Sundays in season and skating and hockey in the winter.

The suggestion raised a good laugh, each member of the Council adding advice and there is just a possibility of plans maturing to develop a liability for upkeep into a revenue producing industry.

PIPERS SERENADE SOUTH PETERBORO'

First of Season's Concerts in King Edward Park Last Night.

The first band concert of the season to be held in the King Edward Park was given last evening by the Caledonian Pipe Band, and appeared to be thoroughly appreciated by a large and enthusastic audience. The band, in full costume, played several fine selection, including many encores, their programme consisting of renditions of "Scotland the Brave," "Pibroch o' Donal Dhu," "Dornock Links," "Highland Laddie" (by request), and "Porfree Bay."

Vocal solos were given by Miss Trucie Pearson and little Joe Leith, who sang twice; James Browne and J. Smith; a vocal duet by Messrs. R. Hendry and J. Smith, who sang, by request, 'My Ain Wee Hoose," and several much-enjoyed Harry Lauder impersonations were rendered by R. Hendry.

Miss Isa Thomson danced the Highland Fling and the Sword Dance, in costume. Mr. R. J. Devey acted as accompanist for the occasion.

NO COMMENT MADE.

Hon. W. F. Nickle Non-Committal on Extradition of Andrew H. Pepall.

TORONTO, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, still refuses to make any comment on the extradition of Andrew H. Pepall, from California, and will not state whether the province has any official word from United States authorities that Pepall is to return.

"Don't be too sure that Pepall is coming back," Mr. Nickle is reported to have remarked to one reporter.

DOURO'S REUNION CONTINUES SUCCESS IN SPITE OF LACK OF PARLIAMENTARY SPEAKERS

Affairs in House of Commons Tie Up All the Orators Billed

ENTHUSIASM RIFE

Sports Fill Complete Day and Hundreds of Visitors Participate

Asked what provision was made for the evening open-air concert in case of rain, a loyal resident of Douro township answered last evening, "P. G. Towns won't let it rain during these three days."

The second day of Douro's Reunion brought another fine summer sky to look down on the Old Boys and Girls, gathered together, almost two thousand strong, in the big sloping field, fringed about with trees, that is the stamping-ground for three days this week of the returning children of the township. Sports, many and varied, formed the programme of the second day of Douro's re-union. The speakers who were to have taken a place on the stand arranged for them, failed to appear, and the visitors contented themselves with watching several hard-fought games and taking part in a series of races and competitive events.

A telegram from G. N. Gordon, M.P., from Ottawa, was sent to the committee, reading as follows: "Please express to the Douro people my sincere regret in being unable to be present at the celebration of the first settling of Douro township one hundred years ago, by those sturdy pioneers who hewed their homes from the forest wilds. I assure them of my heartiest congratulations for a most successful celebration."

Under a marquee roof, seated on low boxes, congregated some of the older members of the gathering, which numbered several patriarchs in its total, the oldest man on the grounds being Mr. Patrick Heffernan, of Indian River, aged eighty-six years. Mr. John O'Leary and Mr. C. McDonald, of Peterborough, were other octogenarians on the grounds.

The Peterboro Rangers band was in attendance yesterday and played many fine selections during the afternoon. The refreshment booth on the grounds was a busy centre, dispensing ice cream and soft drinks to a thirsty crowd. In the rear hall, where antiques of the township are displayed, in a collection that embraces many things, from the old spinet with yellowed keys, the cowboy saddle and horn, the iron maple syrup kettle of pioneer days and the tea kettle that came from Ireland in 1825, the old cheese press and the spinning wheels, down to the bill of account against a man who worked for $12 a month in the logging camps, a curious throng circulated all afternoon, and the concert was well patronized in the evening. A fine dinner and supper, served in the hall, had plenty of patronage, also at noon time and later in the afternoon. Mr. P. G. Towns, the moving spirit of the entire event, to whose sagacity and foresight the township owes the present very successful celebration, had a busy time in his store. Illustrative of the early rising qualities of its proprietor, reminiscent of the habits of that bird which has always been commended as having received its just due in a fine breakfast of worm, is the sign on the door: "During the reunion, this store will be closed except between the hours of five and eight a.m. and five and seven p.m." Across the street, where gay pennants stretch from the old deserted church building to the pole across the way, on the door of the present church is a sign reading: "Women and girls entering the house of God must have heads covered and be modest in dress."

Sports Programme.

The programme of sports, run off under the supervision of Mr. J. E. Galvin, included some fine contests, chief in which was the pole-vaulting event, in which G. Smith, of the Lakefield Grove school, showed excellent prowess, topping the bar at a height of nine feet and one-half inch. Second and third places were won by B. Rainie of the same school, and R. Darling, of Dummer.

A married ladies' race was won by Mrs. John Hope, with Mrs. J. Conklin and Mrs. G. Crowe in second and third places; the ladies' coat race by Nellie Bullock, Agnes Harrinton and Jessie Batten; the partners' race by (1) Mrs. J. Hope and D. Davis, (2) Mrs. W. Hope and P. Armstrong, (3) Mrs. S. O'Brien and Chas. Towns; the married men's race, 35 years and over, by H. Darling, A. Carveth and W. T. Cavanagh; the wheelbarrow race for boys by R. McMurray and R. Mongraw; the quoit match by J. Dwyer and M. Garvey; the men's hundred yard dash by T. Ward, G. Smith and G. Rainie; the men's hop, step and jump by G. Smith, G. Rainie and G. Holland; the men's running high jump by G. Rainie, G. Smith and J. Ward; the men's running broad jump by G. Smith, J. Holland and J. Ward; and the contest in putting the shot by R. Galbraith of Peterboro, Dr. Smith of Lakefield and J. Ward of Peterboro.

Girls' Softball.

A girls' softball game caused a lot of interest during the forepart of the afternoon, the opposing teams from the 6th Line of Otonabee and from North Dummer, the former winning by a score of 22-5. The line-ups were as follows:

The game of baseball between Ennismore and Indian River resulted in a score of 10-9 for Ennismore. Herb Moloney acted as umpire, with Bart Allen on bases. The players were:

Football.

A hard-fought game of football was waged between two snappy teams from the De Laval Factory in Peterboro and from Warsaw, the Peterboro aggregation winning by a score of 3-1. S. Calladine of Peterboro acted as umpire. The De Laval line-up was as follows:

A. Frick goal; G. Blowers and J. Hensley, backs; W. Naish, J. Cooper and G. Harvey, half-backs; Geo. Lindsay, J. Smith, F. Dyer, E. Abraham and E. Hanson, forwards.

The Warsaw players were: Oswald Jury, goal; Norman Crowe and Hilliard Jury, backs; E. Batten, A. McMillan and F. Bell, half-backs; H. Munroe, Wm. Darling, Harold Darling, Billy Bell and Rufus Payne forwards.

NEW ORGANIZATION

allied command in France.

"You are moving in the same direction," he said, "and I am sure your action will meet with the Field Marshall's whole hearted approval. He will give you his blessing and his backing in this effort."

Lieut. Colonel Nangle recommended that representatives of other war veterans' organizations present at the convention, take back the resolution to their officials and seriously consider it. He did not think they could stand aloof."

The Tuberculosis Veterans' Association, whose President, T. M. Downing, of Winnipeg, was present as a fraternal delegate, was the only other body whose visiting delegate endorsed the idea of unity. His association had confidence in the G.W.V.A., he said.

Captain Harry Colbourne, Dominion secretary of the Army and Navy Veterans, and Capt. A. E. Game of Winnipeg, representing the Imperial Veterans' in Canada, said that they had no mandates from their associations, and could not express any opinion on the unity resolution.

Confidence in Officers.

The adoption of the unity resolution followed the unanimous voting of confidence in C. Grant MacNeil, Dominion Secretary, and Dr. W. D. Sharpe, president of the association, and other officials of the Dominion command. The motion of confidence was presented in view of the criticism that had been directed at the organization and the Dominion Command in particular.

"We cannot emphasize too strongly our debt of gratitude to them (the Dominion officials) and our belief in their honesty, integrity and sincerity of purpose," the resolution stated. Its approval was followed by an enthusiastic demonstration in which the Dominion officials were loudly cheered.

The address of the Dominion president, Dr. W. D. Sharpe, of Brampton, Ont., emphasized the "altruistic aims" which animated the Association in its work. While there had always been vigorous presentation of legislative requirements, and in individual cases, such was not with any idea of forcing parliament and the country to concede anything which did not rightfully belong to those directly affected, he said.

The efforts of the association, the President said, had been hampered in some degree by "unfortunate jealousies," and he attributed to this source, "the present inquisition conducted by members of the "Maison des Invalides on the hill." He enjoined the Association to regard the recent Senate investigation "in its proper light" and carry on their work as before.

Further Marshal's Efforts

Dr. Sharpe declared that it was the duty of the Association to further the efforts of Field Marshal Earl Haig towards unity.

"It may be that we will have to leave behind many of our cherished dreams, and living in the delights of our past achievements, with hope and confidence place ourselves unreservedly in Earl Haig's hands," he declared, but predicted that "out of the crucible will arise a new Association, one with an entirely new vista, with high ideals in keeping with all our past achievements, and with Earl Haig's personality behind it."

Dr. Sharpe appealed to the delegates to maintain in their branches highest ideas of patriotism. He considered that the British flag was a sufficient emblem for all parts of the empire and deprecated any suggestion of replacing it with a distinctive Canadian flag.

He pointed to the serious loss of man power which was resulting from the continued migration of Canadians to the United States and recommended to the convention that some consideration be given to the underlying causes and possible remedies.

Re-affirmation of several resolutions dealing with pensions and appeals occupied considerable time as well as a civic welcome, and the addresses of fraternal delegates.

MANY NAMES ON LIST

people of more sensitve natures felt keenly th poignancy of memories.

If some memories are said and cause unhappy moments there are none the less things which should never be forgotten; truths which, once implanted, should be frequently recalled that inspiration might result from lofty planes of thought and the purity of ideals which they inculcate.

The unforgetable lines of "Lest We Forget" and "Flanders Fields" tend to develop a higher level of thought and should never be forgotten," Rev. Gordon said.

Rev. J. W. Gordon turned back through his dairy and refreshed the memories of hecic war days He saw there a record of the first casualty in his intimate experience and review in his mind the agony through which he passed in breaking the sad news to a woman who believed her husband safe on leave and happy children who could not quite realize the horror of the fatal pronouncement.

Recalled Armitice.

He remembered the delirium caused by the news which told that war was over and that an armistice woud be signed by nations weary from battle.

There was hope then, expressed by great leaders and entertained by millions of stricken people that peace might reign forever and men would never march again in the great panoply of death.

Now, however, comes the sad realization that hopes have been unfounded for laready one hears the rumble of preparation which precedes the struggle. Yet there is the firm conviction that the sacrifice endured has not been in vain for ever as seeds must decay and die that the germ of new life may be given birth as also human sacrifice must be offered on th pyre of humanity that new ideas, new inspirations may be given to a thirsting race.

"We should know, what the poets and great thinkers know so well, that out of our pain nothing will result unless we by our achievements profit by experiences which are surely calculated to test the mettle which forms us."

The siging of the National Anthem and the pronouncement of the Benediction were the closing features of a most impressive service.

NO CHANGES IN PLANS

charge of wireless, said the "Peary" and planes had both United States navy and private apparatus. The "Peary" and the "Bowdoin" had had no trouble in clearing all their messages even in sunlight on the trip here and had heard from as far as California themselves. Numerous places had reported picking them up.

Commander MacMillan will place shown a Washington despatch concerning the sending of more wireless apparatus from Wiscasset, with parts of wireless equipment which had been left behind at the Maine port.

He explained that there was much wireless equipment on board with duplicate and triplicate parts.

Later in the day the following statement was given out:

"Comamnder MacMillan will place aboard the Peary all the apparatus required, and Dr. Grosvenor, President of the National Geographical society, under whose auspices the expedition is to sail is anxious to insure the safety of the navyfliers as well as the success of the expedition.

"Both Commander MacMillan and Dr. Grosvenor wish to meet every requirement of the Navy Department and so far as the installation of navy wireless is concerned it will be carried out fully."

FOOD VALUE OF MILK IN DOUBT

for the body cannot create these elements," said Dr. Sutherland.

—"The opinion is here ventured that given a more appropriate food the mental power of the race could be materially improved. Brain cells are formed early in the growth of the embryo, being recognizable as specialized cells as early as the second month.

"Provided brain cells are well started during pre-natal life, the suitable proportion, quantity and variety of chemical elements must be supplied to keep up subsequent growth and activity. Nature unquestionably planned to have the human mother supply her offspring with a perfect milk, capable of offering the baby all the varied substances needed to develop bones, muscles, viscera, blood, brain and other organs and tissues, which together form the ideal child. Are these things supplied by cow's milk or by the average mixed and artificial diet upon which young humanity is fed?

Points to Child Diseases.

"It is a fact that in civilized communities babies do seem, at a superficial glance, to thrive on the substitute, but how explain the adenoid and tonsillar troubles, the imperfect dentition, the appaling increase in the number of weak-minded children, the wide prevalence of deficiencies in the nervous system among the very civilized communities where this so-called 'perfect substitute' for mother's milk is used, and cow's milk later in life is so confidently given the growing child."

Dr. C. A. Harkness of Chicago told the convention that one of the rarest of all creatures is a color-blind woman. "Though color-blindness is common among men," he said, "I have never yet discovered a color-blind woman in more than thirty years of ophthalmic work. Recently I heard of such a case and made investigation because of its great rarity, but failed to find it authentic. Color-blindness in the female of the human species apparently is one of the few things which defies the Mendelian law of heritage.

In a paper on the nutritional problems of school children, Dr. Edward Beecher Hooker of Hartford, Conn., said that 30 per cent. of the school children of the United States are under-nourished and that this condition exists among the wealthy as well as among the children of the poor.

Dr. Hooker attributed malnutrition, first, to physical defects such as adenoids, diseased tonsils, decayed teeth and defective eyesight; second, to lack of home control, and third, to late hours and over fatigue from play and over exercise and faulty health habits.

Dr. Hooker explained that the under-nourishment of school children was not confined to any geographical area. As a means of correcting this defect he advised parents to exercise better control over their children in their school and physical activities.

Four hundred delegates visited Welfare Island and were taken on a tour of observation, which included Metropolitan Hospital, where they observed ten cases of sleeping sickness. Dr. John E. Wilson of the Fifth Avenue Hospital spoke on the nature of the disease.

THE NEW PRIVY COUNCILLORS

The announcement that Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals and Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, have been appointed members of the Imperial Privy Council has been received with pleasure throughout the country.

It is the universal opinion that this honour and distinction has been most justly bestowed upon two Canadians who have over long years worthily served not only their native land but the Empire of which it is proud to be a part.

Right Honourable Sir William Mulock not only had a distinguished career in the Parliament of Canada but has been even more brilliantly successful as a member of the judiciary. He is one of Canada's grand old men, still able to carry on although past the four score mark.

Right Hon. George P. Graham's record as a statesman has been an illustrious one. He has long served his country and his breadth of view, genial outlook upon life, and fine personal qualities have made him as popular with political foes as with political friends. "Full of the milk of human kindness." the new member of the Privy Council has a huge circle of personal friends who have been delighted with the honour conferred upon him.

His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council gains two Canadian members of whom the Dominion has every reason to be proud.

LESSONS FROM RECENT TRAGEDIES

The unusually large number of boating accidents in Ontario during the last few days calls attention to several features that cannot be too strongly emphasized.

In the first place there is the plain warning that the Canadian canoe is a craft that requires careful handling.

It is safe enough for those who know its capabilities and respect its tendencies but in the hands of a novice there is no craft that presents greater possibilities as a factor in an accident.

Newcomers to Canada should be warned of these things and told something of the danger of trying to change places in a canoe or in general of taking any liberties with a boat that is quick to resent familiarities of this kind.

And the second feature that has been accentuated by several recent drownings is the wisdom, in the event of an upset, of clinging to the overturned boat until assistance arrives rather than to attempt to swim to shore.

This advice is more necessary perhaps for good swimmers than for any body else because the man who feels at home in the water is liable to count too much on his swimming ability.

At Port Hope on Sunday a young man who was an expert not only in swimming but in handling a boat was drowned because he relied on his skill as a swimmer.

Had he remained on the overturned sailboat the tragedy would have been averted but he chose to try to swim to shore. His strength was unequal to the task and he was drowned.

SHOULD NOT BE FORGOTTEN

The report of the special committee of the House of Commons appointed to draft new rules in an attempt to shorten the proceedings has been left over until the next session.

The report which among other things puts a limit on the length of speeches and eliminates all night sitting of the House should be one of the first items of business considered at the next session if the wishes of the public carry any weight.

The need of such reforms does not require to be elaborated on.

The present session in itself supplies sufficient arguments to justify a change.

We find complaints of a rush of important business in the closing days—and everybody who follows the proceedings of the House knows why this rush is necessary.

It occurs only because in the early weeks of the session day after day was wasted by the members in three and four speeches by Tom, Dick and Harry on almost every topic unded the sun.

The committee's report recognizing the folly of such a long drawn out debate has struck directly at the root of the evil by setting a time limit on speeches.

It should be adopted and strictly enforced in the interest not only of the members themselves but of the country generally.

Long speeches are unnecessary, expensive, boring and unbusinesslike in themselves and when they lead to a last minute dash through important business they may be called a detriment to the efficient transaction of the business of the people.

THE RACING BILL

The Senate did not lose much time in slaughtering the bill sent to it by the House of Commons proposing changes in the criminal code, prohibiting the publication of tips, selections, odds, winning prices, pari-mutuel payments or any other similar intelligence in regard to horse racing.

The object of the legislation was commendable enough; it was intended of course to make it less easy for handbook operators to carry on their business and anybody who knows the extent to which this form of gambling it being practiced realizes the need of some curb on the operators of the handbook brigade.

There were features about the amendments, however, that were somewhat absurd.

Foreign newspapers, no matter how wide their fame and general their reputation for honesty of purpose and the merit of their literary style would have been barred from Canada under this regulation if in their sporting sections they happened to carry some of this banned information.

World known newspapers would have had to issue Canadian editions to conform with the law in this country had the proposed changes been authorized—a condition that would have brought Canada some unenviable advertising.

Why should we advertise to the world that we are morally superior to other countries and that we must have special editions of periodicals which are regarded as quite respectable in other parts of the world?" was the pertinent question of one member of the upper chamber and his inquiry will be re-echoed by many Canadians who see the ridiculous side of such legislation.

We in Canada are in danger of being legislated to death and great as may be the handbook evil many people will give the Senate a credit mark for killing a bill that was doubtless meritorious in motive but unworkable in execution.

WHAT DOES THE WEST WANT ?

The Ottawa Journal, discussing this question, says: "What discrimination can there be against the West when the same independent body that is going to fix rates for the West fixes them for the East? The Free Press surely does not hold that the railways should carry freight in the West at a loss to themselves and to the rest of us." The answer to the question asked is that the Railway Commission has already imposed discriminating rates against the West and is awaiting the hour when it can re-impose them. As for carrying freight in the West at a loss, there is not the slightest possibility of rates permitting this ever being fixed by Parliament or by the Railway Commission. Whatever may happen this is outside the range of possibility. What the Free Press holds is that the West should not be called upon to pay its own freight rates and part of the Eastern burden too. Which is precisely what will happen if the statutory protection, which the West now partially enjoys, is removed. — Manitoba Free Press.

Reading this, one would suppose that Canadian railways were making enough money out of Western freights to enable them to lose money, or give specially low rates, on Eastern freights. The clear fact, however, is that railway rates in Western Canada are considerably lower than railway rates in the Western States, where operating conditions are about similar; that the Western Canadian farmer gets his produce transported much more cheaply than his American competitor; that Canadian railway rates on grain are the lowest in the world; and that, finally, instead of railway rates in the East having been kept stationary or low at the expense of the West, they have on the contrary been advanced to an enormous extent. The editor of the Free Press should look into freight rates in Ontario, and might likewise profitably read the freight rate case of the Maritime Provinces, as frequently presented to Parliament.

The Manitoba Free Press wants Canadian railways to haul freight in the West at a rate made some 30 years ago. Does it realize what that means? Suppose somebody said to the management of the Free Press: "You are paying something like 300 per cent. more than 30 years ago for your white paper. You are paying infinitely more for your editors, your reporters, your office help, your linotype men; you are paying more for everything that enters into the make-up of a newspaper. Well, no matter; we are going to make you go on selling your paper and your advertising at the rates of 30 years ago"—what would be the Free Press' answer?

Yet that is precisely what the Free Press is saying to Canadian railways. Railway wages have increased by 300 or 400 per cent.; cost of coal, cars, rolling stock, cost of everything that railways buy or use or which enter in any way into operation, has increased enormously; yet the Free Press suggests that rates which were based on the conditions of 30 years ago must be maintained, regardless of the consequences. Surely that is absurd.

Excuse for such an attitude would exist could it be shown that the railways were imposing exorbitant or discriminatory rates upon the West, that the West, in the Free Press' words, was "paying its own freight rates and part of the Eastern burden too." But that is not the truth. The railway earning per ton mile in Eastern and Western Canada since 1918—as Sir Henry Drayton showed in his acute analysis of the subject—have been as follows:

	Eastern Lines	Western Lines
1918	.79	.90½
1919	.95	1.04
1920	1.05	1.03
1921	1.23	1.00
1922	1.13	.91
1923	1.11	.82
1924	1.17	.87

And these figures embraced the whole freight business. The plain, demonstrable fact is that Canadian railways today are making substantial earnings on central Canada freights while making losses in Western Canada and in the Maritimes. To say that the West is bearing the burden of the East is worse than absurd.

We have mentioned freight rates in the American West. If the grain crop of the Canadian West in 1923 hda been hauled by American railways $34,000,000 more would have been taken out of the pockets of Canadian farmers for rates. Yet despite the fact that the American rates are vastly higher all of the American lines in the Northwest are today appearing before the Inter-State Commerce Commission demanding higher schedules. They say that they cannot carry on with existing scales.

Under the circumstances, what does the West want? Canada last year paid a railway deficit of $60,000,000—much of it incurred in the West. Does the Free Press think that not enough? Millions are paid out every year for development of the West. Elevators here, there, and everywhere; terminals in Vancouver; terminals in Prince Rupert; reduced duties on agricultural implements; farmers' supplies excluded from the Sales Tax; and so forth. Yet the West's only response is to clamor for freight rates that will involve more loss for all of us; for freer trade, that might well destroy the East, and for such folly as the Hudson Bay Railway.

The East has no prejudices against the West. That would be madness. The meanest intelligence knows full well that Western prosperity is Eastern prosperity, and vice versa. But surely the time has come for Western people, whose contribution to the national exchequer is comparatively slight, to have more regard for realities. Surely it is not the part of a national newspaper like the Manitoba Free Press, whose intelligence must tell it otherwise, to lend its powerful support to a clamor which is sectional, inaccurate, and bound to bring injury to this country!—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO CATTLE ....

TORONTO, June 25.—There was but a light run of cattle in for the mid-week market yesterday. Anything of choice quality was very scarce, the bulk of the offering consisting of plain grassers and common cows.

A few exporters were picked out at from $7.50 to $8.50, but very little business doing in this class. Export buyers have filled all requirements for this week's shipping.

Trade was active for anything of decent quality in the butcher class, with prices firm at this week's advance of 25c. Choice butcher steers and heifers $7.25 to $7.75.

Common cows and grassers in poor demand. Choice fat cows steady.

Heavy run of calves and market barely steady except for choice veal. Many calves bought at the lower prices for Buffalo.

Lambs weak and market again lower at $14 to $15.

Hogs firm at advance to $12.50 f.o.b. and $13.50 off cars.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, June 25 (Canadian Press).—The general tone of the market is very firm. Several sales for export are reported at 41c f.o.b. seaboard, which figures out at a little better than 18s. 6d. c.i.f. The Chicago market is firmer and higher and the feeling is that December refrigerators will reach 40 in the very near future.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 25 (Canadian Press).—There was a fairly good demand from foreign buyers for grain in the Montreal market yesterday and a fair business was reported in wheat, oats and barley for June and July shipment. Overnight sales of Manitoba and Durum grades of wheat were estimated at 300,000 bushels, and oats at 250,000 bushels, while a fair quantity of rye also was worked.

The oat market was stronger today and prices closed 1-2c per bushel higher, but the volume of business for domestic and country account was small.

Buyers of flour showed no disposition to operate for future requirements, with the market in its present condition, and the local trade was reported quiet. There continued to be a steady demand from foreign buyers for broken lots of spring wheat flour and a small volume of business was done for nearby shipment. A steady feeling prevailed and prices were unchanged.

There were no further developments in the local egg situation, prices for all grades being firmly maintained, but the volume of business in a wholesale jobbing way was smaller than usual on account of the fact that it was partly a holiday and a number of grocers and other dealers were closed. The demand was somewhat limited with sales of specials at 39c, fresh extras at 37c, firsts at 34c, and seconds at 30c and 31c per dozen.

The market for maple product was dull and featureless, there being practically no demand for supplies at present on account of the very limited consumption, and in consequence prices were nominally unchanged.

Business in honey in a wholesale jobbing way was also very quiet and the market was without any change of importance to note.

The receipts of butter were 2,091 packages, as compared with 577 for the same day last week, and 348 for the corresponding day a year ago. A firm feeling prevailed in the market under a continued steady demand from foreign buyers for supplies, and the movement in this direction was fair, and it was reported that if more ocean freight space was available to certain ports a larger trade could be done. The domestic trade was quiet with Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery selling at 36 1-2c per lb., No. 1 creamery at 35 1-2c per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 34 1-2c per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 5,702 boxes, as against 4,768 for the same day last week, and 5,438 for the corresponding day a year ago. A moderate amount of business continues to be done with English importers, but the trade on spot between houses was reported quiet and the market was without any special feature to note, prices being quoted steady at 19 3-4c per lb. for western No. 1 white and colored, and at 19 1-2c per lb. for eastern No. 1 white and colored, with No. 2 grades 1c per lb. less.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, June 25 (Canadian Press).—Sterling was quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand, $4.85 5-8.

Sterling cables, $4.86.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 25 (Canadian Press).—With black rust reported from practically all parts of Minnesota and the Dakotas and with widespread rain a hindrance to the winter wheat harvest, wheat averaged much higher in price yesterday, but receded as a result of profit-taking at the last. Wheat closed unsteady, 1-8 to 3-4 cent net lower, July 154 7-8 to 155 1-8, and Sept. 153 3-8 to 153 1-2. Corn finished at 1-4 to 2 3-8 cents down; oats 3-8 to 1-2 cent off and provisions showing 2 to 20 cents decline.

Wet harvest reports came from Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Nebraska. As much as four inches of rain fell in some sections of Kansas. Too much moisture in the northwest was also complained of both sides of the Canadian boundary. It was pointed out that the excessive dampness northwest would be especially dangerous in connection with black rust if high temperatures became prevalent. Some crop damage from hot wind.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JUNE 26.

An active but not entirely satisfactory day is forecast from this day's lunar transits. There may be some slight disappointments in business as well as in personal affairs and the finances may not prove as desired. Those in the employment of others are under rather encouraging sway for gaining the recognition of their superiors, and, generally, friends of influence and position may be approached for assistance or favors.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a fairly active year, but not a generally satisfactory one. Finances may cause some anxiety, ad slight disappointments may arise in business as well as in more intimate relationships. It is an excellent time for approaching friends or superiors for favors. A child born on this day should be active and resourceful, but may make its best success in the employment of others.

GUM-DIPPING the EXTRA PROCESS at no extra cost to tire BUYERS!

Many people who nearly three years ago saw the first sets of balloon tires ever made, which were designed and developed by Firestone and were being tested on factory cars, doubted that such thin-walled tires would stand the hard usage demanded of pneumatic tires.

The important thing these people overlooked, was the distinct advantage Firestone possessed in its extra process of treating cord fabric—Gum-Dipping—which insulates every fiber of every cord with rubber and gives to the thin walls the extra strength needed to withstand the extra flexing strain.

Gum-Dipping impregnates the cords with rubber so that friction is minimized, which explains why Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords keep so cool even in extra hard service. Since heat is so destructive to tire life it becomes apparent why Firestone Balloons give such unheard-of mileage, making them the most economical tires to use with the added factors of safety and comfort. It also explains why race drivers trust their lives to Firestone tires while breaking all records for speed and endurance.

Begin now to enjoy the greater advantages of these wonderful tires. Let the nearest Firestone dealer equip your car—he will do it quickly and at low cost.

VETS WON'T GET SQUARE DEAL UNDER PRESENT PENSION HEAD

Chairman of Board Must Mend His Views or Be Removed, Says G.W.V.A.

MUTILATED ACT.

Chairman Sat in House Beside Chairman of Committee on Pensions.

OTTAWA, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—The belief that the ex-service men and their dependents in Canada would not get a "square deal" until the present chairman of the Board of Pension Commissioners was removed from office, or "mends his views," was expressed at the annual convention of the Great War Veterans' Association here yesterday by C. Grant MacNeil, Dominion secretary.

Mr. MacNeil's views were endorsed by L. W. Humphrey, Progressive member of Parliament for Kootenay, B.C., who is a delegate from Trail and Nelson branches. The Dominion secretary said that during the recent consideration of the Pensions Act amendments by the Senate committee, the Pensions Board chairman sat beside that chairman of the committee, "mutilating" all sections of the Act and paying attention to serious cases of distress on which concrete evidence had been adduced. These clauses had been inserted after years of careful investigation by the Ralston Royal Commission and other reputable bodies. Mr. MacNeil said he thought the members of the Pensions Board were obstructed in their duties and held nothing personal against the members.

HEART TROUBLE SHORTNESS OF BREATH

Mrs. Geo. E. Bowman, Morrisburg, Ont., writes:—"I am writing you a few lines to let you know of my experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Two years ago I became very poorly with my heart and nerves and whenever I took the least little bit of exercise my heart would start to jump and flutter. I could not walk up-stairs without having to sit down and rest before I was half-way up, on account of my breath becoming so short.

I commenced taking

and in no time I felt a great improvement, and can now heartily recommend them to all those who are troubled with any affection of the heart."

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 25. — (Canadian Press).—Four fishermen from Burin were drowned Tuesday night when the wreck of the steamer Argos on which they were working broke apart and sank, it was learned yesterday. The bodies have not yet been recovered, and the names of the victims are unknown.

Law Protecting Animals Passed Despite Protests

OTTAWA, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—An amendment to the criminal code, making it against the law to abandon in distress or fail to provide food and water for cattle, domestic animals and birds, was described as "ridiculous legislation" in the Senate yesterday afternoon by Senator Beaubien.

"If you have a canary you forget and it dies, you will have to go to jail or pay a fine," he said. "Where would such legislation stop?" he asked. "Will we stop short of fleas or those other animals that bite, well known in the war?" asked the Senator. The amendments were carried.

REGINA SCENE DOCTORS MEET

Canadian Medical Association Annual Gathering Opened Yesterday.

MANY PAPERS.

REGINA, Sask., June 25. —(Canadian Press)—Subjects commanding the attention of the Medical Profession of the world, results of experimental clinical work, exhaustive research work and problems generally of the doctor, were reviewed in papers delivered by distinguished medical and surgical practioners at the official opening of the Canadian Medical Association convention here yesterday.

Messages of welcome were conveyed to the delegates by representatives of th Provincial and Civic authorities. The meetings were described as "epoch making" and according to Hon. Dr. J. M. Uhrich, minister of Health in the Saskatchewan Government, the reports of the Association indicated that the Canadian Medical Profession was not only keeping abreast of the association's members placed the Dominion well in the van of research efforts.

Delegates from the British, American and Chinese Medical Association were presented to the gathering.

L. J. Austin, F. R. C. S., Professor of Clinical Surgery at Queens University, Kingston, described the progress made along the lines of pathological treatment of gallstones. It was very difficult to obtain dependable statistics relative to mortality from this trouble,but he was of the opinion that the death rate was comparatively low. Great strides had been made toward, the successful surgical treatment of gallstones but the greatest difficulty was encountered in determining the symptoms of the affliction. Physical examination and even the X-ray often proved unsatisfactory and he advised in favour of careful diagnosis.

A large percentage of present day deafness was attributed by Doctor Perry Goldsmith, association professor of laryngology, University of Toronto, to neglect of ear ache in its early stages.

Officers Elected.

Dr. Forest Leader, of Victoria, B. C., was chosen by the Canadian Medical Council as President-elect of the Association for the term 1926-27. He will assume office at the fifty-seventh annual convention to be held in Victoria next year.

Dr. A. Primrose, of Toronto, was elected as the new chairman of the Council, while Dr. A. T. Brazin, Montreal, was returned to the office of treasurer; Dr. T. C. Routley, also of Toronto, continues as general secretary of the association.

The executive committee for the ensuing term is composed o fthe following:

Dr. D. Low, Regina; Dr. Forest Leader, Victoria; Dr. A. Primrose, Toronto; Dr. A. T. Brazin, Montreal; Dr. G. S. Cameron, Peterboro, Ont.; Dr. T Glenn Hamilton, Win-

URGES CAUTION IN DEVELOPMENT OF ST. LAWRENCE

Development Before Investigation is Made Would Be Contrary to Advice.

LONG HISTORY.

Some Members Thought That Too Many Committees Were Reviewing Matter.

OTTAWA, June 25. —(Canadian Press). — To develop power on the St. Lawrence before a thorough investigation had been made by the joint engineering board now working on the St. Lawrence waterway scheme, would be contrary to the advice of the International Joint Commission, Right Hon. G. P. Graham, told the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. A vote of $150,000 to provide for the payment of salaries and expenses in connection with the St. Lawrence ship canals surveys and investigations, was under consideration.

Mr. Graham went at some length into the history of investigations which had been conducted into the St. Lawrence waterways. The matter had been reviewed by the Joint International Waterways Commissions to which all questions in regard to international streams were referred. The commission after investigating the matter had decided that the scheme was practicable but recommended that complete study by competent engineers should be made before any further steps to proceed with further investigations.

One difficulty which had arisen resulted from th diversion of water at Chicago. The Canadian Government had been insistent that the effect of this diversion on the St. Lawrence should be considered by the Joint Engineering Board enquiring into practicability of the scheme. The United States had agreed to this. An other question was whether or not the Niagara water diversion should be considered. Canada had taken the ground that, as th water diverted at Niagara found its way back into the Great Lakes, and that therefore this matter was not one for the engineering board to consider.

Right Hon. Arthur Meihgen, Conservative leader declared that a large number of boards and committees bad been appointed in connection with this work. So many had been appointed that if it were proposed to keep the matter going between heaven and earth, the proper devices had been adopted. The question, stated Mr. Meighen, had been under review for years, and when the present government came into office, the railway department then had a fixed view in the matter.

The Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario would appear to be the best equipped body to give an opinion as to how this matter should be handled and he would be very sorry to see any plan adopted which was not in accord with the opinion of that experienced body. Mr. Meighen also felt sorry if the aspirations of the people of Ontario for power development were going to be indefinitely postponed.

A. R. Ross (Conservative-Kingston) declared that the country could not wait thirty or fifty years until the scheme for the deepening of the St. Lawrence was completed, for the power necessary. The engineering department of the Hydro Electric Commission had made the assertion that the development of power at the Morrisburg dam would not interfere with navigation on the St. Lawrence. He urged that the government take steps towards the rendering of a decision in respect to the development of power at the Morrisburg dam. There was no reason for delay.

John Millar (Progressive-Qu'Appelle) commended the government for its caution in the matter.

Sir Henry Drayton (Conservative, West York) stated that it was three years since the Hydro Commission had made its application for power development at Morrisburg. The minister should take up the whole mat-

WOMEN DISCUSS HOME ECONOMICS

Federated Women's Institutes in Victoria This Year.

VICTORIA, B. C., June25. —(Canadian Press).— Discussion was continued on the report of Mrs. W. W. Baird, Nappin, N. S., convenor of the Dominion Committee on Home economics when the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada resumed business session yesterday.

"Home Economics extends itself far beyond the wants of the house, just as the influence of the home spreads itself into every walk and activity of life, "Mrs. Baird stated in outlining suggestions for future work. "Home economics as viewed by this committee resolves itself into a three-fold relationship. A relationship to national life; to community life, and most important of all, to home life. The questions of food laws, textile laws, laws relative to hygeine and immigration also are all of interest to the home maker." "We have asked for a home bureau at Ottawa. If we can bring before our women the value of using their branch as a home bureau they will be able to grasp the value and need of such in our Dominion? "

Following the afternoon session, the delegates were the guests of the Provincial Department of Health and visited numerous places of interest.

NO CHANGES IN PLANS FOR TRIP INTO THE ARCTIC

Aviators of MacMillan Expedition Will Wear Eskimo Clothes on Flights.

BACK IN SEPTEMBER.

Wishes of Navy Department About Wireless Will Be Followed, Says Commander.

SYDNEY, N. S., June 25. — Canadian Press. — Lieut.-Commander Donald B. MacMillan's Arctic Expedition, consisting of the schooner "Bowdoin" and the Steamer "Peary" was in Sydney Harber last night expecting to get away on Friday for exploration north of the Arctic Circle.

The "Bowdoin" came in yesterday afternoon after a good run from Wiscasset, Me., following the "Peary" which had arrived on Tuesday night.

Commander MacMillan anticipated no change in his plans as made before leaving the United States. Thus the expedition will call at Battle Marbor, Labrador, and then cruise along the Labrador Coast picking up at native villages Eskimo clothing and boots for the use of the aviators of the party.

Commander MacMillan thinks the Eskimo equipment necessary, more particularly the boots, which would be of especial value for walking over ice in case the fliers were compelled to come down.

While the "Bowdoin" and "Peary" will generally keep together they will definitely meet before crossing Melville Bay to Greenland and proceeding, if conditions do not prevent, to Etah, latitude 78.20 North, and about 700 miles from the North Pole.

There a base will be made and advance base at Axleheiberg, from which the aviators will work. They can fly one thousand miles which would allow them to go about four hundred miles and return, allowing a margin for head winds.

Exploration will be made northwest from Axleheiberg and after 150 miles is covered, Commander MacMillan said, the fliers will be in hitherto unexplored country.

The first 150 miles has already been covered by dog sled in a previous MacMillan expedition.

The expedition expects to return home in September.

There is speculation as to the possibilities of the MacMillan party meeting with the William Nutting party, which has been missing for upwards of a year since he and a party of companions attempted to cross the Atlantic in a small Norwegian boat in the path of Leif Erikson.

WISHES FOLLOWED

SYDNEY, N. S., June 25. — Canadian Press. — The wishes of the U. S. Navy Department will be carried out in regard to wireless installation with the Donald MacMillan Arctic expedition Commander McMillan said yesterday. However up to last night nothing was known of any extra equipment being required beyond that already with the expedition and some parts which were coming here on board the U.S. Destroyer "Putnam." Lieut.-Commander MacDonald, Jr., second in command, and in

ADOPT REPORT REJECTING LINE

Senate Committee Says That Proposed Line is Not in Public Interest.

WON'T BUILD PART.

OTTAWA, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—The report of the Senate Railway Committee, rejecting the Sunnybrae Guysborough branch line in Nova Scotia, was adopted by the Senate yesterday by a vote of 23 to 10. The report stated that it was not in the public interest to proceed with the project. When the bill was before the Railway Committee, Senator Dandurand had moved that the line be shortened by making the terminus at Country Harbor. This was rejected by committee and Senator G. D. Robertson (Welland) moved that the bill be not proceeded with and the motion was carried.

WEEKLIES SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association Closed Season Without Deficit.

OFFICE HELPFUL.

WINNIPEG, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—The accomplishments, activities and financial affairs of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association for the past year were fully dealt with at the opening of the organization's fifth annual convention here yesterday, and in all reports submitted good progress was recorded.

Four hundred delegates representing all parts of the Dominion as well as Newfoundland, were welcomed to the city by Mayor Ralph H. Webb, and the session was presided over by Lorne A. Eedy, of the Telescope, Walkerton, Ont., president.

In his presidential address, Mr. Eedy emphasized the inauguration of a standard $2 subscription rate throughout the Dominion, and declared also that the organization had placed the commercial printing end of the business on a basis of "cost plus fair profit."

The financial report, presented by E. Roy Sayles, Toronto, general manager and treasurer, showed the year 1924 to have closed without a deficit. Mr. Sayles outlined the field work undertaken by the organization, and the benefit of the central office service, which had obtained for members concessions that helped considerably in the publication of their papers, and the carrying on of the printing industry.

MANY JUVENILES IN CANADAS PENS

Of 77 Under Nineteen, 60 Are Not Yet 17 Years of Age.

BETTER TREATMENT.

OTTAWA, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—There are 77 juveniles, aged nineteen or under, in Canada's penitentiaries. Of these, 64 are under 18, 60 are under 17 and 4 are under 16. This information was given a return tabled in the House of Commons yesterday. It was stated that the Government is considering a readjustment of the rules of penitentiaries to give juveniles and first offenders preferential treatment and different classification to "repeaters." Also the Government is considering the proposal that separate institutions altogether be provided for such cases.

No Royal Commission on prison reform will be appointed this year, as suggested in a House debate, the return states in answer to a question.

HUDSON BAY CO. HEAD RESIGNED

Sir Robert Kindersley Says Step Was on Instructions of Physicians.

PAY 20 PER CENT.

WINNIPEG, June 25.—(Canadian Press). — Sir Robert Kindersley, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, has resigned the governorship and will be succeeded by Charles Vincent Sayles, the present deputy-governor, according to a report received from London yesterday. Frederick Henry Richmond will be deputy-governor.

The annual meeting of the company, at which Sir Robert presided, was held in London Tuesday, and a summary of the yearly report was received at the executive department of the Hudson's Bay Company here yesterday.

Sir Robert, in tendering his resignation, announced that increased national and international business had imposed a strain on his energies, and on advice of his medical advisers, was reluctantly compelled to relinquish the governorship.

The annual report showed the past year to be one of good financial returns, which enabled the payment of a dividend of twenty per cent. to shareholders. It also declared that continued improvement in conditions and prospects in Western Canada, justified the company in resuming pre-war programme in connection with stores, and anticipated that extensions to the Vancouver, B.C., store would be completed about December, 1926.

In concluding his address, Sir Robert Kindersley paid tribute to the memory of the late Sir Augustus Manton.

CANADA PRODUCED LESS COKE IN MAY

Decline in Amount of Product, But Increase in Use of Imported Coal.

OTTAWA, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—A slight decline in Canadian coke production occurred in May, when 130,068 tons was produced from 199,235 tons of coal, says the Bureau of Statistics. More imported coal was used than in any previous month this year, owing to the difficulty in obtaining Canadian coal for the use of coke ovens in Eastern Canada. Foreign coal charged to coke ovens totalled 154,754 tons in May. Domestic coal to the extent of 44,481 tons was used during the month as compared with 75,873 tons used in April.

YOUR HEALTH

HOW SMOKE, DRAFTS OR DUST AFFECT FOLK

Even in the Summertime people suffer from colds. Sneezing, coughing and hoarseness are found on the First of July almost as frequently as on Christmas day.

A good many cases of running nose and sore throat come from breathing dust and smoke. A long automobile trip through the country may produce so much irritation that the eyes and nose run quarts of water and the throat feels as if it had been sandpapered.

People differ materially in their response to irritating vapors and to dust. Some persons appear to have such hardened tissues that they are not affected. On the contrary, others are so susceptible to mechanical irritation that even a small amount of dust in the atmosphere may prove disturbing.

Everybody comes in contact with germs. A test of the secretions of the nose will in almost every instance reveal the presence of pus-producing and disease-producing germs. These are perfectly harmless to a normal mucous membrane. They will be washed away with the secretions and never give any evidence of their presence.

All of us possess certain powers of resistance. We are not readily infected by germ life. It is only when our powers of resistance are lowered for some reason that trouble is likely to follow.

If you go on a long automobile ride or work for a long time in a dusty field or a dusty building, the nose becomes irritated and then the germs, which were harmless before, become harmful.

The point I want to make clear is that, so far as can be done, everybody should avoid spending hours at a time in the dust or smoke. Of course, you can become hardened to this sort of life, and, unfortunately, it is necessary for some persons to become hardened. There is work which must be done, and somebody must do it. Nature has a wonderful way of building up resistance and producing such safeguards that the germs cannot break through to infect the system.

It is on this account that we "get used" to our work, whatever it is. During the influenza epidemic in 1918, city people who were used to riding in crowded cars and subways were not so susceptible to the disease, but if country people, accustomed to fresh air and sunlight, came to the city and rode in these vehicles they were very likely to fall victims to the disease. This happened not because they came in contact with more germs than the city people, but because they had not developed powers of resistance against the germs which are met every day in the city.

Do not think because it is Summer that you can expose yourself to drafts and wind and dust and irritating vapors. You must protect your body in the Summer just as you must in the Winter. You must exercise the same care and common sense in the Summer as you do in your Winter habits.

Fortunately in order to keep cool, the windows are widely opened, but if you happen to have a cold night in Summer, don't hesitate to leave the windows open and depend upon extra covers to keep you warm. Your good health and the avoidance of colds depends upon your having fresh air all the time.

LIBERAL WON SEAT IN OLDHAM

W. W. Wiggins Will Succeed Sir Edward Grigg, Governor of Kenya.

STRAIGHT FIGHT.

LONDON, June 25. — (Canadian Press).—W. W. Wiggins, the Liberal candidate, defeated W. J. Tout, ex-M.P., Labor candidate, in the Oldham by-election yesterday, polling 26,323 votes. Tout polled 21,702 votes.

The by-election in Oldham was due to the appointment of Sir Edward Grigg, Liberal M.P. for Oldham, as governor and commander-in-chief of Kenya Colony. It was a straight fight between the Liberal candidate and W. J. Tout, ex-M.P., Labor candidate, who was member for Oldham from 1922 to 1924, and was private secretary to the Minister of Labor, Thomas Shaw, in the Labor Government. Oldham is a two-seat constituency, the other seat being held by A. Duff Cooper, Conservative.

HISTORY OF CANADIAN FORCES WILL BE PUBLISHED SHORTLY AS THE FIRST OFFICIAL RECORD

To Contain Information On All Departments In Service

MODEL FOR WORLD

All Records of Canadian Forces Being Searched for Material

TORONTO, Ont., June 25.—(By Canadian Press).—Veterans of the war and the Canadian public who followed with thrilled interest the story of that great adventure of its manhood, will welcome the news forthcoming from Ottawa that the first volume of the Official History of the Canadian Forces in the Great War is to be published very shortly. Official histories of other nations are in a more advanced stage. Good progress has been made with that of the British Armies, and the story of the Australian Expeditionary Force is well toward completion. But if there has been delay in the Canadian official history it has been for good purpose. In the width of its survey and the completness of its details it promises to set a standard for works of this kind to the entire world. In the endeavor to make it accurate, to clear up points of conflict and illuminate the whole picture, research has been carried on in every quarter, including the great mass of material available at the War Office and the enemy records as now collated in Berlin. All records of the Canadian Corps and of its auxiliary services are being searched, including battalion and company war diaries.

Under the able direction of Colonel A. Fortescue Duguid the Historical section of the Canadian General staff was reorganized in June, 1921, charged with the task of collecting and safeguarding all papers concerning the Canadian Forces, and with the reduction of the mass of evidence into a comprehensive history for official publication. The work has advanced steadily; material has been assembled and classified, but much is still to be obtained. Maps which form the basis of the design, and which will prove a very wonderful feature of the whole, have been compiled from documents, and are being gradually completed from the testimony of officers who took part in the operations. And here it may be noted that while the operations from Vimy in April, 1917, on to the Armistice in Mons, present no great difficulty by reason of the careful records made at the time(the earlier operations, before proper provision had been made, present a very tangled problem to be unravelled if proper credit is to be apportioned all fighting and auxiliary units.

Some of the volumes will contain general history; some will be devoted to particular arms, branches and services; all will be based on official documents. Maps sufficient for the general reader will be bound with the text; more detailed maps issued separately will provide for more profound study.

It is fitting that the first of the series should be devoted to the Medical Services, for whom a worthy historian was found in Sir Andrew Macphail soldier, surgeon and man of letters. The 28 chapters of this volume completely cover its field. Opening with "The General Theme", successive chapters are devoted to "Preparation for War", "The First Contingent" (wherein fall the great names of Ypres, 1915, Festubert and Givenchy), "The 2nd. Division," "The First Winter 1915-16", "The Somme" (with which is included the battles of Vimy and Passchendale), and so on, Chapter XXVII dealing with the operations "From Amiens to the Rhine", and the final chapter with "Demobilization." Controversial subjects are impartially reviewed in the two chapters, "The Year of Controversy, 1916" and "The Vindication of the Service", and other chapters of special interest to the laymen deal with "The Civilian and the Soldier" and "The Service in Parliament."

The Canadian Medical Services achieved and merited distinction and honor in both France and England. Here the full story is set forth, and chapters are devoted to such themes as "The Field Ambulance", "The Surgery of the Front", and "Development of the Service in the Field", while the Hospitals, Nursing Service, Dental Corps and so on receive their proper recognition. This initial volume, indeed, makes an admirable beginning of a work which promises in the best sense of the word to be monumental to the deeds and prowess of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces.

ON DOMINION DAY AT ORILLIA MONUMENT TO COMMEMORATE WHITE ADVENT TERCENTENARY

300 Years Ago Champlain Sent Advance Party to Aid Hurons

PAGEANT A FEATURE

Indians from Rama Reserve Will Lend Colour

TORONTO, Ont., June 25.—(Canadian Press). —Commemorating the tercentenary of the advent of the white race into what is now Ontario, when Samuel de Champlain in answer to an appeal from the Hurons for help against the Iroquis sent first a small party in advance to give immediate support and then entered and explored the country about Georgian Bay, a colossal monument will be unveiled on Dominion Day, July 1 next, at Orillia, near the old Indian settlement of Cahiague, where Champlain wintered. As an historic and picturesque event the celebration will be of national interest to the whole of Canada and an outstanding milestone in the establishment of the bonne entente between Ontario and Quebec, with which provinces the happenings are chiefly associated.

The project was launched at a meeting of the Canadian Club held in Orillia 12 years ago. It was the intention that the erection of the monument should take place in 1915, 300 years after the visit of Champlain. The war intervened and plans left in abeyance are now finding happy consummation in the magnificent memorial to be erected with the accompanying pageants and other setting. The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, speaker of the House of Commons, will unveil the monument.

At the banquet to be held in the evening the toast "Canada" will be proposed by Dr. Stephen Leacock and responded to by Sir George Foster. The toast to Quebec will be proposed by Sir William Mulock and responded to by Hon. E. F. Surveyer of Montreal, representing the Quebec Government. The toast to Ontario will be proposed by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and responded to by Hon. W. F. Nickle, attorney-general of Ontario. The Mayor of Quebec and other municipalities, heads of universities and numerous representative citizens are expected to be among the interested spectators.

Work Of Vernon March.

The monument, the work of Vernon March, the distinguished English sculptor and designer, arrived in Orillia, May 14. The workman who brought his creation to its present perfection, is, with his equally distinguished brother Sidney, personally overseeing the setting up of their noted product. The great bronze group in which the figure of Champlain is 12 feet high and weighs over three tons, is of the highest artistic excellence and is believed to be one of the finest in Canada. It will stand atop a 45-ton boulder, at either side of which will be side groups representing "Christianity" and "Commerce," each weighing three tons.

There is a pedestal of Benedict stone 18 feet high. Funds for the monument have been furnished chiefly by the Dominion government and the governments of Ontario and Quebec. The Dominion contributed $12,5000 together with duties, amounting to about $5,000. The provincial governments gave $5,000 each. The full cost was $35,000, the remaining portion being contributed by the county of Simcoe, the town of Barrie, private individuals, etc.

Champlain's Explorations.

Of the great explorer Champlain and the debt due him from Canada only brief comment may be made. Before setting out in response to the appeal of the Hurons, arrangements for several months' absence had to be made, but in order to give immediate encouragement to the Hurons he sent back with them 13 or 14 of his followers with Pere LeCaron of the Recollect order. He himself set out with a small party on July 9, 1615, travelled up the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa in canoes, portaged over to Lake Nipissing, journeyed down the French River along the shores of Georgian Bay and landed near Penetanguishene on Aug. 1. His explorations and futile attack on the Iroquis because of the unwillingness of the Hurons to accept advice and discipline, and his unfortunate experiences when wounded and again when separated from his party for seevral days are matters of history.

During these months he made Cahiague his headquarters and spent more time there than in any other place. It is because of this that Orillia was chosen as the site for his memorial. Of Champlain, the founder of Quebec and who first brought the influence of white civilization westward, the American historian Francis Parkman says:—

"When New England was a solitude and the settlers of Virginia scarcely dared adventure inland beyond the sound of a cannon-shot, Champlain was planting on shores and islands the emblem of his faith. It was he who struck the deepest and boldest strokes into the heart of their pristine barbarism. At Chantilly and Fontainebleau, at Paris in the cabinets of Princes and royalty itself, mingling with the proud vanities of the court; then lost from sight in the depths of Canada, the companion of savages, the sharer of their toils, privations and battles, more hardy, patient and bold then they— such for successive years were the alterations of this mans' life. Among the pioneers of the North Amreican continent Champlain stands foremost on the list."

The Big Pageant.

Preceding the unveiling of the monument and with the view of making realistic historical scenes in the life of Champlain, a pageant representing his coming will take place. In this about 250 will take part in addition to Indians from the Rama Reserve nearby. The Huntsville Band will be in attendance and children of the schools massed in a stand for singing will be musical features. At the banquet for special visitors in the evening the three toasts will be the Dominion, Quebec and Ontario as mentioned above, and replies will be made by representatives appointed by the premiers of the Dominion and the Provinces. An elaborate display of fireworks will close the evening's happenings.

The concluding feature of the celebration will be a trip next day down the Severn River to Georgian Bay and entertainment in the afternoon at the town of Midland.

FIRE AT NORWOOD ATTACKS FACTORY

H. G. Buck and Son Property Damaged—Chemicals Were Used.

NORWOOD, June 25.—The fire alarm was rung this morning just before 5 o'clock, when a fire was discovered in the boiler room of the cheese box factory, owned by H. G. Buck and Son. The boiler and engine, heading outfit and hoist, were destroyed as the fire had gained considerable headway before it was noticed. The main building, being of concrete, was fireproof and the firemen had a chemical engine, thus keeping the other parts of the building safe. The work will not be discontinued, although there has been considerable loss, as Mr. Buck has another boiler and electric motor which he can attach.

WEDDING BELLS.

WARNEFORD—EGGLETON

KEENE, June 25.—A pretty June wedding was solemnized at College Street Presbyterian Church, Toronto on Saturday, when Marguerite Eggleton, eldest daughter of Mrs. F. S. Pollard of Keene, became the bride of Mr. Percy Richard Warneford, only son of Mrs. M. Warneford, Toronto. Dr. Cochrane officiated. The bride, who was given away by her step-father, was a picture of girlish loveliness in her sleeveless gown of ivory Sultana satin, banded with pearls over a slip of ivory rose-point chantilly lace. The long train was caught on the shoulders with orange blossoms and lined with shell pink chiffon. Her long veil was embroidered with white chiffon morning glories and held across the forehead with a bandeau of orange blossoms with clusters of blossoms at each side.

She caried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily of the valley. The groom's gift was an amethyst ring and string of pearls. Miss Anne Roundell was maid of honour. Mr. D. S. Anderson was best man, and the ushers were, Mr. M. Weir and Mr. Hotely. During the signing of the register Mr. Newton sang. After the ceremony a reception was held at High Park Club, 100 Indian Road.

Later the bride and groom left for their honeymoon at Lake of Bays, the bride travelling in a costume of dove blue satin and georgette, with hat en suite. On their return they will reside at their new home, 15 Alcina Avenue, Toronto.

DICKSON—DALY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's R. C. Church, Campbellford, at 7.30 on Tuesday morning, when Miss Emerita A. Daly, daughter of Mr. James Daly, was united in marriage to Mr. Leonard Joseph Dickson of Port Arthur, the Rev. Father Phelan officiating.

The bride, who looked charming in a gown of beaded silk grey canton crepe with hat to match and hat, and carried pink carnations. The roses, was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary McCoy of Toronto, who was attired in an orchid grown and hat, and carried pink carnations. The groom was assisted by Mr. Percy J. Leonard, of Campbellford.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal couple repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Daly, Front Street, where a very dainty wedding breakfast was served to the intimate relatives and friends of the bridegroom.

The happy couple left on the 9.45 train amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a honeymoon trip to Belleville, Toronto, Niagara, Peterboro and other points, the bride travelling in a navy suit, with marten fur and ostrich trimmed hat to match.

The bride is one of Campbellford's most popular young ladies and will be greatly missed by her large circle of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson will return to town before taking up residence at Port Arthur, where the groom is a popular member of the Hydro staff.

It was proposed to establish the honor system in a large Eastern penitentiary. The matter was put up to the prisoners themselves, it being figured that they would know better than anyone whether they could play the game honorably. It was put to a vote.

"Hey Muley," said one tough citizen to another, "did yer vote for the honor system?"

"Sure, kid, four times."

WHERE MEN ARE YET BORN IN LOG CABINS.

Canadians have doubtless met hundreds of Lithuanians who have emigrated from this delightful country to Canada, but I wish I could help Canadians see the pretty little villages from which they come. Little thatched houses surrounded by wooden palings, each nesting in its own little fruit garden. They are built of logs, squared only on the inside. The poorest remain in the rough, while the better ones are grey with green and white shutters on which the village artist has painted floral decorations. The forests near the villages this spring were chorus halls for countless birds and the nightingales were so many as to be almost deafening. The scars of the war are yet visible but old mother nature has healed most.

THE HIDDEN FRESCOES OF LUINI.

Lugano in Switzerland has always been proud to possess the works of Bernardino Luini, but many a visitor misses them. "Where are they?" is a frequent question heard at the hotels. I found them hidden in the small rather shabby little church of Santa Maria degli Angioli, really next door to the Palace Hotel in the midst of a lot of small town stores. Here as Gabrielle Faure wrote "the shabby mediocrity of the outside conceals, as in a shrine, the soul of an artist." Here are found some of the finest examples in Europe of artistry that recognized no law but the imagination of beauty, for it is not often given to us to see such delicate loveliness concentrated in such small space.

Good water for drinking is the first essential. Wood for fuel comes next.

She did not notice the Brockville car coming behind till too late to avoid the crash. Mr. George Wright driver of the Brockville car had three teeth knocked out and required medical assistance, their car being also badly damaged. LET YOUR HOME GROW FAIRER

With the Summer

IF the thought of your own home dressed up for summer seems more alluring than the cramped and oftentimes inconvenient quarters of the summer cottage or hotel, let us help you carry out your plans for making your home as gay as it is already comfortable. There are such dozens of fascinating ways—tall vases of flowers, comfy pillows, lightweight rugs, gay cretonne draperies merrily flowing in the breeze, and, perhaps, a glistening lemonade set on the table.

Third Floor

CRETONNES are the summeriest of summer draperies, and the most varied patterns are offered for your choice; forests of trees, flower gardens, even bird worlds with vivid robin red-breasts, yellow canaries and sombre woodpeckers in the background. If your tastes are less akin to nature, there are artistic conventionalized designs that will transform your rooms into sunny places of exquisite freshness and gayety.

Lazy Day Pillows

Match your draperies with pillows, lovely, cool, perky ones that always look jaunty and gay to weary golfers and the girl who loves nothing better than a bed of cushions and a good book.

Indoor Gardens

Are you sure that you have enough vases so that your rooms may be veritable flower gardens of color and fragrance—large pottery jugs for long-stemmed beauties, dainty porcelain bowls to hold glowing nasturtiums and tiny luster bud vases for a cornflower or two?

COCO MATS on the floor with a bit of shining wood showing here and there, and your bedroom will become the coolest, most delightful spot for summer's drowsy hours. You can have any of the bright, vivid shades, greens, reds, browns and yellows; and you are sure to find more than one to harmonize with your bedroom color scheme. $6.50 to $118.00.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful Flapper marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . . but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford to pay her wages. Gloria has amped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an actor. She lends him money, and finally, when he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. He spurns her, telling her he has just married a Russian actress. Then Gloria tries to land a job as a chorus girl and fails. Discouraged, she comes home to Dick.

He takes her back, but not as his wife. One night Gloria leaves him to work late at the office with SUSAN BRIGGS, his secretary. While Gloria is at home alone, the house is robbed. Dick doesn't get home until almost morning. Gloria wonders if he was with Miss Briggs all that time. But next morning she learns that he was at the house of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, who had killed himself because of the love affair that existed between his wife MAY and JIM CAREWE.

Gloria goes to Dick's office to tell him about the robbery, and to make one last attempt to win him again.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

Gloria's one fear was that the two might see her.

Quickly, as if she were fleeing, she ran across the side-walk, and into a drug-store. She sat down at the soda fountain and ordered a chocolate sundae.

When it came, the sight of it made her ill. She paid her check and hurried out into the fresh air and the sunshine. . . . Thank goodness, Dick and Miss Briggs were nowhere in sight!

"I suppose they're having lunch somewhere, together," Gloria thought, with a pang of self-pity. She walked along, not knowing or caring where she was going. . . .

Then a poster outside a moving-picture theater caught her eye. "Jealous Wives"—the words flamed out on it.

Gloria smiled grimly to herself. "I'm one of them," she thought. "I think I'll go in, and see what it's all about."

She went into the dark, cool cavern of the theater. She sank gratefully into a chair. . . . Ah, it was good to be here, alone! Away from her mother's disappointed eyes, her father's kindliness, from Aunt Dorcas' sharp tongue . . . away from everybody.

There was no sound in the theater except the whirring of a huge electric fan in the center of the ceiling. Down in the orchestra pit, the organist was turning the leaves of his music.

The picture flashed on the screen. Against it Gloria could see the silhouette of a man who sat directly in front of her . . . Dick!

She leaned over to touch him upon the shoulder. Then caught herself. . . . No, he would have to come to her! She was through begging him to take her back. . . .

But there was a certain cold comfort in the thought that he was not with Miss Briggs, at any rate. She must have merely walked out of the building with him on her way to lunch.

Gloria was glad of that. The thought that Dick could give her up for a plain woman like Susan Briggs had added to her cup of bitterness. Perhaps, after all, he didn't care so very much for her.

Suddenly Dick shifted a little in his seat. Gloria held her breath. Suppose he should turn around and see her there!. . . . He would think that she had followed him into the theater.

No, he mustn't think that. She would never give him another chance to think she wanted him to take her back. . . . She was through!

Softly she slipped from her chair, and walked out of the twilight of the theater.

But a great loneliness dropped down on her like a cloud, as she went out into the thronged street. How lonely a crowd could make you feel. . . .

Gloria turned away from the center of the town. She walked along familiar streets. She knew where she was going . . . . Home!

Not to her mother's house, but to the little place that had been Dick's and hers! She was going to that forbidden place . . . the one spot on the whole earth where she felt at home.

How cozy and happy the little green and white house looked as Gloria came down the street toward it! It seemed to twinkle a welcome to her with all of its shining windows.

. . . But in the center of the green lawn was a real estate agent's "For Sale" sign. Gloria had a sudden impulse to pull up the sign, as she might have torn a weed out of the lawn. . . .

"Hello, there, lady!" a voice hailed her.

Her neighbor, Mrs. Donberg, was leaning out of one of the second-floor windows of the house next door.

"I was thinking of calling up the realestate people to ask them to show me through your house," she said in her shrill voice. "But now that you're here you can let me in. I'll be right over!"

Gloria eyed her coldly. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Donberg," she said, "but I haven't any key with me. I—I just came to pick some of the roses in the backyard . . . . Were you thinking of buying the house?"

"Well, we'd love to have it. It's a little bigger than ours," Mrs. Donberg answered.

Gloria knew perfectly well that she had no thought of buying the house. "She just wants to look through it, to see all my things! . . . The big busy-body!" she told herself angrily, as she walked around to the backyard.

She didn't want Mrs. Donberg poking around her house! She didn't want anyone to look through her house! . . And the thought that someone would presently buy it and live in it was unbearable to Gloria.

Why, it belonged to her . . . that house! She had picked out every scrap of wall-paper in it . . . every stick of furniture! What right had Dick to sell her house. . . . ?

"I'm going in," Gloria made up her mind, suddenly.

On the grass lay a clothes' pole' Goria put the sharp iron end of it under one of the sunroom windows. Using it as a lever she finally managed to get the window open.

She laughed aloud when she stood in the sunroom. "No wonder there are so many burglars, if housebreaking is as easy as this!" she thought.

She sat down at the piano and ran her hands lightly along the keys in the opening bars of Offenbach's "Bacarolle."

"No," she thought, springing up, "I'd better not play that thing. . . . It always makes me want to cry. . . ."

She knew that she was on the very edge of tears.

Who would have thought, a year ago, that she could ever have felt this way about a silly oldhouse?

Gloria looked around her. There was Dick's chair . . . and the reading lamp swung above it. There was the little red smoking-stand she had given him. The tray on it was filled with fine gray ash.

. . . She closed her eyes. She could see him sitting there, with a book in his hands, smoking his old pipe! . . .

Ah, it wasn't the house that Gloria was homesick for, she knew, at last. It was Dick she wanted! Dick!

She dropped into his chair, and laid her head backagainst the brocade where his head had rested. Tears filled her throat, burned behind her closed eyelids.

"I mustn't cry!" she told herself.

"I mustn't let myself feel this way about him! It's going to break my heart, if I do. . . ."

But the house was alive with Dick.

The table where he had made little marks by knocking out his pipe, the writing desk, the magazines piled on one broad arm of his chair spoke of him.

Gloria shook herself, and went upstairs. Her feet made no sound upon the steps. She felt dreadfully alone.

On the threshold of Dick's room she paused. His bed was still just as she had left it . . . made up with clean linen and the best embroidered pillow-cases. He had not slept at home then, at all! He must be living again with Mother and Father Gregory.

Gloria looked into the clothes-closet. Yes, his clothes were all gone.

The top of his dresser was bare. The drawers were empty. The books had been taken from the little book case that stood beside Dick's bed.

But on it stood a large framed photograph of Gloria herself in her wedding dress. So Dick had not cared to take that along with him to his father's house!

"Well, who could blame him?" thought Gloria. "I don't suppose he has very many happy memories of me, after all. . . ."

Now that she stopped to think of it, there had been more storm than sunshine in their life together.

"And the whole thing has been my fault," Gloria told herself sternly. It was the truth . . . and it hurt.

She turned to look at herself in the glass, as a judge might have looked at a prisoner.

She put herself on trial. . . . . She knew she had done none of the things a good wife ought to do for her husband.

She had never taken care of his house . . . . never looked after his comfort. She had told him bluntly that she would never give him a family. Children were too great a bother. . . .

She had not even been utterly faithful to him; hadn't she let Stanley Wayburn make love to her? . . .

As Gloria stood there before the glass, the telephone rang.

It startled her. She had supposed Dick would have had the phone taken out of the house. . . . He must have forgotten it.

"Hello," she said.

"Hello, Glory," May Seymour answered her. "So you didn't leave home after all?"

"I did," Gloria said. "I just came back here this afternoon for a few minutes . . . to get some things I had forgotten. I'm staying at my mother's house, you know."

"Wait there for a few minutes, will you?" May asked. "I'll be right over. I want to talk to you."

"All right," Gloria replied listlessly. "Only hurry. . I want to get out of this place. It's spooky."

The truth was that she didn't want to see May. She didn't want her in the house. She wanted to be alone there, for a while . . . to think things out.

She heard May laugh mirthlessly. "Spooky?" she repeated. "If you think your house is spooky, you ought to spend a night here in mine. It's fairly haunted. . . . Goodby."

Gloria shuddered as she hung the receiver up on its hook. She wondered how May stayed there in the house where Dr. John had killed himself! . . .

She ran downstairs to see if there were any cigarets in the silver box on Dick's smoking stand. May loved a smoke, occasionally. . . .

There were a half dozen cigarets in the box. Gloria stood looking at them, for a minute. Then she picked them up and threw them into the empty grate.

No, she made up her mind, she would never smoke, again! She was through doing the things that Dick said no nice woman would do!

Even though he should never know it, she would become the kind of wife he had always wanted her to be!

PETERBORO' PRESBYTERY MET TO HONOR CLERYMAN FORTY YEARS IN ONE CONGREGATION

Rev. A. K. McLeod, of Brighton, Was Presented With Cane and Address.

MANY TRIBUTES.

Another Veteran, Rev. D. A. Thomson, Extolled Many Good Qualities of His Friend.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BRIGHTON, June 25 — The meeting of the Peterboro Presbytery was held here Tuesday to give the members an opportunity to do honor to one of their veteran colleagues, Rev. A. K. McLeod, who is in the fortieth year of his service as pastor of St. Andrew's Church in this village. The Presbytery presented Mr. McLeod with a complimentary address and a handsome gold headed cane and in the evening was represented at a public meeting in the town hall when all classes of citizens joined in felicitations to the distinguished pastor to whom they also presented an address and a well-filled purse.

Forty Years Ago

There were 25 memebrs of the Peterboro Presbytery when Mr. McLeod became identified with it 40 years ago. Of those members only one besides Mr. McLeod is still on active duty — Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings. It is remarkable that both these clergymen are still in the same pulpits which they ocupied at the beginning of their ministerial career, Mr. Thomson being the senior in church work by over three years.

Throughout all these years the two have been fast friends but near the end they have come to the parting of the ways, Mr. Thomson continuing on the old trail, and Mr. McLeod branching off into the new roadway. As they go their separate ways the friendship that has stood the test of 40 years still holds. Each has confidence in the sincerity of the other, convinced that his friends is taking the path as the light beckons him.

Mr. Thomson on Tuesday attended the meeting of the Presbytery with which he is no longer connected, by special invitation of his former co-workers, and because of his long friendsship for Mr. McLeod. He was also nominated as one of the committee to represent the Presbytery at the public meeting but owing to illness in his family was obliged to return home early in the evening. At the luncheon in the basement of the church, at which the delegates were entertained by the ladies of St. Andrews, Mr. Thomson made an address in which he paid eloquent tribute to the many sterling qualities of his friends. The members who did represent the Presbytery at the civic reception to Mr. McLeod were Rev. J. S. Ferguson, Baltimore (Moderator) Rev. W. A. Bremner of Cobourg, Rev. J. W. Gordon of Peterboro, and Elders George Evans of Peterboro and A. Sanderson of Springville.

Gift From Colleagues

Rev. W. A. Bremner read a long address to Mr. McLeod extolling him as a man, a pastor and a preacher and the cane was presented by Rev. S. H. Moyer of Grafton. Mr. McLeod is still a fine specimen of physical vigor and it is likely to be many a day before he will be obliged to lean heavily upon his gift for support as he makes his pastoral rounds. On the cane is the inscription: "Presented to Rev. A. K. McLeod by Peterboro Presbytery, June 23, 1925."

Mr. McLeod made a brief reply saying that Brighton was honored by having such a meeting as that of the Peterboro Presbytery held there. He was glad to know that he held the confidence and respect of his colleagues and that they were still together and would continue the work in the same spirit of unity.

Addresses congratulating Mr. McLeod were made by the Moderator, Rev. G. S. Gervan and F. H. Howard of Millbrook, Elder Sam Black of Warkworth, who at the age of 94 is probably the oldest member of the Presbytery, Rev. J. A. Black of Omemee, Rev. P. L. Jull of Lakefield, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson of Brighton, Rev. T. W. Anderson of Port Hope and Elder A. Sanderson of Springville.

The Public Meeting

Harry B. Phillips, of Brighton, ex-Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, presided at the evening meeting which was held in the town hall, the gathering taxing the seating capacity of the large building. On the platform with Mr. Phillips were the official representatives of the Presbytery, the clergymen of the town, and a delegate from every fraternal society and organization in Brighton. The Masons sent their felicitations as did the Orange order in both of which Mr. McLeod is a member, even the various young peoples' societies did not fail to tender their congratulations. The School Board and the Villiage Council, too, paid their respects. Mr. McLeod has been during his long residence in Brighton something more than a pastor and preacher although with him his professional duties have always been paramount. He has been a public spirited citizen as well, a member of the School Board and of the Masonic and Orange fraternities.

The various speakers did not fail to include Mrs. McLeod in their eulogics, emphasizing the value of her co-operation and the inspiration she has been to her husband during his long years of service.

An excellent musical programme was furnished by the orchestra of St. Andrew's Church and local soloists and elocutionists contributed to the entertainment which las' ! itl 11 o'clock.

Youth and Old Age

The function was a civic affair and all classes of citizens, all denominations contributed to the purse with which Mr. McLeod was presented. In the actual presentation the youth and old age of St. Andrew's Church was represented. Miss Ruby McCracken, the youngest member, read the address and Mrs. Sarah La Bouteller, handed to Mr. McLeod the tangible token of the esteem in which he is held in Brighton.

Mr. McLeod made a fitting acknowledgement of the honor that had been paid him.

ter himself, and action should be taken immediately Sir Henry favoured the development at this point.

W. M. German (Liberal, Welland) stated that the United States would not agreed to the construction of a dam at Morrisburg. Development could be carried on just as quickly by building a dam at the foot of the Long Sault Rapids under the plan of the International Joint Commission.

Sir Henry stated that he had been informed that the state of New York providing full regard was had for their rights, would have no objection no the Morrisburg plan.

Mr. Graham said that before anybody could sing so much as a shaft of lumber in the St. Lawrence river, the consent of the Federal Governments of the United States and Canada had to be obtained. The Federal Government could not do nothing in regard to the Morrisburg dam until the matter had been reported on by the International Joint Commisssion The item was adopted.

DEPARTING PASTOR GUEST OF HONOUR

Address and Presentation Features of Pleasant Gathering

MILLBROOK, June 25. —The United Church at Garden Hill was the scene of a pleasant social gathering recently, the pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, and Mrs. Gervan, being the guests of honor before their departure from this circuit, which event will probably take place withia the next few weeks.

The attendance was large, representing practically the entire community, and an enjoyable program of readings, vocal and instrumental music, provided entertainment during the first part of the evening.

It its conclusion, Mr F. Waddell, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. and Mrs. Gervan with a purse containing fifty-four dollars, Mr. S. Gray reading the following address:

"As the time has come when the pleasant relationship between us as pastor and people must cease, we feel we cannot sever those ties of fellowship without expressing, in some slight way, our great appreciation of your work among us.

Your untiring efforts on behalf of the church here, your kindly jovial, and sympathetic manner, we have all admired, but we do especially commend the unselfish, humble, and agreeable way in which you have conducted our church work here. We believe humility is the foundation virtue, and you, Mr. and Mrs. Gervan, have proved it to us, always willing to help in any way, but in honor preferring one another.

The beautiful messages you have sung to us will not soon be forgotten.

We ask you to kindly accept this purse as a slight token of our good wishes for you, and your family.

Knowing your implicit trust in God for guidance and protection, we say farewell, assured that His greatest blessing will follow you, for He has said: 'Them that honor Me I will honor."

Signed on behalf of the church, S. Gray, F. Waddell."

Mr. Gervan's reply, on behalf of his wife and himself, showed how deeply the emotional nature had been stirred in both the recipients of the gift, and its accompanying words of true friendsip and kindly feeling.

A social hour, with refreshments served, brought a very pleasant gathering to a close.

Sympathies With Young.

"All my sympathies are with the young as they go out into the world they did not make—we adults made it; and if they go wrong, we blame them."

"We have men, often foreign-born, all over this land, making it their profession, and making money, catering to the fun-loving nature of our boys and girls, and the church has never yet planned a programme against them. If the young folks go wrong, and miss the way, who are we to condemn?"

Preaching from the text, "How shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me?" Genesis 44:34, Rev. Manson Doyle, Toronto, associate secretary of the department of religious education of the United Church, made an abiding impression on his listeners as he stressed the importance of leaderhip if developing lives are to be guided aright.

Mr. Doyle took charge of the services in connection with the Sunday School anniversary of the Fairmount United Church, the evening congregation taxing the building to capacity.

"We pray God that He will save our children, and we leave the traps; we see snares set in the way, and let others build snares, and we wonder why God does not rescue from the deadly pitfalls? Why pray, "Thy kingdom come," and then sit idle, and not help God to bring it; prayers like that are a mockery—God says they are.' '

"Your boy and mine may not go on a picnic this summer without having the chance to buy strong drink, do you realize that? And we pray that God will keep our boys sober, and our daughters pure and clean, and we leave the summer resorts, often run by people unfit to have anything to do with the play life of our young people, (I know, for I've been in them), and we wonder why they go astray. "How shall we go up to our Father if the lad be not with us?"

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Doyle gave some glimpses of the fine work being accomplished through the department he is associated with, and the romance connected with the extension of the kingdom, as the church endeavours to create right minded groups of leaders all over the Dominon.

The special music rendered by the choir was much enjoyed both at the morning and evening services, the selection at night including an anthem "O for the Peace", with solo parts by Miss Marie McBain and Mr. D. R. Fleming (Peterboro) and a duet, "I heard the Voice of Jesus say," by Miss McBain and Mr. Fleming.

"Yes - Rinso washes cottons so beautifully"

"See how spotlessly clean it made this dress! No rubbing or boiling either—just soaking in Rinso. Washday holds no more terrors for me!"

Soaking clothes in Rinso takes the place of the hard rubbing that used to wear you out. The Rinso suds are so rich in cleansing power that they loosen even ground-in dirt. Play clothes, collar bands and cuff edges now come clean with a sprinkle of dry Rinso and only a light rubbing between your fingers—after their Rinso bath.

Be sure to use enough Rinso to get lasting suds after the clothes have been put in. Then, thorough soaking in Rinso floats the dirt out.

The Speeches.

After the Companions had done justice to the good things provided by their wives and sweethearts, they gathered around the speakers' platform, when the following programme was carried out: Rt. Ex-Companion C. B. Adair acting as chairman. A civic welcome to the visitors on behalf of the city was extended by Companion J. J. Turner, Mayor of the city, who hoped they had all enjoyed themselves and would come again. Companion W. Harold Young, in his own inimitable manner, on behalf of Corinthian Chapter, welcomed the Companions from the several Chapters represented. A comic song by Companion D. Hill of Cobourg, was much appreciated and he responded to the applause with an encore. Grand Supt. C. L. Davidson, of Midland Chapter, Lindsay, on behalf of the Past Principals of the District, presented Rt. Ex-Companion A. E. Henry of Oshawa, with a Grand Superintendent's regalia. Though completely taken by surprise Rt. Ex-Companion Henry made a suitable reply. Companion D. G. Melton, always a favourite vocalist with the Chapter, favoured the audience with a selection. Short addresses were made by Ex-Companions Yeates of Port Hope, Ewing of Warkworth, and Ex-Companion Robert Groves, First Principal of Midland Chapter, Lindsay.

The presentation of the prizes for the various contests and the shield to the Peterborough softball team, winners of the trophy for 1925, was made by Rt. Ex-Companion Frank Erskine, of Whitby.

The programme was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem, led by the Salvation Army Band, who, by the courtesy of Adjutant Smith, were present and rendered several selections during the evening. Fred Chenhall presided at the piano.

YOUR GARDEN

TRIMMING HEDGES.

This work may be attended to this month, and a few pointers should prove of value. Frequent trimming should be practised at least two or three times throughout the growing season, the last one in good time to allow the new growth to ripen for the winter (not later than the end of August). This will avoid a severe cutting of the entire top of the plant, regardless of the size and age of the current years' growth must be left on the plants when pruning. Should the hedge have been neglected for some time, a tying of the branches to shape before cutting will help considerably.

Hedges will thrive best if trimmed to a flattened ovoid shape with the widest part at the base, as all the leaf surface will thus receive a more nearly equal share of light. Consequently small branches and leaves will be produced right to the ground. A rounded top is preferable to a flat one, and usually more pleasing. The truncated and rectangular cross sections are also good. Avoid, however, trimming to an inverted pyramid or cone, or any shape that will result in a wider top than bottom, and a consequent killing of the bottom branches and leaves due to shading.

Natural deciduous hedges will require very little pruning, except the removal of dead wood and the cutting back of any growths of extra length which destroy symmetry. An effort should be made to increase the beauty by the preservation of the flowering this type of hedge (as Japanese Barberry), only during the late winter or early spring and not again until after the fruiting season is over.

Let's Talk It Over

I've got an idea that the following letter is going to preach its own sermon, far better than I could by any elaborate comment. And I hereby advise any other young mothers who is in the same plight as "Distracted" to buy one hundred copies of this paper and distribute copious clippings where they'll do the most good.

Why don't grandparents or parents-in-law give us young folks a chance to develop ourselves and work out our own plans. They come to us for a little visit but the stay is prolonged. They seem to take over our personal affairs, tell us how babies were raised in "their days." There's where it hurts. I have only one baby; it's the only one I can have. I wanted him so, to bring up just as my husband and I thought best. I have trained him to have a regular time for eating, sleeping, playing, etc. When I put him in bed, he went to sleep without fussing.

But along comes Mother-in-Law. She rocks him when he cries, plays with him when he should be going to sleep—his clothes are "too thin"—"no stockings on, oh, horrors!"—"too much air with the windows open on the top and bottom"—"not warm enough in his carriage"—in fact a hundred faults to find every day. Father-in-Law decides to try to make baby touch the ceiling after meals. When I feared it would make him sick Father said mother and I raised two children, we know what hurts them better than you do," I suppose there is nothing to do about it. My husband loves his parents, he agrees with me, however. But you tell 'em, you know how. —Distracted.

Your letter will tell them better than I can, my dear. But there's one thing you should realize before you rub it in, too hard, on the old folks. There's not nearly as much selfishness in their attitude as you think. They merely consider you a small child. Are you quite sure that you don't act like a small child at times? Are you also quite sure that you don't want to be treated as a small child sometimes? Have you stopped to consider the love that lies at the heart of their fussiness or to wonder what the world would be like if love like it were no more?

GARDEN PARTY.

Y.W.C.A. Event Will Take Place in Rain or Shine.

The high tea in connection with the Y.W.C.A. garden party, Friday, 6 to 8 p.m., will be held in the big gymnasium, so that cool weather or a shower of rain need not dampen the spirits of those who wish to come.

The ladies of the board of the Y.W.C.A. have always been noted for the splendid teas they serve, and this, the Association's third annual garden party, will even surpass former records. A committee in charge of Mrs. R. Turner will have the gymnasium beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers, and the table arrangements in charge of Mrs. H. Beal and committee will be laden with dainty refreshments by Mrs. R. W. Cormack and her committee.

The other attractions are planned for the lawn of the Association, which will also be prettily decorated. During the afternoon and evening there will be several swimming exhibitions, aesthetic dances on the lawn by members of the gymnasium classes and each booth will contribute its share to the day's pleasure.

Delicious home-made candy in pretty little baskets will be for sale at a booth in charge of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. Afternoon tea will be served on the verandah and there will be an ice cream booth, fortune-telling and a fish pond.

In case of rain all these attractions will be transferred inside, so that everyone may plan now to come and enjoy this event and bring all their friends, assured that rain or no rain the Y.W.C.A. garden party will be bigger and better than ever.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

Things have been simply humming about Madame's shop lately, for all the young girls and all the matrons and all the actresses in town have been replenishing their wardrobes.

Madame has one little client of whom I am very fond. She is a cunning young girl who does ingenue parts on the stage.

Orange Chiffon Is Used for the Cap and Frock, with Lace and Velvet Trim.

Today she came in and asked to see Madame. She said:

"I'm in the greatest kind of hurry, for I've been given a part in a new play and we are rehearsing morning, noon and night so it can go on as soon as possible."

"I'll run and get Madame for you," I offered, and away I hastened.

Madame came from her office as soon as I told her whom was waiting to see her, and she and her young client were soon deeply engrossed in animated conversation.

"I want a gay, young looking costume to wear to an evening party in the first act," I heard as I left the room.

Madame listened intently to all the young client had to say, then she asked:

"How would you like a chiffon ensemble? By that I mean a cunning dance frock with a youthful filmy cape to be worn with it, and which you can take off after you make your entrance on the stage."

"I'd love it!" exclaimed the young lady. "I think those soft flyaway things that trail off behind are always effective."

"I should like you in orange chiffon this time," Madame announced. "Orange gives such lovely glints to your hair."

"Orange it shall be," returned the young lady. "How could I resist it after that?"

So orange was settled upon and I left to find some samples. I was gone about fifteen minutes and when I returned I found the young actress admiring a sketch which Madame had given her.

"Don't you love it?" she asked enthusiastically, as she handed the sketch to me.

I saw that there was a simple ingenue frock, with lace through the yoke and hem, and a soft inset of chiffon at the side to give ample kicking room.

"What kind of lace is it?" I asked.

"Gold." Madame replied. "The flowers at the hip and the others on the collar are orange velvet."

"I approve thoroughly," I announced; "the costume will make a hit I'm sure."

"Now I'll have the seamstresses fall to work immediately, and you must hasten out with this sample and order yourself some orange satin slippers," Madame told the young lady.

The latter skipped off, after making an appointment for her first fitting tomorrow.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

Bobby Discovers a Thrifty Little Neighbor.

When Bobby threw open the shutters of his bedroom window and saw the bright, red head on the trunk of the tree beside the porch he gave a low whistle.

"Gracious me! Aren't you rather early in the season?" he asked softly. "Be careful or you'll catch a cold in that pretty red head of yours."

"Nothing of the sort will frighten me," chirped the bird. "I have never been bothered with this red head of mine. Though sometimes I do think the shade is a wee bit too brilliant. Folks can see us so far. But Mama Redheaded Woodpecker and I have gotten along pretty nicely with these red heads a good long time, so we'll not complain now. My, I'm tired!"

"Just came back I suppose," suggested Bobby. "It must be tiresome for you birds to fly back from the South every spring. Do you like traveling, Mr. Woodpecker?"

"Can't say that I do," replied the redhead. "Fact is, Mama Redheaded Woodpecker and I are neither of us fond of traveling, and when we can find food enough to store away in the summer time we don't leave our summer place."

"Then you didn't go South with your friends this last winter?" inquired Bobby.

"No, we didn't," laughed Mr. Woodpecker, "we stayed right here in the woods at the edge of the town. Yes, my wife and I gathered all the beechnuts, acorns and grasshoppers we could find last summer when they were plentiful and stored them—"

"Thanks," Chirped Mr. Woodpecker.

"Stored them away?" interrupted Bobby. "Where in the world did you hid them? I should have thought Mr. Chipmunk and Fl ffy Squirrel would have found them."

"Don't you think for a second I don't look out for that," chuckled Mr. Woodpecker. "I wasn't foolish enough to hide them all in one place, and it was a good thing I didn't. Someone found one of my storerooms and emptied it for me."

"Then what did you do?" asked Bobby.

"Nothing at all," replied Mr. Woodpecker. "You see, I had a store-room in a hole in the fence, another one in a beechnut tree, another one in an oak tree and another one under the shingles of your daddy's barn roof. What do you think of that?"

"Pretty wise little bird," declared Bobby. "I don't blame you, though. I'd store away food, too. Well, any time you happen to run out of food, just peck on my window and I'll give you something."

"Thanks," chirped Mr. Woodpecker. Then he spread his broad black wings, with their white bands and sailed away to the orchard.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie: I am a young lady in my teens and am dearly in love with a man three years my senior. He has told me that he loves me. I have had only one "date" with him, and since then he has never asked me for another date, but is very friendly.

What can I do to gain his friendship?
—Nobody's Darling.

Nobody's Darling: If this young man has indicated an interest in you, why don't you invite him to call on you? This would be quite proper and will give both of you an opportunity to become better acquainted. Be cordial and gracious, talk to him about the things which interest you, and you will soon find the young man very much entranced.

Home-Making Helps

CHANGE YOUR CHINA.

One way of enjoying the stay-at-home vacation is to change the china with the season. At first thought this sounds rather startling, and visions of unnecessary expense flit across the mind, but after a little thought and explanation it seems quite reasonable. Our home interest centers around our table so largely that the china we use means a whole lot to the atmosphere of the home. When we go summering, china and table appurtenances are the first things we notice.

Now, if we change to entirely different table things it will change our outlook on things in general. With Summer linens or the woven straw mat sets or those of oilcloth on our polished table, we prepare for the new china. This need only consist of plates, cups, saucers, a few sauce-plates and some gay pottery salad bowls and plates. No platters or formal dishes are needed, as the open bowls are all right for the vegetables that are sent to the table to serve. Casserole dishes and a sprinkling of peasant pottery will do the rest.

The Summer home table should be, and in most cases is, delightfully informal. Things served in little paper or pottery ramekins and on the glass dishes in which they are cooked helps a whole lot in this sort of service. There are numbers of very attractive Chinese and Japanese tea services in the blue wares, red Congo ware, and the dainty, cool-looking green sedjeware, all of which have plates to match and can be matched up to salad and other bowls as well. Now these wares are not expensive and are charming in models. There is the square teapot, its handle and spout lost in the corners, and the brown ware decorated with flowers and figures in Japanese or Chinese fashion. The tea service is sure to go to the porch for the tray luncheon or for afternoon tea drinking. Of course, a lot of English ware is in use, and that called cottage ware in very gay and cheerful in coloring.

Then there is the Bohemian china that is brilliant, but never too much so to lack harmony in its coloring, and the Italian offers many new shapes that make it a joy to use. There are the bowls with ears for handles, the cups whose saucers fit over the top to keep the drink warm.

With the Italian pottery there are the little salts and peppers in painted tin frames. The bowls for salad are supplied with spoon and fork for serving that have handles to match the china. With this gay ware the use of colored tumblers has come, and two or three kinds will be used on the same table. Amethyst, willow green, chrome yellow, delicate shell pink and rainbow make a good combination.

The gayly decorated china on painted straw trays covered with peasant linen, or uncovered, makes one think of a country bouquet of old-fashioned asters. On a porch where the blinds are painted soft willow green and the awnings over them are of the rust-red Venetian sailcloth and the rugs and wicker furniture painted in combining colors, the china seems to add the note that makes the whole scheme kin.

If you eat indoors, the same as in the Winter time, then it is of more importance still to change the china.

Health Bubbling Over

The old boy's as pleased with himself as a puppy-dog with two tails.

At sixty he's just as young in feeling, just as full of life and "go," as he was in his teens. From the crown of his head to the soles of his feet his whole frame tingles with the sheer joy of being alive. It does one good to look at him.

That's what Kruschen has done for him—given him "that Kruschen feeling" of perfect health and happiness.

It's so simple to gain too! A daily tasteless pinch of Kruschen, taken in the breakfast cup of coffee or tea, gently and naturally cleanses the system of all impurities. There are six different salts in every pinch, and under their energising influence the headaches and fits of depression, the listlessness and lack of appetite, the twinges of gout and rheumatism — in fact, all the little ills that make life burdensome vanish away, to give place to the vigorous cheeriness that comes from physical well-being.

For Kruschen gets down to the cause of these ills — to the impure blood stream and the sluggish internal organs. The regular daily dose stimulates the liver and kidneys to the proper performance of their duty, removes all impurities, and sends new refreshed blood to carry health and vigour to every part of the body.

Take the first step towards renewing health and happiness and the whole-hearted enjoyment of life, by buying a 75c bottle straight away and beginning the Kruschen Habit of Health, with your breakfast cup of coffee or tea to-morrow morning.

NEW YORK, June 25 (United Press)

The rubberized corset now lays on the shelf
And so does the rubber brassier:
For every girl's doing her melting herself
Now that the Summer is here!

When the mercury climbed upwards, ladies climbed out of their rubber reducers. To-day these lovely fleshtoned garments are being sold at such reduced prices that anyone might own them. But people are not buying them.

Sports girdles and combinations are the rulers of the day. Most garments are of a confining nature, but they are made of cloth so that they may be worn next to the skin and may be laundered. Sections of elastic are placed at various points and rubber garters—sometimes as many as eight—are used to keep the cloth corset in place. Sports models are entirely unboned and the models are often made of silk heavily trimmed with lace. While some models use the brassiere—corset combination, most of the newer types have separate brassieres, since many women are now wearing step-ins with brassiere tops.

There are dozens of varieties of Summer girdles on the market. Some are designed to confine the hips, while others concentrate upon holding in the diaphram. It is almost essential that one be fitted this season since each model is designed for a certain type of figure.

The few women who insist upon melting in spite of hot weather are wearing knitted elastic girdles in preference to rubber corsets in the belief that there is more give to elastic than to heavy rubber.

Medium-sized women are seeking lace brassieres or net and lace-combination brassieres for warm weather.

Among the newer types of corset are those which curve in slightly at the waistline, thus suggesting the normal waist.

PETES HAMMER OUT NEAT WIN COME FROM BEHIND TO SECURE DECISION OVER RAILROADERS

Home Runs by Swanston and Helson Feature 10-5 Victory at Belleville

WHITEHOUSE IN FORM

Left Hander Held Moguls in Check While Teammates Wipe Out Deficit

(By F.D.C.)

The Petes regained their batting eye and shook off their losing streak at Belleville yesterday when they pounded Chuck Jeffrey's left-handed delivery for fourteen hits and beat the Railroaders 10 to 5. As Oshawa took a fall out of Kingston, the days' doings leave the Motorists and Ponies tied for first place with the Petes just a game behind and Kingston and Oshawa coming to Riverside Park for the next two games.

Not half bad, neighbor, not half bad.

Yesterday's matinee was a much closer ball game than the final score would indicate.

The Petes spotted the Quinte lads three runs in the first inning with Jeff Hardill on the rubber.

The big youngster's arm was bothering him and Frank Whitehouse took over the hurling assignment in the second frame and proceeded to hook the Railroaders into the ground.

The left-hander stopped them in their tracks. A single by Meagher in the fourth and a scratch double by Blakely in the seventh being the sum total of their swatting efforts until the ninth when the Petes had a big lead and there was no need to bear down.

Early in the game that three-run margin looked big for although Jeffrey did not seem to have much on the ball he had the Petes popping them up. They picked up one run in the third on Wolfe's long triple and Johnston's timely single but that was the only counter in the first five frames.

In the sixth, however, the visitors began to hammer the pill with a vengeance that foretold the ultimate verdict. A single by Johnston, followed by Harrison's triple and a double by Swanston tied the score in this frame.

A Cluster of Seven.

The teams went into the eighth tied with three runs each, and the Petes chose this stage to break the old ball game wide open, aided materially by Peeney Mills' inability to cover ground in left field. Hagerman did the catching for Belleville yesterday, Mills patrolling left garden. The backstop outfielder looked like Tris Speaker when he made a fine catch of Swanston's drive in the second inning but he fell down literally as well as figuratively in the eighth. With one out Swanston cracked a hot liner to left and Mills was completely beaten, the ball rolling to the cars in deep left while Swanston completed the circuit. A little later in the same frame, with the bases loaded, Helson slammed one a mile a minute past third and although Mills dived in an attempt to interrupt the fast rolling pellet he hit the ground after the Spalding had shot past him and the result was another homer, scoring four runs. Altogether in this frame the Petes scored seven counters and were on Easy street.

Max Swanston and Manager Johnston led the Petes' attack with three hits each, the catcher's trio including a homer and a double while Wolfe and Harrison had useful triples. Altogether the winners had fourteen hits for a total of twenty-six bases a very pleasing contrast to their showing in recent games while their defensive work was clean cut, Hap Harrison featuring, by handling nineteen chances at first base.

Games on Saturday:
Belleville at Oshawa.
Kingston at Peterboro.

The last time Peterboro and Belleville batting orders collected nine, two, Weir and H. Mills being the men to connect.

Helson had the ball player's home run with the bases loaded.

The prediction that Oshawa yesterday was verified. It took finally turned the trick by a 4 to 3 fifth and Whitehouse rolled to Blakely. Legon bunted to Jeffrey and was out.

Jeffrey first up for Belleville got a life when Rose missed his easy roller. Ross sacrificed him to second but Weir fouled to Helson and Legon made a nice catch of W. Mills' fly to right.

Tie the Score.

The sixth saw the Petes even up the count by means of some lusty hitting. Johnston started the rally by ripping a single over Weir's head and Helson sacrificed. Harrison rifled a triple past Casey in right, scoring Johnston, and Swanston double over Ross's head to send Harrison in with the tieing run. Rose rolled to Blakely and Hall flied to Meagher.

The Railroaders died in order, H. Mills and Hagerman on fast plays by Rose and Meagher on a roller to Whitehouse.

The Petes got two hits but no runs in the seventh. Wolfe field to Rose but Whitehouse singled on the ground into right and Legon cut a single through the box. Johnston flied to Blakely. Helson also hit to the shortstop who fumbled but tossed to second, Legon being called out on a decision that gave the runner all the worst of it.

For Belleville Blakely doubled past third and went to third while Whitehouse was throwing out Casey. Harrisons' thrown to Helson apaprently cut off the run but the official verdict said not. Helson made a fine play to throw out Jeffrey, Blakely being held at third. Ross walked but Weir rolled to Johnston, who tossed him out at first.

The Big Frame.

Then came the big inning. It opened harmlessly enough when Harrison lofted to Weir. Swanston, however, ripped a liner to left which Peeney Mills could not move fast enough to block and the Petes backstop circled the bases before the ball got back. That made it 4 to 3 but there was more to come. Rose walked but Hall flied to Mills for the second out. Wolfe beat out a roller to Meagher. Whitehouse hit to Blakely who threw low to first, the error filling the bases. Jeffrey messed up Legon's tap, Rose scoring. Johnston singled to centre, his third hit, scoring Wolfe. With the bases full Helson drove a hot one over third which Mills failed to stop although he dove at the ball and the Spalding rolled to deep left for a home, scoring four runs. Harrison up for the second time in the inning ended the carnival with a roller to Meagher.

Belleville had no comeback. W. Mills and Harry Mills both were thrown out on snappy plays by Rose and Hagerman struck out.

Swanston opened the ninth with his third hit, a single to left. Rose flied to Ross. Hall doubled to left Goyer failing to hold his drive after a run to the foul line. Wolfe hit to Blakely, who threw Swanston out at the plate. Whitehouse rolled to Jeffrey and Hall was out at home.

Belleville wound up the game by getting two counters in the ninth. Meagher singled to left and Blakely also hit safely to the same field, the runners taking an extra base when Hall threw high to first. Meagher scored while Rose was throwing out Casey and Blakely came home when Jeffrey grounded to Harrison, the Petes playing it safe by cutting off the batter in each case. Then Legon made a nice running catch of Ross's drive to right to conclude the argument.

HAVELOCK – NORWOOD LACROSSE TEAM DEFEAT PETERBORO 6–4

Petes Got Short End of Breaks at Norwood Against Combination

HALF TIME 3—3

Outlucked but not outplayed, Peterboro's intermediate lacrosse team dropped their first game of the season yesterday in Norwood to the Havelock-Norwood combines by the score of 6-4. It was a peppery engagement, and the referee, Fred Whitmore of Toronto, had his hands full throughout a busy afternoon. Three of the Have-Nor's goals smacked of charity's flavor, although they were not altogether unearned. One of them Lou LeBarr stopped with his gloved hand, but it slipped through his fingers into the net. On another he went out to intercept a pass to Alex Kempt, but couldn't reach it. Kempt picked it out of the air and lobbed it into the open net. Those were two that were more or less gratuitous. Then there was the first one of all. The "Nor-Haves" were held on even terms almost to the quarter gong and with a share of the breaks the Petes should have had at least one goal. And just prior to intermission the Easterners manoeuvred the odd man inside the defense. LeBarr chose to go out to meet him, rather than wait for his shot. His move failed, and the empty net offered an easy target. Three of Havelock's goals were scored in that way, and they looked easy; but they were the result of sound lacrosse tactics.

In these comments there is no intention to depreciate the Have-Nor victory. Certainly they had the big end of the breaks, but they worked in close often enough, missed several easy chances and gave LeBarr a strenuous session. He stopped a lot of hard drives, and if he had succeeded with the chances he took his performance would have been flawless.

On the other side of the account, the Petes had to work hard for their four counters. Irvin Bailey, who was elected captain by his teammates before the game began, notched two of them one of them coming after a brilliant dodging effort through the defense. As he shot he was heavily body-checked by Jim Hooper and went down in a heap. Ira Dundas socred one from the tail-end of a nice combination which Bailey started and Doug Miller helped along.

The Petes' last went to Danny White in an atack led by Pete King with Dundas assisting. Tht teams were as follows:

Havelock-Norwood—Goal, J. Davidson; point, Hooper; cover point, Charlie Brennan; 1st defense, Ted McGee; 2nd defence, Alex Weir; centre, H. Kitchen; 2nd home, Doug Brennan; 1st home, Alex Wemyt; outside home, L. Plunkett; inside home, L. Jacks; subs., Albert Armstrong and H. Baker.

Peterboro — Goal, L. LeBarr; point, C. McKinnon; cover point, George Mein; 1st defence, Taylor; 2nd defence, D. Miller; centre, Bailey; 2nd home, Ranger; 1st home, Dundas; outside home, J. Killoran; inside home, Pete King; subs., D. White, A. White and J. O'Toole.

Referee—Fred Whitmore.

Timers—W. Stares, Norwood; L. V. O'Connell, Peterboro.

Played Extra Man.

Wilfrid Ranger missed the Norwood goal by a few inches in a combination run with Killoran and Dundas. Hooper handed Bailey a stiff body-check, and LeBarr at the other end blocked Charlie Brennan's shot on a pass from Hooper. It was discovered that the combines were playing eleven men and Baker was benched for the extra man.

Alex Kempt and Doug Brennan sifted through but LeBarr cleared, Killoran had an opening but bounced the ball over the net. Jack, the diminutive inside home man, drew the first blood. He was uncovered and had lots of time asLeBarr went toward him. This youngster got five of the Combines' goals, and should not have been allowed to roam around loose.

In the second period Havelock ran in two "doozies", and the Petes looked as if Lady Luck had entirely deserted them. They braced, however, and with Bailey directing a concentrated attack, ran in three goals. Both McGee and Weir were off when the last goal was scored before half time.

Second Half.

After Jack scored his fourth, Ranger and Danny White worked in close but failed, and Albert Armstrong subbing in goal blocked a hot shot from Killoran. A splendid effort by Dundas went for nothing and Rangers' shot was turned aside Jacks nicked another after Danny White had scored, and Alex Kempt tossed in the only counter of the last period.

The difference between the two teams was shown in the more sustained attack of the Norwood-Havelock amalgams. Alex Weir was a big factor in their victory, and gave a fine exhibition of sportsmanship, as did Alex Kempt also. In this respect none of them had any margin on Ira Dundas, a local junior graduate, who was given a rough passage by the Havelock defense. Irvin Bailey was a marked man all afternoon and likewise bears marks of the gentle railwaymens' sticks. Ranger played an aggressive game and Danny White was effective. Pete King was given a grand razz by his former companions. Killoran and O'Toole worked nicely on the home. McKinnon proved a strong defense man and stopped a lot of plays. George Mein likewise had a good day and Taylor and Miller gave a good account of themselves. The team, however, lacked condition and were not as consistently aggressive as was expected. The attack was often too light, and broke up easily against the defense of Weir, Hooper, Charlie Brennan and McGee.

Hooper used his weight effectively and McGee, who seemed a friendly fellow, had the notion that when a man got by him he could swing his stick after him. In that obsolete style he swung at Bailey and slit his scalp. The Brennan boys were as useful as usual, and Doug especially had a big share in the Havelock attacks.

The return game is scheduled for July 4.

MOTOR CREW DEFEATS PONIES IN HOTLY CONTESTED BATTLE REPLETE WITH MANY THRILLS

Game Went Thirteen Innings Before Decision.

PITCHING FEATURED.

Dainty Struck Out Twelve, Allowing Nine Hits.

KINGSTON, June 25. — (Special.)— After a terrific battle of thirteen innings, Kingston was defeated here yesterday evening by the Oshawa motor crew by the score of 4-3. The baseball played was of the highest class after a bad start, and the fans were treated to a game, the like of which they will not forget for some time to come. Right from the eighth to the thirteenth Oshawa could not get a man on first and the support given Young, of Kingston, by his team was air tight. Oshawa scored the winning run in the thirteenth after the first two men to bat were put out.

Morrison was safe on Batstone's error, his fourth of the game, and Roddick followed through with a hit and Saunders travelled on Halbert's error and Morrison crossed the platter. Kingston made a strong bid in the last. Halbert, the first man, walked, and Batstone and Summerville went out to right and centre field respectively. Cherry brought the stands to their feet by walloping for two bags and Halbert rested on third, but Purvis, who had struck out four times before, was allowed to continue to bat, and once again struck out, the game being lost. Kingston had the game about sewed up with a 3-2 score in the eighth frame, but Somerville lost his head and when Roddick bumped him while passing on his way to second. Somerville became mad and threw the ball at Roddick, the ball going to deep left. In the meantime, Morrison, who had got on through the play, kept tearng the bases and scored. The game was lost right there, as it proved.

It was a wonderful pitching game, and Duke Dainty and Tinner Young put up one grand battle.

Dainty had twelve strike-outs to his credit, and was touched for only nine hits in the thirteen innings, while Young struck out two and was touched for ten hits. Only one walk was given, that being drawn by Halbert in the thirteenth inning.

The fielding of the two teams was great, especially that of Oshawa, and although Kingston had nine errors, six of these were between Batstone and Halbert, the former having four and Halbert two. Somerville suffered two also, and Cherry had one in centre. Ward and Morrison split Oshawa's two errors.

The score by innings:
Oshawa .. .. 1100000100001—4
Kingston .. .. 0120000000000—3

The line-up:
Oshawa—Rowden 2b, R. Fair cf, Tyson c, Warde 3b, Morrison ss, Roddick lf, Saunders 1b, Alger rf, Dainty p, W. Fair rf.

NATURE LORE

By WALLACE HAVELOCK ROBB

Fo[r] you ever have a nighthawk [m]ake its home on your roof? Or rather, [o]n one of them?

[S]ometimes, when there are flat roofs [w]hich small pebbles are present, [t]he nighthawks will come and nest [t]here.

[I]f you have ever been up on a pebbled [r]oof in the hot sun, you will wonder [h]ow the poor birds eggs keep from being hard boiled, but then, you see, [m]ost of the daylight hours are quiet [t]imes for the nighthawk, and the mother [C]an on the eggs to protect them. I [h]ave seen a mother bird come back to [h]er young ones, after being scared away [m]id-day, and stand over them with [o]utstretched wings, to shield them from [t]he sun, too frightened to brood them, [b]ut yet bravely facing danger, in order [t]o give these poor helpless little ones [s]ome protection from the hot sun.

It is impossible to find a nighthawk's [n]est on a pebbled roof, for there is no [n]est. The eggs are simply laid beside [s]ome pebbles, so that you will have a hard time locating them. They are colored just like the pebbles with which they are mingled. If you get curious and think there are nighthawks nesting on your roof, do not walk on the roof, but hide in some way that will let you observe the birds and they will give away the hiding place in due course, whereas, you might tramp on the eggs and not know it, if walking about.

Very often, if the sun is hot, the mother bird will cover the eggs all day long, without a move hardly, and the father will go up into the air and make dashes through clouds of insects, gathering great quantities of them in his open mouth, for he goes through the air like a funnell with wings. He then descends to the roof, feeding the mother bird with gentle and lover like demonstrations of affection, which she seems to like, [a]nd she accepts his gifts of food all day, waiting until evening before she tries to gather a meal for herself.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Petes are only a game away from first place in the Central loop as a result of yesterday's fixtures and with the Ponies scheduled to play here Saturday and Oshawa coming for the Dominion Day attraction Manager Johnston's crew have a great chance to pull up to the first shelf. Saturday's game should be one of the most interesting battles of the season inasmuch as both teams need the win and there is a rivalry between the outfits that should add spice to the proceedings.

Whitehouse is scheduled to go to the hill top for the Petes Saturday. The left hander was in grand form at Belleville yesterday holding the hard-hitting railroaders in complete check after he took over the pitching duty from Hardill in the second frame and a repretition of that brand will give the Ponies something to worry about in the week-end engagement.

Add Max Swanston and Geo. Helson to the list of Peterboro home run hitters the circuit club now consisting of six members.

Some people profess to laugh at the idea of breaks in baseball. Take a look at the story of the eighth inning in Belleville yesterday. A break there made the difference between one run and seven and here is how it was. There were two out when Wolfe hit an easy bounder to Meagher. Any other man on the Peterboro team would have been thrown out but Wolfe's great speed turned the rap into a hit and instead of the side being retired on this play the Petes went in and scored six more runs in the inning.

The Central Ontario League standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Kingston	6	4	.600
Oshawa	6	4	.600
Peterboro	5	5	.500
Belleville	3	7	.300

Games on Saturday:
Belleville at Oshawa.
Kingston at Peterboro.

The last time Peterboro and Belleville played, the top of the Belleville batting order collected nine hits. Yesterday they got but two, Weir and H. Mills being the only members of the Four Horsemen to connect.

Helson had the ball player's dream realized for him yesterday—a home run with the bases loaded.

The prediction that Oshawa would throw the Ponies for a loss yesterday was verified. It took thirteen innings but the Motorists finally turned the trick by a 4 to 3 score. F. D. C.

SPEED — There is more speed in one reel of this picture than there is in Five-reels of any ordinary pictures. From the opening scene to the final fadeout there is not a dull moment. One piece of swift action literally tumbles over another piece of swift action. All leading up to a smashing climax that will take your breath away.

KINGSTON TEAM TO MEET PETES HERE SATURDAY

Much Depends Upon Result of Weekend Game at Riverside

RIVALRY IS KEEN

Nobody Petes Would Rather Beat Than Joe

The Petes' victory over Belleville yesterday and the loss sustained by Kingston at the hands of Oshawa add much to the interest in Saturday's game at Riverside Park, which brings the Ponies and Petes together. A win for Peterboro will leave them tied with the Kingston gang while a Belleville win in Oshawa the same day would tie Oshawa, Kingston and Peterboro. The race is just that close and every game from now on will be fought out until the last man is out.

The Ponies have usually put up a great argument on the local grounds and stung by last evening's reverse will be in fighting form for their visit Saturday. There is no one the Petes would rather beat than Joe Daley's crew and with the the teams feeling that way about it there is every reason to expect a red hot tussle.

The game is called for 3 o'clock and will be in charge of Umpires Colling and Dell.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 61 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Going Back With a Jerk—The too rapid back swing—I have put down as No. 8 in this list of Ten Common Faults not because it is the 8th in the order of its frequency among golfers, but because it is so easily cured. All a golfer has to do to go back slowly and with rhythm is start slowly away from the ball, then let the club take a natural, easy course — without forcing it backward. Just let it swing. Jerking it back destroys all chance of rhythm, because rhythm flows from the muscles. You cannot jerk rhythm out of any human exertion. What I have sought to make plain is that rhythm is not something to be introduced at some particular point in the swing—it begins with the start of the back swing and continues throughout. Begin with rhythm, therefore, and it has the chance to continue through your swing.

EDITOR SPEAKS TO KIWANIANS

"One Plus One Equals What" Subject of Fine Address.

REAL THINGS

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 24.—There is a popular superstition that one and one makes two. On this mathematical axiom the financiers, the economists, the engineers and the builders of this world have conceived and carried forward great projects; yet in their wider experiences there is not an outstanding monetary institution and not a single monumetal enterprise that does not deny the validity of the formula.

"One plus one may equal two, but it may also equal a million or even nothing."

Such were the statements made by Dr. J. Berg Esenwein, editor of Writers' Monthly, of Springfield, Mass., in his address, "One Plus One Equals What?" before 5000 Kiwanians at their 9th International Convention in St. Paul, Minn., today.

Carig not "to spin fine philosophies," the well known writer and editor dealt with what he called 'real things.' 'What are they?' he asked.

"Simply the forces that persist when appearances fade, was his answer to the age old question. And ringing in a little philosophy, even though he did not want to, this nimble editor brought to thousands of listening Kiwanians a second statement, "When you let a thing absolutely alone it is dead!"

"Man's chief quest today is for power. He wants speed. Faster motor cars. More fierce war machines. And he gets all these by his constant contact with things. He developes and creates. The contact of the mind with an idea, is the present day formula for our remarkable progress. And then the contacts enlarge as the idea is opened."

Describing man as meeting with both good and evil in his search for power, Dr. Esenwein stressed the need of human contact. "These life relationships, in which good deeds are multiplied, bring about worth-while living,' he emphasized. "And that is Kiwanis", he said, 'life harnessed and in gear for betterment. Each Kiwanis member is a cog in the immense gear.

"One plus one equals what then?" he asked.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Mining Exchange Quiet With Fractional Changes

TORONTO, June 25.—(Canadian Press). — Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was quiet this morning, with activity mostly in the penny stocks. Transactions numbered 96,401 shares. Argonaut was fractionally lower at 25¼, as was also Cons. West Dome Lake at 13 1-8. Dome Mines was 15 cents higher at 14.40, while Hollinger receded ten cents to 14.75. Keeley displayed strength at 179, two points advance, and Victory Silver dropped to 11, being four points lower than yesterday.

Toronto Market Firm But Trading Is Light

TORONTO, June 25.—(Canadian Press). — The Toronto Stock Exchange was stagnant this morning, the volume of trading being light and changes inconsequential. The tone of the whole was firm, however. Barcelon selling steady at 20½ and banks were only points of activity. Imperial had a recession of a point at 188. Atlantic Sugar strengthened an eighth and Bread Preferred 3-8. C.P.R. gained 3-4 to 140; Winnipeg Railway sold firm at 47. Canadian General Electric Preferred experienced some demand, selling, unchanged, at 52 3-4.

Chicago Wheat Suffers Marked Drop In Prices

CHICAGO, June 25 (Canadian Phess) Material dropts in price were witnessed in the wheat market today during early dealings. Canadian denials of black rust reports, together with lower quotations at Liverpool tended to increase selling as well as to weaken values here and so, too, did cool weather in northwest which is likely to hinder black rust development.

News of revolution in Greece counted also as a depressing factor. Opening, unchanged to 1 1-8c lower, July 154 1-2 and Sept. 153 to 153 3-8 was followed by something of a rally and then by a set back to 153 1-2 for July and 151 3-4 for Sept.

Rainy weather in corn belt weakened corn and oats prices.

After opening at 1-8c lower to 3-8c higher at Sept. 103 1-2 to 103 7-8, corn underwent decided downturn, Sept. touching 101 7-8. Oats started at 1-4 to 1-2c lower down, Sept. 47 1-2 to 47 3-4, raillied a little and then went lower than before. Provision were responsive to weakness of grain.

General Rallying Note Trend In Wall Street

NEW YORK, June 25 — Rallying tendencies were maintained throughout the forenoon trading in Wall St. steady accumulation of stocks, associated with reports of mergers and larger dividends, enabled market to ignore the marking up of call money renewal rate to 4 1-4 per cent and prices made good headway throughout list. Reports that competitors bidding on part of New York central and Delaware and Hudson for control of Lehigh Valley pushed that stock up almost to 81. Public Utilities also made good showing with brisk demand developing for Market Street Railway and United Railways investment issues. U. S. Steel moved within narrow limits but with other popular industrials maintained firm tone. Texas Gulf Sulphur established new top price for the year at 114. International Mercantile Marine moved counter to general trend, sagging to a new 1925 low at 293 3-4.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Visitors and citizens will soon be able to find their way around the city. The Board of Works has decided on the type of street name signs to be purchased; it only re-No Tools mains for the Council Needed. to adopt the plan, obtain the signs, and erect them. And when this advance into the realm where civilized cities dwell has been made, Peterboroughites will pat themselves on the back.

During the winter months it is no new experience for a householder to be summoned to his door by a stranger who wishes to know whether he is on the right street. Without a pick and shovel no one could reach the engraving on the sidewalk, even if he knew th spot to dig.

The end of that trouble is in sight.

Douro's Old Home Reunion has been so successful that Mr. Towns called The Examiner this morning to announce that the event Here's a Hint. will be extended another day. That is a real sign of success, and a high compliment to Mr. Towns, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to promote the reunion. Hundreds of old Douro boys and girls came home and met their friends; the folk at home learned of acquaintances who had been gone from the township many years; and both have benefitted.

Douro's success is an incentive to Peterborough, standing on the edge shivering while all around are other municipalities not half so pretentious plunging in to a pleasant swim in the sea of old remembrances and present achievements.

RURAL CREDITS BILL.

OTTAWA, June 25 (Canadian Press).—The rural credits bill was given second reading in the House of Commons today.

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of finance, explained that the fundamental principle of the bill was co-operation between the Dominion and provinces. It was made very clear that advances under the act should not be made to any province unless that province agreed.

The advance constituted a debt of province to dominion, secured by provincial bonds. The province was responsible for the collection of principal and interest.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen said it was "a joke to call this rural credits." He wanted to know if any of the provinces had ever asked federal parliament to enact such a bill.

Demand War With Britain

LONDON, June 25 (Canadian Press).—Agency despatches from Peking say 20,000 students, merchants and workmen paraded the streets today with banners inscribed "Declare war on England." The despatches declare the demonstrators shouted, "Death to the English brigands," but that there were no signs of further disturbances and that less enthusiasm was shown today than during previous Chinese demonstrations. Many Chinese troops and police guarded foreign houses and shops and all entrances to the legation quarter were kept under observation.

Police Foil Plot.

SHANGHAI, June 25 (Canadian Press).—The police yesterday obtained information of a widespread student plot to hire motor cars and dash around the international settlement here, throwing bombs and shooting. The police therefore ordered that no cars be let for hire except to well-known customers.

SITUATION TO-DAY.

SHANGHAI, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—Telegrams from the various storm centres in the anti-foreign movement depict the situation as follows:

At Wuhu, near Nanking, the food boycott of foreign warships continues, but the Chinese authorities are maintaining order.

Order has been restored at Ningpo, in Chekiang Province, south of Shanghai. Chinese soldiers are guarding the foreign quarter.

The Chinese authorities at Swatow on the coast between Amoy and Canton have given assurances that foreigners will be protected, but these are not considered convincing because of the absence of control over the agitators.

At Amoy, the Chinese and foreign authorities are co-operating and the situation is described as satisfactory.

At Hoihow, on the Island of Naiman, south-west of Canton, the situation continued disturbed, and there is much uneasiness. No change is reported from other centres but a generally tense atmosphere prevails.

AT THE CAPITOL

MEIGHAN SCORES IN SMALL TOWN COMEDY.

Every ambitious boy dreams of the time when he will go out into the big world and return to the old home town, famous and rich. Then the mean old grouch on the corner, the stingy grocer who kept too close an eye on his bananas, the catty schoolmarm, the patronizing wife of the town's "big man" who objected to juvenile sniffling—everybody will swell with pride and importance, and "I knew him when" will be the town's slogan.

That is the fundamental theme of Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount comedy-romance, 'Old Home Week,' which made its initial appearance this afternoon at the Capitol Theatre. But George Ade, the famous American humorist, who wrote the story, has given this basic idea an original twist, filled it with comedy ingredients, added some dramatic trimmings, a surprise climax and a delightful ending, and the result is a picture bubbling over with wholesome humor, clean fun and homespun pep.

As Tom Clark, the native son who "makes good" right in his own home town, Tommy Meighan has a role that suits him to the proverbial "T." His performance rings true because there is an air of unaffected naturalness about it, an undercurrent of sincerity and plausibility that holds the interest of the audience from the opening flash-in to the final fade-out.

Mr. Meighan has the assistance of a tip-top supporting cast which is headed by charming and lovely Lila Lee who contributes a delightful characterization as Tom's sweetheart. Larry Wheat, Charles Dow Clark, Max Figman and Charles Sellon are a few of the other prominent players, who give a very good account of themselves.

AT THE REGENT

"AMERICAN MANNERS."

Richard Talmadge, whose stunts have gained him a unique position on the screen, is the star of a thrilling new picture, the first of a series of Carlos productions for F. B. O., which comes to the Regent Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "American Manners" is the title of this photodrama, which is replete with action revolving around the activities of a smuggling ring which is using the ships of Dan Thomas, merchant prince, to evade the law. How young Roy Thomas (Richard Talmadge) foils this band, clears his father of suspicion in connection with the smuggling, and wins the hand of the girl of his heart, forms a fast-action drama which will have an audience holding onto the arms of the seats. Mr. Talmadge is supported by an exceptional cast including Helen Lynch, Lee Shumway, Mark Fenton, Pat Harmon, Arthur Melette and William Turner.

Imagine the star of America's Olympic team involved in running down a band of desperate smugglers who are using his father's ships to evade the Federal authorities! Imagine the situation in which this boy comes home from abroad pretending that his manners have become Frenchified by his foreign schooling and putting this over as a joke on his family only to run into a thousand serious complications. Imagine his diving from the tall topmast of a sailing vessel to rescue the daughter of another ship-owner. These are only a few of the things which go to make the Carlos Production, "American Manners," one of the outstanding entertainments of the motion picture year. Richard Talmadge, who is fast climbing to the crest in pictures, is starred in this photoplay which comes to the Regent Theatre to-night. "American Manners" is the first of a series of Carlos productions starring Mr. Talmadge which are being made for F. B. O. A capable cast, including Helen Lynch, Mark Fenton, Pat Harmon and others, supports the star.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES S. GRIFFIN.

The death occurred yesterday morning at 9 o'clock of Charles S. Griffin, 149 Lake Street, after a short illness. The deceased was 73 years of age, and has resided in Peterboro for the past 30 years.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, three sons: Fred of this city, James of Hamilton, Wilbert of Toronto, and two daughters, Mrs. Wilfred Theobald and Mrs. John Caines, both of this city; also two sisters, Mrs. Emma O'Brien, Minneapolis, Minn., and Mrs. Barne Wylie of Toronto, and a brother, Clayton, of Detroit.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon, June 26, from the family residence, the service being conducted by Rev. J. D. Richardson.

Interment will take place at Little Lake Cemetery.

SISTER M. CLEOPHAS.

In the early morning of June the twenty-second, death entered the portals of Mount St. Joseph, Peterborough, claiming the life of Sister M. Cleophas. The departed sister had been engaged in hospital work in Peterborough, Lindsay and Parry Sound until last fall when a serious malady made inroads upon her strength and vitality, and necessitated a cessation of her former activities.

The name of Sister Cleophas suffices to bring to mind all that is sweetest, purest, and most attractive in virtue. Always young of heart, she was a perfect type of sweet simplicity and a beautiful example of the zealous, self-secrificing spirit, possessing in a paramount degree kindliness and cheerfulness. Her death was but the echo of her life, her virtues, particularly her cheerfulness, shineing forth during her last moments with the greatest lustre. Strengthened by the last consoling rites of Holy Mother Church, Sister Cleophas was ready and anxious to meet her Master and Judge.

Sister Cleophas Egan was born and educated at St. Mary's, Ontario. Eighteen years ago she entered the Community of St. Joseph, Peterboro, and zealously devoted her life to its interests.. Left to mourn her loss are two brothers, Mr. James Egan of St. Marys'; Mr. Michael Egan, Stratford; and three sisters, Mrs. Faggart, Tillbury; Mrs. Clyne, Port Dalhousie; Mrs. Duggan, Tampa, Florida.

The funeral mass was sung on Wednesday at eight o'clock by His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, assisted by Rev. Fathers McGuire, Butler and Finn, and Rev. C. McCarney. In a few comprehensive words His Lordship spoke of the deceased sister, pointing out that her life was the exemplification of our Lord's promise, "And every one that hath left house, or brethern, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children or lands for My name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall possess life everlating."

CHARLES ALLISON.

Older residents in Peterborough, particularly, will be sorry to learn of the death in Chicago early this morning of Mr. Charles Allison, many years ago a member of the editorial staff of the Examiner, and at that time a popular and well known citizen of Peterborough.

Mr. Allison had been a resident of Chicago for over thirty years and had not visited Peterborough since the death of his mother here seventeen years ago. Mr. Fred Allison, of H. LeBrun and Co., a brother of the deceased, was informed of his death this morning.

The funeral will take place in Chicago. Mr. Allison is survived by a widow living in Chicago.

Weddings

BROWNE—TAYL'

In the presence of immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties, a very pretty house wedding was solemnized at two o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Hannah B. Taylor, 214 Aylmer St., when her only daughter, Theresa Bertha, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Carl Stanford Browne, M. A. son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Browne of Zion, Illinois. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Langford in the drawing room, which was arranged with quantities of palms, ferns, peonies and roses.

The bride who was given in marriage by her brother, W. Everett Taylor, wore a beautiful gown of white silk chiffon, over rose satin-faced crepe, hand embroidered in a conventional design of rose and pastel shades and heavy gold thread, the scallops at the hem caught with pastel-tinted ribbons. Her hat was a large leghorn, trimmed with pale pink georgette and hand-painted scarf of the same, the painted design in gold and rose matching the embroidery on the dress. She carried an arm bouquet of ophelia roses, and wore white kid shoes and white stockings.

The bridesmaid, Miss Jessie Miller of Toronto, was attired in poudre blue georgette, embroidered with French flowers, wearing hat to match, and carrying an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

Dr. J. S. Graham acted as best man.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. T. Cruikshank and Miss Ellen Eagleson sang very sweetly "Beloved, it is morn."

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served from a table arranged in pink and white, with large centrepiece of pink roses. Mrs. Taylor assisted her daughter, wearing a gown of black georgette and lace corsage bouquet of butterfly roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Browne left later for a honeymoon motor trip after which they will reside in Peterboro. The bride travelled in an ensemble suit of blonde colored canton silk crepe, embroidered in blue. Her coat of blonde Venetian cloth was bordered with fox fur, her small hat of blonde silk had a band of embroidered wool flowers, and she wore also a very handsome scarf of blonde georgette, the ends painted in a conventional design of bright flowers. Her shoes and stockings matched her suit in shade.

HULL—DROPE.

GRIMSBY, June 25. —A wedding of wide-spread interest was solemnized in quaint Old St. Andrews Church, Grimsby, Ont., on Wednesday, June 24, when Gladys Coyle only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Drope, of Lake Lodge, Grimsby, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward H. Hull, only son of Edward Hull, of Bloomington, California, and the late Mrs. Hull. The church was tastefully decorated by friends of the bride with blue delphinium, marguerites and roses. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. J. Allan Ballard, L. Th., and Rev. W. P. Robertson, B. D., of Hamilton. The groom was attended by Mr. Frank H. Smye of Hamilton. The ushers were Messrs Gordon W. Drope, brother of the bride, Arthur S. O'Heir and Harry L. Wright of Hamilton. The bride's attendants were Miss Maude Ballard, Grimsby, and Miss Marjorie McLay, Toronto. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Mr. W. Harry Daw of Hamilton. The bride was gowned in white crepe back satin made on simple lines with circular front skirt and long tight sleeves. Her train of satin, flecked with silver hung from the shoulders and was cut V-shaped to the waist and finished there with a cluster of orange blossoms and edged with a picoted ruffle. The lining of the train was of white georgette. The veil of bridal net, arranged with a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls, had an old-fashioned long lace veil. Her bouquet was of sweet peas and lily of the valley, and she wore the groom's gift of dinner ring of diamonds set in platinum. During the signing of the register Mrs. W. Bingham, cousin of the bride, of Peterborough, sang "O Perfect Love." A reception was afterwards held at Lake Lodge, the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Drope received at the entrance to the drawing-room, while the bride and groom and bridesmaids received in front of the mantel, banked with roses and olive branches, the drawing-room being tastefully decorated with pink roses and begonias. Tea was served from a marquee on the lawn. Mrs. Drope was becomingly gowned in cafe au lait crepe romaine, with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Nelles, aunt of the bride, was in a poudre blue crepe de chine and old lace. An interesting fact concerning this wedding is that Miss Drope is of the fifth generation of Lake Lodge and the ninth bride. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Hull left on a motor trip to the White Mountains, the bride travelling in an ensemble suit of copper colored faille, with hat and shoes to match. On their return they will reside at Grimsby.

JOSEY—CORKERY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Silver Creek, N.Y., when Claire Catharine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Corkery, of Peterboro, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to William Josey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Josey, of Buffalo, N.Y., by Rev. Fr. MacCourt. The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mullane, also of Buffalo, N.Y. The happy couple left on a motor trip to Peterboro, and later will reside in Buffalo.

Around The City.

This forenoon at 11.20, the Fire Department had its first call in 11 days, to a chimney fire in 491 Romaine street.

The following building permits were issued to-day by the City Engineer: J. Hyndland, 864 George street, to erect a summer kitchen; W. Mann, 162 Smith, to build a private garage; J. McLay, Waterford, private garage; J. G. Graham, 513 Hunter, sun room.

FEARS ALLAYED ON RESULTS OF SECURITY PACT

Agreement Must Be Made Fool Proof Before Being Signed.

DEFINITE BOUNDS.

Britain to Decide Finally Expenditure of Her Blood and Wealth.

LONDON, June 26.—(Special by United Press). — Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain's statement in the House of Commons regarding the proposed security pact has had one important and immediate effect in Great Britain; it has made it clear before the Sovereign's signature is finally appended to any such treaty that it will have to be foolproof and recognize that with Great Britain herself will rest, in the last analysis, the decision when her blood and treasure shall be used in armed conflict of the continent.

Under the proposed pact she will guarantee the western frontier of Germany and that frontier only. But before any final step is taken there will be a full public discussion in connection with the German-Polish boundary issue. The London Times says in this connection: "It is perhaps as well, however, that it should be stated now and should be made perfectly clear from the outset that we must not in any case be involved in a European war on account of special relations between France and Poland."

Opponents Dumb.

The advocates of the isolation policy were almost dumb under Mr. Chamberlain's devastating attack on the futility of such a policy.

It was suggested in Liberal quarters to-day that before the pact finally takes shape some definite understanding should be obtained from France on the score of disarmament. It is contended that this should not be left until after the pact is signed. It is therefore likely that Mr. Chamberlain in the forthcoming important negotiations will raise this issue.

It is the huge expenditure in France on aircraft which has made it necessary for their successive British Governments to sanction heavy appropriations for the development of the country's air force. France's submarine building programme also has an important bearing on the Admiralty's plans for cruiser construction.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech and the debate which followed have served to allay the initial fears regarding the Foreign Secretary's commitments.

The British policy, it is clear from Chamberlain's statement, puts the interest of Europe before the interest of either France or Germany, and, according to the Manchester guardian, the British Ministers must firmly adhere to it.

Both the French and German reaction to this air clearing debate is eagerly awaited.

Handcuffs and Cell Greeted Youth Now In City When He Tried To Cross Line For Visit, He Says

Cecil Greer, a youth of 20, who is visiting at the home of L. F. Adlam, Sherbrooke street, has just had an experience with the immigration authorities at Detroit which he is not likely to forget in a life time.

The young man's home is in St. Ola, Hastings, County, where his father is a prominent business man, and also town clerk. Cecil left home on Monday to visit relatives in Detroit, his first trip to the American side. When he reached that city early in the afternoon of Tuesday, he was taken with other Canadians, he says, to the immigration officers and put through the third degree. First the $8 head tax was taken from him, and he was questioned as to his solvency. He had upwards of $100 on his person, so that no objection could be registered on that score. He lacked however the necessary medical certificates, and for this reason was refused admission, even as a visitor.

Cecil does not complain that the officials insisted that the regulations be observed, but he does object to the treatment which he received. He was kept in close confinement with several others from 2.30 Tuesday afternoon until 7.30 Wednesday morning, and was not permitted anything to eat. To make his escape impossible he was hand-cuffed, he says; the first time in his life he was ever subjected to that indignity. On Wednesday morning his head tax was returned to him, and he was placed on the train for Toronto. Before he departed he was supplied by the Consul-General in Detroit with two blank medical certificates, with instructions to have them filled in and signed by a medical man at Kingston if he ever hoped to get into the United States. He reached Peterboro at Noon on Wednesday.

CHINESE STRIKE HAS ENDED AND STORE DOORS ARE OPEN FOR FIRST TIME IN A MONTH

Shipping Strike Boycott Still in Force and Situation Remains Tense.

MISSIONARIES SAFE.

Some in Interior Feared For, But Canton Men Make Escape.

By Edmund Buckley
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

SHANGHAI, June 26. — Banks and shops to-day took down their shutters for the first time in four weeks, during which a general strike had kept business at a standstill.

Workers for most of the foreign firms returned, thereby relieving weary foreigners whose troubles had recently been aggravated by the intense heat. While the daily life of the foreign colony has been slightly relieved by to-day's resumption, business itself has only slightly benefited, since a shipping strike boycott is still rigidly enforced. Vessels are taking and discharging only passengers and mails and are not moving freight.

Chinese students opposed any resumption of work, but the advice of business men prevailed.

SHANGHAI, June 26.—(Canadian Press).—The general strike has terminated. All the larger stores are re-opening, but shipping continues paralyzed and Japanese and British cotton mills are still closed. Radical elements supporting the general strike and boycott of foreigners are striving by intimidation to frighten the workers away from many establishments.

The general strike in Shanghai was declared, following the killing of a number of demonstrators who were protesting against the prosecution of strikers in the cotton mills.

FEAR FOR MISSIONARIES.

HONG-KONG, June 26 (Canadian Press).—All foreign missionaries have escaped from Canton, but there are grave fears concerning the fate of some of these in country districts, from whom nothing has been heard since the outbreak of the anti-foreign movement. This is the report of O. W. McMillon and W. W. Creighton, Presbyterian missionaries, who arrived here to-day from Canton.

For which alleged offence he was arrested on warrant last night. He was remanded for a week, bail being set at $5,000.

JAP PURCHASES INDICATE WAR WITH CHINESE

Despatches Say Strange Dealings in Cotton Presage Munitions Manufacture.

WAR-LIKE INTENTIONS.

Japan Steadily Buying Manganese Strengthens Belief in Hostile Preparations.

LONDON, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Despatches from Bombay to the Daily Mail and Daily Telegraph assert that a belief prevails in Bombay that Japan is preparing for war with China. The belief is based mainly on unusual dealings in the cotton market. Japanese exporters, it is asserted, are buying cotton very extensively and stocks, which were plentiful a month ago, consequently are dwindling.

The fact that Japan is reported also as making large purchases in the United States strengthens the belief of her war-like intentions, while the further statement that Japan is steadily buying manganese is held to show that she contemplates the manufacture of considerable munitions.

HON. JOHN MARTIN TO BE PREMIER?

Toronto Report Quotes Politician as Forecasting Ferguson's Resignation.

TORONTO, June 26.—(Canadian Press).—The honor and obligation of the Premiership of Ontario is reserved for Hon. John Martin, who is positively to be entrusted with this high office in the next three months, a Toronto report to-day quotes "a well-known politician" as saying. "Premier Ferguson," the report says, "who has gone to Europe for a holiday, will resign when he returns in September. He will not attempt to enter the Federal House. Hon. Mr. Henry, Acting Premier, will by the time Mr. Ferguson returns, be installed in the throne now occupied by Sir Adam Beck."

ARMED BANDITS GET AWAY WITH A BIG PAYROLL

Hamilton Street is the Scene of a Daring Robbery This Afternoon.

$7,000 CASH TAKEN.

Employee With Money Unable to Identify Car or Assailants.

HAMILTON, June 26. — Canadian Press. — Two armed men held up the Pure Milk Company's pay car at the corner of Hughson and Cannon streets this afternoon, and escaped with $7000 in cash.

George Fowler, an employee of the company, was returning to the Pure Milk Plant from the Union Bank, where he had drawn the week's payroll. As his car approached the corner a big car containing two men, leaped to the running board. At the point of their guns they forced Fowler to hand over the satchel containing $7000, and made a speedy escape.

Apparently the hold-up was not observed by the passers-by and no information came to the police until Fowlers' telephone call. The victim was able to give only the scantiest description of his assailants or their car, but he believed them to be foreigners. They wore no masks and were dressed in dark clothes.

Fowler failed to notice the license number or make of car, which he said was a dark colored ch.

Nails For Diamonds Is New Switching Scheme

MONTREAL, June 26. — On complaint of Morris. Worth, of New York, N. Worth alleges that he paid Gould 2050 for box of diamonds, but that boxes were switched and he received a dozen bright new nails.

ARMSTRONG MAY RESIGN OFFICE WITHOUT DELAY

Expected That Defeated Premier Will Recommend Rhodes at Once.

VICTORS JUBILANT.

New Leader Says Playing Politics at Wrong Time Caused Landslide.

HALIFAX, June 26. —(Canadian Press). — Premier E. S. Armstrong was to-day enroute to Halifax from his constituency of Shelburne where he yesterday suffered personal defeat in the General Election which swept his government out of office and elected a house consisting of 40 Conservatives and 3 Liberals. While consitutionally his government may remain in office until the opening of the new legislature, it is anticipated that Premier Armstrong will call on early meeting of his administration and place his resignation in the hands of his honour, the Lieutenant Governor, and recommend that Hon. E. N. Rhodes ,leader of the victorious Conservatives and former speaker of the Dominion House of Commons, be called upon to form the new government.

New Leader's Aims.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes said to-day, "It will be my endeavour when called upon to form government which will be truly representative and composed of men who will command the confidence of the people. I am deeply sensible of the great responsibility which has been placed upon my shoulders and though fully aware of my limitations, it will be my earnest endeavour to cope with the many and grave problems confronting the Province which to-day finds itself in a sorry condition.

"In its struggle to retain power the Armstrong administration and those who supported it made the mistake of attempting to play politics at a time when we were confronted with a grave situation with respect to which a serious minded and tax burdened people had the right to expect at least an effort at some reasonable solution.

ZEPPELINS ABLE TO CROSS POLE

Dr. Eckner Says Flight Was Planned If Amundsen Had Succeeded.

NEED FUNDS.

BERLIN, June 26 — (Canadian Press).—It is the opinion of Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin works, that Zeppelin airships as they now are constructed could successfully cross the North Pole.

It was originally planned, Dr. Eckener added, if Reald Amundsen's dornier planes were successful in reaching the North Pole to repeat the flight next year with an airship.

If the funds were forthcoming an airship for traversing the North Pole could be constructed in fifteen months. Dr. Eckener admitted that a plan for Polar exploration by airship was under way during the life of Count Zeppelin, inventor of the Zeppelin airship, but the collection of funds for the air voyage was interrupted by the World War.

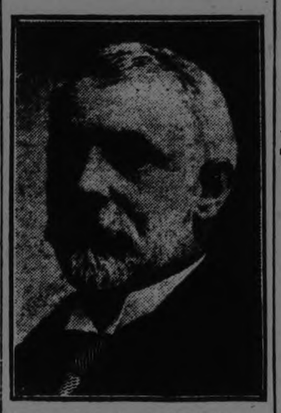
FIELDING HONORED



RT. HON. W. S. FIELDING.

OTTAWA, June 26. — (Canadian Press). — By unanimous vote, the House of Commons this morning approved the granting of an annuity of $10,000 to the Right. Hon. W. S. Fielding "in recognition of his long and distinguished public service."

"No matter what amount is put in the estimates we could never repay the great service rendered to the Dominion of Canada by Right. Hon. W. S. Fielding," said Right. Hon. George P. Graham, in asking that the action of the House be unanimous.

TRIPLE SLAYING WAS UNCOVERED

Two Men and a Woman Found With Battered Heads To-day.

SLAYER UNKNOWN.

Hamilton, June 26. — Canadian Press. — Their skulls crushed in by a heavy instrument, two men and a woman were found dead in a Ferris street apartment this morning.

William Buda, Mary Luhatuck, and an unknown man, all foreigners, are the victims.

The triple murder was discovered by Sophia Muhaluck, sister-in-law of Buda.

The police believe from an examination of the bodies that the three had been dead since yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Muhaluck told the police that when she called at the flat yesterday morning she found Buda and Mary Luhatuck, with whom he lived, drunk, and in the midst of a violent quarrel. She had advised the woman to leave Buda, as she was not married to him.

Returning at nine o'clock this morning she found the bodies. All three bore marks of a brutal attack, and the features were almost unrecognizable. An early theory that the deaths were the result of a three-cornered drunken fight has been abandoned by the police, as a close search of the apartment failed to reveal any instrument with which the crushing blows could have been administered.

CURRENCY INCREASE.

Caillaux Proposes to Augment Money Supply and Issue Bonds.

PARIS, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Semi-official sources said to-day that Finance Minister Caillaux proposes to increase French currency by six billion francs and to increase the Bank of France's advances to the State by the same amount. His financial plans, it was stated, also include the issuance of four per cent. bonds on dollar or gold parity guaranteed against exchange fluctuations.

CAPTURES WOLF.

J. W. Miller Catches Fierce Animal—After Three Days Rangers Enter Cage.

TORONTO, June 26.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests of Ontario, to-day received word from J. W. Miller, superintendent of Algonquin Park, that he has been able to capture a timber wolf without injuring the animal. Though it not stated how the capture was accomplished, Mr. Miller says that after three days' captivity, rangers were able to enter the animal's cage.

LIBERAL RULE OF 43 YEARS SWEPT AWAY IN NOVA SCOTIA BEFORE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

To Shorten Campaigns In Federal Elections

OTTAWA, June 26.—(Canadian Press).—A reduction in the time between nomination day and polling day in Federal elections was made by the Commons yesterday after considerable opposition had been offered to the measure submitted as an amendment to the Elections Act. On a standing vote the section of the bill reducing the time from 14 to 7 days carried by 60 to 48.

NORTH COUNTRY CAN BE TOURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Official Map Seems to Slight This Wonderful Tourist Paradise

GOOD ROADS

Trip Over This Section Cannot Be Rivalled Anywhere in Canada

The vacation season is at hand and people with motor cars are on the lookout for good routes. A friend of The Examiner said to-day that the official map seemed to stop at Lindsay and Peterboro, which would indicate to the intending tourist that the north country was impassible.

There are four roads leading to the north country; one leads to Coe Hill and gives admission to burnt over and inhospitable country, while there is another route which leads to the very attractive country about Stoney Lake, over roads of a rather doubtful character.

Still another road goes north through Burleigh and Apsley, branching off into the back townships, but points farther north than these villages cannot be reached by motor.

The trip through Buckhorn, up the Missisauga River, which leads to Lovesick and numerous other waters, stops at those little northern lakes.

This is a most beautiful trip, with full accommodations at Buckhorn, but it is too short for the tourist.

He, however, who wishes to take his family out for a health jaunt, lasting a week or more, into a country which has the aspect of being created for the tourist, can leave Peterboro, cross Chemong Lake, continue due west, crossing Pigeon Creek at Cowan's Bridge, which is but thirty feet long, then turn to the right and over well travelled roads proceeding to Bobcaygeon. This route is within half a mile as short as the much-talked-of route across Pigeon Creek bridge.

From Bobcaygeon go north 18 miles to Kinmount, over the Burnt River, and from there proceed to Minden, thence to a distance of at least 75 miles from Peterboro.

Splendid Roads.

The roads in this part of the country are old colonization highways, little travelled, and in splendid condition, and on every hand wood forests and clusters of lakes, where fish abound.

The tourist may camp anywhere and sleep in the car, and as the elevation of the country is from 1,000 to 1,500 feet above the level of Peterboro, the air is remarkably pure, while the surroundings are deliciously clean and sweet.

Peterboro people seem to know very little of the far back country, where lumbering ceased many years ago, but if they would take this trip they would never regret the experience. The settlers are sparse but of a decidedly superior character, and help make life pleasant for the camper who likes to see a human face occasionally.

Game abounds in lake and bush,

Three Seats Out of Forty-three Remain to Former Government.

PREMIER DEFEATED.

Only One Liberal of the Last House Returns to His Seat.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 26. —(Canadian Press). — Nova Scotia found itself this morning in the hands of a Conservative administration-elect, for the first time in forty three years while, the liberal forces which had wielded uninterrupted power during that period found themselves with but three sure representatives in an assembly of 43, as a result of the most astonishing political upheaval recorded in Nova Scotia since Confederation achieved at the polls in yesterday's provincial general election. The Liberal government went down with only three survivors and Premier Armstrong went down with it when Shelburne County which he contested returned two Conservative members with safe majorities. Only one Liberal member of the last house was returned, Hon. Wm. Chisholm, minister of Works and Mines, who with his colleague, was elected in Antigonish County. Alister McLeod, a new comer to the political field, was elected in Victoria County.

Labour was obliterated and eight of the candidates are believed to have lost their deposits. In this connection it may be noted that Archibald Terris, Labour member of the last house was returned in Cumberland County where he ran under the endorsation of the Conservative party.

Great enthusiasm greeted the victory of Conservatives throughout the Province wherever returns were publicly posted, but the celebration was greatly curtailed and moderated by a drenching downpour of rain that started early in the afternoon and continued until midnight.

Armstrong's Valedictory.

Last night Premier E. H. Armstrong, at Shelburne, gave out the following statement:

"The latest information unmistakably indicates that a substantial majority of the electors have come to the conclusion that the time for a change had arrived. Outstanding

NEW YORK, June 26. — The value of aeroplanes from France during the first three months of the year totalled 32,449,000 francs, according to advices received by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York from its French Information Service. A LINE-O-TYPE.

From rumors of war in China—from actual war in Morocco—from revolution in Greece—from sudden deaths everywhere — and from the thought of them, we sek refuge in our calm gardens here in Peterborough. We know the human world is a struggle. Human behaviour is far from perfect. People are admonished to be kind to one another, but they fail of perfection. The emulsion of egotism is in the milk of humanity. The crowds seem hawklike, aggressive and acquisitive, hostile, pushing, and inconsiderate.

Peaceful Garden.

We seek, as individuals, a kindlier region, a more sympathetic area where beauty grows as a flower and organic life lives as a song in the wild grape vines. The late tulips are dropping their last petals. The wild geraniums are fading out of the woods. The iris has opened in Oriental splendor of architecture and color. That Queen of Sheba, the peony, is bursting its buds, and columbine and honeysuckle are in bloom.

Here, in Peterborough, we are far from wars and the rumors of wars, away from contention and strife, and in the perfumes of the lilac, and the fields are green with new grain, and the gardens bright with strawberry blossoms or red with the berries. Summer is everywhere.

A crow flies into the maples. A dozen blue jays chase him. The robin and the wood thrush hide away from the blue jay. A squirrel hunts for sound acorns under the cake. A house wren chases the squirrel. A cow bird lays her eggs in the nest of an outraged brown thrasher. There is a swift flight of wonderful wings and a hawk passes over the woods. All things scurry to cover. The broken shells on the ground show where a nest has been ravaged.

The delphiniums are turning yellow in the first flush of their growth. There is an enemy at their roots. There is a withered peony stalk. The ants are on the dried-up buds. Is the garden a sanctuary? Yes, if the human sees it with the eyes of illusion; otherwise it is a savage battleground. But to be rested we see it with the eyes of illusion and observe that the lilacs are in bloom.

Yesterday a woman called us to ask: "Is it true that China has declared war on Britain?"

The hawk casts his shadow over the garden.

The age-old fear stirs the hearts of humans.

Wisdom less. Needed.

The only difference between difficulties and impossibilities is, with "impossibilities" it takes more time, that's all."

* * *

Poetry again! Like the poor, the rhymster is ever with us. Some of it is passable, some of it impossible. And a lot of it is senseless. Here's a "poet," for instance, who suggests that The Examiner should publish his effusion in which he subornates his reasoning power in an enthusiastic attempt to make "found" rhyme with "ground." This is the result:

"To go afar, it has been found,
Both feet must be upon the ground."

We would like to ask the writer what about the ocean liner, the airplane, the transcontinent..l train?

In prose or in poetry, it is the wisdom of thought, not the splicing of sounds, that puts in the punch.

The man who will give as much time and serious consideration to his work as he does to his worries, will have less insomia and more income.

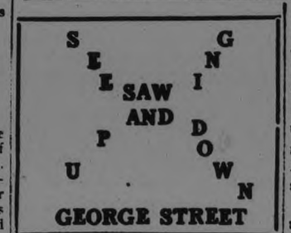
KEEP THE HABIT OF PHONING 275



See-sawing up and down George street I saw Leon Frazer, secretary of the Peterborough Branch of the Motor League and of half a dozen other organizations.. Knowing more of local conditions than most citizens, he promised an interesting article on "Where to spend a picnic near Peterboro".....Saw a man who told me there would be no circus here this year and having no definite information could not contradict him ..... Saw one of the city's ex-dog catchers, and he dosen't know what Peterborough is coming to .... Saw J. H .Burnham and he spoke enthusiastically of the tourist possibilities of the country north of Peterborough .... Saw a June wedding party taking up all the street and they made as much noise it sounded like a fight .....

When you get a grouch on, just jab yourself back of the ear with the sense of humor. If this inoculation fails, go out and call some husky on the street some names and then you will probably get, right over your right eye, something to be sulky about. Nursing a grouch or holding a grudge unfits you for the companionship of man or beast. That wasn't heard on George Street but learned there .....

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

The wonder trip of the coming summer will be conducted by Dean Laird of MacDonald College, to Victoria, B.C., and back.

Inspired by the success of the trip to Victoria last year on the occasion of the Teachers Federation firm.

meeting at that point, and filled with patriotic motives for everyone to see their own country, the Dean has arranged for a special train of standard sleeping cars to leave Toronto on July 20, visiting Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver thence steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be via the Okanagan Valley, Nelson, the Kootenay Lakes, Windermere Bungalow camps from which place the party will be motored to Banff, 104 miles over the newly completed Banff-Windermere Highway, the most charming and awe-inspiring trip it is possible to conceive, with stops at Radium Hot Springs, Vermilion River, and Storm Mountain Bungalow Camps—another day at Banff, then Edmonton, Saskatoon, Devil's Gap Bungalow Camp, near Kenora on the Lake Of The Woods, steamer from Fort William to Port McNicholl, thence rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate on August 10.

NEW PASTOR IN CAMPBELLFORD

Induction This Afternoon—Rev. James Grier 17 Years in Canada.

FROM MONTREAL.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 26. — Rev. James Grier, the new pastor of St. Andrew's church, accompanied by Mrs. Grier and their two children, arrived in town from Montreal Thursday afternoon and the family is now installed in the manse. Mr. Grier will be formally inducted into the charge at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The new pastor of St. Andrew's is a native of Donegal County, Ireland, but has lived in Canada for the past 17 years and received his High school and college education here. He was a student at Westminster Hall, Vancouver, and graduated in arts from McGill University. His theological training was receieved in the Presbyterian College, Montreal. Like so many other ministers, Mr. Grier saw service in the mission field of the west during his college days. Before he graduated he was assistant pastor of the church at La Chute, Que., and during his last year in theology was assistant to Rev. M. A. Campbell, of the First Presbyterian church, Montreal.

After his ordination Mr. Grier was called to the Presbyterian church in Caron, Sask., where he remained four and a half years, leaving there to accept the pastorate of the church in Montreal East, occupying that pulpit until the congregation voted to enter the union.

Mrs. Grier is a daughter of the late Dr. W. R. Nichol, F.R.C.S., who was a prominent member of the medical profession in Winnipeg. She is a graduate of Manitoba University, both in arts and law and would have practised at the bar had she not chosen a domestic life rather than a professional career.

MRS. ALEXANDER FERGUSON.

MILLBROOK, June 26. — The death of Mrs. Alexander Ferguson, at the advanced age of ninety years, marks the removal of one of Millbrook's oldest residents, highly respected and greatly beloved by all who knew her, and leaves a vacancy keenly felt, not only by her immediate family circle, but by the entire community as well.

Mrs. Ferguson's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Medd, came from England over one hundred years ago, settling in Cavan Township, just east of where the village of Millbrook was later located, clearing the land, building a log house, enduring all the hardships of pioneer life, and seeing the virgin forest gradually give place to cultivated fields, and other evidences of civilization.

On this homestead their family of seven children was born, deceased, whose maiden name was Hannah Medd, being the eldest. When only fifteen years of age the death of her mother laid upon her young shoulders the heavy responsibility of caring for the growing family, the youngest of whom, George, was a baby only three months old.

A mother at heart all her days, the duty of heading the household was faithfully discharged until Mr. Medd's second marriage left a measure of freedom, and the eldest daughter, then in her nineteenth year, became the bride of the late Alexander Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson was then a young man building up a business as a carriage maker, and was so successful along this line, and so progressive a citizen, that he came to be generally spoken of as "Squire" Ferguson. He was the third Reeve of Cavan Township, and after Millbrook was incorporated in 1880, he was its third Reeve, holding office from 1883 to 1896. He was a member of the Counties' Council in 1878. His success in his business career, and his usefulness in other spheres, he attributed, in large measure, to the unfailing helpfulness, wise judgment and industrious co-operation of his wife.

The sturdy uprightness of character for which her father was generally known, since it was said of Mr. Medd, "he would not tell a lie even when trading horses," was reproduced in Mr. Ferguson's character, and "Aunt Hannah," as she was often affectionately called, could always be depended upon to speak the truth plainly, her warm heart and cheerful disposition winning her friends everywhere, and prompting a helping hand and ready response, to every call of need. To list her acts of kindness, or mention even a comparative number of those given assistance, often at a sacrifice not known or appreciated by the ones helped, would prove an impossible task. But there are those who have since reached positions of wealth and prominent, who could give evidence in this behalf.

For ninety years a resident of this village, and its immediate vicinity, meant that Mrs. Ferguson's life history was interwoven with that of the community. She possessed the first coal oil lamp brought to Millbrook, and would relate amusing stories of her neighbors' fears and warnings lest an explosion should follow its use. Her niece, Mrs. Eakins, still has this lamp in her possession.

Though never having any children of her own, deceased gave to at least three of her relatives a mother's love and care. Her youngest sister, Alice (Mrs. Joseph Ferguson), was practically adopted when in her fifth year, and lived with Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson until her marriage to the former's half-brother. A niece, Maggie Orr (Mrs. R. W. Clarke), was next given a daughter's place, and after her marriage, a younger sister, Lillie Orr (Mrs. Richard Newton), lived for a time with her aunt. Later another niece, Mrs. Jos. Ferguson's daughter, Ethel, was given a loving welcome to home and affections, coming to live with her aunt the same age as her mother had been when she occupied a similar place in the household. After her niece's marriage to Mr. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. Ferguson continued to make her home with them until her death on Tuesday of this week.

Baptized and confirmed in the Anglican communion, during Rev. Mr. Armour's term as rector, after her marriage, seventy-two years ago, deceased united with the Methodist Church, and has ever since been a faithful members and supporter of this branch of the Christian faith.

The possessor of a very sweet voice, Mrs. Ferguson was the life of every social gathering she attended, delighting her listeners, when she could be persuaded to do so, by the old-time songs with which her memory was stored. Even on her ninetieth birthday, which she had greatly desired to live to reach, deceased sang one or two of her songs for the friends who called to offer congratulations, and hearty good wishes, her voice being extraordinarily clear and strong, though age was evidently taking toll of physical and mental vigor.

Her last illness began about midnight of the day the ninetieth milestone was reached, and it was apparent that ultimate recovery could not be looked for. Lingering for almost a week, her mind bright until the last, she responded to the final summons and her spirit quietly slipped away.

For eight years before her decease, her father, a helpless invalid, made his home with Mrs. Ferguson, receiving an unvarying care and attention until death brought a happy release. Twenty-five years ago her husband was called to his reward.

The immediate surviving relatives are two brothers, Mr. John Medd, of Exeter, who was here for the funeral, and Mr. George Medd, of Brandon, Man.; also one sister, Mrs. W. Axworthy, of St. Joseph's Island, Lake Superior. Two sisters, Mrs. Jos. Ferguson, and Mrs. Wm. Orr, with one brother, Mr. William Medd, were previously deceased.

In spite of unfavorable weather, the funeral, which took place from her late residence, Anne Street, on Thursday, was very largely attended, practically the entire countryside being represented in the gathering at the house and graveside. The service was in charge of her pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, assisted by Rev. G. I. Craw and Rev. Jos. Wilks. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. J. R. Eakins, J. Dawson, W. T. A. Devell, A. A. Needler, J. Whitfield and Dr. H. A. Turner.

Many beautiful floral tributes were laid in loving memory upon the Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Nesbitt, Campbellford; Mr. I. Mead of Exeter, Mr. Alex. Ferguson of Flesherton, Mr. and Mrs. I. Ward of Hamilton, Mrs. John Pearce of Port Perry, Mrs. W. Venning and two sons, Charles and Orr of Blackstock, Mrs. Percy Hill of Woodville, Mr. S. H. Hunter of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. George Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunter, Mr. Thomas Hunter of Peterboro, Dr. S. W. Clarke and niece of Lindsay, Mrs H. Argue of Port Hope, Dr. G. H. Needler of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. S. Fisher, Mr. William Cathcart, Mr. Thos. Eakins, Mr. Bruce Eakins of Peterboro.

DREAMS DRIVE MAN TO MURDER.

LOS ANGELES, June 23. — A dream of untold wealth and pretty women descended and took possession of the soul of Dr. Thomas W. Young, Los Angeles dentist.

But between himself and realization of the dream stood the figure of his beautiful wife, Grace.

Now there are dreams and dreams. Some dreams inspire men to the distant heights, where they can glimpse the purple mountain peaks of undiscovered continents.

They act on those dreams and we honor them.

But some dreams drag men to the depths and lead them through foul bogs, under the pall of dark fogs and darkness.

And Dr. Young's dream was of this latter kind.

So he murdered his pretty wife.

Then—"for a joke"—he made her son, Pat Grogan, 18, help entomb her body in a concrete cistern beneath his cottage in Beverly Glen.

Now locked in murderers' row of the Los Angeles jail he tells of affair as calmly as he might discuss the extracting of a wisdom tooth — smokes cigarettes, smiles and casually remarks that he "has burned his bridges behind him."

Mrs. Young was the widow of the late Patrick 'Ripe Olive' Grogan who left her a vast fortune.

On this fortune the dentist set his heart. So here is what he did four months ago:

"I strangled her with Somnoform, a heavy dent 'gas," he told the detectives.

Put Her in Vault.

"I was sure it would kill her and I held the rubber cone in her mouth until she stopped breathing.

"Then I put her in a box and carried her out to my cottage where I put her in the cistern and buried her.

"Next day I took her son Pat out to the cabin and made the mortar with which I sealed his mother's tomb —the boy did not know what I was using the cement for. I thought it would be a good joke for him to do it."

"Then calmly as ever, the dentist had Pat make out a will leaving all he possessed to him. Pat, you see, was next in line for his mother's fortune.

The dentist explained to Pat that this was "just in case something happened." District Attorney Asa Keyes believes Pat was to have been the next victim.

Nurse Wears Ring.

In Dr. Young's office worked a pretty nurse, Miss Dorothy Leopold, 22.

It was with her in mind, detectives believe that Dr. Young plotted his crime. He gave her a diamond ring he had taken from his wife's hand after the murder.

Dr. Young freely confessed to his crime and led detectives to the cabin, coolly smoking as his wife's body was brought up.

There is only thing he will not discuss: That is the penalty he himself will pay for the murder.

Perhaps that was the one thing not included in his dream.

NORTH COUNTRY and the visitor may be assured a plenitude of sport.

The tourist on leaving Kinmount goes up the Gull River waters till he reaches Hawk and Hall's Lakes, comes down the east side, arrives at the village of Haliburton, then southerly to Galway and Harvey, across country to Buckhorn and then back to Peterboro.

With this wealth of natural vacation material so close at hand, there is no occasion for Peterboro people to travel farther afield. Surely when people come from hundreds of miles across the border there must be some appeal to the holiday instincts of pleasure-seekers.

LIBERAL RULE OF 43 YEARS

majorities in many of the counties clearly show that a popular verdict has been rendered against the Government. The decisive character of the verdict would seem to indicate that there is no very practical desire for a redress of our economic ills. I am satisfied, however, that the determination of our people to secure a redress of their grievances will have to be dealt with. The Government appealed to the people with a constructive programme that we felt deserved support. It can only bow to popular will. I am convinced, however, that the policy which the Government put forward and supported must, in the interests of the Province, some day be ripened into action.

"There is little doubt that there were many causes contributing to our defeat for which the Government was held responsible. It was more than evident that many irrelevant issues were raised by the opposition for which the Government was neither directly nor indirectly responsible. These all had their effect. The opposition have sown to the wind—they must now reap the whirlwind."

Rhodes Victorious.

Returning to Halifax shortly after midnight, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, leader of the victorious party, gave out the following statement:

"The magnificent victory achieved by the forces of the opposition in the contest I do not regard as a victory for the Conservative party alone, but rather a victory of the whole people, Liberal, Conservative, Labor, Farmer and Independent, who have risen in their might to wipe out the Government which through a long tenure of office, has regarded itself as all powerful and in consequence has lost touch with the people.

"The expression at the polls is an evidence that the people are determined to assert that they are the real masters. Their verdict means a restoration of responsible government to our province which has always prided itself on the fact that we were the first of the British colonies in North America to secure the right of representation which led to a responsible government."

TURNER CHOSEN TO LEAD VETS

operations of his department.

Several resolutions approved by the Parliamentary Committee on Soldiers' Re-establishment, but which have not yet been legislated, are adopted, including one asking for a reduction in the valuation of live-stock of 60 per cent. if the stock was purchased previous to Oct. 1, 1920, and 40 per cent. if the stock was purchased after Oct. 1, 1920, and previous to Oct. 1, 1921. Parliament has passed revaluation legislation but the reductions are only 40 and 20 per cent respectively.

Other recommendations are that the period of interest exemption provided in Section 1 of the amendments of the Soldiers' Settlement Act of June 28, 1922, be extended until Oct. 1, 1934; that in the event of any prepayment of principal the soldier settlers shall be entitled to receive a discount at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from the date of the pre-payment to the due date of same, the discount privilege not to extend beyond Oct. 1, 1934.

The convention also recommended that the Soldier Settlement Board should have discretionary power to relocate bona fide soldier settlers who were found to be located upon "manifestly unsuitable farms," the relocation to be made without financial loss to the settlers.

Determine Share of Loss.

If after the interest exemption period provided for in the resolution expires, a capital loss is indicated, the convention recommends that the question as to whether the government shall bear the whole or part of the loss could then be determined. If decided affirmatively appropriate action could then be taken for a readjustment of an instalment remaining unpaid.

The Association also went on record as asking that the S. S. Act be extended until December 31, 1929, so that returned soldiers may take advantage of it, and "at least be given equal rights, as to right of application," to those accorded immigrants under the Empire Settlement.

A definite policy for the purchasing of seed and twine was asked of the settlement board, and the necessity of making advances to soldier settlers for seed was especially urged —several other minor matters were adopted.

A discussion on immigration and colonization was started but the original amendment did not meet the wishes of the delegates in many respects and was referred back to the committee for re-drafting.

During the discussion on the seed grain resolution, Major Barnett said for every ten men granted a loan for this purpose, two men were turned down. The latter were complaining, not the majority. In some cases the Board had advanced money for four and five successive seasons to men whose position was finally classified as hopeless. There was a limit to the powers of the board, he said. A seed grain loan had never been refused those who showed they had prospects of repaying it, but there were cases where it was doing a kindness to the men to turn them down, and suggest they take up some other occupation. No general policy of making loans could be defined as every case had to be dealt with on its merits. The board had been generous in this respect but they had no power to go on advancing money for ever.

A vote of thanks for Major Barnett's sympathetic co-operation with the G.W.V.A. in dealing with land settlement problems was unanimously adopted.

NOT GUILTY.

The magistrate regarded the urchin with a look in which sympathy for his sad plight and disapproval of his misdeed were equally blended.

"My dear boy," he exclaimed, "what ever possessed you to steal the tortoise?"

"I didn't steal it," was the unexpected retort. "It followed me home."—Answers, London.

Annual Garden Party.

The annual garden party held on Tuesday, under the auspices of the United Church, Stanwood, was most successful. The evening was ideal and the large crowd that attended are convinced that the ladies of Stanwood excell in the culinary art which they have on this occasion, as well as on former occasions, so clearly demonstrated. The tables were well arranged in the basement, while ice cream and fruit booths did a flourishing business outside. The programme consisted of a humorous two act play, "The Goss Creek Line" put on by a number of the Young People of the United Church, Campbellford and provoked much merriment. The pastor, Rev. C. D. Daniels, occupied the chair.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to over $210 which was most gratifying.

MARKING THE STREETS.

The City Council will, it is hoped, adopt and act upon the report of the Board of Works, recommending the erecting of street signs.

This is a reform that has been very badly needed for some time.

While it is true that the names of streets are marked in the pavements this system is of no value whatever in the winter months and the names are not easily read by motorists even at periods of the year when the pavements are not covered with snow.

The old markers at street intersections have practically all disappeared—in fact the majority of these signs have been missing for years.

Visitors to Peterborough, especially motorists, are kept busy trying to find their way around the city, but although these facts have been frequently pointed out and the matter has been discussed more than once by the aldermen no definite move to deal with the situation has been made until now.

The Council should carry out the suggested programme this year in the interest both of the citizens of Peterborough and of strangers within our gates.

CONFUSION WORSE CONFOUNDED.

The soft drink tax becomes more and more impossible as the confusion caused by its introduction continues to increase.

The levy was supposed to be contributed by the consumer.

Just at present, however, there are many angles to the situation.

Some manufacturers are absorbing the tax themselves.

In that case neither the retailer nor the consumer are affected.

Other manufacturers are charging the retailer five cents per case more for their beverages.

That means the retailer is absorbing five-sixths of the tax and the manufacturers the remaining fifth.

Still other bottlers refuse to have anything to do with the levy and the retailer perforce has to buy stamps from the Government.

These retailers, or some of them at least, have increased the prices of such beverages to six cents, and in some cases to ten cents, which means that the dealers adopting this course are collecting eighteen cents or $1.14, as the case may be, in excess profits from the consumer with the tax supplying the pretext.

In general the whole soft drink industry, whether viewed from the standpoint of the manufacturer, the retailer or the consumer is in a grand glorious muddle and the sooner the levy is taken off the better for everybody.

UNFIT TO DRIVE.

An incident reported to The Examiner indicates that there is somebody driving a car in this district who is mentally unfit to be entrusted with the responsibility of piloting an automobile.

This irresponsible either failed to notice a red light marking a detour on the Norwood road or lost control of his machine, and drove into the barricade, knocking over the structure and, of course, the light that warned drivers of the obstruction.

That was bad enough but then after extricating his car he drove calmly off leaving the torn up road unmarked, and behind him the possibility of a terrible accident.

Fortunately the wrecking of the barricade was witnessed by others with more brains than this totally unfit driver and the damage was repaired and the warning light put back in position.

So far as the offender was concerned, however, he was inviting disaster, because with the detour unmarked, it was more than likely that a car approaching at a fair rate of speed would have plunged in to the midst of the torn up portion of the road, with consequences that can be imagined.

An individual callous enough to drive off and leave a menace to the public safety like that behind him is certainly not fit to be at the wheel of a car—or to be at large for that matter.

GOOD ADVICE.

The Ontario Safety League has been distributing a circular in the schools, a letter to parents, warning them of the necessity of impressing upon their children the need of being careful and incidentally pointing out to the parents themselves some things about which they themselves need to use precautions.

The advice in the letter in regard to the dangers that exist in and around the home, contain nothing new but much that is seldom thought about.

The careless handling of potsons, the failure to remove broken glass and rusty nails from places where they may cause accidents, thoughtlessness about firearms, such dangerous practices as lighting the fire with kerosene and a dozen and one other points of the same nature are dealt with in the first part of the Safety League's appeal.

The second section urges parents to teach their children to avoid the danger of the streets, special emphasis being placed on the peril of crossing streets without looking and at points other than at street intersections.

This is propaganda of a very useful nature—especially if parents give it the attention it merits.

They should lose no opportunity of impressing the children with the truth of these facts and at the same time see to it that they themselves are careful in their own actions and in regard to things that may bring danger to others.

"DOG DAYS"

The fellow who first called these the "dog days" had an inverted bump of humor. Any dog would tell you if you paused long enough to interest yourself in his plight, that it isn't a bit of fun being a dog during the "dog days", says the Hamilton Spectator. Mr. A. G. McBain, president of the Humane Society, yesterday called attention to some splendid advice to dog owners, contained in a letter circulated by the National Canine Defense league, but we wonder how many who read it will put the advice into practice. The fellow who can't be bothered to keep his four-legged pal, be he purp or the roughbred, supplied with clean, fresh drinking water or to shift the kennel from the sunny side of the yard to the shade doesn't deserve to have a dog. When dad gives junior a dog and makes him responsible for its care, dad's responsibility doesn't end. Children are thoughtless, especially in the summer holiday season when there are so many things to attract them. There will be the usual reports this summer, of course, about people being bitten by dogs and the old fable about hot weather causing rabies will be worked overtime. A dog-lover writing on the subject of "dog days" in an American magazine declared that hot weather does not cause rabies any more than it causes fallen arches. Any veterinarian will back up that assertion and inoculate any dog against the rabies in a few moments, at small cost to the owner. When a dog contracts rabies it is the result of a bite by an infected dog. When there is a mad dog in a community look around for another one. Not one dog in a hundred thousand goes mad, but if your pet becomes cranky and surly in the hot weather it may be an invitation for you to take a little bit more interest in him. Humans have grouches, too, when they're hot and thirsty.

CHICAGO'S FALSELY-BASED PLEA

Chicago's attempt to justify her water steal by charging that the Canadian and American power interests at Niagara Falls are taking more water there than is authorized by the interntional treaty, has broken down, says the Toronto Star.

The courts of the U. S. paid no attention to Chicago's plea because one wrong does not condone another. But the Niagara Control Board appointed by Washington and Ottawa has reported, after a thorough enquiry, that the Niagara power companies, and the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, headed by Sir Adam Beck, are not violating the terms of the treaty.

If by inadvertence or otherwise the power plants at Niagara Falls were taking more water than was authorized by treaty, the offense would not be as serious as the theft of water by Chicago, because the water would be put back into its natural channel a few miles below the point where it was drawn off, whereas the water withdrawn by Chicago is taken down to the Gulf of Mexico, thousands of miles away from its rightful outlet in the Atlantic Ocean. By Chicago's diversion of water away from the course chosen by nature, navigation channels in the great lakes system, made at a cost of many millions of dollars, have been prejudicially affected, lake ports and summer resorts put to great expense and power potentialities seriously reduced.

The time allowed to Chicago to prepare to undo the wrong she has done, and is doing, is being used to defy the laws and constituted authority of the United States. Chicago must be shown that even a great city cannot be a law unto itself. Other cities have rights and other nations have to be considered.

MR. HULL, TWISTER

Congressman Hull of Peoria, is a busy man these days. In addition to the regular duties discharged by an American politician, he has constituted himself chief spokesman and propagandist for the Chicago "water grabbers," says the Border Cities Star. So enthusiastic is he in their cause, that he has embarked on a missionary tour of the Middle Western States. From various platforms he is blaming Canada for blocking plans of the Chicago Sanitary District to steal water from Lake Michigan. It is the Dominion, according to Congressman Hull, that is responsible for setting Great Lakes States against the Windy City's project.

Says this glib proponent of "the water grab": "Canada is greedy for water power."

As a matter of fact, Canada is not greedy for what does not belong to her, which is more than Congressman Hull can say for Chicago. Canada is naturally anxious to protect navigation facilities; to safeguard her expensive harbor works, and to reap a just share of power resources that are hers by treaty right. Since the agitation started against Chicago's preposterous claim, Canada has stood modestly in the background and allowed Great Lakes States to fight the common enemy. The reason for this was that aggressive protects from Canada would have given Congressman Hull arguments of the kind he is now using. The Illinois representative is simply trying to cause international friction in the hope that it will redound to the benefit of Chicago's scheme. He is indulging in the once popular game of "twisting the lion's tail." It is little wonder, therefore, that his utterances bear a close resemblance to those of Senator Elijah Pogram, the picturesque Anglophobe, who adorned the pages of Martin Chuzzlewit.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Senate doesn't usually attract much attention but just now is occupying more than its share of the limelight.

The idea of a union of all ex-service men in Canada, instead of the present system of three or four organizations will appeal to many veterans who have hitherto held aloof from the existing bodies.

The New York magistrate who said that he hears his children so hard they cannot sit down would make a good official under the Soviet rule.

The Senate is showing that whatever else it may be called it cannot truthfully be termed a rubber stamp for the House of Commons.

It is estimated that the British Empire Steel Corporation has lost several millions of dollars as a result of the strike while the miners themselves had they been working during the whole period since March 6 would have earned $4,400,000.

NEW PONY RANCH COBOURG DISTRICT

Many Other Transactions in Farm Real Estate Give Notable Changes

COBOURG, June 26.—Mr. John McKague has sold his property situated almost five miles from Cobourg, Cherry Hill Stock Farm, to Miss Barnes, who will turn it into a pony ranch. The new proprietor takes possession of the property on July 1. A brother of Miss Barnes has long been connected with Pontiac Stock Farm, owned by Mrs. L. A. Livingstone, here, where there are many famous ponies, perhaps the largest number of ponies owned by any one individual in Canada.

There are a number of other sales of farms in Hamilton and Haldimand townships, although this is regarded as an off time for selling farm property.

Charles E. Barrison has sold part of lot 9, concession 9, Hamilton township, to James H. Hunter.

James Thompson has sold to Joseph Harris part of lot 17, concession 8, Hamilton township.

Geo. F. Belamy and others have sold to Richard O. Gibbs part of lots 30 and 31, concessions 6 and 7, Haldimand township.

The Imperial Trust Co. has sold the north half of lot 3, concession 7, Haldimand township, to Lillian M. Blackhall.

Percy A. Morgan has sold to William Gillespie, part of lot 23, concession 1, Haldimand township.

Alexander Sheen has sold to Geo. B. Wilcox part of lot 34, concession 9, Haldimand township.

E. S. Barname has sold to Isla L. Mackie part of lot 26, concession 2, Haldimand township.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, JUNE 27.

A fairly active and successful day is forecast on the basis of the prevailing lunar and mutual figures. The ambitions should be heightened and, supported by the industry and application of a good Saturn transit, Jupiter should be responsible for an expansion in business and growth in finances. A friendly position of Mercury should likewise add to the general tone of activity and progress, but these should not be thwarted by irritability and disputes.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active year, with growth in business as well as in finances. Industry and ambition may be rewarded, but the issues should not be beclouded by irritability and disputes. A good time to renew contracts. A child born on this day may be ambitious and persevering, and its steadiness and application may be crowned by financial success and good position in life.

A THOUGHT.

SIGNS OF SPRING.

There's a spring light on the river,
A spring balm in the air,
A spring green on the hillside,
Spring fever everywhere.
Spring cleaning in apartments,
Spring diggers in a trench,
Spring cooers in the tree-tops,
Spring wooers on a bench.
Spring fashions quaint and frilly,
Spring bonnets cute and jimp,
Spring bills that knock you silly,
Spring purses with a crimp.

WARKWORTH PERSONALS

WARKWORTH, June 25.—Miss E. Maude Owen, R.N. of Toronto has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Owen prior to leaving for Youngstown, Ohio, where she has accepted a position as surgical supervisor in the Youngstown City Hospital.

W. R. Losie is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Louise Forsythe and son, W. A. Losie, both of Toronto.

Dr. C. C. Armstrong has resigned his position as village commissioner, and C. J. Boyce has been appointed to fill his place for the balance of the year.

Instead of oiling the streets as in previous years it has been decided to use calcium chloride. Five tons are already on order.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sailes and two daughters of Neill, Mich., were recent guests of his nephew, C. E. Meiklejohn.

The Provincial Auditor for the Hydro Commission was in town on June 19, and found the books for the local system in first class shape.

TORONTO, June 26.—The small run of cattle was quickly cleaned up at prices steady to firm with this week's general advance. Nothing of importance offering in the export class. A few choice butcher cattle sold firm from $7 to $7.75. Choice finished cattle are wanted, whether off grass or grain fed, but they must be well finished. Thin half-finished are not wanted and are likely to find a very draggy market if many of this kind are shipped in.

Calves steady at $9 to $9.50 tops.

Sheep and lambs steady at the decline.

Hogs steady at $13.50, thick, smooth, off cars.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, June 26—(Canadian Press).—Sterling quotations yesterday:

Sterling demand, $4.85 5-8.

Sterling cables, $4.86 1-8.

KINGSTON CHEESE BOARD.

KINGSTON, June 26.—(Canadian Press). — The offerings on the Cheese Board were 190 boxes and all sold at 19 11-16c per lb., which price is 15-16c per lb. higher than a week ago, and 3 1-16c per lb. above a year ago, when 434 boxes sold at 16 3-4c per lb.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Prices for all grades are firmly maintained. A sale is reported for export at 41 1-2c seaboard. United States markets are slightly easier at unchanged prices.

Toronto jobbing specials 40, extras 38, firsts 35, seconds 30.

Montreal market strong. Ontario extras are costing delivered 32, firsts 30, seconds 25, cases returned.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan receipts are very light and show a large percentage of undergrades.

Alberta markets remain unchanged.

Vancouver jobbing extras 39, firsts 37, seconds 34. Live poultry easy and unchanged.

Halifax egg receipts continue light, retailing extras 42, firsts 40.

Chicago spot 30½, futures June 32¼, December refrigerators 36¼.

New York extra firsts 36, firsts 34, hennery fancy 46, December refrigerators 37 3-4.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, June 26—(Canadian Press).—The grain business in the Montreal market with English importers was much quieter yesterday, as prices bid for most lines were below working basis, but there was a demand from New York houses, and sales of No. 1 Northern wheat were reported at 12 and 12¼ per bushel over, and No. 2 Northern 10 over, the Winnipeg July option, f.o.b. Montreal.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for oats and prices for car lots were reduced 1½ per bushel, with a small business passing for local and country account.

A fair amount of business was done in eggs in a wholesale jobbing way, there being an improved demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies to meet their week-end requirements, and in consequence the market was rather more active. The undertone was firm and prices were unchanged with sales of specials at 39c, fresh extras at 37c, firsts at 34c, and seconds at 30c to 31c per dozen.

The receipts of butter were 4,807 packages, as against 5,193 for the same day last week, and 8,500 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no actual changes in prices of note, but the undertone to the market was strong and the tendency upward. The foreign demand for supplies continues steady, and as the prices bid in many instances were in line with holders' views, further sales were made for nearby and future shipment, and the market in this respect was moderately active, but the demand from local buyers was still somewhat limited. Eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 36½c per lb., No. 1 creamery at 35½c per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 34½c per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 6,003 boxes, as compared with 6,397 for the same day last week, and 9,343 for the corresponding day a year ago. The feature of the trade was the marked improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for supplies at a sharp advance in prices and a more active business was done by some houses, while others were not disposed to sell, and it was reported that 98s per cwt. was refused for western goods. The competition between buyers for the offerings at the country boards was much keener and prices were advanced 15-16c to 1c per lb., as compared with a week ago, and the Liverpool public cable was 2s per cwt. higher at 98s 6d per cwt. for finest Canadian white and colored cheese.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, June 26.—(Canadian Press). — Aggressive speculative selling gave a sharp set-back to wheat prices yesterday, at one time as much as five cents a bushel. News of a revolution in Greece was one of the factors which served to unsettle confidence on the part of holder and to open a way for an upset in values. The wheat market closed unsettled, 2 3-8c to 4c net lower, July 1.52 to 1.52¼, and September 1.49 3-4 to 1.49 7-8, with corn varying from 1c decline to 5-8c advance, oats 1 3-8c to 1 7-8c down, and provisions unchanged to 25c off.

Bearish traders in the wheat market were quick to seize on the news from Greece and to emphasize the fact that serious disturbances were also taking place in Morocco and China. It was current comment that such events had a tendency to hinder the free movement of capital, and thus were to be regarded as a detriment to business generally, including grain. Canadian denials of black rust reports, together with lower quotations at Liverpool, were likewise influential toward weakening the market here, and so also was cool weather likely to check black rust development this side of the Canadian boundary.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, June 26.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 9,000; good and choice weighty fed steers mostly 25 cents higher; others and yearlings strong; market uneven; lower grades showing weighty steer upturn in instances; clearance good; extreme top matured steers 12.60; some 1,585 pounds average upward to 12.50; 1,478 pound average 12.40; bulk weighty steers 11.50 to 12.25; choice yearlings absent; best 12.25; numerous loads 11.75 to 12.25; moderate supply thin fleshed native warmed up steers at 9.50 downward, buyers taking these in general scramble for numbers; light yearling heifers upward to 12.00.

Hog receipts 26,000; opened fairly active on qualitied hogs, mostly to shippers and yard traders; steady with Wednesday's average; closing trade to packers on plainer qualitied and mixed droves 10 to 15c lower; early top 13.65; bulk 210-pound averages unward, 13.50 to 13.60; desirable 150 to 200-pound average mostly 13.25 to 13.45; bulk weighty packing sows 11.75 to 12.00; estimated holdover 14,000.

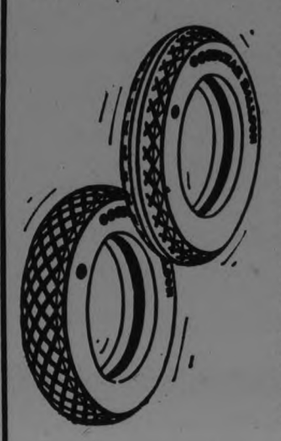
What It Means to You that Only Goodyears are made of SUPERTWIST

FOR years now, a high percentage of the world's motorists have settled the tire question by insisting on Goodyears. They were convinced that in this way they could get the most in mileage, value, satisfaction.

Today the question of tire choice is made even easier. One Goodyear achievement now places Goodyear Tires far in advance. SUPERTWIST, the new Goodyear Cord fabric, gives tire satisfaction impossible with any other fabric—and is used only in Goodyear Tires.

SUPERTWIST was developed specially for balloon tires. It far outstretches the breaking point of ordinary cord fabric. It withstands road shocks, stone bruises and other injuries. It adds mileage to tires of both types. It is used in all Goodyear Cords.



The great advances in tire building which have come from the Goodyear factories can be credited to the world-wide nature of the Goodyear business. With the largest volume of tire business in the world, Goodyear's resources are tremendous. Research work can be kept up constantly. Yet the cost of tires is kept low by lower overhead, greater purchasing power. All these advantages are centred for you in the store of your Goodyear Selected Dealer—one of a body of specially-chosen tire merchants who are able to pass the Goodyear savings on to their customers.

LONG ALFALFA.

Stalk Measuring 42 Inches Grown On Nearby Farm Indicates Big Crops

From W. Bromell's farm a stalk of alfalfa, measuring 42 inches, in length was brought to the attention of The Examiner. This remarkable growth is no doubt due to the plenitude of rainfall which has greatly aided all plant development.

The sample is known as Grimm's Alfalfa, the seed having been purchased from G. Mather of this city.

SENATOR ASKS ABOUT DELAY ON LINE TO ROUYN

Senator Gordon Says Province of Quebec Will Lose More By Delay.

WOULD KEEP WEALTH.

Quebec Member Says Ontario Wants to Draw Trade Across Boundary.

OTTAWA, June 26 — (Canadian Press).—Senator Gordon discussed yesterday in the Senate the delay in granting permission to the Nipissing Central Railway Company to build from the Ontario boundary to the Rouyn district in Quebec. He said an application had been made to the Federal Government for an Order-in-Council, granting this permission on March 31st last, and no action had yet been taken. It was impossible to proceed until this was done. The province of Quebec stood to lose more than Ontario by the delay. The reason for the obstruction to the extension of the Ontario system into the Quebec district was that other parties wished to build a line from the transcontinental to this district. This line with branches would necessitate building 110 miles of railway, while the branch from Ontario by building 30 miles could serve the same purpose. There were millions ready to develop the mines at Rouyn but were awaiting railway facilities.

Senator Beique said the Rouyn district was very valuable mineral territory. The province of Ontario would like to draw the business from this district to Ontario. Quebec desired to keep the wealth of the province within the province. Ontario would have objected if Quebec had sought to divert the trade from the Cobalt district to Quebec. He thought that each province should be allowed to develop its territory for its own purpose.

Senator Dandurand said a protest had been received from Quebec against allowing this road building across the Crown lands in Quebec. The Government of Canada could do nothing until this question was settled. His information was that the Dominion of Canada had referred the question to the Supreme Court.

ISSUE BILLIONS IN FRANC NOTES

Accepted as Gist of Plan For Payment of Maturing Treasury Bonds.

KEPT SECRET.

PARIS, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—The issuance of four billion or five billion francs in bank notes, or something equivalent, is accepted by Parliamentarians and financial experts as the gist of M. Caillaux's plan to meet the July and September reimbursements of several billions in bonds that are considered certain to be presented.

M. Caillaux is secretive because of the effect any official announcement might have on the stock exchange.

He must arrange soon for both July and September payments of maturing treasury bonds because Parliament will not be in session at the end of August. His financing has been discussed by the Bank of France, but final decision will be taken at to-day's Cabinet meeting. The Finance Minister has repeatedly declared that there would be no inflation, but any plan to increase the currency for such purpose, with certain safeguards, is not regarded by the Minister as inflation.

Uniform Rate of Twenty-five Per Cent. On All Imports Is Suggested By Montreal Speaker

MONTREAL, June 26. (Canadian Press) — A uniform rate of duty of 25 per cent. on everything coming into Canada was advocated yesterday by Frank P. Jones, president of the Canada Cement Company, in an address to the Kiwanis Club, as a substitution for the present tariff scheme of "anywhere from nothing to 70 per cent." Mr. Jones declared such a system would reduce the cost of living in Canada more than 10 per cent., would increase the revenue from Customs by $120,000,000 per year, would do away with the sales tax costing the people $250,000,000 annually, and would employ more labor and develop the country.

"If," said Mr. Jones, "you will put a uniform ad valorem rate of duty on everything which comes into the country I am satisfied that you will have a more scientific tariff than we have ever had, and a more scientific tariff than could be framed by any experts."

CROWN PRINCE'S BOOK PUBLISHED

"I Seek the Truth" Assails the Treaty of Versailles Throughout.

CROWN OF THORNS.

BERLIN, June 26. Canadian Press —The book that has been published by the German ex-Crown Prince, "I Seek the Truth," is an uninterrupted assailment of the Treaty of Versailles.

The peace pact of 1919 is designated as a "Golgotha of Truth which is bound to be resurrected."

The author does not aim at the annulment of the condition of the treaty which "found a crown of thorns in the Dowes plan," but would make the retraction of Article 231 of the treaty which relates to Germany's war guilt, a condition of Germany's entry into the League of Nations.

The ex-K. 's heir expresses the conviction that the day will come when the truth he is seeking will be "pounded into the brains of millions who thought it a lie during the war."

TURNER CHOSEN TO LEAD VETS IN TIME OF CHANGE

First Division General is New President of G.W.V.A. Dominion Command.

HAS ACCEPTED.

Is Willing to Co-operate For Unity Desired Among All Veterans.

OTTAWA, June 26. — Canadian Press. — Another step toward the unification of Canadian War Veterans' Organizations, was taken by the Great War Veterans' Association at its annual convention here yesterday afternoon, when the delegates unanimously elected General Sir Richard Turner, V.C., of Quebec, former commander of the First Canadian Division, to succeed Major V. D. Sharpe, M.D., of Brampton, Ont., as their president.

Sir Richard will head the organization during the period of transition which is expected to expire in one year with the birth of the British Empire Legion embodying all other returned soldiers' organizations.

Sir Richard has accepted the presidency and will be installed in office on Sunday when he arrives with Field Marshal Earl Haig, whose efforts towards promoting unity of Canadian war veterans were largely responsible for the decision of the G.W.V.A. to sink its identity in the general cause of unity.

"Will co-operate in any way for unity," Sir Richard said in a telegram to the Dominion executive. Col. T. Nangle, aide-de-camp to Earl Haig, who left yesterday for Quebec, has been requested to interview the new president and explain more fully the views of the committee, who in a telegram to Sir Richard asked for his leadership "in the movement towards unity among veterans," under the auspices of Field Marshal Haig.

So far as is known the tuberculosis veterans' association is the only other organization which has fallen in line with the idea of the G.W.V.A. Representatives of the Army and Navy veterans and the Imperial Veterans, in Canada, were in conference with Col Nangle prior to his departure and he pointed out to them that their associations had only until Monday to decide whether they were for unity and it was hoped, he said, that Canadian war veterans would present to their old commander-in-chief a united front when the British Empire Service League opened its conference next Monday.

Land Settlements.

The adoption of several resolutions on land settlement occupied most of the time this afternoon. Alfred Speakman, Progressive M.P., Red Deer, addressed the delegates briefly, and Major J. Barnett, chairman of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, enlightened the delegates on several points in connection with the administration of the act.

R. A. Rigg, formerly of Winnipeg, director of the Unemployment Service Bureau of Canada, discussed the

MAIL CARRIERS GRANTED BONUS

Struck Yesterday Because of Delay in Payment of Special Advance.

WALKOUT AVERTED.

PARIS, June 26. — (Canadian Press). — The French Government last night promised the mail carriers who went on strike yesterday that they would be paid their overdue bonus, and it is believed an extension of the walkout, which tied up the postal service during the day and crippled the telephones for an hour yesterday afternoon, has been averted.

The mail carriers had shown the high tension of the 100,000 postal, telegraph and telephone employees over the delay in receiving their payments when they invaded the main post office yesterday, drove out the public and barricaded themselves inside for two hours.

The men demanded 250 francs due them for the second three months of the year as an "advance" which the Government had been giving them while awaiting a final adjustment upward of salaries.

Last night in the Chamber of Deputies, Minister of Finance Caillaux said he would introduce a special bill to-day to pay the postal men half the amount due them immediately and the remainder when the budget is voted.

PEACE OF MIND HELP IN HEALING ALL DISEASES

Doctors Fail to Look at it From Psychic Angle, Says Professor.

HOBBIES AID.

Christian Science Has Helped Many Persons Suffering From Disease.

REGINA, Sask., June 26 —(Canadian Press). — A large percentage of sickness assailing mankind throughout the world is directly attributable to state of mind and a great deal could be accomplished in overcoming this condition by correlation of Psycho-Theraphy and medical science, declared Dr. Charles Hunter, Winnipeg, associate Professor of Clinical Medicine, University of Manitoba, at yesterday's session of the Annual Convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

His observations over a period of more than 17 years had proved conclusively that the medical profession was becoming too materialistic as the result of the rapid advance of science and there was not sufficient attention paid to the importance of dealing with certain cases from the psychic angle. Men suffering under the strain of business anxiety, daughters of wealthy parents and middle-aged women, whose children have left the home, are more commonly subject to afflictions induced by over concentration, the speaker said. By developing some hobby or diverting the mind from their immediate troubles, often has the effect of relieving the patients.

Christian Science, Dr. Hunter asserted, helped many persons suffering from diseases, which to the medical man had defied diagnosis. This he attributed to a "peace of mind" which the medical man too often failed to impart as the result of not looking at the case from psychic angle. Christian Science, furthermore, had brought relief to individuals who were victims of some organic disorder, proving that physco-therapy was not solely confined to functional diseases.

In many instances, the speaker said disabilities orginated in absolutely healthy people merely through suggestion. He had actually treated cases where the complaint was direct ly traced to suggestive causes.

Dr. Hunter believed it was a great mistake to minimize the efficacy of psychotheraphy and suggested that its wider application among the medical profession might do a great deal to eliminate many diagnostic problems.

MONUMENT RECALLS MASSACRE OF 1885

Historic Tragedy of West Told by Survivor of the Event

On June 10th a monument was unveiled to commemorate one of the most tragic incidents in the history of western Canada, the Frog Lake massacre. There is still living in the Frog Lake district a survivor of the rebellion of 1855 who was present at the Frog Lake disaster, and his story clears up the somewhat confused historical record of the event.

Frog Lake is 60 miles northwest of the town of Lloydminister. In 1855 the nearest police post was Fort Pitt, on the North Saskatchewan river, abou 30 miles southeast. Fort Pitt was garrisoned by a body of mounted police under Inspector Dickens. That section of Alberta was, and still is, girded about north and west by four Indian reserves with a large population of Cree Indians and breeds. At the time of the Frog Lake massacre there were two Cree chieftains in the neighborhood who exercised a wide influence and commanded a large following, Chief Big Bear and his son Wandering Spirit.

Big Bear had for years been a source of annoyance and anxiety to police and missionairies all through what is now known as Northern Alberta. He had consistently refused to take treaty and on more than one occasion had given evidence of a willingness to join Louis Riel in the rebellion of 1855. His son, Wandering Spirit, was—as his name indicates—a restless, excitable and throughly unscrupulous youngster whose head had been turned by the popularity he shared with his father among the northern tribes. There was at that time at Frog Lake a small community of white people; a Hudson Bay trading post manged by a Mr. Cameron, an Indian agency in charge of all the surrounding reserves under the care of a Mr. Irwin, and a Roman Catholic mission administered by two priests, Father Fanford and Father Marchand.

The missionairies planned to make Frog Lake a sort of community centre. In addition to the Hudson Bay store, mission houses and agency there was to be a flour mill and a saw mill. Already work on these projects had begun, a dam was under construction on Frog Creek at the outlet of the lake and a large turbine engine had been brought all the way from St. Paul, Minnesota, by water and overland freight—a distance of 1,000 miles or more—to Frog Lake.

Famous Novelist's Son.

In charge of the work of construction was a Scotsman named Gowanlock. Inspector Dickens of Fort Pitt was a son of the famous English novelist. He had posted two mounted policeman at Frog Lake when he first took command of the district, but these men had been withdrawn to Fort Pitt at the request of the Indian agent at Frog Lake, who feared that their presence would be a source of annoyance to the Indians. This proved to be a serious, in fact a disastrous mistake. On the morning of Thursday, April 2nd, 1885, early mass was being celebrated as usual in the little mission church by Fathers Fanford and Marchand. For some unknown reason the Indians in attendance and around the village began to make a disturbance. The good fathers went out among them and asked for quietness, but their pleading was ignored. Soon the service was over and the people filed out of the church to their respective homes and places of business. With a wild shout the Indians descended upon them. According to the stories told by survivors there had been a feud between Mr. Delaney, farm instructor at Frog Lake, and Wandering Spirit. It may be that, to begin with, the Indian meant only to wreak his vengeance upon Delaney! At any rate he was first to fall. Mr. Cameron, a surviving witness of the massacre, declares that he distinctly heard Big Bear order Wandering Spirit and his men to stop. But it was too late. Incited by the sight of blood the bands of Indians got beyond control and went on with their bloody work. Nine persons, including the two faithful priests were shot down. One of the priests, true to his calling, was killed as he was about to administer the last rites of the church to Delaney who was lying on the ground mortally wounded. The women were not molested at the time but were taken prisoners by Big Bear's band and after a good deal of suffering and hardship were allowed to escape unharmed.

Post Looted.

After the massacre the Indians looted the Hudson Bay post and the mission of all supplies and burned to the ground. The bodies of the victims were thrown into the cellars of the burned buildings. The bodies were afterward recovered by the mounted police and buried in a small cemetery at Onion Lake, where they still lie.

An attack was afterwards made by Big Bear and his band upon Fort Pitt. Inspector Dickens realizing that it was hopeless to try and hold the post with only a handful of defenders, prepared scows and as soon as the Saskatchewan was open for navigation floated his garrison down the river to Battleford.

About a month later General Strange with a company of soldiers marched from Calgary to Edmonton and down the Saskatchewan Valley. A number of Big Bear's band were captured, eight of them, including Wandering Spirit, were tried for murder and hanged at Battleford, November 27, 1885. It is said that as they walked to the scaffold Wandering Spirit and his men, defiant and unafraid, chanted their death songs to the last.

The mission at Frog Lake was abandoned, the building of the mills was given up. All that remains today to mark the site of this early outpost of civilization are some cellar holes, a broken down dam at Frog Creek and a pathetic, rusty old turbine wheel; mute witness of the faith and enterprise of that little group of pioneers who suffered and died there forty years ago.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

Gloria stood at the window watching for May to drive up in her little crimson car.

But she came in a taxi. And the driver followed her up the front walk, carrying two large traveling bags.

The instant she stepped in the house Gloria saw that there was some subtle change in her. She was not the crushed and tearful May of a week ago.

The air of dash and impudence that had been her chief charm had returned to her. She had tightened her lips, and around the collar of her suit black there was a row of little pearls.

"Don't look so surprised," she said to Gloria as she sank into Dick's chair. "I told you 'way last week that I was going to shake the dust of Peterborough from my shoes, didn't I?"

"Yes," Gloria nodded. "But I had no idea that you were going so soon."

"Why should I stay here?" May asked. "There's nothing for me in this burg that I can see. Nothing but a lot of friends who've stopped speaking to me, and a story that I'll never be able to live down . . ."

"Where are you going?" Gloria asked.

May threw out her hands with a vague gesture. "New York, London . . . Paris . . . Bombay. Who knows?" she asked. "Thank heaven, I have enough money to keep me going. Going, going . . . that's the only way for me to keep from losing my mind, I guess."

She stopped speaking, and stared out of the window, as if her eyes were filled with long distances already . . .

"Why don't you go with me, Glory?" she asked suddenly. "That's what I came here to ask you. . . . You know you'll never go back to Dick now that you've actually left him, don't you?"

Gloria nodded, without a word.

"Well, then," May went on, "tell him you want some money and come along with me. I'm going to stay at a hotel tonight, and take an early train in the morning. You could get ready to go by then, couldn't you?"

* * *

Gloria looked at her thoughtfully. The idea tempted her. What was this dull town to her, now that she had lost Dick? . . .

"For two pins . . . for two little rusty, bent pins . . . I'd go with you, May," she said slowly. "But, somehow or other, I just can't do it. As long as Dick's here . . . I've got to stay I guess. . . ."

"What I can't understand," May answered, with a little frown on her face, "is how Dick ever happened to let you pick up and leave him."

Her eyes questioned Gloria.

"Oh, I guess he just got tired of me," Gloria said with a break in her voice. "He wanted a home-keeping wife. And I wasn't one. I bored him."

"Bored him? Never! . . . Not with that face of yours!" May exclaimed.

"Oh, blah! Men get tired of nothing ing but a woman's looks," Gloria told her. "You can get them with your beauty. But you've got to hold them with something else. . . . Brains, for one thing. And love and care."

"Love and care! You talk about them as if they were babies!" May laughed.

"Well, and so they are! They're only grown-up children," Gloria went on, with that new wisdom of hers. "When life bangs them on the head, they want someone to rub the bump, and tell them not to mind. . . . And they want their food right on the dot, poor things, just as baby does."

She stopped and shook a solemn forefinger at May.

"And you flip it from the Flapper, that the wife who wins is the one who mothers her man," she said. "I used to think that what Dick wanted was a playmate. And all of the time he wanted someone to take his troubles to . . . someone to mother him."

May's red lip curled. "Don't kid yourself that you were ever Dick's playmate, dearie," she said sarcastically. "All the playing around you did was with Stan Wayburn, it seemed to me."

Gloria flushed. "I know it," she admitted. "I know I wasn't . . . anything to Dick. I just fell down on my job. No wonder he doesn't want me any more . . ." She burst into tears.

May looked at her thoughtfully.

"Well, if you're sure Dick's through with you, what are you sticking around here for?" she asked. "Believe me, I'd go to see a lawyer so fast it would make your head swim!"

"Go to see a lawyer?" Gloria echoed faintly. "What do you mean?"

"I mean . . . get a divorce," May answered. "What's the use of being tied to a man who doesn't care a snap of his fingers about you? You say Dick doesn't."

Gloria put her head on one side like a wise robin.

"W--ell, I don't know, May," she mused. "Divorce has always seemed a terrible thing to me . . ."

"No more terrible than the way you're living now!" May answered briskly. "You neither married nor single!"

Gloria sighed. "I'm awfully lonely," she said sadly.

May got up to go. "Oh, you make me sick!" she exclaimed. "If I cared about a man I'll bet I'd make him care about me . . . or know the reason why! Why don't you go to Dick and tell him you're going to divorce him? That'll bring him 'round, fast enough!"

"Nothing will do that," Gloria answered. "I tell you he's through with me! I know Dick . . . when he says he's through he means it!"

She sat staring into space while May telephoned for a taxicab to take herself and her bags down to the hotel.

She drew a long breath of pure relief when May had gone, and she stood alone in the house once more . . . the dear, familiar house.

Gloria hated to leave it. She had told May it was "spooky." It was not "spooky" . . . except that it was haunted with memory. Gloria could almost feel Dick with her in the empty room.

She ran out into the back yard and picked a bouquet of roses. She put them in a vase on the table beside Dick's chair. She drew his little smoking stand up beside it. There was dust on it . . .

Gloria wiped it off with her clean handkerchief.

"Where have you been all day?" her mother asked her when she walked into the hot little kitchen at 6 o'clock that night.

"Oh . . . I don't know. Gadding around town," Gloria answered. "I know I'm dead tired. . . ." She dropped down on a chair beside the kitchen table.

Her mother was bent above the gas stove. She was frying veal birds for supper.

Her face was flushed. Her hair curled in little damp wisps around her ears. There was a weary droop at the corners of her mouth.

Gloria jumped up. "I'm going to get supper tonight!" she cried, "just to show you that I can do it! . . . I'll be down in a jiffy!"

She hurried upstairs to the little bedroom under the eaves. It was close and stuffy, although the one window was opened wide, and the muslin curtains looped back.

Gloria ripped off her silk dress, and put on hrr new bungalow apron . . . the apron in which she had planned to look so pretty for Dick!

She ran down to the kitchen. Her father had come in. He was sitting in his shirtsleeves beside the door that led to the back porch.

"Today's been a corker, hsn't it?" he asked. "I tell you, I thought I was going to drop dead as I walked across George street this noon. The paper said some fellow died of sunstroke . . ."

"You and mother go out on the porch while I slap this meal together, dad," Gloria said. "Now, come on . . . you make mother go! You know she thinks no one but herself knows how to do anything . . ."

Mrs. Gordon hung back. "I know you don't know how to cook a meal," she said. "It seems a shame to spoil good food!"

"It would be a good thing if I did spoil it tonight," Gloria answered. "People shouldn't eat anything but salad and green vegetables in weather like this!"

Alone in the kitchen, she set to work. The lettuce was lying in a bowl of water. Gloria cut it up and made a French dressing for it. Mother Gregory had shown her how to mix the oil and lemon juice to silken smoothness.

Gloria wondered what Mother Gregory had ordered for dinner at their house tonight. Would Dick be there with his father and mother? . . . Or would he be dining somewhere or other with Susan Briggs?

Gloria wrinkled her forehead. "Well, I can't live like this . . . worrying myself to death about him all the time Wondering where he is, and what he is doing," she told herself. "Perhaps May's right. Perhaps I'd be happier if I divorced Dick. . . ."

She debated the question with herself as she set the meal on the table. With unseeing eyes she smiled at her mother and father when they praised it.

She was looking far away into the hidden future. What did it hold for a woman who had separated from the only man in the world for whom she cared? . . .

Her mother's voice roused her from her dream. "Oh, I forgot," she said in her slow, soft voice. "A letter came for you this afternoon while you were out. I guess it's from Dick."

Gloria's heart beat fast. A telegram coming in the dead of night couldn't have startled her more than this letter from Dick.

ITALIAN LOVE FEAST.

Premier Mussolini—smiling ce—and Gabriele d'Annunzio meet as friends on the poet-soldier's mot r boat on Lake Garda. Here they are inspecting a machine gun. D'Annunzio wears his aviator's u form and carries a pistol in his belt.

One June day, I was walking in the road, just at the outskirts of a town. My way took me past some fields, in which four people were gathring wild straw-berries. They had a dog and, as far as those people could tell, the dog was frantically chasing some birds, but that was all.

To me, it was another matter altogether. For I noticed that there were two birds and when I saw the white wing spots, I knew they were night hawks. It is strange to see two nighthawks playing a funny game of chase with a dog, in the middle of the day. The dog was thinking it a great game and chased the birds to his heart's delight, just missing them by inches each time they came near. It was great fun for the dog, but was a very serious matter for the birds.

All the playful little swoopings of those birds, were carefully executed plans, for entertaining the dog and keeping him so excited with the chase that he had no time to use his nose and find the nesting place. It was all very fascinating, to see the birds take what appeared to be terrible risks, every time the dog went in the direction of the nesting place, but these risks brought results, for the dog was led farther and farther away each time.

I went on my way, sure that the dog would never find the nest or suspect it was in that field.

Later on, after the people and the dog had departed, I went back and watched, until I saw the birds near the middle of the field, so I went there and located the eggs, on a brownish grey rock, with a few scattered pebbles on it and I became such friends with the mother bird, that she would let me put my hand right on her back and the little ones, like two balls of fluff, would kiss their mother and pull at her beak, coaxing for food, until she would have to trust them to us, while she went for food for them.

BID FAREWELL TO A GREAT FIGHTER

Christian Advocate Regrets Passing of Christian Guardian.

Methodists of the United States, in reference to the union which has been accomplished in Canada, seem unwilling to refrain from signs of regret. The New York Christian Advocate, representing 8,000,000 members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says in part:

"The Christian Guardian, of Toronto, published under authority of the Methodist Church of Canada, closes its existence with the issue for June 10, being the twenty-third number of volume 96. It disappears in the merger of the church in the United Church of Canada, and its life is continued in The New Outlook, the organ of the new body. The Christian Guardian will be greatly missed from the editorial desk where it has so long been a visitor. The first number appeared in 1829. When its first editor, the masterful Egerton Ryerson, came to office, there were but 10,000 Methodists in the Dominion. This was the first religious periodical in Canada, and one of the earliest weeklies of any sort. He made its columns the advocate, defender, and guardian of the civil, religious and educational rights of the dissenting churches with such spirit and ability that the paper soon found its way into every Methodist household and was a force to be reckoned with in the larger life of the state. Under Dr. Ryerson and under the most eminent of his many able successors, Dr. Edward H. Dewart (1869-1894), it was more than a Methodist organ. It was a free and compelling voice, speaking in words that all must understand and consider, in behalf of liberty, democracy and progress in Church and State.

"Under Dr. W. B. Creighton, whose name closes the long line which Ryerson began, The Christian Guardian has been true to its highest traditions. His editorial contribution to the work of unification, in which the final step has now been taken, has been among the most important and decisive.

"It is with sincere regret that The Christian Advocate erases The Christian Guardian from the roll of its exchanges, and writes in The New Outlook.

TIMELY TIPS ON OUTDOOR LIFE

By Morris Ackerman

For summer camping, fishing or hiking, elaborate clothing is an encumberance. Old clothes will do. Rain-shedding duck, khaki or forestry cloth is better.

Go light, with light-weight outfit. A poncio for rainy days. A sweater for cool nights and morning around camp. A close-woven woolen cruising shirt will serve as both and is nearly waterproof.

Knickers for women make the proper camping and fishing rig. Bloomers and short skirt will do.

Cut out the middy blouse and take along an outing shirt instead. Medium-weight cotton or light-weight wool underwear is proper for the trail.

High shoes or tennis shoes for footwear. Buckskin gloves to work around camp and foil the mosquitoes. Don't forget a mosquito bar.

Pack your camping and fishing outfit in a water-proof duffle bag. One that will go under a Pullman sleeper if traveling by train.

Leave trunks, suit cases, grips and satchels at home. They will be ruined from rough usage on the trail.

Strapped to a pack-saddle, exposed to the weather in a canoe or carried a tump-line denotes speedy end.

Check "store clothes" at railway hotel at getting-off place.

My European Excursions

RACING ON THE SANDS OF FANO.

About half an hour on the little steamer out of Esbjerg, Denmark, I came to the Island of Fano, which in recent years has made for itself a name in the annals of international sport. On the miles and miles of sand the great motor races take place every year. The sand is so firm and hard you could drive wagons over it with impunity at any place you see fit. There are some fine up-to-date hotels there now and the high life of Scandinavia flourishes there. The inhabitants of the Island are of interest to those who love quaint old time manners and customs, but when you "drive your car in Europe," don't forget the pleasure of a spin without a spill on Fano's sands.

"THE LOFTY HALLS" OF UPSALA

With so many teachers and students in Europe this summer, I hope many of them will have the wisdom to go north to Sweden in order to see the great University at Upsala. As Trondhjem in Norway, Upsala is the historic center of Sweden, and seat of the early pagan kings of Sweden. The University was founded in 1477 and later was endowed by Gustavus Adolphus with all his private landed property. The library with its 12,000 odd old manuscripts is one of the treasure houses of Europe. The botanists in Europe never like to miss Upsala because here Linnaeus resided at the Botanic Garden and his statue stands in one of the lecture rooms today.

REV. R. F. STILLMAN GOES TO NORWOOD

Will Preach His Farewell Sermons in Cobourg On Sunday

COBOURG, June 25.—Rev. R. F. Stillman, who has been pastor of the Methodist Church, now the United Church, here, for the last two years, announced on Sunday he would conduct his farewell service next Sunday evening before leaving for Norwood, to which station he has been appointed. Mr. Stillman's son, Mr. Willard Stillman, and daughter, Miss Marlene, are two valued members of Cobourg Public School staff. There are very many who regret the removal of the highly esteemed pastor and his family from town.

Dr. Brown, who succeeds Mr. Stillman as pastor, is coming to Cobourg about July 2nd, and will take charge of the pulpit work, with Rev. W. A. Bremner as associate pastor, the following Sunday.

Masons at Church.

The Cobourg Masonic Lodge had their annual church parade on Sunday evening to St. Peter's Church, where they listened to an excellent sermon by Rev. Temple Stannage Boyle, D.D., D.C.L., the new rector. It was a scholarly exposition, admirably suited to the occasion. Special printed programs were prepared for this service, which was a memorable one.

The Welding of the Churches.

The welding of the three uniting churches seems to be taking place in a satisfactory manner in this district. At the Cobourg United service an opportunity was taken by those who had not yet signed the declaration of membership in the United Church to do so. At Port Hope United Church Sunday was a day of celebration over the consummation of Church Union, accompanied by the reception of members and dedication of the new Church.

At Colborne.

Consummation and inauguration services were also held at Colborne on Sunday, where Rev. S. C. Moore is pastor. He was assisted in the services on Sunday by Rev. Mr. Moyer of Grafton, whose church voted in favor of entering the Union.

Re-opening Next Sunday.

Castleton Union Church will be re-opened next Sunday, when Rev. C. W. Barrett, a former pastor, will preach. This church has been repaired and renovated and now presents a fine appearance.

The preacher at Port Hope Baptist Church on Sunday was Rev. T. E. Meldrum of Chetenham.

Rev. R. B. Nelles of Toronto, a former pastor of the Mill Street Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, preached at St. Paul's Church in that town on Sunday, which is a Presbyterian Church.

Trinity Church Now.

The Official Board of what was formerly Bowmanville Methodist Church, has adopted the name of Trinity United Church as the name by which their church is to be known in future.

Celebrated Golden Wedding.

Rev. Dr. Joseph Phelp, of Hamilton, and Mrs. Phelp, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on June 11. Dr. Phelp was a former minister in Peterboro district, and is well-known throughout the Bay of Quinte Conference. He is a native of Cartwright Township, Durham County. Dr. Phelp was in the active work for over fifty years, and is now chaplain of three Hamilton hospitals.

25th Anniversary.

Last Sunday was the 25th anniversary of the opening of St. John's Church, Newcastle, and His Lordship Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterboro, administered the Sacrament of Confirmation. Bishop O'Brien was in charge of the work at Newcastle when the church was opened in 1900. Confirmation service was also held at St. Joseph's Church, Bowmanville, on Sunday.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

FARMERS WERE TOO BUSY TO ATTEND FIRST LEGISLATURE ASSEMBLED IN UPPER CANADA

Session Was Delayed So Long That Members Were Harvesting.

"THE HUNGRY YEAR."

Memories of Scarcity Were Still Strong So They Would Not Neglect Crops.

COBOURG, June 25.—In the year 1791 the Province of Quebe was divided into Upper and Lower Canada. The population of the Upper Province, now Ontario, was then computed at 20,000. About one-half of these were United Empire Loyalists, who in loyalty to the British flag had abandoned their homes in the United States, and entered Canada amid hardship and privation, settling along the St. Lawrence, the Bay of Quinte, and the Niagara Peninsula. The Quebec Act, passed that same year, provided that the Legislative Council for Upper Canada should consist of not fewer than seven members, and the Assembly of not less than sixteen members, who were to be called together at least once in every year. The first election took place in August, 1792. The records of this first session are not now obtainable, but typewritten copies of the second, third and fourth Parliaments are stated to be available for reference in the Legislative Library in Toronto.

The French Duke de Lioncourt affords us a glimpse of the scene at Navy Hall at Newark, or Niagara, when Ontario's first Parliament met there in 1795, in what was presumably its third session in his "Travels in North America."

"The whole retinue of the Governor, he says, "consisted in a guard of fifty men of the garrison of the fort. Draped in silk, he entered the hall with his hat on his head, attended by his adjutant and two secretaries. The two members of the Legislative Council, gave by their speaker, notice of it to the Assembly. Five members of the latter having appeared at the bar, the Governor delivered a speech, modelled after that of the King, on the political affairs of Europe, on the treaty concluded with the United States (Jay's treaty of 1794), which he mentioned in expressions very favorable to the Union, and on the peculiar concerns of Canada."—(Travels 1, 258.)

Session In Open Air.

Having opened Parliament with this due amount of state and all the pomp in Upper Canada, the seven parliamentarians present, accustomed as they were to outdoor life, found the confinement in Navy Hall irksome, and with one accord they adjourned to the open air. We can picture these plain, stout-hearted, unassuming men, listening to the frank speech of their honored Lieutenant Governor Simcoe, with close attention, and later in that historic August day adjourning to the open air from their stifling chamber, where under the welcome shade of a spreading tree, they conducted the business of the young Province. It is recorded that a huge boulder that lifted itself through the natural turf, served as a desk for the recording clerk. Before them swept the magnificent river Niagara, with the waters of all the Upper Lakes swirling by in its current, teaming yet with the conflict of the long gorge above, and the mad leap at Table Rock.

Farmers Busy With Harvest.

The first Parliament of Upper Canada was required to assemble once every year. Liancourt, in his "Travels," accounts for the smallness of the attendance upon this occasion as follows:

"On account of the expected arrival of a chief justice who was to come from England, the Governor had delayed the session, with the hope that the former, when he arrived, would be able to acquaint the members with the particulars of the Treaty with the United States. But the harvest had now begun, which in a higher degree than elsewhere, engages in Canada, the public attention, far beyond what state affairs can do. Two members of the Legislative Council were present instead of seven; no Chief Justice appeared, who was to act as speaker; instead of sixteen members of the Assembly, five only attended; and this was the whole number that could be collected at this time. The law required a greater number of members for each House, to discuss and determine upon any business, but within two days a year would have expired since the last session. The Governor, therefore, thought it right to open the session, reserving, however, to either House the right of proroguing the sitting, from one day to another in expectation that the ship from Detroit and Kingston would either bring the members who were yet wanting, or certain intelligence of their not being able to attend."

Hon. Alexander Macdonald was the first speaker of the House. He represented Stormont and Glengarry, and in old records is referred to as "Macdonald of Glengarry."

Hungry Year.

The French historian's reference, that attention to the harvest engaged the people of the Province more than state affairs, may well have been true. The years 1788, 1789 and 1790, are historically known as the lean years and the latter as "The Hungry Year." But few harvests had been gathered since those years of great suffering, before the first Legislature assembled, and it was but natural that the saving of the crop was to the scattered settlers of paramount interest.

Dr. Canniff, an early historian of the Bay of Quinte district, has left this record of "The Hungry Year":

"In the fourth township (Adolphustown), upon the sunny side of a hill there was the following year (1790) an early field of grain, and to this the people came from far and near to eat the milk-like heads of grain as soon as they were sufficiently grown."

The late Henry Ruttan, in an address delivered before the Provincial Agricultural Society at Kingston on September, 1849, said of this trying time in the early settlement of Canada:

"A great scarcity of provisions prevailed for two or three years consecutively, in consequence of failure of the crops and what brought the famine or scarce year was the almost entire destruction of deer by wolves for two consecutive years. The snow lay upon the ground from December until April at a depth of four or five feet. In the month of February of the last of these years a near relative of mine sent all the way to Albany in the state of New York, a distance of more than 200 miles, for four bushels of Indian corn. It was brought all that distance by two men (slaves), on snow-shoes. It took them about eight weeks to accomplish the journey, and during that time about one-third of the quantity was necessarily consumed by the men. The residue of the cargo, pounded up in a mortar made of a maple stump, with the wintergreen berry and mucilageous roots, latterly boiled with a little milk, constituted the principal food for two families of seven persons for the space of four or five months. It was remarked, I have heard some of the old settlers say, that the usual supply of fish even failed. The few cattle and horses which the settlers, at great cost, had collected, were killed for food. The famine was general throughout the Bay of Quinte, and such was the distress that during the winter several persons died of starvation. In the Hay Bay settlement a heartrending occurrence took place. Sometime during the month of April the husband and father was found buried in the snow, while in their log home a little farther on, his young wife and her infant child were found also in death's cold sleep."

With the memory of this testing time, when their courage and their loyalty were tried to the utmost, fresh in their minds, these men assembled in the first Parliament at Niagara or Newark, gathered together to legislate for their young country.

Other old records state that Governor Simcoe summoned his first Legislature to meet in its first session at Newark on September 17, the above refers to the third session of this same Parliament. They received the speech of His Excellency and elected a speaker. A Mr. Jones moved for leave to bring in a bill to authorize town meetings for the purpose of appointing divers parish officers. The bill was read in the House but legislation enacting municipal government was not finally enacted until July, 1793. It is noteworthy that this was the first legislation passed by the Parliament of Upper Canada.

RAIN VALUABLE.

Wonderful Improvement Is Seen in Farm Crops—Expect Banner Crops.

The recent rains have made a wonderful improvement in the farm crops. The clover and hay has all the appearance of a bountiful crop and the grain crop looks exceptionally good this season too.

The gardens are looking their best.

The strawberries throughout this section are getting ripe. The prices are quoted from 23 to 25c. per box for this week.

CLOVER HARVEST HAS COMMENCED

Heavy Crops of Alfalfa and Sweet Clover in Dummer.

CORN IS UP.

WARSAW, June 25.—Alfalfa and sweet clover harvest has commenced. There are some very heavy crops, though some is bunchy.

Most of the corn is up, and has been scuffled at least once.

Several have noticed that the potato bugs have not shown up so much this year as usual.

The fall wheat looks well, and there are some splendid fields of rye to be seen. It is said to look heavier than usual. One man measured a stalk six feet, two inches, and not done growing.

Those who have strawberry plants are well pleased so far with their crops. Unless it becomes too hot and dry, they look for a large berry harvest. The stores were selling nice-looking berries at 20 cents, and some boys had well-filled baskets of cleaned berries at 25 cents.

The lightning-rod men are busy filling their many contracts in this vicinity.

One afternoon last week some of the cheese factory patrons had a bee and built a fence along the river bank from the end of the bridge.

STRAWBERRIES RIPEN.

Warm Weather and Sunshine Are Needed For Faster Growth.

DUNSFORD, June 25.—The strawberries are getting ripe but not so quickly as if there had been heat. Warm weather and sunshine is needed. Mr. Geo. Ranson has some 1000 plants and is supplying the tourists at Bobcaygon. He goes down there twice daily.

PRICES ARE NOT CHANGING MUCH

Cobourg Farmers Asked the Same Prices at Weekly Market.

CROPS ARE GOOD.

COBOURG, June 25.—There was little change in prices on the market Saturday. Home-grown strawberries are now coming into town quite freely and sell from 15c. to 20c. a box. The crop appears to be a fairly plentiful one in this district. Plenty of home-grown lettuce, radish, onions, and spinach were offered. Potatoes sold for 50c. a bag. New (imported) potatoes sell from 4 to 6 pounds for 25c. Local gardeners have not had enough asparagus to supply the trade, consequently 15c. a bunch and 2 bunches for 25c. has been the general price. It is now getting a little past the season for this vegetable. Eggs are a trifle stronger, selling from 28 to 30c. a dozen. Dairy butter sells from 35c. to 38c. a pound. Creamery butter is 37c. and 38c. Chickens are very scarce as yet; year-old fowl sell from 28 and 30c. a pound up.

Crops Look Fine.

Farmers who were in town state that the crops are looking fine. The County hereabouts has been blessed by frequent showers that have broken the dry spells with occasionally a good soaking rain. The spring planting is now done and a large acreage is the result. The dry spring, prohibited getting on the land to such an extent, that seeding was completed early and the farmers had more time then sometimes happens to fix up the planting ground. It is, doubtful if there are as many potatoes planted this year as usual, owing to the very low price at which they sold this spring. There is not a large amount of fall wheat and rye grown around Cobourg; but in driving through the County one sees here and there a field of it and it has made a fine growth, and is looking exceptionally well.

MOSAIC WONT SHOW IN WARM WEATHER

Potato Disease Symptoms Appear Only During Cool Days.

MADISON, Wis., June 24.—Mosaic disease can be recognized on the leaves of potato plants when the temperature is below 75 degrees, Fahrenheit.

This is the discovery made at Madison by James Johnson.

He has found that if a potato tuber is infected with mosaic, the resulting plants will show the characteristic mottling of the leaves only at temperatures up to 75 degrees. At higher temperatures, he says, the plants may show little or no evidence of the disease, although still harboring the mosaic infection.

By growing one eye from each potato tuber under controlled conditions in the greenhouse, it was possible to show up the disease in nearly all tubers where it prevailed.

This new method of "indexing" has been used for the particlar purpose of producing a quantity of mosaic-free Triumph stock for dissemination among growers. Last year tubers were selected from stock of which 2 per cent or less mosaic had appeared during the previous season.

YOUNG CHICKENS GROW BETTER IF THEY ARE ALONE

Cockerels Gain Weight Faster and Crowd Pullets From Food.

STOP CROWDING.

Separation May Take Place as Soon as Sexes Can Be Distinguished.

URBANA, Ill., June 25.—Cockerel and pullets will develop better if they are separated about this time of the year and kept to themselves than they will if allowed to run together, according to Dr. L. E. Card.

Pullets are especially benefitted by this practice because they do not increase in weight as fast as cockerels. Consequently they are crowded away from the mash hoppers and drinking vessels and do not get a fair share of the feed supply.

Separating cockerels and pullets also prevents crowding in the brooder house. If the mortality among the chicks has been low, the house will tend to become more and more crowded as the chickens get older. One of the easiest ways to remedy this is to take out the cockerels and move them to another range or put them on the market.

"Ordinarily the two sexes should be separated just as soon as they can be distinguished, provided the chicks are old enough to do without heat.

"Under no conditions, however, should cockerels of the light breeds, such as Leghorns and Anconas, be left with the pullets after they are 12 weeks old. Separation at eight weeks is much better.

"With the heavy American breeds separation may be made when the chicks are from 12 to 16 weeks old, depending upon how well developed they are, how crowded their quarters are and how much difference there is in the weight of the cockerels and pullets."

INSECTS EAT PESTS OF OHIO CORN FIELDS

Parasites, Enemies of Corn Borers, Are Not Harmful to Crops.

SANDUSKY, O., June 25.—Half a million parasites from France are being released along the shore of Lake Erie in an effort to stop the fast advance of the corn borer.

The parasites are enemies of the corn pest.

Three types are being used. All are of the wasp or bee class and are said to be in no way injurious to crops.

The eggs of these parasites are deposited on the larvae of the corn borer where the young parasites hatch out and feed, killing the corn borer as they grow.

The parasites originally came from France. One form is small, black and ant-like in appearance. It came from France in the cocoon or resting stage and was allowed to emerge in the laboratories here, where they were fed and mated before being released. About 1500 of this type have been released in Ohio.

Another type was reared at Arlington, Mass., the headquarters for corn borer investigation work. From there they were sent to the local laboratories here in the cocoon stage. They were allowed to emerge, were fed and mated, and then released. About 25,000 of this type were released last fall. And 30,000 were released this spring.

A wasp-like type, about an inch long, is also being thrown into the field against the corn borer. About 17,000 of these have been released, after having been prepared like the others.

The releasing of parasites is only one of the means being utilized in the effort to control the European corn borer. It isn't expected to effect a satisfactory control for some years.

Meanwhile, clean farming, burning of old stalks and other control methods will be necessary.

CORN CRLTIVATION'

Cultivate corn just enough to keep the weeds down, is the advice of farming experts. This will lower production costs. It is now well established that weed control, and not moisture conservation, is the chief object of corn cultivation.

GROUND HOG DAY.

May Soon Be None of Pests Left to Justify Weather Forecast.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Groundhog Day, as a day for the prediction of future weather, may soon be a day of the past.

The groundhog has made itself so undesirable an animal as to put every farmer on his tracks. Efforts are more serious than ever, to eradicate the rodent from the fields.

GIVING PLANTS A GOOD BOOST

Manure Water is Favorite Method of Old Gardeners When Plants Fail.

MULCH PLANTS.

Often the plants in the home garden stand still, lack dark green color, and seem to be stunted. What can be done to bring them back? One method that has been practiced by old gardeners for years is the use of manure water. Stable manure is placed in an old barrel, covered with water, and left to stand a few days.

Then it is used on the stunted plants or bushes or other crop to be. For every sprinkling can of water a tin of manure water is used. This dilutes the manure water and does not allow plants to get too much at one application; these should be repeated at intervals of ten days or two weeks, depending upon the crop and soil. Another method is mulching the plants. Well-rotted manure is spread around the plants or between the rows. After spreading, the manure is well watered. The water induces quicker decay, and with the first good rain plant food is carried down to the roots.

ALFALFA MEAL IS GOOD CATTLE FOOD

Not So Valuable as Bran Unless Bought at Lower Price.

On account of many inquiries with regard to the feeding value of alfalfa meal, a test was made at the Central Experimental Farm with a group of Ayrshire and Holstein cows. The cows were fed standard rations of corn silage, clover hay and meal, the meal being partly composed of either bran or alfalfa meal. According to the report of the Dominion Animal Husbandman, the alfalfa meal in the test did not prove as valuable a feed for dairy cows as bran, but this depends a good deal on the price paid for each. If the alfalfa meal can be bought at price some 10 to 15 per cent lower than bran, it may prove more economical.

ORCHARD IS GOOD AS POULTRY YARD

Provides Shade For Chickens and Fruit For Household.

An orchard is the ideal range for chickens. Two purposes are accomplished—shade for the poultry and fruit for the household and market. Such an orchard should include apples mostly, some peaches, a few pears, some plums, and cherries may be added. The apple trees should be placed about 40 feet apart each way, the peach trees 20 feet, a row of plums 20 feet apart, and the same distance for pears. Choose such varieties of each as are known to be adapted to the section.

If the orchard is already established the poultry may be transferred to it. Have comfortable poultry quarters, the open side facing the south, and so located that the trees may not ct off the sun in winter. Thus the same land takes care of two crops.

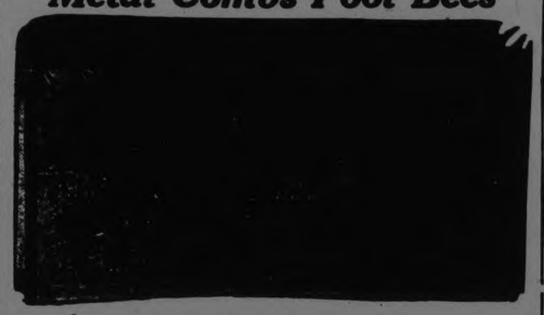
HAVE SWEET CORN THROUGH SUMMER

Should Be Planted to Insure a Continuous Supply Until Fall.

Sweet corn is a crop that should be continuously used during the summer season and up to the time of frost. This means several plantings—not at garden making time only, but up into midsummer. Too frequently it is the custom to plant a fair-sized patch from which is used the corn until it passes the roasting ear stage, and then to have no more of this delectable vegetable food, unless the field varieties of corn are brought into service. But this is a mistake. The sweet varieties are best for the table, being sweeter, more palatable and easier to prepare. Golden Bantam is as tasty as its vitamins are abundant.

In planning a continuous supply of sweet corn plant a new patch every 10 days or two weeks, choosing a place where several short rows are possible or a small square, rather than two or three long rows. This insures better fertilization of the grains and hence the grains plump. The early plantings of peas are always good spots to follow with sweet corn. Drill planting is preferable, the rows 30 inches apart for the earlier and smaller varieties, and 36 to 40 inches for the later and larger sorts. One plant to every 10 inches in the row, but 12 to 14 inches in the row for the larger varieties. Liberal fertilizing increases both the yields and the quality of sweet corn.

Metal Combs Fool Bees



Bees need no longer waste their time and efforts building the combs in which to store their honey. Then is making these for them. The honey combs are of aluminum and are coated with pure beeswax, to fool the insects. Several pounds of honey are gained in the filling of these combs.

CROP REPORTS

Canadian National.

MONTREAL, Quebec, June 25—Crop prospects throughout Western Canada are the brightest they have been for some years, judging from the reports received here by the Canadian National Railways for the week ending, June 20, and covering the three prairie provinces. Considerable rain fell in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, but grain is now growing rapidly and showing good color. Wheat is in short blade at some points in those two provinces and is as high as twelve inches with other grains coming along well. Alberta reports wheat well stooled out fairly generally and averages from twelve to eighteen inches. Feeding conditions are excellent and the abundance of moisture throughout has assured plenty of pasturage for the summer.

In the Manitoba district, the continuous rains have been the cause of some anxiety but the growth is good and crops are doing well. There is ample moisture to take care of the grain for a considerable time and very little damage by cut worm is reported The cool weather and heavy rains having over come this menace. Conditions are particularly good on high land where excessive moisture has dried up more quickly than in the lower parts. Wheat is as high as fourteen inches and Gladstone and Hartney subdivisions report it in short blade. Prospects for rye are thirty bushels to the acre.

In the Saskatchewan district all grain is showing vigorous growth as a result of rains during early part of the week, followed by two warm days. Crops are well ahead of last year in growth and with moderately warm weather, progress should be very rapid and eliminate any chance of rust. Early wheat is stooling out in some divisions and considerable breaking and summer harrowing is being done. In the Saskatoon division only light damage from cut worms is reported.

Ideal conditions prevailed in Alberta during the past week with warm weather and a couple of showers. Wheat is well stooled out and averages from twelve to eighteen inches in height. Other grains are also growing well, very little damage from cut worm or other sources being reported. Farmers are taking advantage of the abundance of moisture in the ground and have started to break new land. It is expected that there will be a considerable amount of breaking done this year in Alberta.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 25 (Special).—With rains ranging from light showers to heavy precipitation, every district in the West has been benefited over the past week, according to the weekly Crop Report of the Agricultural Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway and there is now sufficient moisture in most districts to carry the crop for several weeks.

Cultivated land is well soaked and raw land is in excellent condition for cultivation. Growth is further advanced than in average years.

Cut worms have taken their toll in many districts but the damage cannot be considered serious and most of the affected areas have been reseeded. Most of winter rye is in head and looking well.

Dates on which seeding generally begun and completed this year is as follows—Manitoba, April 15 to May 14; Saskatchewan, April 23 to May 16; Alberta, April 26 to May 16.

Cattle and Hog receipts on local market continue heavy, sheep and lamb receipts light.

In Manitoba the rainfall has been well distributed and has penetrated well into the ground and crops in general could not be better and growth is well in excess of several years past. On the eighteenth hail destroyed a strip one mile wide west of Mowbray to Windy Gates and a limited area at Oak River.

Ideal weather conditions have prevailed in Saskatchewan, the past week, all vegetation is feeling the benefit of a plentiful moisture and favorable growth is everywhere evident.

The percentage of destruction by cut worms is very small, although in some places it is heavy.

Alberta has a heavy rain fall over the week end. There is now an ample supply everywhere and in the south-eastern parts where it has been dry for several years past farmers are optimistic. Some hail fell, but not expected any permanent result will follow.

On the Edmonton Dunvegan and British Columbia lines, rain has been recorded at most points and all grain and root crops are looking well pastures are luxuriant and a heavy hay crop will be gathered. Grasshoppers have been numerous in some districts but are now under control.

Production of dairy cattle in New Zealand had doubled in the last 10 years, and may be doubled again in the next 10, says Dr. Theodore Macklin, who has just returned from a trip to New Zealand.

Although New Zealand's cotton yield will be higher this year than last, the result is much worse than last year's because of the larger area under cultivation.

KITCHEN GARDEN IMPROVES LIFE

Is Sideline on Farm That Helps Out in Yearly Profit.

FOR GOOD HEALTH.

It is not always the largest enterprise that gives the largest profit. On the farm it is often a small side line that gives better returns than the regular lines of effort. A few side lines—and in every farm scheme there ought to be several—will help out wonderfully in the yearly profit. A few dollars from this, a few from that and a few from one or more others mean a good deal in the course of a year. They often pay outright for the new convenience or addition you want to buy.

The well regulated farm is never without its garden. The man who lives in the city appreciates the value and meaning of the garden. You need only to go from country to city in order to become a staunch advocate of a large, well-kept garden. Fresh vegetables add much to the attractiveness of country life. They are an asset to country living. They are full of health and vitality. They stand for the broad outlook of life—energy, enthusiasm, red blood and joy. They are a constant benediction to right living.

But the farm garden includes more than vegetables. Small fruits belong in it and they add to its health-giving benefits. Give the garden attention and it returns an income and a surplus. It supplies not only the home, but may be made to bring extra money. Therefore, may all farmers join hands in making the farm garden mean more in 1925 than any year in the past—in better feeding the family, in adding to the farm income, and in enriching country life.

CITY WASTE BUILDS FERTILITY OF SOILS

Sewage Sludge Ranks High as an Effective Fertilizing Agent.

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—Study of activated sewage sludge shows that city wastes rank high when compared with other organic nitrogenous compounds which are used in the preparation of commercial fertilizers.

The study of sewage sludge was made over a year by E. Truog and O. J. Noer. In their experiments they used activated sludge, nitrate of soda, dried blood, low and high-grade tankage, digested leather and garbage tankage.

In the case of potatoes, blood meal and sulphate of ammonia proved to be the only nitrogen carriers that gave better results than sludge.

With the use of sludge, potatoes increased from 30 to more than 100 bushels an acre, with application of from 500 to 1000 pounds of this fertilizer to each acre. In each case the sludge was applied with sulphate of ammonia and dried blood, in which about two-thirds of the nitrogen was from the waste.

Sludge was found an effective fertilizer especially on long season crops, such as corn, potatoes and onions. Mixtures where one-half of the nitrogen was supplied from waste and the rest from sulphate of ammonia proved as effective as the commercial mixtures tried.

The superiority of the mixture was evident throughout the growing season. The fertilization hastens the maturity of the crop, which is a distinct factor with produce sold on the early market when the prices are high.

CLOVER CROP HAS NOT LOOKED BETTER

Frequent Evening Rains Have Been of Great Benefit to Marmora Farms.

MARMORA, June 25.—Thanks to frequent evening rains, marking the summer thus far, hay and clover crops in the Marmora vicinity never looked better than they do at present. At the same time, there is naturally much weeding to be done betwirt the rows of growing garden crops, as well as to flower plots. Wild strawberries are fairly plentiful. Cultivated raspberry bushes give promise of an ample fruitage.

Overstocking is given as the cause for a deterioration of range lands, where it is estimated the native pastures are only 10 to 15 per cent. of their natural productivity. Another result of this condition has been smaller size of cattle, even where they are well bred.

GROWERS WATCH TRUCK GARDENS WITH MUCH CARE

Expectations of Healthy Growth Are Not Always Realized.

MANY ILLS.

Sudden Changes of Weather Or Ravages of Worms Spoil Plants.

By H. H. THOMPSON.

About this time growers are no doubt keenly watching their various truck crops, and looking for a rapid and healthy stem and leaf growth.

Expectations are not, however, always realized. In fact the getting of a perfect stand of strong healthy plants of the various sorts of truck is quite often not achieved. Many are the ills they fall a victim to. If the grower has experience he can often counteract or check some of these or in some cases guard against them. I am not of course speaking of plant diseases, but rather of climatic or mechanical injury.

For instance in a field of young musk-melons or cucumbers one may notice that some of the plants are standing still while others are making a vigorous growth; wire-worms at the roots are often the cause of this; or possibly if they are all at a standstill it may be the need of moisture or cultivation and earthing up of the soil towards the plants. In an irrigated district this can of course be easily remedied. Some of the plants may show a whitening of the leaves; heavy winds or extra cold night can do this on tender cucumbers and on melons.

Plants can become tender in the field through abnormally warm days and nights and then suffer from a change to cold weather which is almost as hard on them as if they were set out direct from a hot-bed or greenhouse without proper hardening. A young healthy cucumber or melon will usually have large thick succulent primary leaves; those having small, weak primary leaves usually are slower of growth and less vigorous in vine development.

In tomato plants that have had weather that was too cool for their stage of hardness it usually shows on the plants turning a purple color underneath the leaves, if very severe the entire leaf will show purple. When, however, warm weather comes they generally put on a fresh, healthy growth of dark-green foliage.

Sweet Potatoes.

Sweet potatoes, after being set out, may cause the owner some concern through turning a sort of bronze or slate color; this need not cause any worry, that is a semi-natural color in the older leaves of some varieties, particularly the Southern Queen, and young plants taking on that shade in the first foliage will usually show the new growth a bright green. Sweet potatoes of the Jersey varieties should not show this color; they are always a good shade of green. If, however, the leaves go white, it is a sign of too much or prolonged cold on them. Sweet potatoes that are cut off close to the ground by cut worms will re-root if buried down again in moist soil. If the weather is very hot at the time, they are better shaded.

Sweet potato plants in the South are raised from cuttings quite as often as from rooted plants. Moist soil around the stems for a couple of days will give them noticeable roots along up as high as the earth is on them. Because of this tendency and the fact that the vines of sweet potatoes must not be allowed to root in this way when the plants have developed, considerable work is caused in going along the plants after wet weather and mulching the soil and moving the vines.

BIGGER BY THINNING'

Thinning is recommended to secure larger fruit, eliminate inferior grades and conserve overloaded trees.

SHEEP COUNTRIES.

The chief sheep producing countries in the world are, in the order of their importance, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina, South Africa, countries adjacent to Mediterranean Sea, British Isles and the United States.

DIVERSITY OF CORN

About 348 commodities can be made from corn. They include such a variety as axle grease and face powder, shoe heels and chair cushions, cigaret holders and gunpowder, shaving soap and varnish.

SALT FOR BARBERRY.

Crushed rock salt is the best chemical to kill the common barberry, which spreads the black stem rust disease of cereals. Sodium arsenate is effective also, but it is extremely poisonous to livestock.

CABBAGE MAGGOT

Corrosive sublimate is the best and cheapest weapon for checking the cabbage maggot. The chemical should be used at the rate of one ounce to ten gallons of water. Before it is diluted to this strength it should be dissolved in a small quantity of water

YELLOW IN HENS.

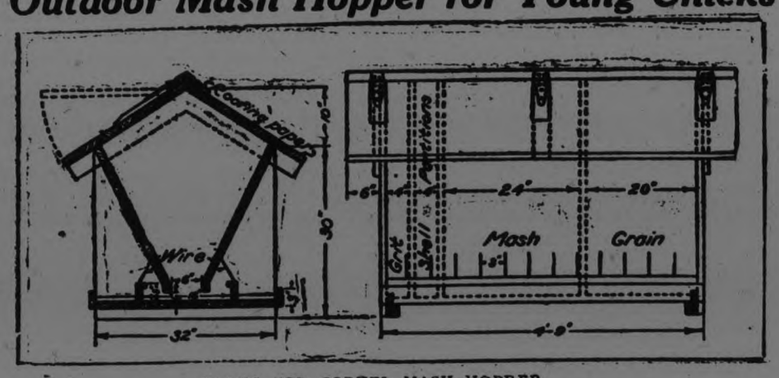
The yellow streak in a hen indicates she'll be a liability on the breeder who keeps her. It shows in yellow legs, as well as on the beak and around the vent.

LEAD ARSENATE

Arsenate of lead is better than Paris green for killing insects on vegetables and vines, such as potato, cucumber and bean. It should be used at the rate of one teaspoonful to two gallons of water, well stirred, or one pound to 50 gallons of water.

If eggs are kept over three days in a place where the temperature is above 70 degrees, even if infertile, they are graded as seconds. Store them in a cool room and market as often as possible.

Outdoor Mash Hopper for Young Chicks



PLANS FOR CORNEL MASH HOPPER.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 24.—After chicks are three or four weeks old, outdoor hoppers for mash, grit and shell should be provided for them.

The ideal mash hopper is one which holds a large amount of feed, does not waste and provides a continuous supply of mash.

The outdoor hopper, designed at the Cornell University College of Agriculture, meets the first two requirements.

It, in common with all large reservoir types of hoppers, is likely to clog because of the bulky nature of the mash. The person caring for it should therefore jar the sides of the hopper occasionally to loosen

The overhanging roof protects the mash from the rain. When the mash feeds down freely, some may fall out either side on the eight-inch projection where the chicks stand to eat.

The hopper holds several bushels of mash and is designed for use with from five to six hundred chicks.

REPORT DISPELS FRIENDS ANXIETY

Chinese Inland Troubles Are Frequent, But Don't Bother Missionaries.

BANDITRY USUAL.

TORONTO, June 24—Anxious enquiries of Vancouver relatives of Canadian missionaries serving in China have been answered reassuringly in a message to the Vancouver newspapers. The despatch reads as follows:

"Developments in China have not yet led United Church Mission headquarters to make special enquiries concerning safety of their workers and families, numbering nearly six hundred persons there. No news is considered good news, judging by past experience with Chinese troubles, and so far no messages have been received from anyone on the field. Responsible leaders of the three principal missions, North Honan, West China and South China, would promptly telegraph concerning any unfavorable incidents, secretaries said today when appraised of Vancouver's anxietity. Missionaries travelling homeward on furlough may be passing through the troubled areas but would notiiy headquarters promptly either personally or through consulates if they felt relatives needed reassurance. One Canadian party consisting of Rev. John A. Walker, wife and child, Mrs. Dr. R. C. Kilborn and Miss F. A. R. V. Wilson from West China are thought to have left Shanghai on the "Empress" on June 1 for Vancouver. Their sailing can be verified at Vancouver. Another Canadian party, Mrs. Dr. J. M. Clark and two children, and Miss M. L. Lamb, all from Szechwan, are believed descending the Yangtze River to Shanghai, passing through Chungking, Ichang and Hankow, important river ports, to sail for Vancouver late this month. Fighting is known to have occurred around Chungking on upper Yangtze in May, reports thereof reaching here in Shanghai newspapers but not from missionaries. Twenty-five United Church missionaries reside in Chungking but fighting there is so frequent no special anxiety results.

"Chengtu, West China's university centre, is believed quiet. British gunboats regularly patrol Yangtze up to Chungking but not to Chengtu.

"North Honan is believed suffering from nothing more than usual banditry which is not directed against missionaries."

The original query from the Vancouver Daily Province read, "Considerable worry in Vancouver regarding missionaries of Presbyterian and Methodist Churches in China. Please rush full statements reporting any action contemplated from headquarters regarding situation."

TIMELY ADVICE TO YOUNG FOLKS

Sir Hubert Parry Had Incalculable Effect On Younger Musicians

BEAUTY OF ORDER

Of the generation just passed, no English composer left a greater impression upon the musical world than Sir Hubert Parry. As a composer, his influence, especially upon church music of Great Britain and America, has been enormous. As principal of the Royal College of Music, he left an incalculable effect upon the lives and artistic ideals of an army of the younger British musicians, as well as a contingent of foreigners. From one of his talks to the young people under his guidance he said:

"The beauty of order is that there is so much more room for things. If you have twenty letters by post of a morning, and open them and throw them all down helterskelter on the table, they look perfectly awful—it looks as if it would be best to put them in the waste-basket at once, and not try to answer them. But if you put them in a few piles, in accordance with the nature of their contents they look ever so much smaller, and you don't despair of answering them at all.

"Now one of your first objects in life is to get as much into it as you can. When you get old enough to look back you will get a bit worried, not to have done some things that were worth doing, and it is always well to remember we each have a little spell to get things done, and we do not get the chance to get them done again. The older you get ,the shorter you will find your one chance; and the only way to pack life as full as it will hold is to put its contents in some sort of order. But there is no order that does for every one; and every one has to find the order that suits his disposition best—and that is where the room comes for your impulses and queernesses."

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

CANADIAN AUTHORS MEET AT WINNIPEG

Mayor Advocates Strictest Censorship on Some United States Literature.

WINNIPEG, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Welcomed by Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, the 4th annual convention of the Canadian Authors' Association opened yesterday with 70 members present.

In his welcoming address, Premier Bracken declared that such conventions would help to remove sectionalism, and aid the fostering of Canadianism which was so much needed. He recalled that the first book printed in Manitoba was printed at Norway House, in Northern Manitoba, 84 years ago, on birch bark.

Mayor Ralph H. Webb, of Winnipeg, also welcomed the authors, and advocated a stricter consorship on United States literature of the kind that United States people themselves condemned, but which Canadians did not.

Reports presented showed the membership of the association to be 632, and the financial statement recorded a credit balance of approximately $1,400.

GYRO CLUB IS READY FOR BIG CONVENTION

VANCOUVER, June 23, (Canadian Press).—For more than a year members of the Vancouver Gyro Club have been preparing for the big international convention that is to bring Gyro delegates here from all parts of the continent on July 10, and continuing until July 13. Plans are being made to have it an "open air convention" for everything on the programme with the exception of the business sessions will be held out of doors, and in this particular will be set a precedent for conferences of this kind in the Northwest.

One of the features of the delegates' stay here will be a visit to one of the big modern logging camps and sawmills of the district, where they will see huge timbers brought out of the forest and converted into dressed lumber.

Two days of the convention will be spent in Victoria, where an opportunity will be presented for visiting the New Crystal Gardens and salt water swimming tanks and the beautiful Saanich peninsula. Many other entertainment features are also planned.

Rowe W. Holland, of Vancouver, president of the Vancouver Gyro Club, will preside over the convention sessions.

RENUNCIATION BY GREAT LEADER

Dr. Chown's Action Was in Keeping With the Traditions.

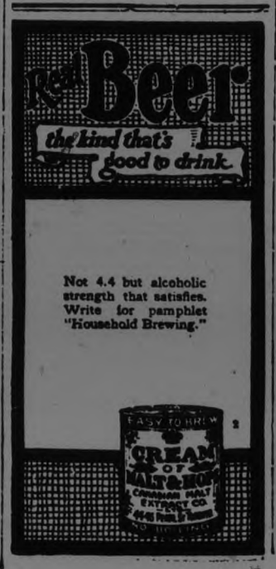
"A GOOD SPORT."

The former Methodist Church never demanded or expected self-renunciation from its leaders. Once having elected them to lead it expected them to take initiative and to bear full responsibility therefor until relieved of duty. Rev. S. D. Chown was never asked by Methodism to retire from its leadership. For him to have done so without cause in the face of the verdicts of confidence given him on every statutory occasion would have earned him ugly names. He himself noted a cause which to him appears sufficient for his withdrawal from the election to the highest office of the Church into which Methodism has entered. Probably he will be able to justify his action in nominating another to the office of moderator of the United Church of Canada. His mandate from the Methodist Church to primacy in its corps of general officers does not expire until October, 1926. Of his present fitness for public service there is no doubt and it is quite fitting that the General Council assigns to him duties for which he is eminently qualified.

That he should sweep aside the rules of Council and take measures by which he could efface himself in the greater service of the Church is in keeping with the highest traditions of his office. He came to the General Superintendency when that dominating figure, Rev. Albert Carman, had not yet passed from the scene. As colleague to Dr. Carman he learned lessons in self-control which now stand him in good stead. As elected chief of Methodism Dr. Chown never "took a back seat" to any potentate or magnate until his sure instinct suggested that the occasion had arrived.

In times of stress, when baited by men who knew his pride in his Church and his keen sense of responsibility for its good name, Dr. Chown maintained an almost complete silence. To have remained absolutely silent would have been superhuman. Dr. Chown is self-confessedly human, but "a good sport" whenever put to the test, as Dr. Pidgeon was the first to testify.

The last of that line of General Superintendents who have maintained in Canada the tradition of Wesley has stepped down, ready to go out of office but not out of harness while in his giant frame and keen intellect the strength to work remains.



ENGAGEMENT DENIED

MISS ELLIN MACKAY AND (INSET) IRVING BERLIN

Both Irving Berlin, king of ragtime composers, and Miss Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence Mackay, the multi-millionaire president of the Postal Telegraph, have denied the published announcement of their engagement.

The report along Broadway was that Miss Mackay had gained special dispensation of the pope for marriage to Berlin, a Jew. Following this report it was published that Berlins' plaintive "What'll I Do?" song was written while he was saddened by Miss Mackay's absence in Europe.

"Somebody is trying to harm me with false rumors," Berlin said when told of the report. Only a few weeks ago he was reported engaged to Constance Talmadge, the screen star.

Berlin started his career as Izzy Baline, a Russian immigrant, acting as a singing waiter at 'Nigger Mikes' and other places along the Bowery. Then he began to compose and although he couldn't read music "Alexander's Ragtime Band" was his first big hit. Since then he has made millions.

AMEND THE LAW ON IMMIGRATION

Premier of Australia Would Forbid Entry of Undesirable Parties.

DEPORT DISTURBERS.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 26.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.)—With the object of strengthening the hands of the government Premier Stanley M. Bruce yesterday introduced in the house of representatives a measure amending the immigration act. It provides that undesirables may be forbidden to land in Australia and enables the government in the event of serious industrial disturbances to issue a proclamation whereby persons not born in Australia who are responsible for the obstruction of transportation may be deported.

The bill also empowers the government to deport persons not born in Australia who may be convicted of offences against the laws of the Commonwealth relating to trade. It also provides for the total or partial prohibition of aliens of any nationality from entering the country.

PRINCE VIEWS BIG GOLD MINE

Descended 3,500 Feet Into Crown Mines Near Johannesburg.

GOLD PAPER WEIGHT.

JOHANNESBURG, June 26. — (Canadian Press). — The Prince of Wales yesterday had the novel experience of descending into the Crown Mines, the greatest gold mine in the world. He made the descent of 3500 feet in the cage in two minutes and declared it was an eerie sensation.

Arriving at the bottom of the shaft Wales drove in an electric train about four miles to another shaft where the white overseers had gathered. The Prince eagerly inspected the rock drillers and other machinery and insisted that each overseer should be ptrsonally presented to him.

On leaving the Prince was given a pure gold paper weight with a quartz handle.

BROKER AWARDED $20,000 COMMISSION

Vancouver Man Given Two Per Cent. on Money in Prospective Deal.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 26. — (Canadian Press). — After hearing argument regarding the amount of the commission due Daniel Thomas, Vancouver broker in his claim against former Mayor H. R. Gale, J. R. Smith and the Terminal Grain Company, Mr. Justice Gregory has set the amount at $20,000, being based on a two per cent. commission of the amount of money Mr. Gale originally intended to borrow in England for the erection of an elevator and feed mill. Mr. Thomas sued for $250,000.

HOPE FOR COMMON CREED DEFEATED

Delegates From Scotland and Continent Succeed in Having Committee Named.

CARDIFF, Wales, June 26.—(Canadian Press). — The hopes that the present session of the Presbyterian Alliance Council would succeed in unifying the Presbyterian Churches of the world by adopting a common creed were defeated yesterday by the action of the council in adopting, instead a motion referring to the business committee a proposal that a committee be appointed to report on the advisability of a common creed and the drawing up of a tentative one. The prescribed committee would not report until the next meeting of the council in 1929.

The discussions on the qustion of unity indicated that there was an almost unanimous desire among the delegates from Canada, England and the United States that a common creed should be framed and submitted to the Churches for action. But, while there was no violent opposition the delegation from Scotland and the continent were for the most part of the opinion that the time was not ripe for such action.

DECRIES CRITICISM.

German Banker Says Predictions on Dawes Plan Are Premature.

COLOGNE, Germany, June 26. — (Canadian Press). — Addressing a convention of German industrialists yesterday, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, decried recent criticism of the Dawes plan.

"Predictions about the impossibility of transferring payments under the Dawes plan seem as premature as contrary predictions would be," declared Dr. Schacht.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

LEAGUE DEBATES POSSIBLE ISSUES

Committee On International Law Considers Many Important Phases

MET AT STOCKHOLM

STOCKHOLM, June 24.—Suppresion of piracy and the joint exploitation of the riches of the sea are among the ten first subjects selected for study by the League of Nations Committee on the Codification of International Law, of which the Swedish Ex-Premier Hjalmar Hammarskjold is the president and George W. Wickersham of New York a member. This committee was appointed by the league's assembly last fall upon the motion of Baron Marks von Wurtemberg, then Swedish minister of foreign affairs and delegate at Geneva.

A summary of the work so far accomplished shows that the committee has not yet taken up the proposal favored by Senator Borah to outlaw war altogether. Neither has it considered the so called rules of warfare, regarding that subject as too big and complicated for immediate discussion, nor has it entered upon the hardly less formidable topic of the rights of neutrals in war time, which includes the freedom of the sea.

The committee's procedure has been, President Hammarskjold said recently, to select a limited list of topics on which agreement among the governments seemed the most likely, hoping later to be able to enter upon the more controversial fields. This list includes, in addition to the subjects mentioned above, the following heads: Questions of the nationality or citizenship of individuals; the limits of territorial waters, which would include the rights of "rum rows"; the special privileges and immunities of diplomats; the status of government owned merchant ships, such as the American Leviathan; the international extradition of persons accused of crime; state responsibility for injuries inflicted on visiting foreigners; procedures at international conventions for the negotiation of treaties, and an international statute of limitations

For each of these subjects a special sub committee has been named with instructions to make detailed studies and to obtain the opinions of recognized professional authorities. These reports the committee as a whole will examine, and then obtain the opinions of the different governments as to what they might ultimately ratify. When these answers have been obtained the committee will report its findings to the Council of the League, which will then decide whether to call the governments together for international susceptible of agreement in the form of general treaties with binding force.

WEEKLY PAPERS CAN HOLD THEIR PLACE

Impossible For City Dailies to Drive Them Out Entirely.

WINNIPEG, June 26 (Canadian Press).—News gathering and advertising management were discussed from all angles at yesterday's session of the sixth annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association here.

Inroads into the prestige, circulation and advertising revenue of the weekly papers were being made at the present time by the daily papers of the larger cities, declared S. N. Wynn, managing director of The Yorkton Enterprise. However, Mr. Wynn was of the opinion that it was impossible for the dailies to take the place of the country papers if the latter were efficiently manned.

H. B. Anslow, of Campbellton, N.B., spoke on securing local advertising, showing that he had increased his paid display space enormously by preparing his copy for many of his customers, submitting it in advance of any discussion.

The membership committee report recorded an increase, the association having 527 members, as compared with 408 in 1920.

WOMENS INSTITUTES TALK IMMIGRATION

Sympathy Expressed for the Aims of Asiatic Exclusion League.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 26. — (Canadian Press). — Immigration was a very live issue at the Joint Meeting yesterday afternoon of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada and the pro-convention meeting of the Women's Institutes of British Columbia. A very comprehensive report was turned in by Mrs. M. Clyne, convenor of Immigration for the Western Provinces. British Columbia Institutes were strongly in sympath, with aims of Asiatic exclusion League. The Alberta representative spoke in very favorable terms of the Hebrideans and reported them as very bright people who very quickly become Canadian citizens.

Mrs. F. B. Price, of Calgary, publicity secretary of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, turned in a most satisfactory report, outlining the good results obtained by adopting the polics of intensive publicity suggested by her at the last convention and which was carried out in the form of a pamphlet.

SEND REINDEER TO ARCTIC PRAIRIES!

Alaska Has Over 350,000 Head—Canada Is More Favorable

By CAPT. H. T. MUNN.

Alaska may now be said to have definitely entered into her reindeer heritage, for the "experiment" of thirty years ago has blossomed into a great and coming industry.

Alaska to-day has approximately 350,000 to 400,000 reindeer with a total value of a million dollars, and in eleven years' time will have about a million reindeer available for export per annum at the present rate of increase.

With the proof of the success of the Alaskan experiment before us, what effort have we made to develop Canada's vast Arctic prairies "absolutely worthless for any other agricultural purpose" in the same manner?

In Labrador, a few years ago, Dr. Grenfell made an attempt on a small scale to introduce reindeer, and the experiment was successful up to a point when the fishermen and Indians found the reindeer were the best of food, and the Newfoundland Government would give no effective protection to the herd. The sequel was obvious, and a small remnant of the herd are now enjoying the hospitality of the Governor of Anticosti, at the instance of the Dominion Government; or, in other words, a private French company are giving free harborage to our only reindeer herd!

In 1921 the Hudson Bay Company landed some 550 Lapland reindeer on Southern Baffin's Land, having been persuaded by Mr. Stefansson that his lease of this unknown area was a valuable concession. It is said the servants of the company in Canada looked askance on this reindeer scheme, but the London management—so reminiscent of the late lamented Grand Trunk directorate—thought they knew better than their men on the spot, or perhaps were hypnotized by Mr. Stefansson's eloquence. Possible London thought it was a fur proposition; stranger mistakes have been made? Anyway, they lost some $125,000, and, like good Gentlemen Adventurers, made no squeal about it. Perhaps they thought it worth the money to keep some other wealthy syndicate from getting a foothold in this territory, and exploiting the white fox fur trade there.

The causes of the failure of this experiment were obviously lack of technical advice from Alaska as to suitable locality, and the best method to commence the work of reindeer breeding, in other words, stupid bungling, from which Gentlemen Adventurers are no more exempt than the rest of mankind.

But Alaska is shouting to us today to take no heed of these ill-considered efforts, and with thirty years' experience of a reindeer industry she has nursed from infanthood to robust youth, she knows what she is talking about. As in Alaska, the Canadian Reindeer industry must first be fathered by the government. A few hundred deer dumped anywhere on the coast will not solve the food and travel problems for the native, and Gentlemen Adventurers may well have other fish to fry than the introduction of an industry in a more accessible country than Baffins Land, with the creation of potential rivals there who also will inevitably take a share of the million dollars worth of white fox fur the north-west territories produced last year.

Valuable For Export.

It is the government who will have, sooner or later, to tackle this question, for one reason because the future welfare of the Eskimo depends on it, and for another because the people of Canada will have something very urgent to say about it when they find Alaska is exporting twenty million dollars worth of food from a country of far less potential reindeer wealth than Canada's Arctic prairies. Traders, whether on their own account, or representing Gentlemen Adventurers elsewhere, are not the ones to develop this industry where it should first commence, namely, on the northern shores of the continent east of the Mackenzie River delta. Along this coast, they think in terms of white fox fur and would find it difficult to subordinate their quest for them to the welfare of reindeer herds in their "infant" years.

No land leases for reindeer herds should be given at present along the northern coast of the continent. It is the natural highway for a herd to come in from Alaska, where obviously our first herds should be brought to... and ... all the territory inhabited by the only possible herders of reindeer Canada possesses there, the invaluable and alas, diminishing Eskimo of the western Arctic.

A powerful argument in favor of the government embarking on a reindeer enterprise lies in their ability to enforce such regulations concerning them as they deemed necessary, and in the power they can give themselves to obtain natives to learn the work of herding, breeding, branding, etc. It is conceivable that an independent and responsible Eskimo population as now exists on Alaska, would not ... to remain economically enslaved to the great world to the south of them" to quote Mr. D. Jenness, ethnologist to the Dominion of Canada, in his book, "The Copper Mine Eskimo." This involves the larger question as to whether our Arctic possessions are to continue to be exploited solely in the interests of the trader as at present, and need not be discussed here.

It is, however, obvious that private enterprise not already established in the country, and wishing to import a herd of Alaskan reindeer, would have the greatest difficulty to obtain herders ... instructed by the expert Alaskans who brought the deer on ... and ... form the whole scheme would prove abortive. Also it is vitally in the interests of our Canadian Eskimo that learn this work and the government would demand a first call on their services, if they were willing, which private enterprise could not obtain.

Canadian Slang is Knockout to Visitor From Old Country

Even People From Different Cities in Canada Don't Understand the Language When Visiting — Uncle Sam is Blamed For Slanginess—Ain't it the Truth?

By W. W. Winans

About fifteen years ago it was the custom in Winnipeg for the boys on the personally conducted tours to inform newcomers that there were sixty-two different languages spoken on the street.

If you were inclined to think this an exaggerated bit of western disregard for fact you were in error. A stroll along Main street would sweep away any doubt. As a matter of fact, newcomers thought the confusion of tongues was poorly described by setting the polyglots down with a bare sixty-two. At any rate, that was their story and the sight-seeing conductors stuck to it.

As the babel is worse to-day, or greater, as you will, it is to be hoped a revision of figures has been made. Give Winnipeg its due. But this is what strikes you in the wheat-belt capital—Winnipeg talks any way. Not one way, as in Alabama, or Oklahoma, or Lancashire, but ANY WAY.

In no other Canadian city can you hear such a Slav-Mennonite-Latin-Celtic-Doukhobor-Oriental-African mixture. Other cities may have them all, but, if so, they have done something about it. Elsewhere the articulate mixture is not so evident as in Winnipeg. You hear plenty of Canadian spoken there, too; perhaps the purest Canadian in Canada. So far, the American language menace, via Minneapolis and St. Paul contacts and the United States Sunday editions, has not affected the westerners' speech to any extent.

Travel far enough west and you will step off the train at Vancouver, or the boat at Victoria. What is the first impression one receives from listening to the people of British Columbia talk? English!—in pronunciation, phrasing and delivery. Not the "Fawncy, Rawther, Bawth" diction, but a mill-run, everyday, sidewalk method of discourse that approximates the Oxford pronunciation and Chambers' Dictionary closer than any other in Canada.

True enough, if you come back across the continent to the Maritimes you also hear the broad "a's" and note the dropped "r's". It is not the same pronunciation, however, that one hears in British Columbia.

Halifax talk, to the visitor, is interesting, and it is baffling. The words they use in Halifax are the same words that you hear in other Canadian cities—but they have something injected that makes them distinctive, different. It might be hard to make them admit it, but here's the truth: Halifax people speak Boston English—well, at any rate, Massachusetts or American English.

Toronto's Exotic Hum.

As for Montreal, there one speaks French; ici on parle francais. But, certainly, you can get along with English, Canadian or American. What happens to the stranger? He may arrive at a railroad station with a French name; he gazes on street signs with French names, and if he has educated ears he will know that more often than not he is listening to French more truly Parisian than that spoken in the majority of French departments. So far as the observing traveler is concerned with the lingual characteristics of Canadian cities, Montreal is almost too easy for analysis.

Is there any Canadian city then that defies classification? There is indeed—Toronto. English, Scotch, Irish, Welsh and colonial visitors think that the exotic hum they hear is American. Tourists from the United States often comment on how quaintly English is the speech of the Queen City. Toronto citizens regard themselves as pure Canadians in thought, word and deed. Who is right, or, are all wrong?

Looking at the matter from the same viewpoint as that of the total stranger within our gates, it is necessary to count our clubs, homes and other centres to which most travelers have no entrance. There is left then, to "listen in" on, conversations on the streets, in street cars, theatres, stores, and if you are waiting in an office, business conversations and dictation.

It is not without reason that the newly arrived Englishman thinks the current Toronto language, whatever else it may be, is a bit queer. Here is the experience that one son of Albion had in less than an hour:

He registered at a hotel, not "an" hotel, and the clerk, not "clark," asked him if he had baggage, meaning "luggage." Passing his checks to the porter, he was told his trunks, not "boxes," would be taken up to his room right away, not "directly." A bell-boy, not a "page" or a "steward," informed him the elevator, not "lift," was just around the corner. Why "just"? He heard a woman ask where the mail-box was, and then saw her put a letter in the "post-box." These were small matters that he solved, but, once on the streets, he did need an interpretor. Waiting at King and Yonge streets for a tram—they call it "street car"—he overheard this conversation:

"Hello, Frank! Howsa boy? . . . Trav bears . . . Howya pickem? . . . Was out to th' merry-go-round yistiddy en stuck twenty burries on th' snoot uva beagle in th'lass race an' it cross its laigs in th' stretch an kicked my parley fura row uv eiderdown phosphates . . . Naw? . . . Yah! . . . S'tuff . . . S'tuff . . . So long . . . Goo-by."

What an extraordinary conversation, thinks our English visitor. He is to hear more, however, from two young misses who sit before him as he stands in the Yonge street car.

The girls' talk was strung together by many "an he sez tu me's" and "an I sez tu him's" and plentifully interlarded with such phrases as "the poor simp," "giv'um th'air," "don't know th' haff uvt," "I'll tell th' worll," "Well, fur weepin' in public," "turn his damper down," "two time-daddy," "can ya pitcher it," "ain't ut th'trooth," and "unbutton yur ear."

Heavy Import of Wise Cracks.

The Englishman, dazed, left the car, that is, he "got down from it." Is it surprising that he looked around him to see if any Union Jacks were afloat? Surely he had a right to think he must be in a foreign land. He wasn't that, but he was in Canada's slangiest city. If he had "known his stuff," he might have queried "how does this burg get that way?"

If Toronto is the slang capital of Canada, what made it so? Has the ordinary supply of words proved inadequate? Did Torontonians join together some time and decide to "jazz" up the vulgate? Are the natives the inventors of this present farrago? No' to the la t three.

Toronto owes its present reputation to the fact that it has adopted this mode that has been left on its doorstep. Toronto buys more United States newspapers and periodicals than any other Canadian city. And some of them are heavy in slang content. The Tin Pan Alley output of Chicago and New York has its greatest Canadian market in Toronto. Not all of these songs are of the ballad type. Nowhere in the dominion do comedians from the United States with their nifties, quips, sure-fire, gags, and hokum play to so many English speaking people as here. Toronto has a baseball team in an international league in which practically all the athletes are United States born. These players bring with them the latest baseball jargon. It is transmitted to the "fans." With the current number of Toronto and district race tracks attracting owners, trainers, jockeys and stable attendants, there arises yet another carrier class of colloquial Americanisms. Then there are the screen captions in cinema comedies; the constant stream of business men, commercial travelers and tourists and the steady exchange of correspondence. These are some of the chief reasons why we have with us to-day an ever-changing vocabulary of the streets, beaches and public places.

The amount of slang imported from the British Isles is negligible. Some of it found being in wartime, but with the American "come off the perch" and "23, Skidoo," it has practically disappeared. We are almost entirely indebted to, or burdened by, the United States in this matter. The case could be presented to the jury at any time. The wonder is that our welcome cousins from the south can find anything in Toronto talk that differs from their own. Assume that one of them hails from Chicago, although New York or San Francisco would serve equally well, he would find the following among just a few of those which would arrest his attention:

TORONTO	CHICAGO
Ground floor	First floor
postman	letter-carrier
quarter to one	quarter of one who's speaking?	who's talking?
coal-oil	kerosene
posted	mailed
porridge	oatmeal
return ticket	round trip
lawyer or barrister	attorney
district	section
caretaker	janitor
different to	different from, or than hear, hear	that's talking
quite decent	swell, pretty good, elegant

Centure of Culture and Slang.

The differences existing between Canadian and English words denoting the same things are far more numerous than one might imagine. Strike from Canadian speech all slang and the visiting Englishman could tell very quickly that he was not at home. For instance, compare this short list:

CANADIAN	ENGLISH
Thread	Cotton
taxpayer	ratepayer
miss a train	loose a train
bank account	banking account
study law	study at law
studying medicine	walking the hospitals
an editorial	a leader
can of soup	tin of soup
necktie	cravat
bill-boards	hoardings

It is not intended to argue that Toronto is a hotbed of illiteracy; but it is true that Toronto's crowded open spaces are blue with:

Red Hot mama, Red Hot daddy, Red Hot baby, Hot dog, and Hot Bozo.

Applesauce, Bunk and Bologna.

Be yourself, Act your age, and Get natural.

Knock 'em for a loop, row, row of bath-houses, line of ash-cans, string of flat-cars and flock of zeros.

Elephant's adenoids, Titwillow's tonsils, Cat's meow, Flea's pyjamas, Canary's eyebrows.

Handpainted cuspidor, Crocheted bicycle, Openwork fedora, and Tattooed piano.

I'll tell the world, Ain't it the truth, You said it, and Won't you sit down?

These have all come to us from the United States. Toronto can lay just claim, however, to two things. Toronto is the Dominion's cultural centre. Toronto is the country's slang seat.

Toronto is a paradox. Laugh that off.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Chicago Wheat Slumps Corn On Upward Trend

CHICAGO, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Sharp new setbacks in the value of wheat took place early to-day. Liquidating sales based largely on favorable crop conditions northwest were weight on the market. Meanwhile, absence of reports of actual damage by black rust had deterrent effect on buyers. Opening, unchanged to 1 3-8c lower, July 152 to 152 1-4 and Sept. 148 1-2 to 149 was followed by decline to 148 1-2 for July and 147 3-4 for Sept., with rallies ensuing which, however, failed to hold well.

Corn prices showed an upward trend as result of fairly active speculative demand. After opening unchanged to 7-8c higher, September 103 3-4 to 104, the market reacted somewhat but soon scored material gains all around.

Oats were easy, owing to lack of aggressive support. Starting at 1-4c off to 1-8c up, Sept. 46 1-2 to 46 3-4, the market averaged lower. In line with hog values, provisions were steady.

Big Gains Experienced By Wall Street Stocks

NEW YORK, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Indications that the July reinvestment demand was unusually heavy in the stock market probably because of the relatively slow yield [illegible] in high grade bonds, were seen in the strength of high grade dividend paying stocks in Wall Street today. American Can, General Electric, Canadian Pacific, Nation Lead, Union Tank Car, and Woolworth all extended their early gains to 3 points, or more, before noon. General Motors, which paid a dividend of 6 per cent., moved up to a new record high at 81 7-8. Havana Electric was run up to 182 on reports that negotiations for control by an American public utilities concern had been resumed on a cash basis. Southern Railway crossed 97 on a revival of rumors that a decision in the preferred stock holders' suit was imminent. Barns Brothers broke nearly 7 points in further reflection of formation of a new coal company by some of the former officers o that concern.

Call money renewal rate was marked up to 4 1-2 per cent. in response to increased demand or funds in connection with mid-year settlements.

Toronto Stocks Sluggish C.P.R. Advance Features

TORONTO, June 26 (Canadian Press).—The Toronto Stock Exchange was very quiet this morning, trading being scattered lightly and changes not very substantial. The Mackay issues were the centre of interest, Common dropping 3-4 at 129 1-4, while Preferred strengthened a quarter at 69. Gilmon in active trading held its advance to 100. Bell Telephone improved an eighth at 137 1-8, but Atlantic Sugar Preferred eased off half a point at 73. A feature was the advance of C.P.R. which at noon close was 143, a gain of 2 1-4 points.

Slight Declines Shown By Toronto Mine Stocks

TORONTO, June 26 (Canadian Press).—With transactions totalling 84,981 shares, trading on Standard Mining Exchange was quiet today. Hattie preferred opened steady and declined fractionally to 6 1-4, while Hollinger opened 8 cents higher but declined to 1475, the closing figure of yesterday. Consolidated West Dome Lake was steady at 13, as was also Vipond at 105. Lorraine was fractionally lower at 14 1-2.

Mr. Gordon also escorted his visitors through the Senate and the mint.

In Mr. Gordon's office, Mr. Sedgwick renewed acquainance with Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, to whom he had been introduced during the premiers visit in Peterborough last year. Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick were also introduced by Mr. Gordon to six members of the cabinet who called at the Deputy Speaker's office during their stay.

Mr. Gordon ocupied the chair of the House during the three days. Both Peterborough visitors were impressed by the evident esteem in which Mr. Gordon is held by all parties at Ottawa.

SEASON'S OPEN.

The morning faded into afternoon, which in turn was shadowed by the coming of the night. It was cold and grey.

But the angler moved not, save to readjust his bait. He'd been there for many weary hours, when a friend chanced to stroll along the river bank.

"Hallo, George," he cried. "How many have you got?"

George looked up rather vacantly and responded:

"When I get this one I'm after and four more I'll have five."

U.F.O. SOCIAL IS GREAT SUCCESS

Omemee Club Members Enjoyed Pleasant Evening at Lawn Party

GOOD SPEECHES

OMEMEE, June 26. — On Tuesday evening the members of the U. F. O. and U.F.W.O. and visiting friends, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs W. Brown to spend the first social evening of the season. The spacious lawn adjoining their beautiful farm dwelling presented an inviting appearance, being gayly decorated with lanterns and numerous benches and chairs had been provided for the pleasure of the guests.

During the early part of the evening games of ball and horseshoe were indulged in by those so inclined and an ice cream booth drew many a coin from its hiding place to be exchanged for cones.

Much regret was expressed by the speakers in the short programme which followed, when on account of illness, Mrs. Hall who was to be the guest of honor, was unable to be present. The district president, Bruce McNevin, was also unavoidably absent, but however with such men as Rev. E. W. Rowland and F. Sandy, who are always ready with an impromptu speech, the vacancies on the programme were neatly filled in to the enjoyment of the entire gathering. The following programme was given, after which a social half hour followed:

Opening chorus: The Maple Leaf Forever.

Chairman's remarks: R. H. Johnston.

Violin duet: Messrs. L. and A. Pogue.

Speech: F. G. Sandy.

Instrumental: Miss Lillian Race.

Reading entitled: "The Face on the Barroom Floor," William Howden.

Speech: Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Violin duet: Pogue Bros.

Speech by the Secretary, D. Weir.

God save the King.

The gathering broke up about 11.30 o'clock and one and all went home well pleased with the evening's entertainment, the only regret expressed by Mr. Sandy and endorsed by others, that with such preparations and accommodations an invitation had not been sent to other near-by club organizations, so that all might be profited by the fellowship as well as the entertainment provided.

Anniversary Dinner.

A happy gathering met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Corneil, on Tuesday evening in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary. A sumptuous dinner followed by toasts was enjoyed by all present and many were the good wishes extended the happy couple. Many useful and fancy gifts were showered upon the "ten year weds."

Automobiles Collided.

REV. W. H. YOUNG AND KIWANIANS

Departing Minister Spoke of Many Friendships Made Among Club Members.

GOOD WILL PERVADES.

All good wishes for his future success and many expressions of regret at his impending departure were tendered Rev. Harold Young at the conclusion of his address to the Kiwanis Club, at the Empress Hotel to-day.

Mr. Young spoke feelingly of the many friendships he had made in the town and among the members of the Club. Many members of the Kiwanis Club, he said, had manifested to him a real spirit of friendship, and he felt a real regret in severing another of the associations that [illegible] him to Peterboro.

Mr. Young said he would attempt to outline the distinctive services rendered to the world at large by such clubs as Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, etc. He would especially mention two of those services. The first as their clear and direct message along the lines of friendship and brotherhood to a troubled world. When a man joined such a club, from the moment he placed the badge of membership on his coat, he found himself in an atmosphere of good-will. He became a member of a body standing for the larger good and the wider spirit. These aims still required emphasis, in the international world where men were still setting back in national groups; in the industrial world, thank God for improvements that had been manifested in recent years, but still, recent events in Eastern Canada have shown, the interests of the smaller group were still allowed to submerge those of the larger.

"No man liveth unto himself," said the speaker, "every man has a stake in the larger group. All have a stake in the well being of others as well as themselves. One man's loss is another's loss; one man's joy and gain is the other's joy and gain as well. Clubs like Kiwanis give expression to this ideal and have a real message to the extent in which they inculcated such a spirit."

The second important contribution was the emphasis placed on ideal values. How is the way to forget that to-day when the things that could be handled, weighed, measured, tasted, were placed above honor, right, duty and—dare he say it—yes, he dared, God. The spirit that cherished ideals was the spirit that achieved, that raised men to higher levels. "Last century was promulgated, the idea of evolution, the idea of progression from a higher to a lower. Largely because of this was born a feeling of ease and comfort. "Things will get better, all we have to do is to see that things go round and all will be well." We had to awaken ourselves from this idea. If they allowed the world merely to drift, it would become a more damnable place than ever.

The spirit of idealism was contageous—like fever or measles. "One loving heart sets another on fire." They could take out the word "loving" and substitute another such word, "idealistic," etc., and the line would still remain true.

The speaker quoted the Rotary Club motto, "He profits most who serves best." But, he said, in the motto there seemed a note of expediency. "Give service in the hope of getting a reward." Some finer souls coined a new motto which now ranks as the first in Rotary, "Service before self." Get people to forget selfish ends, to enthuse ideals, and you have achieved something worth while. Men looking ahead saw dark days yet to come in the world. Still there were possibilities of better days in store, and it was his hope and prayer that the clubs which were working in line with the churches would be able to bring to the world that for which they stood, that ideal that lived for honor, duty and right. On the day they succeed in that they could realize they had done their part towards the bringing into being of all that for which the heart of man was yearning.

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Young, said that he could not help feeling that Mr. Young would be one of the luminaries in the larger city to which he was moving. Mr. Young, he said, had set a high ideal before all the ministers and manhood of Peterboro.

BRIGHT COLORED POSIES IN HAIR AND ON FROCKS AND HATS, SAYS BENDEL

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEW YORK, June 26.—Floral frocks are fashion's fad.

Summer has not only dotted the garden with roses and lilies, but has decorated our costumes as well with colorful posies. Never before have flowers been so important, sartorially.

"First we have the flowered materials," says Henri Bendel, style expert of New York. "In crepes, chiffons and cotton materials flowers prevail, varying in size from the small Dresden figures closely packed together to the bigger-than-life variety so over grown that they allow for but few duplications on the gown.

"Following the flowered gown, the flowered hat has suddenly forced us to appreciate its beauty. On the small Bangkok and milan shapes are flowers knowingly placed while on the wide brimmed hats are roses, waterlilies and callas looking so very natural and so freshly plucked that nature must find herself slightly jealous at times."

These flowers change with the calendar and a little later we may expect the chrysanthemum and sunflower to replace the strictly summer flower.

"The lapel of the tailleur or coat is quite sure to have its colorful boutonnaire, usually of natural flowers that carry out the color note of the scarf or hat," Bendel said.

"Many of the debs are wearing

Run in cut here . . . . . .

floral bracelets consisting of a round plaque of small blossoms outlined with lace and ribbon mounted on a ribbon. These are worn above or below the elbow, according to the inclination.

"One even sees natural flowers in the hair again, a style that has been passed for several seasons.

"Both natural and artificial flowers are used this season, but for the corsage, boutonnaire and bracelet natural blossoms are preferred even though they are much less enduring.

"Some of the loveliest parasols come on flowered materials, or are plain with painted floral patterns or they are decorated with silk flowers and petals. Very unusual ones come in flower shapes.

"The fastidious woman, of course, carries out the flower idea as far as possible and affects the perfume of the flower she features. With a rose bordered gown, the suggestion of rose perfume is most alluring. Light flower odors are much more appropriate for summer than the subtle, oriental odors that suggest a room rather than a garden.

"Flowers are more suggestive of summer than jewels, but we find them also contributing to the gayety of summer. Chiffon scarfs sewed with rhinestones or pearls, fans that glitter, bracelets that emphasize slender wrists and jeweled buckles that add charm to dancing feet—all these combine to make a decorative season."

TWO OF THE NEWEST SUMMER EVENING GOWNS

CHECKED SILK IS FEATURED IN SPORTS UNDIES

The French designers are continually supplying ~~us with~~ dainty innovations in the way of underthings to be worn with various types of frocks.

The two sets of undies shown above are typical of the very newest inspiration from the other side. These are designed for wear beneath simple sports frocks. The material is checked tub silk, and the colors may be any gay hues that the wearer favors. These two models happen to exploit rose color and bright green.

At the left is a two-piece set, consisting of vest and step-ins. The step-ins are wide enough to allow freedom of movement. They are piped in bright green to match the green checked pattern of the material, and both vest and step-ins use tiny green pearl buttons for trimming. Narrow bindings of the green support the vest at the shoulders.

The other garment, of rose color [illegible] made all in one piece. The combination has a long bodice portion and tiny flared panties. A pair of tennis racquets done in rose marks the right side.

Undergarments which have bodices made on figure-moulding lines are favored at the present by the smartest women, for they find that their slim frocks fit better over underthings which impart no extra bulk.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man for almost a year. He is as nice to me as he can be, but he has talked a lot about another girl he knows. He said he was going to stop seeing her, but he has not.

Would I be doing wrong to tell him I did not care for his friendship if he associated with her?

SALLY.

SALLY—Don't you think your attitude toward this young man is unfair, my dear? He has the privilege of meeting his other friends since he is not engaged to marry you, and he is wise to take advantage of this liberty. Continue your friendship with him, but do not devote all your time to one friend. Take an active interest in the social life about you and don't give yourself time to be jealous. Otherwise you will not be happy.

BROCADED LACE.

Brocaded or beaded lace is very much liked for evening wraps, it gives the sumptuous rich appearance that is so desirable.

BRILLIANT LINING.

The long cape, usually of light colored wool or kasha, is lined with briliant silk and sometimes hooded with the silk.

GOLD KID USED

Gold or silver kid heavily embroidered or beaded in bright colors trims dark dresses.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY DISCOVERS A QUEER LITTLE MOTHER.

"My goodness!" exclaimed Dorty, when she came suddenly on a queer looking bird, with its long legs stretched out behind it on the ground. "Are you hurt? Have you broken your legs or something? Can I help you?"

"Such funny questions," chuckled the queer looking bird. "No, I'm in perfect health. But I will get up if you don't mind," and she began to scramble around with her long legs, until at last she stood up. "I'm taller than you are. Now don't laugh at my funny long legs and long neck. Most folks do."

"Why should I laugh?" asked Dotty. "You are certainly a very pretty bird. May I ask your name? I'm Dotty Dorn."

"Well, Dotty Dorn, I'm glad to meet you. I'm Mrs. Flamingo, if you please, and this is my nest. See its made of mud like a swallow's. Only of ccurse mine is much larger. Now, by tomorrow, I'll have some eggs in there, and then in a few weeks I'll have some youngsters. You must come around and see them." And Mrs. Flamingo scratched her long bill with her foot.

Dotty saw her feet were webbed like Mrs. Waddle Duck's feet.

"You must swim," she suggested, pointing to Mrs. Flamingo's webbed toes.

"I swim when I can get in deep water," laughed Mrs. Flamingo. "But you see the water would have to be quite deep to be right for me to swim. I love to wade in the lakes and ponds and gather my food."

"No wonder your neck is so long," laughed Dotty. "It would have to be long if you expected to get anything to eat."

"Now, don't make fun of my long neck," chuckled the bird. "When I'm wading around, I can dip my head way down under the water after bugs and worms and sometimes fish. A long neck comes in handy sometimes, I can tell you. I am mighty glad I have one."

"You don't carry your head like Mrs. Crane does, do you?" Dotty asked.

"I don't believe Mrs. Crane bends her neck as gracefully as I do," replied Mrs. Flamingo. "It seems to me she prefers to carry her neck straight. Now, I like mine bowed a bit. It looks more dignified to me and not as if one was always looking for trouble. I must be on my way now if you'll excuse me. Come back again one of these days and I'll show you something pretty," and after scratching her head with her foot, Mrs. Flamingo trotted up the beach.

MODERN WRINKLES MAKE LAZY WIVES

Dr. Manning Makes Sweeping Indictment Against Labour Saving Devices.

NEW YORK, June 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Modern house wife is not getting sufficient exercis, Dr. Guy E. Manning of San Francisco, editor of a Pacific Coast Journal of Homeopathy, declared to-day in an address to 81st annual convention of American Institute of Homopathy.

Labour saving devices which have come on the market to make work of modern house wife easy are making her lazy instead, said Dr. Manning.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

DAINTIES MADE OF TEA.

Tea, perhaps the most popular non-alcoholic beverage known, can be made to serve as a foundation for a number of excellent dainties. The best Ceylon tea is generally chosen, unless one prefers some special blend.

The following dishes and beverages will add novelty to the Summer table:

Tea Cream.

Put one ounce of tea into a half pint of boiling cream and let it stand for ten minutes and cool slowly. Strain through a bit of damp cheesecloth. Add to the tea a half pint of whipped cream, one ounce of fine gelatine powder that has been melted in a quarter cupful of hot milk, then strained and cooled. Sweeten to taste and pour into a wet mold and chill.

Dutch Tea.

Put four teaspoonfuls of tea, a third of a cupful of pearl barley, a broken stick of cinnamon, four cloves, a half saltspoonful of saffron and a little nutmeg into a bowl, and pour over them a quart of boiling water and let stand for one hour. Strain then into a quart of boiling milk, in which the yolks of three eggs have been beaten. Sweeten to taste and serve hot.

Tea Souffle.

Infuse a tablespoonful of your favorite tea in a half pint of boiling milk, letting it stand in a warm place for an hour. Strain it carefully and add a half tablespoonful of potato flour, and stir until smooth and thickened. Then add four beaten egg yolks and sweeten to taste. When blended, add the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a very lightly buttered souffle pan and bake for twenty minutes. When done, dust with powdered sugar and serve at once.

Let's Talk It Over

HOW LIFE TEACHES A CHILD

Perhaps the hardest thing a mother is ever called upon to do, is to do nothing. To sit back, and keep her thoughts to herself, while young Johnny spends his birthday money for a brass ring, a worthless knife, and a second-hand crystal outfit, not quite complete. Or to watch cock-sure Mary who knows more about the gentle art of dress-making than Jean Patou, Boue Seurs and the family dressmaker, cut two left sleeves, out of her nice new tub silk. And even harder than to stand by and see Johnny squander his money, and Mary ruin her dress, is to refrain from motherly advice when the married daughter pulls a housekeeping bone.

But if ever there's a time when silence is golden, it's when life is pounding in one of its little lessons. To save Willie's kale, or Mary's dress goods, or the married daughter's hash, by a sermon and a prophecy of what will happen if they don't listen to Mamma, and do as she says, is nothing less than flying in the face of Providence.

It's the unusual child who doesn't think he has at least twice as much sense as Mama, also Papa, and all the other grown-ups. The fact that Aunt Jemina, Uncle Henry, and the lady next door were undeniably stung by doing the very same things that he is contemplating, is neither here nor there. Aunt Jemina and Uncle Henry are a coupla old has-beens who bungled a good job, that's all.

Experience is in the long run, the kindest teacher. To save Johnny, Mary and the married daughter from the fruits of their own folly is only to postpone the day on which they'll start learning from experiment and experience. To point out the perils that lie in wait for those who walk the primrose path, is to do only half your duty. The greater half is to teach your child to love honor and goodness, truth and beauty for their own sake. To so live that your life may be an example, not a warning.

Yes, it's hard to sit back and see those you love founder in the pitfalls you know so well. It is also hard to listen to the cautions of age, when you are young, and inquisitive, and full of self-confidence. But the hard fact remains that the best mothers are those that stifle the heartache and smother the words and let the young folks learn life's lessons alone.

136 PUPILS TRY ENTRANCE EXAM

First Big Test in Life Confronts City Youth This Week.

IS AN ORDEAL.

(By Jeannette.)

While the majority of the citizens of Peterboro are going about their daily avocations, enjoying themselves more or less, and being bored or excited by the passing show of life, the present week, represents a momentous event in the existence of many of the juniors of the city.

One hundred and thirty-six candidates are trying their Entrance Examinations in Peterboro this week.

To the older generations whose scholastic days were unmarked by any such trials of mental agility as an Entrance examination, this announcement will evoke no answering thrill, but to those who have gone through the ordeal the memory will come back of those sunny June days when the peace and joy of nature was absolutely blotted out of the mind by the despairing consciousness that everything one had learned through the years of steadily climbing up by various grades to this final examination had been forgotten forever. When one has laboriously memorized every important date in English history, except one or two, and then is confronted by a question which has to do with something that is forgotten, like the exact date of the burning by Alfred of the historic cakes, for instance, then one realizes the blackest depths of despair. An Entrance student, whose perspiring mind has become of a jelly-like consistency, yearns for any fate rather than the one which awaits him, surrounded by stern overseers and manifold sheets of foolscap. He even envies the dark lot of that gentleman whose sensations are so graphically and alliterally described in the jingle, as "Drooping in the silence of the dull, damp dock, awaiting the sensation of the short, sharp shock of a cheap and chippy chopper, on a big black block."

"Where are the lessons of yesteryear?" is the frantic mental cry of the Entrance student, searching a mind which has become a vacuum overnight, for such stray scraps of information as may avail him somewhat in trying to get by, at least.

Can't Think of It.

Most of them are in the precarious situation of the man who was asked what he knew. He said he knew a lot, but he couldn't just think of it at the moment. But many of them make a courageous stab at it, like the youngster who said a blizzard was the middle of a hen, and the other one who announced that a mountain range was a large cook stove. And there are ingenious and truthful pupils, also, like the youth who was faced by a question regarding the exact significance in history of the career of a lady whose past had been of a purplish hue. "The less said about this woman, the better," was the illuminating answer of this candidate to this particular query.

However, no matter what their scholastic attainments, and the preeminence or otherwise of their grey matter, the students, covering much paper during these June days in an effort to put down in black and white the final results of long years of preparation for such an event, should have the sympathetic consideration of their fellow-townspeople. They have come to the first major test of life, to the hurdles and the hazards of the Entrance examinations.

PEPALL TO RETURN.

Extradition Papers Ready to Bring Back Alleged Treasury Embezzler.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 26.—(Canadian Press).—The removal of Andrew H. Pepall, wanted at Toronto, Ont., on a charge of embezzling $368,000 in Provincial funds while acting as Treasury agent, shortly after the war, was said in official circles here yesterday to be imminent.

Armed with complete papers to consummate extradition, Inspectors Miller and Nursey, of the Toronto force, have announced their eagerness to begin the journey northward at once.

"For all washing and cleaning you can't beat this soap—" says Mrs. Experience, who chooses soap for its economy and labour-saving value.

"Sunlight puts the sunshine of cleanliness into the home! For washing clothes, dishes, wood-work, linoleums, in fact, for anything that can be cleaned with soap and water—I call on Sunlight. And Sunlight does its work so well and leaves everything sweet and clean.

"Sunlight really is economical, too! You see, every bit of it is pure, cleansing soap, containing no filing or hardening materials, which are only waste as far as we women are concerned.

"You get greater cleaning value out of a pure laundry soap—and so I say, 'Always keep a good supply of Sunlight on hand'. It really improves with age. And because of its purity, Sunlight is kind to your hands and keeps them smooth and comfortable." Sunlight is made by Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto.

NEW COMPASS TO HOLD COURSE OF MACMILLAN PARTY TRUE WITHOUT AID OF MAGNETISM

Arctic Aerial Navigation May Be Solved by Instrument

MAGNETIC POLE

Other Delicate Devices To Aid the Future Explorers

By HERBERT LITTLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 27. — (United Press).—Winging across barren wastes of jagged arctic ice in the polar sea, searching for an unknown, unfound continet, aviators of the MacMillan Navy expedition this summer will steer only by the midnight sun and the arctic moon, both of which can be seen at once.

Following the needle of the magnetic compass in the ordinary "dead reckoning" of mariners and aviators in milder climes would lead them in circles until their fuel was exhausted and they crashed to disaster on the terrible edges of perpetual ice.

American scientists have devised a new system of celestial guidance, and the expedition, heading north today in the steamers Sowdoin and Peary, is carrying unique charts and determinations to enable the three amphibian planes to wing their ways from the cold headland of Cape Thomas Hubbard, in Axel Heiburg Island, into the unknown and return.

The problem of navigation was one of the most difficult of the preparations for the trip, and Lieutenant-Commander Byrd, in charge of the navy flyers, devoted special time and attention to this phase.

The "Magnetic Pole"

The "magnetic pole" which attracts the compass point is 1,200 miles south of the North Pole. At times in their flights in the unknown area of 1,000,000 square miles between Alaska and Canada and the North Pole, the aviators will be between the notth and magnetic poles, and the compass needle will point south instead of north. At other points in the flights the compass will point in nearly all directions except noth, because all the operations of the expedition will be in territory north and mostly east of the magnetic pole. The deviations of the compass range from 100 to 180 degrees.

The deviation from normal of the compass-point cannot be measured for the deviation changes during every 25 or 30 miles of flight, and since the pole has never been explored by man the degree of deviation has never been measured.

Practical and Simple.

Methods heretofore in existence for locating position in the arctic regions by celestial observation have been cumbersome and entirely unadaptable to be used on an airplane going 120 miles an hour, but G. W. Littlehales, hydrographic engineer of the navy department, has worked out a method that is practical and simple.

The method consits of taking the altitude of the sun on a specially constructed chart without long mathematical calculations. This figure is known as the "Summer Line." Another "line" is obtained by taking the latitude of the moon, which will be visible a large part of the time. The intersection of these two lines on a chart will show the position.

The problem of getting altitude of the sun was difficult. Mariners at sea have instruments to measure the number of degres of altitude, but this is impossible in the arctic because the ice-covered horizon is too irregular and inaccurate. Some explorers on ships have carried an "artificial horizon"—a heavy circle but this cannot be carried on a plane. So Littlehales developed an artificial horizon sextant which supplies this horizon by means of a bubble in liquid.

Grenwich Time.

The exact Grenwich time must be known when these observations are taken. Special small chronometers, to give this, have been made for the planes, one to give Grenwich time and the other Grenvich sidereal time.

There are likely to be strong winds across the arctic sea. A 30-mile gale would blow a plane 90 miles off her course in three hours. So an instrument has been devised to enable a correction for the wind. It is used with smoke-bombs, which are thrown on the water or ice, sights being taken from the smoke thus made. Through this, the direction over the earth can be calculated and with the speed of the plane through still air being known, a mathmetical calculation of the speed of the wind can be calculated. The flyers will be equipped with calculators to do this figuring quickly without the aid of trigonometry.

Littlehales has worked out a chart, to serve the flyers the same as the "Mercator projection charts" serve navitagotrs of quieter seas. On the Mercator charts, distances of up to 600 miles are assumed to be on a straight line, the curvature of the earth being disregarded. On a polar chart the line becomes a spiral, due to the fact that the world is only a few hundred miles in circumference up there.

A "sun compass" was constructed to take the place of the magnetic compass. It consists of a tiny post, the shadow of which will enable the pilot to steer this spiral coure, without the magnetic deviations which otherwise would enter.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY SHOES SHOULD BE CHOSEN FOR COMFORT.

Not long ago I happened to meet a charming lady who had come from an afternoon function where she had danced for a couple of hours. She was still in her afternoon frock, but had discarded her shoes to make her feet comfortable in bedroom slippers.

What was wrong with her feet?

The younger and more attractive the person, the more the clerk in the shoe store is permitted to dictate the choice of shoes. He fits the feet to the shoes. He crowds the poor, harmless, voiceless feet into shoes for another race and another period of history.

Is this sensible? How much wiser it would be to select shoes that really fit—shoes which are comfortable. The shoes make all the difference between happiness and usefulness on the one side and misery on the other.

In pointing out the common defects in shoes, we find, first, that they are too short. The toes are crowded and bent out of shape. In consequence, the ends of the toes are turned down and the "knuckles" of the toes are thrown up, to be rubbed by the shoes. This means that corns will be produced.

Too many shoes are painfully narrow. The joints and sides of the toes are pressed upon, so that deformities of the feet re[illegible]. The heels ma[illegible] too high. There is a reasonable degree of height in heels. We need not condemn all high heels, but certainly those which are two or three inches high may be very damaging.

You are not sensible if you permit the dictates of fashion to eclipse your good sense. Choose your shoes for comfortable wear. Then your feet won't get tired, necessitating a pair of carpet slippers the minute you get into the house. When your shoes are properly fitted there won't be need of shedding them at the first opportunity.

There are certain rules which fit most cases. Of course, they are not universal—some feet are so distinctive that special shoes must be provided.

In general, the inside line of the foot is a straight line. From heel to big toe the line should be straight.

The toes must not be pushed and crowded. If you never saw an X-ray of the feet, you have no idea how distorted and twisted the toes may be if the shoes are not right.

Use good sense in clothing your feet. By doing so you may expect to increase your efficiency. It is a real menace to your health to attempt to go ahead with ill-fitting shoes.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR ANNUAL PICNIC

South Beach Chosen as the Scene of Outing—Many Sports.

(Contributed)

Once again the members of the Choir of St. John's Anglican Church and several of their friends were favoured with delightful weather for their annual picnic, South Beach having been again chosen as the rendezvous.

The plans of the Committee in charge were excellent and went through without a hitch. Motor bus and car were the means of conveyance and by half past ten o'clock the majority had arrived.

The forenoon was spent in swimming, boating, and fishing, while the more energetic and agile participated in earnest games of cricket and softball.

At noon about sixty people partook of a first class luncheon served by Mr. Brooks, the genial proprietor of the South Beach hotel.

Incidentally to a casual observer the dinner plates of everyone bore mute evidence as to its quality and furthermore Choirmaster Mann felt it incumbent upon himself to suspend hostilities, or in other words, suspend bathing, etc., amongst the boys until two thirty p.m. To the "grown-ups" such a warning was not necessary, as one could observe little scattered groups of people who seemingly had suddenly become so disinterested in life as to have no other desire but to rest.

However, creme a la glace pro bono publico seemed to have a very invigorating effect with the result that everyone seemed anxious to proceed with the following track events which were keenly contested:

1. Married Ladies' Race—Mrs. Gibbons, Mrs. Eldred.
2. Single Ladies' Race—Miss M. Long, Miss W. Melton.
3. Ladies' Egg and Spoon Race—Mrs. Blagrave, Miss H. Evans.
4. Junior Choir Boys' 75 yard Race—Jack Comstock, Keith Hutchinson.
5. Senior Choir Boys' 100 yard Race—Leslie Dyer, R. Greene.
6. Choir Men's One-Legged Race—A. J. Hayter, G. Coleman.
7. Choir Boys' Three-Legged Race—R. Greene, G. Hutchinson.
8. Choir Boys' Consolation Race—K. Long, W. Turner.
9. Married Ladies' Consolation Race—Mrs. Gibbons, Mrs. Ford.
10. Tug-of-War—Ladies vs. Men—Men.
11. Tug-of-War—Ladies vs. Boys—Ladies.
12. Ladies' Balloon Race—Mrs. Eldred, Miss M. Long.

The blue ribbon event of the day was the Tug-of-War—Ladies vs. Men. The various contestants in this event entered the field with a full determination to win. The ladies, because they had won last year, and were anxious to retain the laurels gained. The men, because last year's defeat was humiliating to say the least, for it was inconceivable to them that the emancipation of woman had progressed to such an extent as to permit the supposedly weaker six to "heave" them over that dreaded line. But still it had to be for Dame Nature dealt them a cruel blow and the vanquished left the field in 1924 each inwardly cherishing the determination that with the aid of one year's rations and the consequent increase in weight they must win. They were two valiant teams that commenced to entrench themselves immediately after taking the rope. Mr. H. Burrows had consented to see that the ladies were "pulling fair" and on the word "pull" the rope strained visibly. A rocking motion commenced and the strain was beginning to show itself on the faces of the contestants who clung tenaciously to the rope. Then came a halt and everyone lay back on the rope to breathe new life, some could be seen breathing prayers to their Anglo-Saxon sires. The men vindicated themselves; they won: they proved to be stronger but in truth they were fooling themselves for the real contest was between Dame Nature and Dame Fashion with the latter proving an easy winner. This is the secret. Since last year's event a number of the ladies have followed the dictates of fashion and have allowed themselves to be debobbed of their tresses. The locks of Samson of old held the secret of his amazing strength and once deprived of them, we are told, he visibly weakened. Can this also be said of the ladies of to-day? If not, it is a singular coincidence.

Supper was called and the events of the afternoon had certainly put an edge on the appetites of many.

Altogether an excellent time was spent by all and the general pronouncement was that South Beach offers to the picnicker facilities which would be hard to improve upon.

The members of the Choir owe their thanks to the wardens, who made this picnic possible, and to the following ladies and gentlemen, who so kindly conveyed many of the choristers to and from the city:

Mrs. A. W. Turner, Mrs. C. L. Brewer, Dr. W. T. Holloway, Dr. R. C. Blagrave, Mr. F. L. Roy, Mr. L. Conway, Mr. J. Comstock, and Mr. F. G. Mann.

Their further thanks is extended to the following ladies and gentlemen, who generously donated prizes for the various track events:—

Mrs. McClellan, Mrs. R. C. Blagrave, Mr. W. J. Kent, Mr. Chas. Coleman, Mr. E. S. Martin and Mr. F. G. Mann.

NEW REMEDY

Dr. Max Thorek, surgeon-in-chief of the American Hospital, Chicago, is credited with a discovery that may do away with the use of the knife in cases of bone infection, and hence save many lives. His remedy consists of applying a wet compress containing a combination of aluminum and potassium nitrate.

ONTARIO HASN'T ANY MOSQUITOES

Small Insects of Same Name Look, Sing and Bite Like Them

AN ORCHESTRA

By G. C.

There are no mosquitoes in Ontario, really.

Any railroad, summer hotel or other summer tourist agency will tell you that.

What we really have in Ontario is not the mosquito, but a small insect of the same name, which looks like a mosquito, sings like a mosquito and bites like a mosquito.

But compared with the mosquitoes they have in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Florida and similar places where people go to spend their good money the so-called mosquito of Ontario is a mere trifling phantom.

At the end of this article you will find a recipe for a fly dope and mosquito chaser which is guaranteed to work even in the swamps of Labrador. But before recommending this strong and fearful dope we wish to take a few lines to prove that mosquitoes in Ontario are practically non-existent.

Epictetus said that "if the mosquito had no sound it would be classed as one of the pleasures of life, since the itch that it inspires with its bite provides mankind with something to do during the idleness of summer."

Mr. Peter Doofit, one of Ontario's most promising young plumbers, has a small summer bungalow in the Muskoka district. Owing to the pressure of business, he is only able to spend from June first to September thirtieth with his family there. But part of that time fails in the alleged mosquito season. The first night they were at the cottage this summer, owing to the opening of doors and so forth attendant upon the arrival, a number of what were believed to be mosquitoes got into the place. They did not make their presence known until all lights were out and the family retired to rest.

A Trio.

"Then," says Mr. Doofit, "three of them began to sing. A peculiar thing I never noticed before was that these three harmonized perfectly. And as they moved nearer and further away in their evolutions, they played tunes. The first thing they rendered was 'Caprice Viennoise.' My wife and I both applauded loudly at the conclusion of the selection and woke the children. They came down and got into bed with us for the second selection, in which two more mosquitoes joined the choir, which was 'Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes,' pianissimo, with strings muted. A very odd effect.

"We spent the whole first night at the cottage awake listening to this choir, which at one time reached as many as twenty voices, and we were looking forward to unique entertainment all summer—far better than radio, I assure you—when the next day, while we were sleeping to catch up for the night's sleep lost, the settler who supplies us our milk came along and finding the mosquitoes resting on our sleeping bodies all over the verandah, quietly snatched and squashed them all with his expert hand.

Touching Serenade.

"It turned out that these mosquitoes or their ancestors had learned these tunes from our portable victrola the previous summer. They used to sharpen their little beaks on the records, while the disc was turning, and so learned the tunes. So far we have not been able to find another choir, though we have left all our doors and windows open every night. I never felt this way about mosquitoes before. But to be serenaded on the night of your arrival at the cottage in so beautiful a manner is very touching. And the fate of these dear insects is pathetic in the extreme. I only hope the entire breed has not been sacrificed to misunderstanding."

In conclusion, we wish to now give the fly dope known as Dr. Breck's prescription, a formula well known to all trout fishermen. We have just mailed two quarts of it up to Mr. Doofit, by request.

Three ounces of oil of pine tar, two ounces of castor oil, one ounce of oil pennyroyal, one ounce of gum camphor, one ounce of creosote, one ounce of oil citronella, and one tube of carbolated vasoline. Simmer this slowly over a fire for twenty minutes. It turns out a dark brown thick liquid, which rather discolors the face, but is in no way unpleasant or sticky. With a thorough painting of it a man can go a day through the worst fly country in the world, which is not Ontario.

We give this formula only for the sceptics.

BEAUTIFUL PRINCESS SPEAKS OF WOMEN'S WIDENED FIELD IN THE WORK OF THE WORLD

Says That Women Have Aroused Interest In Humanity

OUR WOMEN MODEST

League of Nations Cannot Function Without Popular Opinion Support

By MURIEL BREWSTER.

"The work of the world cannot be well done without the co-operation of women," declared Her Serene Highness Princess Gabrielle Radziwill of Lithuania, whose present address is the League of Nations, Geneva. "The future of the world lies in the hands of the children the future of government rests in the hands of the children-for they are the future government officials. This is one reason why the co-operation of women is so important at the moment."

"You, I suppose, were brought up in the strict, old-fashioned way, with the idea that woman's place was the home?" I asked her.

She laughed. "Oh, very much so. And here I am, you see, very far indeed from my home indeed, I have no home now, the Bolsheviks saw to that—and on a mission that has, on the surface, has everything to do with the homes of the future." She leaned forward eagerly, clasping her exquisite hands together as if in supplication, "You see I feel very sure, and the more I study the world the more I feel that the influence of women on public life should have, and can have a stabilizing effect."

"The old-fashioned man does not think so," I suggested.

"Let him go, then," said the princess with a dismissing wave of her hand. "It is since the women began to enter public life that the general interest has been aroused in work for the welfare of humanity—public health and morals. You know, people talk a great deal about peace, as though it were something that could be achieved by touching in a button. But the peace of the world depends on the conditions of labor and the physical welfare of the workers of every nation. The social section of the league is working to this end, and many of its workers are women. It has begun to dawn upon the men at the helm that women can be useful in this line—and they have already proved their usefulness.

"I wonder if Canada realizes that the questions of traffic in women and children had been dealt with by governments again and again before the war and during the war, but no agreement had ever been ratified that could have any lasting effect. But when the league took the matter up, and called in the help of outstanding women, the most important states ratified the necessary agreements, and real progress has been made. Much credit for this achievement should be given to the International Council of Women. It was really owing to their efforts that it was accomplished.

Men Neglect Details.

"You know," she laughed a little, and the sound was like the echo of a carillon through the air on a summer day—"men have a little way of neglecting details. They have, perhaps a wider outlook than women. But there is no doubt that they need women to check them up—that is the expression, is it not?—on the details. And they are beginning to know it, too!"

"What do you think about college education for women?" I asked.

"Ah," she said. "If only I had my early life to live over again I would go to college! Of course women must be given every possible educational advantage along with men: it is only in that way they will be able to discharge their responsibilities. In this day, every woman and every man ought to work! To stand idle is a crime! And to work intelligently you must be educated so that you have a balanced understanding of what is going on about you and what effect it is likely to have on life for the rising generation."

"Some people think it is better not to educate the masses," I said. "What is your opinion of that, after your experience in Russia during the Revolution?"

She shook her head. "Education was not the cause of the Revolution," she said. "But lack of it is the cause of the terrible developments since. The educated masses were partly responsible for the revolution, you know, but the country got out of hand—no one remembered that you cannot break up parliamentary rule in a country in time of war and—what is that expression you use? Oh yes—and get away with it."

This beautiful princess, who sat so comfortably in a quiet room in Toronto has been through untold sufferings and privations. For she is a member of the information section of the League of Nations, which exists for the purpose of keeping the people all over the world in close touch with the day-to-day work of the league. And as I listened to her expert handling of reporters, moving from subject to subject with a sure grasp of exactly what she wanted to say as well as of what she preferred to leave unsaid, I wished that there were at least a hundred of her! I made some hesitating remark along these ilnes, and she caught me up quickly.

"Oh, but there are lots of splendid women coming into public work now! I am not clever at all! When you think of the women scientists who are working for the league, like Madame Curie, of Madame Bonnevie, of Denmark, and of Madame Buggewacksen, of Switzerland, who is on the mandates committee, you realize how woefully little I know. But here in your country, where you have such wonderful opportunities for education—I suppose you have many women in parliament?"

I indicated that we hadn't, and the princess was greatly surprised. "How strange! What is the matter with them? Are they not interested? Surely, with the great questions of immigration that you have in this country, you need women in public offices. Is it that your men do not like to have them, or is that the women are not interested in your own country?"

I remained discreetly silent. The princess laughed. "I have it," she said. "Your women are too modest." Who said something about tact and diplomacy?

Turning from this dangerous subject, I asked the princess her opinion of the local league of nations societies or unions that are formed through the world.

"How can the League of Nations live and function without the support of public opinion?" she said quickly. "It would contradict its very reason for existence if it could do that. The League of Nations is not a super-state. And in order to have correct, official information sent abroad to the people of the whole world there must be some method of distributing it, and making quite sure that it reaches the people themselves. This can be done only by means of the league societies and those which exist in every state that is a member of the league.

The Duchess of York is reputed to have been one of the big winners among members of the Royal Family attending the Ascot race meet.

EASTERN CANADA

WINNIPEG, Man., June 24.—(Canadian Press).—The great possibilities of Canada as a promising field for the development of an extensive lumbering industry, has appealed to two directors of the Smith Wylie Company, Limited, with thirty branches throughout New Zealand and Australia. In passing through Winnipeg on their way to the British Isles, D. S. Wylie, of Aukland, N.Z., managing director of the firm and W. Fraser, also a director, intimated they would return to Canada early next year should it be decided to enter the Canadian field.

Both of the visitors are interested in forestry work and have made an extensive study of the lumbering industry in British Columbia and have large holdings in the New Zealand Perpetual Forest Limited and the Paturura Nurseries. The former has a capitalization of 750,000 pounds, its object being the cultivation and planting of trees. Already approximately 20,000 acres have been planted, each acre taking care of 680 trees. An additional 25,000 acres will be planted by the end of the next year.

Mr. Wylie sounded a note of warning to Canada to look more closely after its forests, predicting that the position of this country was going to be serious in 30 or 40 years unless the forests were protected. He deplored the enormous amount of wastage which he observed in the Capilano Valley and at Ocean Falls, in British Columbia. "A lot of the land in this country will never be of any use for anything but timber, and under present conditions there is no chance of young trees coming along," Mr. Wylie declared.

He described the export of pulpwood to the United States as folly, stressing the fact that Canada had a wonderful opportunity of commanding the paper business of the world. By keeping her raw material in the country and manufacturing it into paper, more extensive industries would be built and a solid foundation, ensuring more work for its population, would be built in Canada. Mr. Wylie added that increased population would essentially depend upon a policy of encouraging manufacturing interests within the dominion.

Three-Minute Journey

The dogs of Brussels are as famous as the laces and bags which have carried the name of this fair little city around the world. For their dogs are at once policemen, soldiers, laborers and heroes.

It is not altogether a natural phenomenon that the dogs of Brussels are so superior to the other dogs of the world. It is true of course, that they are of an excellent breed endowed with high intelligence and strength.

But the gifts that they have are strongly developed by a system of training such as few other dogs ever have the privilege of receiving. These distinguished dogs go to school just as children do. They have their own boarding school where they are taught the arts that are essential to well-trained, useful dogs.

The black shepherd dogs of the Groendael breed are the recipients of this schooling. Their hereditary traits make them excellent subjects for it. They quickly assimilate the training and can be taught with less difficulty than almost any other breed. They have the strength, the fidelity, agility, scent audacity and intelligence that make them apt pupils.

One of the first things these dogs must learn is to accept no food from anybody except their masters and then only when they are given the command to eat it. For instance, the trainers will deliberately drop a piece of meat as though by accident, before one of them. A well-trained dog will ignore the bait. In public exhibitions, the judge will throw raw meat to the performing dog, and if he touches it he is disqualified.

There is no beating and starving in the training of these dogs. They are taught by word of mouth and by gesture. And the result is that they come through their training as useful, self-respecting, kindly guardians of the peace.

TENNIS TIPS

HOW TO HOLD THE RACQUET

Just how many ways exist to hold a tennis racquet is a matter of uncertainty. However, no position which does not feel comfortable, after a thorough trial, will give good results. When you pick up a racquet you will find its handle is octagonal, not round. It is made in this shape so it will fit, roughly, the space between your thumb and forefinger when you hold them half open—as though you were going to pick something up.

Do not grasp the racquet half way up the handle and do not let your fingers twine over the end of the handle. The regular forehand grip is used by most of the great tennis players today, including Arnold Jones and Norman Brookes.

The backhand grip is similar, save in two particulars. The grip is shifted a half an inch or a bit more to the back of the handle and the thumb slides up along the handle to act as a brace. Suzanne Lenglen is one of the great players who uses this grip.

These are the orthodox grips and the beginner should try using them. If they prove unsatisfactory—don't continue to use them, but work out a grip which fits you. However, these orthodox grips are natural grips and are the type which nine out of ten players will naturally adopt.

ROTARY MIDGETS DEFEAT KIWANIS

Contest Results in Score of 11-10 For Deanard's Battling Crew.

Rotary Midgets defeated Kiwanis by one counter in the hotly contested opener at King Edward school grounds last night. Both teams battled royally till the last man was retired, which fact kept the spectators on edge till the decision was reached. The final score was 11-10.

In order that the series might be started with the proper eclat, John Seals, President of the Rotary club, ascended the hilltop from which exalted position he induced Alex. Dick to pop out on the second pitched ball. Charles Cook President of the Kowanis acted as backstop and proved a worthy team mate of the hurling star.

In the game which followed some stellar batting and fielding feats were recorded, Howden of the Rotary squad, getting 4 hits in as many trips, while Snowden of the opposition clicked out 3 in 4 times up.

Sturgeon was hit by a pitched ball in the first inning and was replaced at short by Dormer.

DRAYTON SCORES RAILWAY BOARD

Says Government Made Mistake — Party Politicians Preferred to Financiers.

OTTAWA, June 26.— (Canadian Press).— Sir Henry Drayton criticized the composition of the Canadian National Railway Board in House last night when a vote of $60,000,000 for Canadian National was discussed.

But what could the country expect asked Sir Henry, "when instead of financiers, men without experience and knowledge were put on the board of the railway for political reasons.' 'Political sack is not man in whom these great trusts should be placed," he said. Sir Henry Thornton alone among government appointees to Canadian National Railway Board knew something about a railway. "Even this government must admit that it committed a high crime against the country when it got rid of financiers who knew the value of a dollar and put in party politicians," he declared.

Sir Henry referred to addition of of the Inverness Railway to the system as one of the blunders which had been made. The Inverness Railway could not possibly have been taken over unless the object was to hurt the system. It had been losing money for years.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

"BEHOLD THIS WOMAN," FROM OPPENHEIM'S NOVEL, "THE HILLMAN," AT ROYAL.

One of the finest casts ever assembled will be seen in "Behold This Woman" at the Royal Theatre. Irene Rich, who was last seen here in "Rosita" and "The Gold Diggers," plays the part of the motion picture star Marguerite de la Motte, one of the younger beauties of the screen, who was seen in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," "Shadows," and other super-features, is cast as Sophie. Charles Post, who is six feet six inches tall and the largest leading man in pictures, plays the part of the cattleman.

Harry Myers, long a screen favorite and who won his greatest fame in "The Connecticut Yankee," plays delightfully the insouciant De Seyre. Rosemary Theby, recently seen in "The Girl of the Golden West," "Rich Men's Wives" and "Yellow Men and Gold," plays Calavera, the vampire. Anders Randolf will be seen for the first time in many years in a Vitagraph production as Stephen Strangeway, the bitter man of the range.

The sets showing the smart life in Hollywood and the locations used for the ranch episodes provide a variety of color and background, which J. Stuart Blackton, the producer, has used most effectively for pictorial beauty.

BEST AMATEUR NIGHT YET!

Last night, at the Royal, in addition to what we consider one of the best picture programs seen inn some time six amateur vaudeville acts made their appearance, and for talent and variety of performance they won the approval of the large audience present.

We are not going to cause any "professional jealousy" by picking any favorites. Judging from the applause, they were all hits. Here they are in the order of their appearance:

Willie Gaskin and Miss Taylor, violin duet; Philip Wheeler and Roland Gilbert, Jazzin' up the Band; George Gatfield, violin solos; Ted Markham, four English character comedy songs; Uleric Brioux and Jerry Collins, violin and mouth-organ, and a water-melon eating contest. Mr. Harris officiated in his usual efficient manner.

AT THE CAPITOL

THOMAS MEIGHEN IN "OLD HOME WEEK."

The popular Thomas Meighan brought good crowds to the Capitol Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening. The favorite, with his familiar straw hat, speckled bow tie and rather puzzled expression, appears in one of those features that seem to suit him to perfection, as the star of an involved story in which he is compelled to play the part of a big man, without much real foundation for the effort.

A visiting card which announces Tom Clark as the president of "The Amalgamated Oil Company of New York" causes his home town folks to regard him as a tip-top success while in reality, Tom is the owner of a very poorly-paying oil station. On the strength of his reputed success, he falls heir to the position of manager of what is supposed to be a paying oil well in his old town, and becomes mixed up with a group of oil stock fakirs. The various entanglements which follow his acceptance of the position and the manner in which he extricates himself and his friends from the clutches of the get rich quick men make an interesting story set against the background of an Old Home Week, with all its joyous meetings and acquaintanceships. Lila Lee makes a lovely foil for the big actors 'strong personality, and there is a good supporting cast.

There is a good comedy with this feature, showing Eddie Nelson in "Going Great," one of those farcical affairs shwing the harassed hero, escaping from a constant pursuer, doing all sorts of wonderful athletic stunts. The initiating exercises of a Greek letter fraternity provides some unusual situations in the comedy line —Jeannette.

AT THE REGENT

"AMERICAN MANNERS."

The first of a series of stirring F. B. O. features now playing at the Regent Theatre when the Carlos production, 'American Manners,' is shown for the first time in this locality. The popular young Richard Talmadge is the star of this production, which deals with the smuggling activities of a band who are operating on the vessels of Dan Thomas, a shipping magnate. Mr. Talmadge is cast as the son of Thomas, and after a series of daring exploits he saves his father from the grave Federal charges which are unjustly lodged against him. A capable cast of players, including, among others, Helen Lynch, Mark Fenton, William Turner, Arthur Melette, L. C. Shumway, Pat Harmon and George Warde, support the star.

The great business of smuggling, which since prohibition came into effect, has made one of the most dramatic and thrilling chapters in the history of the United States, is shown in all its spirit of Glamor, Adventure and Lawlessness in 'American Manners,' which is now playing at the Regent Theatre to-day for a run of 3 days. This remarkable photodrama, featuring Richard Talmadge, is the first of a new series of Carlos productions to be made with this popular young star for F. B. O., and it promises to be one of the outstanding successes of the year. Those who have seen the film in Hollywood declare that it is a particularly fine vehicle for its star, who is fast gaining international reputation both as a rising young actor and an intrepid "stunt" man. The story deals with the difficulties of Dan Thomas, a merchant prince, who is unjustly accused of being a smuggler. Through the efforts of his son (Richard Talmadge) the father is eventually cleared of suspicion, but only after the most difficut and daring exploits performed by the boy. Mr. Talmadge is supported by a particularly well balanced cast of players.

AMERICANS LEAD IN BRITISH OPEN WHEN HALF OVER

MacDonald Smith Has 145 for 63 Holes With Jim Barnes Next

MATCH 72 HOLES

Nearest Briton, Arthur Compton, Has Score of 151—Others Close

PRESTWICK, Scotland, June 26.—(Canadian Press).— MacDonald Smith and Jim Barnes of the United States invaders, were in the lead for the British open golf championship last night with half of the 72 holes trugged behind them. Both set new records for the famous Prestwick course yesterday, Barnes bringing it down two strokes with a stirring round of 70 in the morning, and Smith reducing it still further with a dazzling 69 in the afternoon.

Having done 76 in his forenoon round, Smith ended the day with a total of 145. Barnes followed up his 70 with 77, for a total of 147, which put him in second place.

Only a dozen of the British golfers were within striking distance of Smith and Barnes tonight.

The leading Briton, Arthur Compston, of North Manchester, with an aggregate of 151, was six strokes behind Smith. One more stroke down the line, Tom Fernie, S. Wingate and W. H. Davies were tied for fourth place with 152. Those who took 153 for 36 holes are J. H. Taylor, Abe Mitchell, Ted Ray and George Murdock of Troon.

Except for the new course records set, the day's golf produced little that was brilliant. In the first round less than half the professionals broke 80, and the afternoon scoring was not even quite so good, taking the field as a whole.

The links were hard and so fast that most of the competitors devoted a great deal of time to complaining about their luck. A warm sun beat down all day and there was sufficient wind off-sea to compel the golfers to take it into account when making their shots.

The galleries were immense, Prestwick living up to its reputation of drawing the largest crowds of any golf course in the world.

Those who watched Smith and Barnes were rewarded by witnessing by far the best golf the first day of the championship brought out. Smiths' second round, like a similar round of 69 which he made two years ago in the championship at Troon, was an exhibition of exquisite putting which produced birdies when it was not producing pars, since for the most part his driving was long and straight and his second shots hit true to the line for proper distance. Like all the rest, however, even his well aimed and well hit approaches were not always rewarded by resting places on the greens, for all the greens were so keen and tricky that many balls trickled away into the bunkers and high grass.

A great many of the Britons who were counted upon to be among those most likely to win the cup back fizzled out completely, among them the Whitcombes. All the amateurs also did badly. Robert Harris, who holds the title of amateur champion, started with a sound 75, then spoiled it with 81 in the afternoon. Cyril Tolley, former amateur champion did even worse.

Among the other scores for the 36-holes were:

John Smith, of Wentworth, ...	153
Frank Ball, of Langley Park ...	154
Alexander Herd	154
George Duncan	156
Harry Vardon	159
Joe Kirkwood	162

SOUTHPAWS WILL CLASH IN GAME TO-MORROW

Cairns for the Ponies and Whitehouse for Petes Opposing Gunners

KINGSTON COMING

Joe Daley's Men Furnish Opposition at Riverside Park

With the chance of pulling the Ponies out of first place, a niche the Kingston team has held since the season opened, the Petes are going into tomorrow's battle at Riverside Park fully determined to topple over the Daley men and put themselves in a position to overhaul Oshawa here on Dominion Day.

Whitehouse, who easily stopped the Ponies here several weeks ago will be assigned the task of subduing them again tomorrow and he will be faced by Lefty Cairns who beat the Johnstonites twice in Kingston but who has not yet shown his wares in Peterboro. The Ponies will have Arniel in action behind the bat in place of Quinn and they are confident of earning the decision.

Ken Colling will be the official behind the bat while the decisions on the bases will be given by Si Dell of Oshawa.

The game is called for 3 o'clock and indications point to an unusually large crowd, the Ponies generally attracting a lot of outside fans.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

It will be a battle of southpaws at Riverside Park tomorrow when the Ponies and Petes clash for Bruce Cairns, the lef-hander who has won two decisions over the Johnston squad is expected to toss for Manager Daley's outfit while Frank Whitehouse is billed to serve them for the Petes. Cairns got away with an easy win the last time he worked against the Petes. He allowed seven runs but his teammates collected fourteen off Heckman and Harrison so the Pony southpaw had nothing to worry about.

Veteran ball players, it seems, are not immune from losing their heads. Sommerville, the Kingston second sacker, one of the oldest and best players in the Central loop tossed Wednesday's game to Oshawa when he saw red after being bumped on the line by an Oshawa player and threw the ball at the offender, allowing the tieing run to score. Oshawa eventually won out after four extra frames so "Somer's" loss of temper was decidedly expensive.

* * * * * * *

One of the funniest incidents of the Petes' games at Belleville Wednesday was the protest put up by Meagher, the Railroaders' second baseman, after he had been caught off first. He claimed Whitehouse had made a balk but the Umpires waived him off the field. Back he came with a rule book which he endeavered to read to Ump. Sullivan, who refused to listen. Meagher then dashed out to Si Dell and when that official declined to hear a lecture on the rules, the irate player dashed the book to the ground and retired to the bench, talking all the way.

* * * * * * *

Belleville play in Oshawa tomorrow and the Motorists have an excellent chance to make their record five wins in a row. An Oshawa win and a loss for Kingston here would put the Motor Crew at the top of the heap.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Hanging too Long Over the Ball Before Making the Swing indicates that the player is having too much trouble with his thoughts. He is reminding himself to do this and that, and not to commit this error and to be sure to avoid doing another thing that he did in the last shot. Meantime, his muscles are gradually tightening so that instead of acquiring relatation, the purpose of addressing the ball, he acquires just the opposite effect. It is never well to hang over any shot too long. Take time enough to exercise a due care, then snap into it. Too much delay indicates a lack of confidence, and confidence with the club—indicated by decision and action in the matter—brings off the good shots.

DELORO BEATEN BY POINT ANNE

Smelters Lost Thrilling Game to Heavy Hitting Visitors

SCORE WAS 9 - 8

MARMORA, June 26.— Point Anne continued their victorious career on Wednesday when they defeated Deloro on the latter's ground, by 9 to 8. The game was viewed by four hundred spectators and from start to finish provided thrills. Point Anne batted first, Shea pitching for Deloro. In their half there was no score. Deloro on going to bat, through hitting by Boudreau and Regan, scored four off Bennett who pitched throughout for Point Anne. In the second venture, Point Anne were more successful. "Soup" Goyer opened with a triple. Maraile walked and Reid scored both with a triple to lef. field. Bennett fanned to end the innings there. Deloro went out in order in their half. Through the hitting of E. Green Point Anne tied the score in the third innings, Deloro failing to add to their total. In the foutr Point Anne got men on bases but failed to register. In Deloro's half Villeneuve's triple scored Quinn and Shea which brought their total to six runs against their opponents' four. The Point Anne half of the fifth innings was made memorable by Quinn's spectacular catch of Bradshaw's foul. The home boys again failed to hit when hits meant runs. Three runs were scored by Point Anne in the sixth innings through a succession of hard hits. Deloro failed to respond, going out in order. Lamoreux replaced Shea in the box for Deloro. The seventh inning saw the score unchanged and likewise the eighth. In the ninth inning, Point Anne again increased their total by registering twice. Amidst intense excitement, Deloro went in to bat, bravely endeavouring to make up the three run deficit. Leal, batting for Lamoreaux fouled out to Goyer. Ada singled and Villenue doubled. Johnson was out on an infield fly to first base. Boudreau cleaned the bases with a slashing double, Ada and Villeneuve registering. Boudreau was picked off second by Goyer to end the game.

Score by innings:

PREMIERS OF GERMAN STATES TO DISCUSS FRENCH REPLY TO PACT PROPOSAL FOR PEACE IN EUROPE

Conference in Berlin To-day Called by Chancellor Luther For Further Action.

SEEK INFORMATION.

Discussions Becoming Involved by Judicial Problems—British and French Disagree.

BERLIN, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—Preliminary consideration of the reply of Aristide Briand, the French Foreign Minister, to Germany's security past proposals has progressed sufficiently to warrant Dr. Luther, the Chancellor, to call to-day a conference of the Premiers of the Federated States. After this conference the Government will outline its programme for further action.

It is believed in competent quarters that this further action will embrace chiefly a formal query to the Paris Government requesting elucidation of the arbitration treaties and of the character and prerogatives which it is proposed shall be imposed on the so-called guarantor, as both problems, in the opinion of official quarters here, are too vaguely defined in the French reply.

It is admitted that the Cabinet discussions have been rather negative. The Ministers have seemed to agree that M. Briand's reply leave the entire question of the formulation of a security pact in a state of "insecurity," inasmuch as it projects a multitude of complicated juridical problems into the discussions.

Official circles also are convinced since Wednesday's debate in the House of Commons in London that a wide gap exists between the British and French ideas of what form the compact ought to take. It is argued that the speech of Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, was greatly at variance with M. Briand's note.

Thousand Guests at Last Court of London's Season

LONDON, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—The final court of the season took place last night in Buckingham Palace. About 1,000 guests, belonging to the diplomatic, official and general circles, attended. A majority of those presented to King George and Queen Mary were from the general circles.

The weather was extremely cold, but this fact did not prevent large crowds from gathering outside the Palace to watch the arrivals. The scheme of decoration in the throne room, where the presentations were made, was cream and crimson.

CANTON GOVERNMENT ASSURES FOREIGNERS OF THEIR SAFETY

Germans Are Specially Protected If They Wear White Arm Bands.

FOOD IS SHORT.

Most Serious Outlook is at Amoy— Shameen Also Threatened.

HONG KONG, June 27. — Canadian Press. — The Canton government has given the most explicit assurances that it will prevent any further anti-foreign demonstrations at Shameen, the foreign quarter of Canton. The situation is still tense although there apepars to be no ground for rumors that the Chinese intend to seize Shameen.

The Germans at Shameen have been guaranteed full protetion by the Chinese authorities, provided they wear white arm bands.

CABLE CENSORSHIP.

LONDON, June 27. — United Press —The cable companies to-day announced officially that a censorship had been established at Hong Kong and that code messages were forbidden.

Reports of a censorship in Hong Kong were received in this country several days ago.

URGE MILITARY POSSESSION.

SHANGHAI, June 27. — Canadian Press. — With the exception of shipping the strike situation was improved here to-day. Eighty per cent. of the stores closed during the present disturbances, have reopened. Those remaining close are apparently bankrupt.

The shipping strike is causing very heavy losses to the Chinese customs revenue and is severely affecting the British and Japanese trade.

Fifty representatives of Chinese students unions from various parts of the country met here yesterday and passed resolutions urging the Canton government to take military possession of Shameen.

FOOD SUPPLIES SHORT

At Chung King British and Japanese food supplies are running short, with the local merchants continuing their refual to sell to these foreigners.

Student demonstrations are continuing at Amoy and the situation there is pronounced acute by messages reaching Shanghai. British Japanese and United States war craft have gone to Amoy.

Foreign women and children have been removed safely from Hoihow on the Island of Hainan, where strong anti-foreign feeling has been reported.

BLUE JACKET FERRYMEN.

HONG KONG, June 27. — Canadian Press. — The anti-foreign strike this morning extended to the crews of the ferry boats operating between Hong Kong and Kowloon across the harbor from the main city, and launches of Kowloon and Taikoo docks, both foreign owned. A few of the mechanics in the Taikoo dockyards also went on strike. The ferry boat strikers were replaced by British blue jackets from the submarine tender Titania, and submarines, who succeeded in maintainlng a partial service.

BATTLE ENDED.

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—(Canadian Press). — Andrew H. Pepall, wanted in Toronto, Ont., in connection with a $368,000 bond fraud, left the county jail yesterday in the custody of Canadian officers. Jail officials said they were not informed whether Pepall was being taken to Canada or merely being removed to an out-of-town jail.

At the British Consulate it was announced that the removal of Pepall to Toronto would be delayed about a month, due to extradition technicalities. There also were unverified reports that he had been taken to San Pedro and placed on board a steamer bound for Vancouver, B.C.

Pepall was arrested here last year and for many months fought extradition. The long legal battle recently culminated with the State Department's approval of the action taken by the Los Angeles Federal authorities in ordering him removed.

FINAL BILLS OF SESSION PASSED AFTER DAYBREAK

House Rose at 4.30 After All Night Sitting to Finish Work.

PASS ESTIMATES.

Accepted Senate Changes to Home Bank Reimbursement Bill.

OTTAWA, June 27 (Canadian Press).—At daybreak this morning the House of Commons concluded the work of the session. During the last few minutes of the sitting, the Commons concurred in the Home Bank amendments, made by the Senate, the Supply Bill to provide for all public services for the financial year ending March 31, 1926, was given the thrid reading and minor amendments by the Senate in the Dominion Election Act were accepted. It only remained for the ceremony of prorogation to terminate the fourth session of the fourteenth Parliament of Canada. After a long night spent on the clearing up of the remaining estimates of several departments, the final legislation was put through.

Shortly before four o'clock, Premier King moved concurrence in the Senate amendments to the bill for relief of the Home Bank depositors. The motion of acceptance contained a clause to the effect that the Commons still maintained that the Senate had not the right to amend money bills. The Prime Minister said the Commons managers in conference with the Senate, pressed for the original bill as strongly as possible, but in view of the lateness of the session it was felt advisable to accept the best possible settlement. Mr. King read a letter from P. J.

"WHITE PLAGUE" LESS A MENACE THAN IMAGINED

Tuberculosis a Curable Disease is Assurance of Doctor at Convention.

REGINA MEETING.

"Cure-All" Remedies Dangerous — Often Contain Habit-Forming Drugs.

REGINA, Sask., June 27. — Canadian Press. — Tuberculosis, commonly referred to as the "White Plague," was not nearly such a menace to civilization, as was popularly imagined, Dr. Stuart Pritchard, of Battle Creek, Michigan, told the Canadian Medical Association Convention yesterday.

Tuberculosis is now known to be a curable disease and the dangers of infection from contact were considerably exaggerated with respect to the adult. Children, however, he said, were mre subject to infection.

"You cannot always judge tuberculosis by appearances," Dr. Pritchard said, "Be more charitable to [illegible] the danger [illegible] as the social diseases about which the general public so little."

X-ray radium treatment after operation for cancer gave a patient a 25 per cent. better chance of a permanent cure than where the treatment was not applied, according to Dr. G. E. Richards, Department of Radiology, Toronto general hospital.

The "cure-all" remedies generally were extremely dangerous, often containing narcotics and other habit-forming drugs. Even in the present era of enlightment people place faith in the certain charms and nostrums and actually believed this agency afforded immunity form many ailments. He suggested that all irregular practitioners be compelled to pass an examination before being allowed to practice.

Dr. W. H. McCuffin of Calgary was chosen as president of the Canadian Radiology Society at the business meeting of the society here yesterday.

Dr. C. W. Prowd of Vancouver, was elected First Vice-President.

Dr. E. C. Broos of Montreal, will continue in the office of secretary-treasurer for another year.

Victoria, B. C., was chosen as the venue for the next convention of the society.

STRIKING MINER AT DRUMHELLER SHOT BY POLICE

Refused to Halt When Fleeing With Five Others—Warning Shot Fired.

GANG OF YOUTHS.

Police Report Wounding of Striker Was in Self-Defense —Five Arrested.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., June 27.—(Canadian Press).—Lambert Reners was shot in the abdomen by the police Friday morning. They noticed six men approaching the powder house of the A. B. C. Mine. The police shouted to them to stop, but as no heed was given to the warning, a shot was fired, which struck Reners in the abdomen. He is now lying in the Drumheller Municipal Hospital in a precarious condition. There was no disturbance at the A. B. C. Mine yesterday as the mine was not working.

Six men are in the Provincial barracks cells but so far no information has been laid against them.

The story of the strikers is that seven boys were sitting on a little hill around a camp fire. Reners, who was shot, was 21 years old. The others were from 16 to 19 years of age. They say the police rushed on them, shouting "hold them up." Being boys and frightened, they ran away, but they were surrounded by the police and captured, Reners being shot.

IN SELF-DEFENCE.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 27. —(Canadian Press).—A report received by the Alberta Provincial Police from the head of the detachment at Drumheller states that the shooting of Lambert Reners by Constable Carr yesterday was in self-defence. It was feared that a member of men congregated near the power house of A. B. C. Mine intended to take explosives stored there, says the report. Police ordered them to disperse and were met with a shower of rocks. Constable Carr was hit with a brick and the men ran. He fired when they refused to obey the command to halt. His first shot went in the air and the second struck Reners in the stomach. The other five men were later arrested. Reners is reported to be doing well.

SESSION PROROGUED.

OTTAWA, June 27. — Canadian Press. — Right Hon. F. A. Anglin, Deputy Governor General, to-day formally prorogued the 4th session of Canada's 14th Parliament.

Engine Fails To Stop At the End of the Line

At 3.10 yesterday afternoon, a C.N.R. engine entered the shed at the south end of the station with such speed, that the end portion of the shed was smashed before the engine could be checked.

The partition was made almost entirely of wood, replacing a brick wall which was broken down some years ago by a similar mishap.

Several years back the same engine shed was damaged by fire.

Mayor and Council Would Be Well Advised To Only Listen to the Hydro Proposition Says R. R. Hall About Street Railway Plan

The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario are evidently anxious to have the City of Peterborough purchase from it the Peterborough Radial and the gas plant. The Commission state that the gas plant is paying a surplus although the street railway system has been operating under a considerable annual deficit.

It is not at all surprising that the Hydro Commission as manager for the Province of Ontario of the Central Ontario Power System should be desirous of unloading two losing enterprises on the taxpayers of Peterborough, and His Worship Mayor Turner and his committee were well advised to only "listen to a number of suggestions "which were evolved by the Hydro authorities after much careful consideration of conditions as they exist in Peterborough at the present time."

The Mayor and Council would also we well advised to only "listen" to such suggestions, and not to heed them.

When the Gregary Commission were investigating the Central Ontario Power System, which is owned by the Province of Ontario and not by the Hydro Commission, Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., the well-known Canadian auditors, had occasion to investigate the yearly profits and losses made by the Province in operating the street railway, from the 31st of March, 1916, to October 31, 1922.

The following is a summary of their report:—

	Loss.	Profit.
1 year 8 months, ending October 31, 1917	.....	$1,848.84
Fiscal year ending October 31, 1918	$ 12,323.41
Fiscal year ending October 31, 1919	26,062.86
Fiscal year ending October 31, 1920	26,663.74
Fiscal year ending October 31, 1921	33,031.15
Fiscal year ending October 31, 1922	34,218.20
	$132,299.36	$1,848.84
	1,848.84
Net loss to October 31, 1922	$130,450.52

An annual loss of $34,000 in operating the street railway would be a nice tidy sum to add to the annual tax bill of the taxpayers of Peterborough.

It is further to be noted from the above table that when the Hydro Commission first took over the Street Railway it was showing a slight profit, but under the management of the Hydro Commission it has been showing an increasing annual loss.

It is further to be noted in the interview with the Mayor in last Tuesday's Examiner that the Hydro Commission suggests that "A special Commission of city men might be trained in the administrative end of the street railways business or the city might employ already highly trained specialists of the Hydro Transportation Commission," to operate the Street Railway.

The Mayor well well advised to only "listen" to this suggestion, but he and the City Council would be better advised to heed it not because "these highly trained specialists of the Hydro Transportation Commission" are already on record as showing an exceedingly large annual loss, and it is only natural that such annual losses will increase and will be borne by the tax payers of Peterborough.

It is further to be noted that the rolling stock of the Street Railway is in a badly run-down condition. The tax payer does not require to have an expert tell him that. All he has to do is to take a ride on one of the street cars, and he will find the suggestion come to his mind, "I am now riding over a corduroy road in a lumber wagon."

The Mayor and City Council would be well advised to suggest to the Hydro Commission that their "highly trained specialists" should first show a profit before they even suggest to the tax payers of Peterborough to take over this losing enterprise.

Peterborough, June 25, 1925. R. R. HALL.

OCEAN RATES ENQUIRY TO COST COUNTRY $50,000 DRAYTON SAYS

Protests That Government Has Not Furnished Details of Disbursements.

EXTRA ESTIMATE.

OTTAWA, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—When the House of Commons yesteday afternoon took up a supplementary estimate of $25,000 for further expenses of the ocean rates investigation, Sir Henry Drayton pressed that the minister of trade and commerce, Hon. T. A. Low, give the committee details of the disbursement of the sum. Mr. Low said that some, accounts notably that of the counsel to the committee (H. J. Symington) had not been received. The present vote was an approximation of the amount which would be required in addition to the $10,000 already voted, to defray the exptnses of the investigation. No al expenses of the investigation. No al

Sir Henry complained that "The House is being treated with absolute contempt," and demanded that the minister should give exact details before the vote was carried. He particularly wanted to know how much would be paid out to the witnesses called by the ocean rates committee

Information Not Given.

Sir Henry declared that an on order of the House, the Government had been asked to give certain information in reference to the cost of the ocean rates enquiry. Full information had not been given.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, interjected to state that Mr. Symington was to receive $200 per day, which amount was less than the former government had paid to a horde of counsel engaged on the Grand Trunk administration work. Mr. Symington, he pointed out, had not yet sent his bill.

Sir Henry voiced the opinion that the ocean rates enquiry would cost the country about $50,000. It was outrageous on the part of the government to endeavour to put through the present estimate without full particulars as to its use.

Wm. Irvine (LabourCalgary, East) declared the information requested should be given or the vote should not be passed.

TUG RAMMED BY C.P.R. LINER AND CREW DROWNED

Smaller Vessel Almost Cut in Two Outside the Quebec Harbor.

BOILERS EXPLODED.

Crew of Ten Men Disappeared With Tug in Swirl of Water.

QUEBEC, June 27. — Canadian Press. — Ten men were drowned when the tug Ocean King was rammed by the Canadian Pacific liner Marloch off the harbor shortly after seven o'clock to-night.

The Ocean King, on her way to assist the Marloch to her pier was struck amidships, and almost cut in two by the impact, began to sink immediately. When the inrushing water reached her boilers they exploded. There was a swirl of water and the tug with all her crew had disappeared.

The Ocean King was the property of the St. John Drydock Company, and was commanded by Captain Stevens.

CHURCHES FEEL NEED OF UNITY

Archbishop of Wales Urges Co-operation in Address at Presbyterian Council.

MAY DISCUSS IT.

CARDIFF, Wales, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—The Episcopalian Archbishop of Wales and representatives of the Congregational and Methodist Churches, who were guest speakers at Friday's session of the Presbyterian Alliance Council, advanced the pdea that all Christian Churches co-operate with one another, which, they said, it might be hoped would eventually lead to consolidation of all Christian churches.

The Archbishop read a paper saying his Church had adopted the policy that this consolidation was a thing which was meant to be, and was almost a necessity in this age. His Church had even gone so far as to express willingness to meet with other denominations to discuss the point.

Other speakers voiced the same views and the Presbyterians agreed that something should be done in the next few years to see if the churches were ready to meet on common ground.

The delegates are the guests of the Cardiff churches to-day on motor trips throughout the country. On Sunday most of the visiting ministers will fill pulpits in Cardiff and nearby towns.

OBSERVATIONS AMONG DELPHINIUMS (LARKSPURS)

The glorious blues of the larkspurs coming immediately after and overlapping the season of peonies, give one a sense of coolness and restfulness after the riot of reds and pinks of the aforementioned peonies and the Oriental poppies, etc.

In comparatively recent years the larkspur has been much improved in general size, range of color and combinations as well as in doubling and size of the individual blossoms. These hybrids which have largely been produced in England I believe, are well worth investigating. Many of the varieties have been imported as plants or seed and may be obtained as plants from our various nursery firms, together with varieties in this country.

Larkspurs show to the best advantage in bold clumps and groups or in large masses covering a considerable area where space is not limited. They range in height from three to six feet and the flowers range in color from pure white, through all the shades of blue and purplish tones. Among the good varieties are Belladonna, turquoise blue (there are named varieties in this section and it is a reliable standby), Chinese, gentian blue; Formosum, deep blue with white centre; Moerheimi, white. Of the many more choice named varieties are Dusky Monarch, King of Delphiniums, Perfection, Mr. J. S. Brunton, Orion, The Alake, Pannonia, etc. The list is so long and varied that no two people would make quite the same choice.

Larkspurs are improved by and deserve a little extra attention by way of fertilizing and watering. Apply a little bonemeal to the soil around the plants and during the summer and in very dry weather water them copiously.

If the stems are cut off close to the ground, when the flowers begin to wither, a second crop of flowers may often be obtained.

Famous Relics Property of Former Emperor Missing from Ancient Castle

By RANDALL GOULD.

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PEKING, June 26. — (United Press.)—Profane feet have stolen inside locked precincts of the sacred Forbidden City of the Emperors here and profane hands have removed large quantities of almost priceless curios, it has been revealed by members of the Inventory Commission appointed to inspect the quarters of the recently deposed "Boy Emperor" Hsuan Tung.

Following the departure of Hsuan Tung and his metamorphosis into a private citizen bearing the name of Henry Pu Yi, the halls and courts which he and his two young wives had occupied for years were sealed and kept under guard. That the guard was not as strict as it should have been is evident from the discoveries just announced.

Sealing papers on the door of the ancient Chang Chung Kung hall were found to have been broken and the locks tampered with. Footprints were found inside. The lock of the Yi Ching Su Shih Tien was likewise broken. The doors of the Ta Chi Tien were open wide. Empty wooden cases scattered about told a mute story of the removal of precious cloths, porcelains and other valuable goods.

Sacrilege.

While the material value of the articles was great enough to warrant something of a commotion over this discovery, of even greater moment to the Chinese mind is the sacrilege connected with such an act. Even though the Emperor no longer reigns, his name is still connected with the highest things of earth and with heaven itself as well, in the mind of the ordinary citizen of the so-called Republic of China, and great is the scandal attendant upon the leaking out of this news—news at first kept secret, but at last revealed.

The general lack of order in China's harassed capital is illustrated by the fact that when the Provisional Government tried to borrow some furniture from the Presidential Palace, unoccupied but guarded since the abdication of the former President Tsao Kun last fall, it was found that all the furniture had disappeared. Even the metal ring mountings on the door of the "stone house" built by the late President Yuan Shih-kai, first President of China, had been chipped off.

FINAL BILLS OF SESSION PASSED

Lee, representing the committee of Home Bank depositors, accepting the measure of relief accorded by the Senate. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen said that he could not see that the clause regarding "straightened circumstances" or the dropping of the preamble made any difference to the bill.

Reform Senate.

W. F. MacLean, Conservative South York, took up the debate and read a statement advocating the reform of the Senate. Sir Henry Drayton expressed his disappointment with the way in which matters had gone. The Commons managers had gone to the Senate with a chip on their shoulder and the result had been a sham battle. Hon. George P. Graham, who was one of the Commons managers at the conference with the Senate, said that they had pressed every point to the limit. Hon. E. M. McDonald, also one of the Commons managers, said the Senate had firmly declined to increase the amount of the grant a single dollar. The amendments were then agreed to at four, twenty in the morning. The effect of the bill as it finally passed is to made the amount of cimbursements $3,000,000, instead of $5,000,000. On deposits of $500 or less 35 per cent. will be paid and claimants having larger deposits will be required to prove straightened circumstances before the president of the exchequer court of Canada. All organizations Members of Parliament, and Senators are excluded from the beefits of the bill.

During the course of an all night sitting estimates totalling approximately $100,000,000, were passed, including such large votes at $35,000,000 for European war pensions; $10,000,000 for the Department of Customs and excise and $31,000,000 for the Post Office Department. It was almost 4.30 when the house rose.

REV. JAMES GRIER INDUCTED AS PASTOR OF ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, and Others, Particiapte in Ceremony.

GOWN PRESENTED.

Address to New Minister Urges Exercise of Compassion Above All.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27.—James Grier was inducted into the pastorate of St. Andrew's Friday afternoon with all the ceremony of the Presbyterian Church, and when he enters the pulpit on Sunday, he will wear a handsome gown that was presented to him by the ladies of the congregation. The traditions and customs of the church are to be preserved.

There was a large attendance at the induction services and the sermon was preached by Rev. J. Lennox of Havelock, the minister who most recently came to the Presbytery and who in his discourse, from the words, "It is finished," stressed the importance of preserving the doctrines of the church in their integrity, especially that dealing with the Atonement. Mr. Lennox believes that a large number of the people who have identified themselves with the new church believe in the Atonement, and accept the Bible from Genesis to Revelations as the word of God, but he also believes that the majority of the leaders in that movement, question some of the truths of Scripture including the miraculous birth of Christ.

The Induction.

After Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, who has acted as interim moderator during the vacancy in the pastorate, had explained the steps leading up to the call, Rev. G. I. Craw of Springville, moderator of the Presbytery of Peterboro, addressed the usual question to Mr. Grier concerning his belief in the inspiration of Scripture, in the Confession of Faith, and in the system of Government of the Presbyterian Church by session, presbytery, synod and assembly as in keeping with the Divine plan. To all of these questions, Mr. Grier returned an emphatic affirmative.

Mr. Craw then delivered the address to the minister, congratulating him upon receiving a call to such a congregation as St. Andrew's, predicting happy relations between pastor and people. Mr. Grier was advised to study the Bible, so that he would know more of that Book than any of his hearers, no matter how far he should be behind them in his knowledge of secular subjects. He was to reach the Word faithfully, fearlessly and lovingly. When he makes a pastoral call, it is to be something more than a social visit and he should never leave a house on such an occasion without reading a few verses on the Scripture and offering up a prayer. In the house of sorrow he was counselled to prove himself a man with a heart. There are plenty of clever men but too few with the compassionate nature.

Address to Congregation.

Rev. D. A. Thomson, who addressed the congregation, basing his remarks on a passage from the blue book, said he believed that the call so unanimously extended to the congregation, was for the glory of God and for that reason could not fail to result in good to the church.

The congregation should respect their minister and encourage him in every possible way. They need have no fear that by so doing they would spoil him for he did not think Mr. Grier was a man who could easily be spoiled. They should be obedient and should live up to their agreement to contribute for the maintenance of the church according to the means. He was glad to note the large amount that had been gathered in on Anniversary Sunday and he hoped that this spirit would continue. Systematic giving he added, is scriptural.

Mr. Thomson did not forget to speak a word on behalf of the minister's wife. Her lot, he said, is [illegible] she has to stay at home and listen to all the mean things that are said by people who drop in to see her. She should be spared this form of persecution.

Presented with Gown.

On behalf of the ladies of the congregation, Mr. Thomson then presented Mr. Grier with a gown. The gift was gracefully acknowledged in a brief address. Mr. Grier said that he was pleased to note that the congregation believed in uniformity of effort between pastor and choir, the members of which wear gowns and that it was their desire to have the office of minister dignified.

Gift to Mr. Thomson.

As a token of appreciation of the careful oversight he has given the congregation as interim moderator during the vacancy, Mr. Thomson was presented by Dr. G. A. Hay with an envelope containing $50.

The Reception.

A reception was then tendered Mr. and Mrs. Grier, the committee consisting of the members of the session and the following ladies; Mrs. George Dickson, convenor, Mrs. J. A. Anderson, Mrs. G. A. Hay and Mrs. F. M. Dinwoodie. The latter was president of the first missionary society ever organized in St. Andrews.

Ella, the little daughter of William Cock, one of the elders, presented Mrs. Grier with a handsome bouquet of roses. The large congregation filed past the receiving line and Mr. and Mrs. Grier received a cordial greeting and a hearty welcome to their new home in Cmpbellford.

Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae assisted in the induction services.

The total amount of the thankoffering last Sunday and the proceeds of the lawn social, when all returns are in, is $1007.12.

UP A MILLION.

OTTAWA, June 27. — Canadian Press. — In a single vote House of Commons last night passed $34,000,000 for "Pensions, European war, and active militia."

Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment explained in passing, that the vote was one million more than last year, mostly due to the fact that the time for applying applications for pensions terminated during the year.

Campbellford Farmer Recovers Property Stolen Some Time Ago.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27. — Chief Brown on Friday received from the police at Kingston the bicycle which was stolen from a young farm hand named Bertrand some time ago. A man named Woodcock, who is serving a term in Kingston for the theft of a wheel in that city, admitted that he had stolen abicycle in Campbellford, and it was recovered from a resident of Kingston to whom he had sold it. When Woodcock's term is up in Kingston he will be brought here for trial.

License Inspector Goodrich of Cobourg was in town on official business on Friday last but apparently found nothing amiss with the administration of the Ontario Temperance Act.

COURT OF REVISION.

Campbellford Councillors Met Last Night To Set-[illegible] Dispute

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27. — Mayor Meyers, Councillors Moore, Abernethy and Kingston sat as a court of revision, last night, to hear complaints of citizens who are assessed for the Sebastopol and tributary sewers recently completed. Ex Deputy Reeve Dorie caled the attention of the court to the fact that all abutting property was being assessed at $2.71 a foot front, regardless of whether the water service as well as the sewer had been put in. Some of the houses already had the water mains and Mr Dorie mentioned that the owner of these should should pay for the sewer alone or $1.87 a foot Mayor Meyers explained that the tax would be levied on this basis and a motion to that effect was received.

NATION'S WEALTH SHOULD ALSO BE CONSCRIPTED WHEN MEN CALLED OUT IN WAR, VETERANS PROPOSE

G.W.V.A. Reaffirm Support to League of Nations as Means of Peace.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Suggestion for National Decoration Day is Deferred to Next Convention.

OTTAWA, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—Following the lead of the American Legion of Ex-Service Men, the Great War Veterans' Association, at its annual convention here yesterday afternoon, adopted a resolution in favor of the conscription of wealth and man power in the event of a war again breaking out. At the same time the delegates reaffirmed their belief in the League of Nations as a means of insuring peace, and pledged their support to the British Empire Service League, composed of veterans of the British Empire, in supporting the League.

Under the terms of the resolution, Parliament will be urged by the G.W.V.A. to consider legislation to mobilize the "whole power of the nation for national service in the event of a declaration of war; that the property equally with the persons, lives and liberties of all citizens, shall be subject to conscription for the defence of the nation."

The serious consideration of the resolution was commended to the British Empire Service League, which meets here next Monday for its biennial conference under the presidency of Field Marshal Earl Haig.

The activities of the delegates yesterday covered a wide variety of subjects, on which declarations were made. The election of officers was also held, and Col. James McAra of Regina was elected first vice-president by acclamation. Two other nominees withdrew. Capt. Ian Mackenzie, M.L.A., of Vancouver, was selected second vice-president, also by acclamation, after another nominee withdrew. By an amendment to the constitution it is expected the immediate past president will automatically become a member of the Dominion Executive hereafter. The immediate past president this year is Major W. D. Sharpe, M.D., of Brampton, Ont., who is succeeded in the presidency by General Sir Richard Turner, V.C. Canon Scott of Quebec, was re-endorsed as national chaplain.

National Decoration Day.

The liveliest debate of the afternoon centred around a resolution, emanating from Winnipeg, that the Association should petition the Government to have a "suitable day in the spring" observed annually as a national decoration day, but the resolution was left over to the next convention, despite the protests of the Winnipeg delegates. The feeling was that the Association should first attain its objective in having Armistice Day, November 11, recognized as a national holiday, before going any further in the matter.

It was decided to petition the Federal Government to set aside an appropriation for the maintenance of an official adjustment bureau in Ottawa, independent of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment or any other Government department, and maintained under the present administration of the G. W. V. A. If the Association confined its activities to the members of the organization, it was believed that the association would be financially able to carry on for the ensuing year, but the adjustment cases of ex-soldiers who were non-members of the Association could not be cared for, as in the past, without some financial assistance. Provision was made for the grant of $100,000 for the maintenance of an adjustment bureau in legislation passed by the House of Commons at this session of Parliament, but the clause was deleted by the Senate Committee, and approved by the Senate and House of Commons later. The money would have been advanced from the consolidated canteen fund.

The convention urged the Federal Government to erect a national memorial on Parliament Hill instead [illegible] naught Square, Ottawa; urged upon the Government the necessity of providing transportation facilities for the hundreds of ex-service men located in Pouce Coupe Prairie, B.C., and other soldier settlers similarly situated; and that provision be made for the burial expenses of a deceased soldier in all cases where the Soldiers' Settlement Board had salvaged the soldiers' effects in connection with his land settlement loan.

Discrimination Alleged.

It was charged that certain members of the G.W.V.A. employed in Civil Service work with various governments had been discriminated against because of their connection with the association. This was deplored by delegates, who approved a resolution urging that the heads of various government departments be asked to advise their departments that as ex-service men, members of the G.W.V.A. are entitled to the full privilege of membership in their association "without prejudice to their occupation." Col. James McAra, Regina, asserted that in Saskatchewan officers of the department of soldiers' civil establishment were not allowed to retain membership in the G.W.V.A.

Affecting Ontario particularly, where it was charged that coroners were sometimes not holding proper post-mortems and inquests after persons had met violent deaths, a resolution was adopted urging that in all cases of violent death of ex-service men "where the verdict may be presumed to be suicide or death from misadventure," that the coroner be "demanded" to hold an inquest and proper post mortem "in order that the necessity for the institutional care of men suffering from shell-shock and other nervous disabilities caused by their service overseas may be established."

LAKEFIELD BESTS CURVE LAKE CREW

Score 4-3 in Exciting East Peterborough League Fixture—Well Attended.

Curve Lake Indians suffered defeat at the hands of the Lakefield crew yesterday when a scheduled 7-inning game was played at the Exhibition Grounds at Lakefield. The final score, 4-3, indicates the character of the battle. The hurling was of a superior type, and excellent support was afforded both moundsmen, Payne, the Lakefield centre gardener, doing especially noteworthy work.

A big crowd of supporters accompanied the Curve Lake ball tossers as they came in cars, bringing the children too, and the contest which they witnessed was worth seeing, as it was a remarkably clean, fast game, with a notable absence of dispute.

The line-up:

Curve Lake: A. Johnston c, M. Taylor p, A. McCue 1b, H. Taylor 2b, W. Beaver 3b, R. Muskrat ss, W. Jacobs rf, N. Taylor lf, L. McCue cf.

Lakefield: Northey c, Woodhouse p, Moore 1b, Grier 2b, Hull 3b, Sherin ss, Tanner rf, McManus lf, Payne cf.

By innings:

Curve Lake .. .. 1010010—3
Lakefield .. .. 300001x—4

Woodhouse struck out 5, Taylor 4. Umpires: Graham and Jacobs.

CAMPBELLFORD WON LACROSSE

Juniors Defeat Norwood in Peppy Game—Visitors Tired Quickly.

SCORE WAS 19-2.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27. — The Junior lacross team had an easy time winning from Alex. Kemp's Norwood youngsters in an O.A.L.A. game played here yesterday, the final score being 19 to 2.

Only in the first period did Norwood furnish much opposition, holding the home talent to two scores, while they notched one themselves, after that they faded badly and the Orange and Black jerseys gradually widened the gap and in the last period were scoring almost at will; they once drawing the ball at the face off, and going right in close without being checked. On another occasion, Parsons, Ibey and Ingram all had shots at the Norwood net, before Horkins finally flipped the rubber in, the Campbellford home players recovering the ball after each unsuccessful shot and passing to a team mate for another try. Norm. Heayn's good little team played nice lacrosse all through, their passes, as a rule, were fast and true, and they out-guessed the Norwood youngsters time after time. They also made a try for every loose ball and generally got possession of it. The defence was airtight, and Fox had an easy day of it. The only time he handled the ball in the last period was when he fielded a wide shot behind his own net.

McArthur and Cochrane were steady all through and carried the ball to the other end on numerous occasions. "Huck" scoring twice, and along with Hodkins and Bush were far too clever for the Norwood attackers, who were lost when within scoring range; their passes either going astray or McArthur and his side partners bocked the ball carried and forced them to shoot wild.

Ibey, at centre, was going great all through the piece, and never tired; he was up on every attack [illegible] if they needed any assistance. His goal in the third period was the prettiest of the game. "Les." Blake, Fred and Harry Ingram and Parsons buzzed around the Norwood net all afternoon, and their pretty combination plays completely baffled the striped jerseys' defence, and they generally were right in on the net before shooting.

The crowd was very small, the boys not realizing enough to pay expenses, while the brand of lacrosse the Junior are playing is deserving of the support of all lovers of lacrosse.

Line Up.

Campbellford (19).—Fox, goal; McArthur, point; Cochrane, cover point; Horkins, 1st defence; Bush, 2nd defence; Ibey, centre; H. Ingram, 2nd home; L. Blake, 1st home; Parsons, outside; F. Ingram, inside; F. Blake, Bland, Combell, subs.

My European Excursions
By Edwin Robert Peive

IF YOU WOULD BE COOL AND COMFORTABLE.

Some one should make a list of the coolest places in Europe for summer visitors. If I were asked, omitting some places that are cool but not comfortable, I would put the region of the Sognefjord in Norway at the top of the list. It is the longest of all the Norwegian fjords and extends for 112 miles [illegible] the country if your ship deep. That is the kind of ravine we want on a hot summer's day. Worn by waves and glaciers in places, it is fringed by luxuriant orchards and waving cornfields elsewhere, and studded on the rim with the pleasantest dwellings. The general character compared with the Hardangerfjord is much in favor of its softer scenery and beautiful waterfalls.

THE WEIRD SCENERY OF THE NAERODAL.

After lunch in the Stalheim Hotel waited on by girls in the national Norwegian dress, at a meal that was good enough for a feast for Vikings, I descended by the wondrous Naerodal on the zig-zag road. I could not help recalling the words of Du Chaillu, "There is no other valley in Norway, through which a high road passes that can compare for weird scenery with the Naerodal. Such an austere grandeur is given to these gigantic walls by the twilight and their outlines look so like grim phantoms that I doubt if there be anywhere a view like it. I became spellbound by the stupendous panorama."

MAKE ZEPPELIN FOR POLAR EXPLORATION

Will Place Ship at Disposal of Dr. Nansen For Two Flights.

BERLIN, June 27. Canadian Press — The Zeppelin plant at Friedrichshafen is to be authorized to construct an airship which will be placed at the disposal of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the Norwegian explorer, for two polar exploration trips.

This was decided upon at a conference at the German traffic ministry to-day between the International Research Society for Aeronautic Exploration of the Arctic, and the officials of the Zeppelin plant.

The cost of construction of the airship wil be defrayed exclusively by the Zeppelin plant while the expenses incidental to carrying out the Arctic explorations will be covered by international subscription.

CADET TRAINING

Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., has been been at it again.

The woman member of Parliament who said a lot of silly things in this district not long ago about the causes of the war fruitlessly tried the other day to block a vote for cadet training.

Miss MacPhail's views on such questions do not represent those of the majority of people in this part of Canada at least and it is doubtful if they are a correct representation of the opinion of the people of her own riding.

Her attitude toward cadet training shows that she has even not bothered to investigate the matter.

A course of physical training with a smattering of military drill makes stronger men out of Canadian boys but it has never been proved that it fills them with an enthusiastic desire to go out and kill somebody, which Miss MacPhail evidently believes to be the result of the cadet work.

Fortunately the House of Commons is not filled with Pacifists and the cadet appropriation found staunch defenders in Hon. E. M. Macdonald, Minister of Defence, and Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and T. L. Church.

The vote passed and possibly before another is necessary Miss MacPhail will have been given a demonstration of the fact that her constituency has no desire to be misrepresented.

THE RADIAL RAILWAY

The article on the radial railway question by Mr. R. R. Hall, K. C., which appears on the first page of today's issue is a timely contribution on a subject about which the ratepayers should be doing some thinking.

The suggestion from the Hydro Commission that the city of Peterborough should take over the radial railway is not a new one—it has been made several times before but has never been taken seriously and it shouldn't be on this occasion.

If there is anything the ratepayers of Peterboro do not want at the present time it is an addition to the municipal liabilities and when the report of the operation of the street railway in recent years is considered it is impossible to regard the system as anything else than a liability.

During the five years from 1918 to 1922 inclusive, the Radial Railway showed a net loss of $130,450.52.

That would be a beautiful present for the taxpayers of the city, wouldn't it?

The plain facts of the case are that the system is showing an annual loss of some $34,000, that the rolling stock in many respects has outlived its usefulness and that to put the railway into proper shape would entail a large expenditure.

The people of Peterboro do not want to take over the radial railway and there should be no hesitation on the part of their representatives to say so in language that cannot be misunderstood.

THE NOVA SCOTIA RESULT

The overwhelming defeat of the Armstrong Government in the Nova Scotia provincial election, after an uninterrupted Liberal reign of 43 years was most surprising perhaps in the extent of the turnover which leaves only three Liberals elected as against 40 Conservatives.

No important question of policy was decided by the result which can be explained most accurately perhaps by the unanimous feeling of the electors that it was "time for a change" and by the industrial troubles in Cape Breton for which the Armstrong administration was considered to be to some extent at least responsible.

43 years is much too long for any one party to remain in power and the Nova Scotia people suffered the reaction that necessarily must accompany such a long term in office.

Thousands of electors who in other contests supported the Liberal cause transferred their allegiance on this occasion and the verdict was crushing in its decisiveness.

Whether the Nova Scotia result will have any effect upon the Federal situation it is impossible

There are those who declare that if Premier King had any intention of going to the country this present year he changed his mind on Thursday evening and decided to postpone his appeal.

Others maintain that the decision as to the Federal election will not be made until after the New Brunswick provincial contest.

But these views are pure guesswork—and everybody is entitled to his own guess.

THE UNITED STATES WAY

President Coolidge's address to the administrative heads of the United States government the other day is worthy of consideration by Canadians because of the proof that it gives that it is possible when a scientific, sincere and determined effort is made to reduce national expenditures and consequently the national tax bill, success is possible.

The chief pleas made by the President were as follows:

Aim—We are seeking to let those who earn money keep more of it for themselves. Governmental extravagance violates the fundamental conceptions and the very genius of American institutions.

Budget—In the four years of operation under the budget system the annual expenditures have been reduced $2,081,000,000, and the public debt has decreased $3,426,000,000. It is an accomplishment which justifies the abiding faith of the people in our form of representative government.

Taxes—The way has been prepared for further tax reductions. This I will recommend to the next Congress in the next budget message. Economy in the cost of government is inseparable from reduction in taxes. If there is one thing above all others that will stimulate business it is tax reduction.

Economy—There can be no interruption in this effort for constructive economy in the Federal business. To this we are dedicated. It is an effort to enrich the lives of the people we serve. There could be no nobler purpose."

Canadians will agree that the head of the neighboring republic is on sound ground in his reasoning and they have reason to wish that they too could count on further tax reductions and constructive economy of the Coolidge brand.

Mr. Coolidge hits the nail squarely on the head in his statement that if there is one thing above all others that will stimulate business it is tax reduction; but this cannot come without real economy in the cost of government.

And the hardest part of it all on this side of the line is to convince people that if they want governments to economize they must stop asking them to spend money.

THE WESTERN WHEAT.

Crop prospects throughout the prairie provinces are the brightest they have been for some years, according to the latest crop report of the Canadian National railways. The most recent estimate is that the western country may possibly produce an output of as high as 500,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, which would be by far the greatest on record, and there is also a prospect of good prices being obtained for the grain. These prospects do not surprise people, accustomed as all of us are of recent years to great harvests in the prairie provinces, nevertheless it is but a comparatively few years since that great western country was looked down upon as being a little better than barren. It is well to remember at this time, the courage of some of the pioneers of the western country who believed that great things were in store for it, and had the faith to press their views. One of the chief of these was an Ottawa man who died in 1920, namely, Professor John Macoun, explorer and naturalist, who, several years before there was a single farm in what is now Alberta and Saskatchewan, traversed these territories and in the face of much doubt and indeed of some scorn, ventured to tell the public what the future held in store for the Canadian West. His autobiography was published last year by the Ottawa Field Naturalists' Club as a memorial to him, and it is a volume which contains much of engrossing interest to Canadian.

Macoun first crossed the rairies in 1872 and went on across the Rockies to British Columbia in a journey full of adventure and hardship. He returned frequently to the prairie country and from the time of his first trip and never ceased to dwell upon the enormous potentialities. At first, however, the only result of his effort was to give him the reputation of a Munchausen. In the late seventies he had a meeting with Honorable Alex MacKenzie, then Prime Minister of the Dominion, and he tells this:

"I found him to be a very pleasant little Scotchman, but very conservative, for he would not believe one word I told him about the Northwest. When I told him you could travel 200 miles and not see an acre of bad land, he said 'I canna believe it.' The reason for this assertion was that, in Ontario, we had good land always intermixed with poor soils."

Mr. McKenzie's unbelief led to an unique incident in Parliament some years later. It was after the general election of 1878 which brought Sir John MacDonald back into power. Sir John had introduced a bill for the construction of the C.P.R. and in the course of the debate which followed, Mr. MacKenzie, as leader of the Opposition, proceeded to quote a number of opinions derogatory to the western country.

"In his desk at this time," writes Mr. Macoun, "he had my report written in 1877 for himself, and instead of using it, ignored it altogether and quoted Bishop Tache and Palliser. I became so excited that I called out that he had my report in his desk and why not read it also. In a minute I felt a hand on my shoulder and, on loking up, I saw one of the ushers, who invited me to keep still or else leave the building."

Sir Charles Tupper, with his customary courage, accepted Mr. Macouns' statements but even he was afraid that the explorer was over-enthusiastic. Before he made his great speech in 1880 on the Canadian Pacific Railway contract, he came into Macoun's room and exclaimed: "Fleming and I (meaning Sir Sanford Fleming) are prepared to swear by you but for God's sake do not draw on your imagination."

"Sir John himself," the narrative proceeds, "had his doubts of me and was far less enthusiastic than Sir Charles. As a proof of this, I may state that, in an interview which I had with him as Premier in 1880, he said: "Mr. Macour, I think you are very enthusiastic regarding the country." I said: 'It may be so, Sir John, but my enthusiasm is bred of belief.' Before this, Mr. MacKenzie and Mr. Blake had shown, in their speeches, that the country was of little value. Sir John, I could see, scarcely allowed himself to accept as a fact that which he so ardently desired but Sir Charles sustained no doubts and encouraged me to do [illegible] truth."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENTS

The people of Nova Scotia evidently can agree on one subject once in a while.

A contemporary recalls the time when garters were used to hold up stockings and not traffic.

Even rain could not spoil the Douro Centenary Celebration for the success of which Mr. P. G. Towns and his committee deserve every credit.

Peterboro's celebration of Dominion Day will be like Peterboro's celebration of other public holidays. Nothing to do and all day to do it in.

The failure of the Alberta coal scheme is a blow to the hope of Ontario becoming to some degree at least independent of the United States mines. And with a strike prophesied across the line the outlook cannot be described as rosy.

The absence of abnormal neckwear suggests that Father's Day was a "dud."

It is reported that the building trades are suffering from a lack of properly trained mechanics. It is not difficult to understand where they have gone to.—Kingston Standard.

CHOIR PRESENTATION

Organist and Bride Elect Presented With Gift of Beautiful Lamp

HAVELOCK, June 27—The home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Haig, Mathison street, was the scene of an interesting gathering this week when some forty friends from the choir of the United Church, Norwood, met to provide a pleasant surprise in honor of Miss Gladys Haig, whose marriage to Dr. T. H. Norval of Norwood takes place today.

Miss Haig, who is the organist of the Norwood Church was presented with an electric table lamp, the presentation being made by Miss Pearce, the choir leader.

During the evening vocal solos were rendered by Miss O. Finlay and Mr. Stanley Weir which added much to the enjoyment of the evening. The invading party had not forgotten supplies of good things and after singing "For Shes' A Jolly Good Fellow," buffet luncheon was served before the gathering dispersed wishing the bride-elect all the happiness possible.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, June 28-29.

Sunday's horoscope is favorable for the customary activities of the day, but is urged that change and travel be postponed. Lively and happy conditions may be looked for in the rules of heart and home affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly lively and satisfactory state of affairs in the ordinary channels, but should shun change and travel. Heart and home affairs should be under flourishing configurations. A child born on this day may have good abilities and be well liked and respected despite a restless and unsettled nature.

Monday's astrological forecast may not be a fortunate one either for business or in other activities, although new projects may be taken under advisement for future constructive effort. In heart affairs there are likely to be sudden or sensational developments.

Those whose birthday is may look for slow business developments They should run no money risks, either in loans or speculation. Heart affairs may assume sensational or unexpected turns. A child born on this day may have a difficult time to succeed unless born in a propitious hour.

A THOUGHT.

HOW TO MAKE AN IMPLACABLE ENEMY.

Tell an honest man that you think him a rogue, and if he be a sensible man as well, he will simply say to you that you are not well informed.

But tell almost any man that he is ignorant or ill-bred, and the man will resent your expressed opinion and he may close your left eye.

1. Most men are very tender when you touch on their lack of brains or lack of breeding. Slam a man's manners and you make an implacable enemy.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 26.—With moderate receipts this week the cattle market has held good and firm, with prices averaging a good 25c higher on exporters and good to choice butchers. [illegible] the opening on Monday there [illegible] been a brisk and active market for choice and finished butcher stuff, with supplies of real choice offerings somewhat short of the demand. Half finished thin cattle are not wanted, and if too many of these are shipped in the market drags, with the thin stuff usually left over. Choice finished butcher has been selling strong from $7.25 to $7.50 and extra choice fancy quality butcher steers up to $7.75 and $8.25.

Export trade has been good all through the week, with the heavy fat steers going 25c higher than last week a $7.50 and $8.50. Export buyers announce ample space for next week. Rogers and Maybee shipped for export about 1800 cattle The H. P. Kennedy Co., and other export buyers are also in the market.

Stocker and feeder trade quiet.

Sheep and lambs about a dollar lower this week at $14 to $15 for spring lambs, and $5 to $6 for choice light sheep.

Calf trade a little firmer, due to buying for Buffalo. Choice veals $8.50 to $9.50.

Hogs firm and 25c higher than last week's close at $13.50 off cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 26 (Canadian Press).—A feature of the export trade in grain today was in the increased demand from foreign buyers for Canadian Western barley for future shipment, and sales of some fair sized lots were made. Apart from this, the grain market was reported quiet. Sales were reported of a few odd lots of oats to the Continent. New York wired that there was a little more demand from over the cable for wheat and rye, which resulted in a fairly good business being done, with sales of wheat in all position estimated at 300,000 bushels.

There was no actual change in the condition of the local egg market, prices for all grades being firmly maintained under a steady demand for supplies and a fair amount of business was done in a wholesale jobbing way in the special at 39c, fresh extras at 37c, firsts at 34c, and seconds at 30c to 31c per dozen. The receipts were 4,284 cases, as compared with 2,130 for the same day last week, and 2,820 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of cheese were 16,301 boxes, as against 7,327 for the same day last week, and 15,918 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was quite a little excitement in the market which was attributed to the more active demand from English importers for supplies at a further sharp advance in prices with the result that considerable business was done, which created a much stronger feeling in the market, and prices advanced 3-4c per lb., with sales of Western No. 1 colored at 20 5-8c. per lb. No. 1 white at 20 1-2c per lb, and Eastern No. 1 white and colored at 20c to 20 1-4c per lb.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Production has fallen off sharply during the recent week but this situation is offset by a somewhat lighter demand owing to heavier supplies of local fruit going into domestic consumption. The higher grades continue firm and scarce.

Toronto—Very firm; jobbing, specials 40, extras 33, firsts 35, seconds 30.

Montreal—Undertone firm: jobbing, extras 37, firsts 34, seconds 30 to 31.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Crop damage reports from Canada had more or less to do with bringing about price rallies in the wheat market today after sharp new setbacks during the earlier dealings. At the finish, wheat was irregular, varying from 3-4c net decline to an equal advance, with July 151 1-2 to 151 5-8 and September 149 7-8 to 150. Corn finished at 1-2s to 1 3-8c gain. Oats 1-8 to 1-2c up, and provisions showing a rise of 10 to 25c.

Wheat in the central, western and southern parts of Alberta was officially reported as having been so much injured by cut worms that a considerable portion of the region would yield forty per cent below normal. Sentiment more favorable to the buying side of the market was also given late impetus by Illinois advices telling of serious threshing losses a a result of wet weather.

ONTARIO CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, June 26 (Canadian Press).—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Ontario cheese held at the Board of Trade today there were 3,490 boxes offered of which 623 boxes No. 1A white sold at 20 7-16c per lb., 632 boxes No. 1B white at 20 7-16c per lb., 642 No. 1C white at 20 7-16 per lb., 396 boxes No. 1A colored at 20 7-16c per lb., and 620 boxes No. 1 colored at 20 7-16c per lb., which prices show an advance of 1 1-8c per lb., as compared with the same date last week, and 2 3-4c to 2 7-8c per lb. higher than a year ago, when 3,400 boxes of No. 1 white and colored sold at 17 9-16c to 17 11-16c er lb., and Nop. 2 grades at 16 5-8c per lb.

The climate of Italy and New Zealand is very similar.

'DR. W. H. COUNTS' INCARCERATED IN COBOURG COOLER RECENTLY MAY BE WANTED IN UNITED STATES

Brooklyn Attorney Writes Description Is Identical With Desired Man

FOLLOWING CLUE

Another Youth Alleged to Have Stolen Bicycle Is Serving Term

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27.—When Police Chief Brown landed "Dr." H. W. Count in jail in Cobourg, putting a sudden quietus up on his meteoric carer in this district, it is possible that the officer made more important capture than he imagined at the time and that the sleek young American is a man for whom the police of two nations are looking. At least the prisoner now in the Cobourg jail awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to confidence George Grills, a Seymour farmer, out of $500, fits the description of a man whom the District-Attorney of Brooklyn, N.Y. is anxious to interview.

Following a Clue.

When Counts was arrested here he had in his possession papers showing the name of Dr. H. W. Counts and which showed that he had been interested in some real estate transactions in Jacksonville, Florida.

Chief Brown addressed a letter of inquiry to the Chief of Police in the southern city giving a list of the documents found on Counts. That letter is likely to lead to the transfer of Counts, when the Canadian police are through with him, to the jurisdiction of the American authorities.

The Jacksonville Chief of Police wrote Chief Brown to say that there is a Dr. H. W. Counts known in the south but that he is a prominent and reputable real estate dealer with head offices in Washington. J. P. Wells of the latter city was engaged by the doctor to look after his interests in Jacksonville where he had planned a subdivision. A firm of civil engineers in Jacksonville gave the real estate firm a certificate stating that the property offered for sale was above high water mark. Wells engaged as salesman a young man variously known as J. Dunbar and Eddie Dunbar, and was furnished with a copy of the engineer's certificate and with other office stationery bearing the name of Dr. H. W. Counts. If it is Dunbar, or Devlin, who is now in jail at Cobourg, it is evident that he retained the stationery, to be used as a credential when he came to Canada, as it would supply proof that his name was really Dr. H. W. Counts and that he had been a business man of some importance in his own country.

Brooklyn Heard From.

By the same mail which brought the answer from Jacksonville, Chief Brown received a letter from Charles J. Dodd, District-Attorney at Brooklyn, with whom the Jacksonville chief had communicated by wire, upon receipt of Chief Brown's letter. A man answering the description of the Cobourg prisoner is wanted by Mr. Dodd but, on what charge is not stated.

Chief Brown has turned the case over to Provincial Constable Cousans of Cobourg who is now in communication with the American authorities.

Counts and Lewis Gabel who was committed for trial with him on charges of conspiracy and attempting to obtain money under false pretenses, will be tried before the County Judge at Cobourg on June 30th. Both men have elected to be tried without a jury.

Another Offender Captured.

Melvin J. Bertrand, a young farm hand employed by A. A. Lewis in Percy Townsip, came to Campbellford on a bicycle one night recently. Sebastapol street was torn up at the time as a sewer was being laid, and Bertrand was obliged to leave his wheel leaning against a pile of sewer pipe near the United Church, making the rest of his journey on foot. When he returned his wheel was missing.

Chief Brown, to whom the case was reported, has received from the Chief of Police in Kingston, information to the effect that a young man arrested in that city for stealing a bicycle, had admitted that a short time before he had stolen a wheel in Campbellford. The latter wheel was recovered and is now in the hands of the Kingston police. From the description there is little doubt that it is the one lost by Bertrand.

The man captured in Kingston is now serving an indefinite sentence of not more than nine months for the theft of the wheel in that city. He gives his name as Teverton Woodcock and is supposed to be a young man of that name who occasionally resided here. When his term in Kingston is up he will be brought to Campbellford for trial on a charge of theft.

KING WILL OPEN NEW OFFICE OF CANADIAN COMMISSIONER IN FAMOUS SQUARE MONDAY

Building to Replace Gloomy 'Lighthouse' Which Formerly Housed Officers

WORK SATISFACTORY

History of Canada's Representation at the Seat of Imperial Government

KING GEORGE V

LONDON, England, June 26 (Canadian Press). — On Monday next, June 29, King George, accompanied by Queen Mary, will open the new offices of the Canadian High Commissioner in Trafalgar Square. A general description of the new building, which for a century formed the home of the Union Club, and of the ceremonies which will mark its transformation into a new headquarters for the Dominion in London, have already been given. It is intended here to furnish some account of the gradual development over a long course of years of Canadian official representation in the Metropolis.

One must delve back over a century before one harks back with any tolerable certainty, to the time when an official representative in London of British North America was first appointed. In 1765 Fowler Walker became "agent for the British merchants at Quebec and Montreal." There are historians, however, who claim for Nova Scotia the credit of having first established exact official representation in London, declaring that Joseph Mauger was the first Agent-General in London, and that he held office from 1761 to 1768. New Brunswick also seems to have had a representative here about the same time. Probably the official status of at least some of these good men was but ill-defined, and it is extremely likely that their private business occupied their attention much more than did their duties as representation of some portion of Canada.

Then Confederation.

One gets on to sure ground, however, if a survey is made from the time of Confederation. In 1886 several Government emigration agents were appointed, and were stationed in different parts of Great Britain. The chief agent, W. A. Dixon, who came from Toronto, had his office in London. Six years later, Edward Jenkins at that time M.P. for Dundee and author of "Ginx's Baby," a famous novel in its time—succeeded Mr. Dixon, and was styled agent-general for Canada. When Mr. Jenkins resigned, the Hon. William Annaud, who had been a member of the Nova Scotian Government, was appointed to London Which brings us to 1880, when the position of High Commissioner came into being.

First High Commissioner

In was Sir John Macdonald who translated into action his conviction that the Dominion should have a representatives in London who should have a semi-diplomatic status. During a visit with Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Leonard Tilley he placed his views directly before the Colonial Secretary in London. The Colonial Seretary, in transmitting a memorandum to the Governor-General, stated that the Government were sensible of the advantage which might result from the appointment of such a representative, but that the relations of such representatives could not be correctly defined as of a diplomatic character, but rather as those of an officer in the home service.

He would therefore, primarily communicate with the Colonial Office on the various subjects which might be entrusted to him, and that while the Government would readily avail themselves of any information he might afford and give the fullest consideration to any representations made by him, it would rest with the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to determine in what capacity his services might be rendered with a foreign court in the interest of the Dominion.

From Then Till Now.

The foregoing is of peculiar interest, because though the sentiments above quoted were expressed nearly fifty years ago they embody the attitude which, in default of any legislation or arrangements to the contrary is still maintained by the Colonial Office to the High Commissioner. However, the position of High Commissioner of Canada was created in 1880. The line of Commissioners from that years until the present runs as folows:

Sir Alexander Galt.... 1880
Sir Charles Tupper.... 1883
Lord Strathcona 1886
Sir George Perley..... 1914

Hon. Peter Larkin.... 1922

In these forty-five years there have been but three permanent Secretaries to the High Commissioner's Office. J. G. Colmer accompanied Sir Alexander Galt as private secretary, was eventually appointed Departmentl Secretary, and retired in 1902 to take up financial work in the City. He was succeeded by W. L. Grifith, who for years previously had been a farmer in Manitoba, and who retired from the London position in 1922. Lucien Pacaud, who succeeded him, still holds office.

"The Lighthouse."

The High Commissioner's Office was established in 1880 in rooms on Victoria Street, and remained there until about twelve months ago. Victoria Street is one of the most somble thoroughfares in all London's business quarter, and the Canadian Offices were about as gloomy a set of chambers as could be found. Lord Strathcona, however, got very much attached to the place. He occupied himself the smallest room of the whole suite and the hours which he kept which caused the gas to be flaring at 19 Victoria Stret when the surrounding buildings had long been in darkness, earned for the Canadian Offices the name of "The Lighthouse."

Just before the Great War proposals were definitely set afoot for securing a new official habitation. Earl Grey brought forward a scheme for all the Dominions with their Provinces and State to unite in securing the Aldwych site, adjoining the Strand. There was to be a cluster of huge buildings, with a dome which it is asserted would have overtopped that of St. Paul's. Nothing attracted Lord Stratchona less. Such a scheme, he declared, "would provoke ridicule rather than bring advantage to our great country and its people." So far as Canada was concerned Lord Strathcona's opposition smothered Earl Grey's The merits of Westminister Hospital building, opposite the Abbey and Morley's Hospital, Tralfalgar Square, (which has since been secured by the South African Government, and is on a side of Trafalgar Square immediately facing the Canadian Building now to be opened) were also considered in regard to establishing a new headquarters for Canada in London, but eventually the whole idea was dropped by the Borden Ministry on the plea of expense. The War of course prevented the matter being tackled again for some time.

Immediately after his arrival here as Hig Commissioner, however, the Hon. Peter Larkin gave the subject his serious attention and the consummation of his efforts will be witnessed on Monday next.

The Canadian Government paid for the new building £225,000 sterling and constructed in the rear of the building which cost £75,000. In the purchase, the Government of Canada took over the balance of a sixty-year lease which has 39 years to run. During that period the government will pay an annual rental of £2,000. The British Crown, which owns the property, has made a subsequent offer to Canadian Government proposing to extend the lease for 99 years for an annual rental of £2,855. This offer is at present being considered by the Government.

The building had an area of 26,971 square feet of which 14,668 is devoted to office space. All of the 126 employees of the Canadian Government in London will be housed in the building. The various staffs include: The High Commissioner's staff which is at present in Kinnaird House; Trade and Commerce overseas Branch, which has been in Kinnaird House and in Basinghall St. Pensions staff which has been at 103 Oxford Stret, the Immigration and Colonization which has been in British Columbia House and eight employees of the Canadian Archives department who has been working in British Records offices.

Officials of the Department of Public works have expressed their complete satisfaction with the work done by the architect, Septimus Ward, in the reconstruction of the building. It was stated in the House of Commons that the estimated cost of the maintenance of the building would be £1,600 per annum. The annual interest charge on a 4 per cent basis would be £12,000 pounds and the annual sinking fund £234 making a total of £12,243.

Out of one hundred "average" men of twenty-five years of age, thirty-six fail to reach the age of sixty-five. Of those who survive, it is estimated that no fewer than fifty-three are dependent on children, etc., for their living.

Don't tear up Road Surfaces by immoderate Driving

Lake Couchiching near Orillia—one of Ontario's summer playgrounds. Sketched by the well known Canadian artist C.W. Jefferys, O.S.A., A.R.C.A.

It's the back wheels of your car that push it along—and it's resistance that keeps it moving—the resistance of the road surface.

At moderate speeds, the surface remains in place. At higher speeds a portion of the surface is displaced by the friction of the wheels. The higher the speed, the more material is displaced.

The speed limit exists in the law to save the surfaces of roads, as well as to prevent accident. Because the highway is clear, you may think the law may be broken. This is a mistake. There is always danger of damaging the road by excessive speed.

The material which is displaced each year by automobiles driven too fast would weigh hundreds of tons. The repair work made necessary costs thousands of dollars.

The public of Ontario have spent $160,000,000 to make roads easier and safer for you to travel on. The law seeks to preserve from accident those who use the roads, and to conserve the roads themselves. The Government requests the co-operation of yourself and every other automobile driver in maintaining the condition of the roads. Take pride in the highways of Ontario. You are interested, for they are yours. They are being maintained with your money.

While the Government relies on the goodwill and co-operation of the great majority of motorists, notice is given that the enforcement of The Highways Act will be all the more rigorous in the case of those who disregard the law and this request.

An advertisement issued by the Ontario Department of Highways to secure the co-operation of motorists and truck drivers, Automobile Clubs, Good Roads Associations and all other public spirited bodies, in abating the abuse of the roads of the province.

SAFE AND EFFICIENT HOME TREATMENT

Thousands of Ailing People Have Been Made Well and Strong by

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality---and more

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do one thing—and do it well. They build up the blood, increasing the number of red corpuscles. As this is done the blood becomes a richer red and is able to carry more oxygen, the great supporter of human life. As the blood improves in quality the tissues of the body are better nourished and the functions of the body are better performed. This is the reason Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been so successful in the treatment of all diseases due to poor, thin blood, why the pills are so successful in building up strength after fevers and acute diseases, and in all cases of anaemia and general weakness.

Mrs. S. J. Pitre, Queen St., St. John, N.B., says:—"Some years ago, following an attack of typhoid fever, I was left almost a physical wreck. I could not sleep, had no appetite and my nerves were so bad that my limbs shook as though I had palsy. As I was not improving under the use of the doctor's medicine I decided upon the advice of a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost from the first box I could feel an improvement. I continued taking the pills until I had used twelve boxes, when I was again enjoying perfect health. As a precaution I always take one or two boxes every spring to tone up the system, and can truly say they are a wonderful tonic."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co.

DOURO REUNION GLORY CLOSES WITH COMPLIMENT TO TEACHER OF OVER HALF A CENTURY AGO

Mrs. Honora Moher Takes Gray-Haired Class and Calls Roll

A PRESENTATION

P. G. Towns Complimented On Splendid Accomplishment Planning Reunion

Douro's Centennial Celebration closed yesterday, if not in a burst of glorious sunshine, at least with the consciousness of a very successful and enjoyable event, attended by many of the Old Boys and Girls apparently thoroughly appreciated by everyone who came from far and near.

With inclement weather forcing the postponement of the third day's programme to yesterday when a threatening sky lowered the anticipated attendance to a very great extent, the Douro celebration suffered to a degree not by lack of enthusiasm among those attending it, or among those who had it in charge, but by the rain which came down in torrents on Thursday and yesterday afternoon, and closed out a snappy baseball game at an exciting moment, without any prospect of issuance of rain checks. Between four and five hundred people were in attendance at the celebration yesterday.

The spirits of P. G. Towns, who backed the enterprise, were not dampened, however, by the downpour. He looks forward to the provision of a few feet at last of the pavement which was the ultimate enterprise in mind when the Centennial celebration was embarked upon, and remarked that he would like to attend, in spirit, the next hundred year anniversary of the township.

White, red and blue ribbons marked the coat lapels of those attending the Douro celebration this year. A different colored ribbon was used each day, this being Mr .Town's idea to differentiate the payers of admission fees from those who might have scaled the back fence and taken in the programme on a cheap basis.

School Called.

A feature of yesterday afternoon's program was the teaching of school by one of the oldest teachers in the township, Mrs. Horora Moher, seventy-seven years of age, who taught the youth of Douro for two terms as long as fifty six years ago. With quavering voice and somewhat nervous demeanor, but still with the roll of her scholars of long ago, many of whom answered "present" from the crowd gathered about her. The little lds and lasses of half a century back ,transformed now into grey-haired men and women, went to school again to their old teacher, for a brief half hour, and answered the questions in spelling and simple sum the she read out to them. "We cried bitter when she left us,' said a black-garbed lady, whose eyes were red at the moment over the memory of the grief of a little girl of long ago. "She was a fine teacher," said an elderly gentelman, looking at the mild little lady who regarded with the eyes of affection her old-time pupils, gathered about her to resurrect from the forgotten past a page marked "Schooldays."

The roll call was as follows: Father George Whibbs, Augustin Whibbs (present), Patrick Leahy (present) Morris O'Brien, (present), James O'Brien, Dennis O'Brien Dennis McCarthy (present), Edward McCarthy (present), Patrick Barrie (present), William Barrie, George Hamilton (present), George Rutherford, John Condon, Patrick OBrien (present), Michael Hanrahan, William Moher, Frederick Nolan, Patrick McNaulty, Jerry O'Shea, John Lonergan, Mary Leahy (now Mrs. M. Fitzgerald of Douro) present; Mary Hanrahan, (now Mrs. James Collins of Douro) present; Margaret Ann Nolan (now Mrs. J. Moher of Douro), Bridget Hanrahan, (now Mrs. Bridget Sullivan of Peterboro), present; Mary Hanrahan, of Peterboro; Annie O'Brien, (now Mrs. E. Carlow of Dummer), present; Mary Leahy, (now Mrs. J. R. Allen of Douro), present; Johanna McCarthy (now Mrs. Dan Moloney of Douro) Mary McCarthy (now Mrs. Frank Fairen of Peterboro), present; Elizabeth Moher, (now Mrs. Hanrahan of Lakefield); Mary Eliza Moher, (now Mrs. M. Condon of Lakefield) Mary Ann O'Brien, (now Mrs. E. Walsh of Douro), and Ellen O'Brien (now Mrs. D. Guerin of Peterboro).

They spelled "Douro 'and "Re-Union' and "Centennial for their old teacher, men and women answering to their names and the gentle commands as they did many long years ago, and one man slipped up on the spelling of "birthplace.' Augustus Whibbs came late, and wondered if he would get a strapping for it. They told her the meaning of simple words like "ox," which the scholar said was "a horned horse," and they did sums in arithmetic. Augustus Whibbs recited the first verse of "Mary had a Little Lamb," and Patrick Leahy added a bit of latin to the recital of "Now I lay me down to sleep.'

Mrs. James Collins and Mrs. M. Kylie, and Mrs. Frank Fairen of Peterboro, had a reading lesson.

Present Flowers.

Mr. P. G. Towns then presented Rev. Father Garvey f Lakefield, piece.

Rev. Father Garvey of akefield, was called on at the conclusion of the school session f r a few words of congratulation to the teacher and her pupils, followed by three rousing cheers, and Mrs. Moher was presented with an address and a bouquet of flowers, little Isabel Towns presenting the floral tribute and small Emmet Allen making the address, as follows:

"Dear Mrs. Moher: On this, the joyful renewal of old associations, we, the pupils of S. S. No. 7, felt we could not let such an occasion pass without expressing to you congratulations.

"It was in this school you taught first, over 50 years ago. Methods of teaching have undergone many changes since then, but the aim of teaching still remains the same: the moulding of character and the training of the pupil to be a good and useful citizen.

"How well you accomplished that aim is shown by those who to-day represent your old-time pupils, and who once more answered the roll call. Many names are indeed missing, some are dead, and others have left their native shore. We honor their memory for having so su that this has become the happy and prosperous community of Douro.

"We ask you to accept this bouquet as a slight token of our esteem. "Teacher and Pupils of S.S. No. 7."

Mrs. Moher, overcome with emotion, acknowledged the tributes paid her, in a few words. In her opening remarks, before commencing the school session, she spoke of her pleasure in seeing so many of her old pupils, "hale and hearty," and recalled to their memory the old hickory correcting rod. "By being good girls and boys, perhaps we won't use it to-day."

Softball Game.

The programme yesterday afternoon included a number of competitive races, a nail-driving contest for ladies, and a softball game between Lakefield and North Douro, resulting in a score of 4-3 in favor of Lakefield, with the award to each of the players on the team of an individual silver cup presented by G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., to the winners of the final day's playoff. The Lakefield line-up was as follows:

E. Northey p, G. Connell c, E. Greer ss, C. S. Tanner 1b, J. C. Ridpath 2b, H. R. Wagar 3b, Dr. J. C. Smith lf, B. Q. Dench rf, G. Smith cf.

The North Douro line-up: C. Towns p, M. Coughlin c, Frank O'Brien ss, G. Heffernan 1b, Reg. Walsh 2b, Wm. Whibbs 3b, Ed. Allen lf, M. Delaney rf, W. Towns cf.

Umpire, W. H. Allen. Base umpire, Gerald Condon.

A baseball game between Zion and a picked team from Indian River was proceeding with celerity, with Louis Yeates as umpire, when the rain interrupted it at a point about halfway through, with Indian River two ahead.

Races and Sports.

The programme of races and sundry sports in the men's final events, in charge of B. Q. Dench of Lakefield, included a hundred yard race, won by J. Ward of Peterboro, with G. Smith of Lakefield and B. Rainie of Lakefield in second and third place. The hop, sten and jump was won by G. Smith (38 ft. 7 in.), B. Rainie (38 ft. 3 in.) and George Heffernan of Douro (37 ft. 2 in.) The running high jump was won by G. Smith (4 ft. 9 in.), B. Rainie (4 ft. 8 in.), G. Heffernan (4 ft. 7 in.). The running broad jump: G. Smith (19 ft.), J. Ward (18 ft. 4 in.), and G. Heffernan (17 ft. 1 in.). Putting the shot: Martin Coughlin (41 ft. 11 in.), Geo. Heffernon (37 ft. 8 in.), and Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield (34 ft.).

Girls' obstacle race: the Misses L. Nolan, A. Sweeney, C. Condon. Ladies' nail-driving contest: Martha Garvey of Smith, Miss Cavanagh of Douro, Miss L. Nolan of Douro.

Boys' wheelborrow race: Messrs. McCarthy and Mahon of Peterboro.

Old-Time Dancing.

Old-time dancing, to the accompaniment of a real old-time fiddler, went on in the afternoon yesterday, and the L.O.L. No. 50 band from Peterboro played during the afternoon also, their valiant rendering of "It Aint Goin' to Rain No More" having no lasting influence, however, on the weather man. The same band was much appreciated at the Thursday evening concert also, when it played several selections. In the course of a short address on that occasion by Mr. Towns, he referred to the gratitude of the people of the township to the band for offering its services for the evening entertainment, expressed appreciation to all who had helped in any way to make the celebration a success, both to those who were in charge of arrangements and those in attendance, and spoke once again of the hardy pioneers whose memory was being commemorated by their descendants.

Other selections on Thursday evening were vocal numbers by Arthur Carveth, a dialogue "Every Inch a Gentleman," in which the following took part: the Misses Margaret Casey and Seraphine O'Brien, and Messrs. John Sheehan, Joseph Towns and Frank Heffernan; step dances by Stella McMurray and Harry McManus of Lakefield, and instrumental duet by Bandsmen Ford and Gilbert, and a dance and skit by Messrs. Geo. Wesley and D. Quinlan of Peterboro, which was greeted with much enthusiasm.

On Wednesday evening, a violin and piano duet was rendered by Miss Agnes Sullivan and M. D. Sullivan; songs by the Douro Choir and by A. Carveth and Jno. McMurray; step dances by Stella McMurray, Wm. Sullivan, Tom Sullivan and Martin Sullivan; a reading by Evelyn McMurray, and an instrumental number by Miss Eleanor Grisdale of Peterboro, also a play entitled "Assisting Hezekiah," in which the following took part: Miss Agnes Sweeny, Tom O'Brien and John Sweeney.

Last evening, the programme consisted of a moving picture entertainment and a display of fireworks.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MOTORISTS

Tweed People Were Struck by Train Near Fairfield's Bridge

CAR DAMAGED

TWEED, June 27. — While Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Taylor were on their way to Belleville on Wednesday afternoon, they narrowly escaped death when their car was struck by the Belleville-Peterboro train between Honeywell Corners and Fairfield's Bridge, between the Bellville and Madoc gravel roads.

The train was close before it was noticed. Mr. Taylor had presence of mind to turn the car parallel with the train. The front wheel and fenders were badly damaged, while both axles were bent. Mr. Taylor injured his knee, while Mrs. Taylor was badly bruised and unable to return to her home.

A very sad death occurred at the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Wednesday, when the little five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Keilty passed away.

60TH ANNIVERSARY OF MADOC CHURCH

Dr. and Mrs. Blagrave Attend Impressive Ceremony at St. John's Church

MADOC, June 27.—Wednesday, St. John the Baptist's day, was the day chosen to commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of St. John the Baptist, Anglican Church, although the actual laying of the cornerstone did not take place until August.

The day began with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.30 a.m. at which Rev. Mr. Strother, rector of this parish, was the celebrant priest, assisted by Rev. Mr. Redding of Bannockburn.

At the evening service the Masons attended in a body, and a large congergation filled the church. The church, which as just been redecorated, looked very pretty and pink and white peonies added their beauty. The opening prayers were read by Rev. Mr. Smart of Tweed. Rev. Mr. Green of Belleville took the first lesson and Rev. Mr. Redding the second lesson. The special psalms were numbers 84, 122 and 150. Appropriate hymns, "Lo! from the desert homes," "Christ is our cornerstone", 'Faith of our fathers" and "O God, our help in ages past", were heartily sung by choir and congregation. Prayers were said by Rev. Mr. Watson of Marmora, and a few words regarding the occasion by Rev. Mr. Strother, who welcomed Rev. Dr. Blagrave of St. John's church, Peterboro.

Dr. Blagrave began his address by saying what a privilege he felt it to be here. He congratulated the rector on the splendid service held that evening, on the presence of the clergy and the members of the local Masonic Lodge. He also congratulated the congregation on the attainment of this sixtieth anniversary, a long service and a creditable one. The speaker referred to the last time he had been in Madoc, ten years before, and the Masonic service held then.

Dr. Blagrave took two texts for his sermon, the first being from the first book of the Bible, "and they said, 'Go to, let us build us a city and a tower whose top may reach unto heaven'" and the second from the last book, "and I, John, saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven."

Following the sermon the choir sang the anthem, "Make a Joyful Noise Unto the Lord." The closing prayers were taken by Rural Dean Creegan of Deseronto.

One of the Features.

One of the most interesting features of the occasion was the presence at the service of Mr. Charles O'Hara who has been in the Masonic Order for sixty-four years, and who officiated at the laying of the corner-stone in 1865.

Mr. O'Hara was at the service ten years ago and although now a man of ninetythree- years of age walked in the Masonic procession to the church last night. Madoc feels proud of her "grand old man."

Among the out-of-town visitors who were in Madoc for the anniversary service at St. John's were Dr. and Mrs. Blagrave of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Geen and Mr. and Mrs. Williams of Belleville, Rural Dean Ceegan and Mrs. Ceegan Mohawk Reserve, near Deseronto.

PRESENTATION TO MISS EDNA BRADEN

Wedding Gift From Ladies of Lakefield Fair Board.

LAKEFIELD, June 26. — On Thursday the ladies of the Lakefield Agricultural Society gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Braden for a little surprise party and after an hour spent in social intercourse, Mrs. S. S. Spence and Mrs. J. E. Galvin presented Miss Edna Braden with a handsome reed fern stand. Miss Mary Adams read an address which expressed the appreciation of the ladies for the assistance rendered the society by Miss Braden and assuring her of their sincere good wishes in her married life and their pleasure at the fact that she is not leaving the village. Miss Braden made a graceful reply, thanking the ladies for their handsome gift and also for their good wishes for her happiness. Among the ladies of the Agricultural Society present were: Mrs. Henry Coones, Mrs Galvin, Mrs. S. Spence, Miss Adams, Mrs. James Walton, Mrs. Robert Garbutt, Mrs. Bruce Garbutt, Mrs. N. S. Higgins, Mrs. G. A. Graham, Mrs. D. Simmons, Mrs. Jas. Blakeley.

Choir's Outing.

The choir of the former Presbyterian church motored to Dummer on Tuesday evening to visit Mr. and Mrs. Allan Taylor (nee Miss Myrtle Kidd) and spend a social evening. The presentation, a very handsome china breakfast set, was a pleasant feature of a very happy evening. Mrs. Taylor was a popular and faithful member of the choir for some years and her friends desired to express in tangible form their appreciation of her services and their good wishes to her husband and herself.

The evening was spent in a social manner.

Tourist Campers.

Advertising usually brings results and already a camp of motor tourists is established in the Lakefield park. This is the vanguard of what we hope will be a long procession, who will enjoy the beauties of the park and going away will speak of it to others as a desirable camping ground. The scenery is unexcelled and pleasantly situated near, and not too near, the village, it should be very popular.

Miss Edith Spence, who is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Spence at E. E. E. E. cottage, Lake Katchewanooka, was successful in landing a four pound lunge on Thursday evening.

Miss Jessie MacGregor of Toronto, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Northey.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis and the Misses Curtis of Havelock, motored to the village on Monday.

Mrs. Stephen Nicholls, of Port Colborne is visiting friends in the village.

Mrs. Walter Head, of Peterborough, was the guest of friends in the village this week.

Mrs. J. C. Harvey has gone to Bryson's Landing, Clear Lake, where she will spend the summer.

Mr. A. M. Fitzgerald is in Montreal this week.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

. . . What was in it? What did he have to say to her?

Her fingers pressed the envelope. There seemed to be several folds of paper within it.

But without opening it, Gloria slipped it into her apron pocket. She could feel the eyes of her father and mother watching her. She knew that they . . . to tell them what Dick had written.

But, somehow or other, she wanted to be all alone when she read that letter—

There was just a wild chance that Dick was asking her to come back to him, in it. "And if he wants me, I'll go home this very night!" Gloria promised herself.

She raised her eyes to the cuckoo clock that hung above the sideboard. Half past seven! . . . In anther hour or two she might be in Dick's arms, again!

With an effort she went on talking: "I saw May Seymour this afternoon Mother. She's going away from Peterborough. Says she'll never come back here as long as she lives."

Gloria's mother forgot all about the letter in this exciting piece of news.

"Well, I should just think she would go away! I should think she'd be ashamed to show her face among decent people, anywhere!" she said, with spirit, "I always told you she was no good, didn't I? . . . What was the name of that man she used to run around with, right under her poor husband's nose?"

"Jim Carewe," Gloria answered. "And what do you think? He's going to be married to some little girl just out of school, next fall. The engagement was announced in the paper the other day."

An expression that plainly said "I told you so!" flashed across Mrs. Gordon's face. She was "Mrs. Grundy" herself, at that moment.

"I never saw it fail to happen!" she cried. "Men will run around and have a good time with women like May Seymour. But when they settle down, they marry some girl who still thinks the moon's made of green cheese!"

Gloria laughed.

"Mother you amuse me," she said. "Nobody thinks the moon's made of green cheese any more. Flappers of seventeen know more than their grandmothers knew at seventy."

Mrs. Gordon shook her head. "Of course, if you think that knowing how to shimmy or roll a cigaret is knowing anything, you're right!" she said, "but we old-fashioned women weren't so slow. When I was your age I could run a house all myself . . . washing, ironing, baking. Everything!"

"Yes, and she used to make all my shirts, too," Gloria's father added, mildly. "And your little dresses, Glory. Remember how cute she used to look in those pink gingham dresses, Mother?"

Mrs. Gordon nodded. Her blue eyes filled with tears as she looked across the table at Gloria. This was a terrible thing for her . . . this breach between Gloria and Dick. Like a death in the family, almost!

That this should have heppened to her little Glory! The little daughter for whom she had worked and prayed for twenty years. . . .

Gloria read her mother's thoughts. She carried her dishes out into the kitchen, and then ran upstairs to her tiny bedroom.

With shaking fingers she tore open the envelope.

She took out the paper that was in it . . . a double sheet, folded around a check. A check for $50. That was all.

There wasn't a word written on the paper . . . not a word! Just the money . . . the check. As if money were all she wanted!

"So that's the letter I've been having chills and fever about, for the last fifteen minutes! . . . .Nothing but a measly check!" she said, ruefully.

She sank down on the edge of her bed, turning the slip of paper over and over in her fingers. Then she looked into the envelope once more . . . just to make sure that there was no letter from Dick in it. But there was none.

Gloria tore the envelope into tiny pieces, and flung the check down on her dresser. That bit of paper . . .It was the death blow to her hopes!

For until that moment, Gloria had been telling herself that . . . sooner or later . . . Dick would want her for his wife again.

Even when he had put the house up for sale, she had comforted herself with the thought that he wouldn't sell it when it came to a show-down.

But this check . . . this $50 . . . look as if he really was through with her, forever. He had probably made up his mind to send her that much money every week for the rest of her life. It . . . It was alimony!

In his own mind, Dick was divorced from her. . . . What else could that check mean?

Gloria opened the door of her stuffy little bedroom and called downstairs: "Oh, Mother! Come up here a minute. I want to show you something!"

When her mother came, Gloria held out the check to her without a word. She watched her as she looked at it . . . wondering if her mother had been pretty when she was young.

Lines of worry fretted her forehead now, and her hair was gray above her temples. Wrinkles dragged down the corners of her mouth.

Gloria turned suddenly and looked at her own face in the dim mirror of her old dresser. Her own mouth was dragged down like her mother's . . . and tremulous at the corners. Her eyebrows were twisted with unhappiness!

"I'll look like an old hag soon, if I don't stop worrying and fussing about Dick," she told herself angrily. She scooped up some cold cream from the jar on the dresser, and patted it around her mouth.

"Well, Mother, what do you think of my love letter from Dick?" she asked with flippant sarcasm.

Mrs. Gordon stroked the check with her work-worn hands.

"I've always said," she began slowly, "that there would be fewer divorces in the world if there were less alimony! If a woman knew that she'd have to work to support herself, she wouldn't be so ready to leave her husband as most wives are, nowadays . . . What are you going to do with that check, Glory?"

"I don't know. Get it cashed, I suppose," Gloria answered. "I ought to give some of the money to you and Dad for my board. . . Why do you ask?"

"Because if I were you, I'd send it straight back to Dick," her mother said. "You've no right to his money."

Gloria's eyes opened like sea-flowers "I'd like to know who has a better right to it!" she cried. "I'm his wife and if he doesn't live with me, the least he can do is support me!"

Mrs. Gordon shook her head. "No, if you had a child or two to care for," I'd tell you to take Dick's money," she said. "But you're a free, able-bodied woman who can earn her own living. . . . And it's not fair to take money from a man when you're not being a wife to him. Can't you see that, yourself?"

"I certainly can't!" Gloria replied. "Dick's been my husband for a long time, and he's got to pay for it!" Her little chin was firm and hard.

She stood suddenly. "Come on, let's downstairs. I'll wipe the dishes for you," she offered.

In silence they cleared away the dishes, and set to work to wash them.

* * *

They had almost finished when Gloria's father came in from the backyard, where he had been sprinkling his little garden.

"Well, what are you two so quiet about?" he asked.

Gloria laughed shakily.

"I had a windfall. Dick sent me $50," she answered, "and Mother and I don't know what to do with it."

Her father came over to her and laid his hands tenderly on her shoulders.

"Don't touch a nickel of his money," he said. He felt that whatever the trouble was between Dick and Gloria, it couldn't be his "baby girl's fault. So in his own mind he blamed Dick for her unhappiness.

"We took care of you for twenty years, daugater," he went on. "I guess we can do it a while longer. . . . You send his money back to him."

Gloria looked thoughtful. "Do you know, I believe I will," she said suddenly. "Tomorrow morning I'll get up early, and hunt a job. Thank goodness, I know how to earn a few dollars!"

But she was filled with sadness that night, as she sat in her room, looking out into the dark street. Behind her on the dresser, the alarm clock ticked loudly. It was set for 6 o'clock in the morning.

"Back to the old grind!" Gloria said to herself, miserably.

It had always been hard for Gloria Gordon to rouse herself at break of day, and go out to work long dreary hours. How much more difficult it was going to be for Mrs. Richard Gregory, who had had her breakfasts in bed for many months . . . who had had her own home, her own automobile!

Gloria couldn't eat the poached eggs and toast that her mother cooked for her the next morning. She looked through the "Help Wanted" columns of the paper as she sipped her coffee.

"Here's an ad that looks pretty good to me," she said to her mother. "'Wanted: Experienced stenographer, with knowledge of bookkeeping. Good salary.'"

The address was that of a real estate firm on Water street.

"I think I'll go there," Gloria made up her mind. "It may be the very place I want."

But when she got off the street car in the downtown district, she did not turn toward the real estate office.

Instead, she went straight to Dick's office, with the eager swiftness of a homing pigeon.

She pushed open the door and stepped inside. Dick and Miss Briggs stood talking beside the desk in the inner room.

They looked up in surprise as Gloria came toward them. She did not even glance at Susan Briggs.

"Hello, Dick," she said. He did not answer.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

It was about the middle of June, one year not so very long ago, when one of the Honorary Game Wardens, who had a local territory around a quiet city in the Eastern part of Canada had a remarkably interesting time of it one morning.

There was an old man, living all to himself, in a very big house and garden. He was a queer old sort, with a great love for flowers and a great dislike for children. He claimed that the children were responsible for all his troubles.

The house was in the centre of the block, and had a regular old English brick wall on the north side, running along the length of the garden and on the inside of the high wall, he had a long, narrow conservatory, with a steep roof only a foot or two from the ground on the low side.

Folks said that the old fellow had been cheated out of some money and had become cranky.

Whatever the matter was, he was an old grouch, and all the children kept away from him, although there were quite a few on his street; as a matter of fact, there were two boys and a girl, living in the very next house, but they never bothered the old man, for he was too neat and clean and fussy about everything and kept his whiskers pointed.

Now, it so happened that the children on that street had heard about birds and bird boxes and how to be friends with Nature, and a Bluebird box had been put up very early in the month of March. They would have put it up on their side of the brick wall, but were afraid that the old man would object to nails in the mortar, so they had it put on a post that was used for a clothes line.

All in good time the Bluebirds arrived and were looking over the ground but a saucy Wren came along and when he found that no box had been put up for him he filled up the Bluebird box with sticks, so that it was of no use to him or anyone.

The children were disappointed for both the Wren and the Bluebirds departed. The box was again cleaned out and again the wren appeared. He really made a nest this time, and soon found a wife. That which was first intended for Bluebirds, became Chateau Wren.

Well, Chateau Wren became the centre of interest for the whole street—it was such a success that the boys who owned it, were envied by their chums and quite naturally began a quarrel about who had thought of it first, and who had done most to put it up, and while smart little Mrs. Wren was feeding her family, the boys were taking sides in the great argument, until it became so noisy that the little girl, the sister of the owners, heard it all and promptly took the wind out of their sails by informing everybody that, since they couldn't divide the box she would take charge of it. That settled it.

But, if the boys had had trouble, their sisters had more, for a neighbour's cat managed to catch either the mother or the father Wren just when the young ones were getting appetites almost too great for one bird to satisfy. It it was the father that was left, he was a faithful and a hard worker.

He worked like a slave to feed those little ones and many a plant was saved for the grouchy old man because the insects and worms were removed by the Wren.

But listen: A night or two after that, the cat was on top of the wall, and somebody (nobody knows who) threw a boot at it. The missle went flying through the air, missed the cat, as usual, and went crashing through the glass roof of the conservatory! Wow!

The next morning, just about the time the old man found out that some body had made him a present of an old boot through the roof, as he was passing down the aisle inside the hothouse, the little wren came into the garden. He had fairly well cleared the garden plants of worms and thought there might be some inside the glass building, so he went in through the jagged hole in the roof. Then the real trouble began.

The old man was unreasonable with rage, so he quickly closed the hole with paper, shutting up the bird, and there was the poor lit le thing a prisoner and the little ones without anyone now to feed them!

The little girl was on the job though. She missed the wren and began to worry and look about. Surely he wouldn't desert his children. She was even brave enough to peek into the forbidden garden, and at once noticed the paper stuffed in the hole in the glass. And even as she looked she saw the wren flutt ing against the glass at one end of the conservatory.

Fast as she could run she fairly flew down town, to the place where the Honorary Game Warden worked. He was dragged over the hill, without ceremony to the garden of trouble. On the way over he learned the story, so went right to the old man, regardless of anger and pointed whiskers.

Sure enough the wren was a prisoner, but the first reference to it, brought a torrent of abuse from the crankly old fellow, with orders to get out, and stay out.

Now, honorary game wardens may be abused and may be ordered out, but they do not carry warrants and badges for nothing, and a little quiet persuasion made the ill-tempered old man change his mind. So, poor excited Mr. Wren was let out.

Of course the little wrens grew up alright, much to the joy of all, even including the old man, for he became so curious about the birds and spent so much time in the other yard with the wrens and the children that he forgot to trim his whiskers.

SERIOUSLY ILL

LINDSAY, June 27.—(Special)—J. D. Flavelle, former Chairman of the Provincial Board of License Commissioners, and dean of Canadian curlers, is seriously ill at his home here. Dr. Wilson, specialist of Toronto ,was with him all day Thursday, and his condition is reported to be critical.

HEART WAS WEAK NERVES ALL GONE

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 117½ Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took dizzy spells, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise, or recommend, Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

TIMELY TIPS ON OUTDOOR LIFE

By Morris Ackerman

When you fry fish in camp it is well to sever backbone in several places.

This prevents fish curling up in pan. Roll in corn meal or bread crumbs and fry with sliced bacon or pork.

Very small fish may be fried crisp.

Bass are best when "steaked." Skin bass, work knife between flesh and bones, starting at backbone, and remove the steaks from each side.

This method prevents muddy or "bottom" taste from large-mouth bass.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY A CHILL SHOWS LOWERED VITALITY

Chilliness is always an evidence of lowered vitality. Many of the serious diseases are ushered in with positive chill or with a feeling of chilliness.

Frequent chilliness may be an evidence of impairment of the circulation. The heart is not functioning as it should to drive the blood in a forceful stream to every part of the body. This comes from some impairment of the bodily vigor.

Of course there are many things which lower human vitality. Overwork, loss of sleep, need of a vacation, family trouble, domestic discord, lack of human interest, as well as the many infections, to which the body is subject, may be the cause for lowered vitality of which chilliness is a sympton.

It is tremendously important that everyone should eat regularly and enough of the nourishing foods essential to good health and red blood. Lots of times you feel down and out when the whole trouble is you are hungry. Don't you know how cross you feel and how impossible life seems about a quarter to seven in the evening. That is because you are hungry. You may not know you are hungry, but a cup of hot broth followed by a sensible meal will give you a new outlook on life.

It isn't necessary to go to a restaurant with three or four wild persons and indulge in a meal which would do credit to a king's feast. That sort of a meal is not called for when you have the feeling I have described. There can be no doubt, however, that if you linger too long over your work, if you get thoroughly worn out with it, you are making such demands upon your heart and blood vessels that it cannot be expected that you would have an abundance of blood sent to every part of your body. Chilliness may be merely a symptom of that lowered vitality which is temporary, of course, but which is very real in its production of symptoms of discomfort.

The blood needs to be replenished and rehabilitated all the time. It must have an abundance of oxygen in order to do its work of healing and construction. To this end deep breathing is of vital importance. You should stand in front of the window several times a day and take a multitude of long, deep breaths. This will do much to supply your blood with elements essential to health and vigor. You will be surprised to find how deep and rapid breathing will warm the body and remove the feeling of chilliness.

Don't get the idea now that every time you feel chilly you are going to be sick. This is not the case. But unless there are very obvious reasons why you are chilly, it is because you are neglecting some of the things which make for good circulation and good health.

It is interesting to note that the conditions which produce a chill in a grown person will frequently produce a convulsion in a baby. Chilliness in an adult is only a symptom. It is a disagreeable symptom. but not one to be worried over. Find its cause and remove it. By getting rid of the cause for repeated periods of chilliness, you are getting rid of some condition which might be serious if neglected.

CHIEF HALED BEFORE COURT CONGRATULATED BY CITIZENS UPON MATRIMONIAL VENTURE

Legal Luminaries Unite in Extending Their Wishes of Happiness.

GIFTS PRESENTED.

Glowing Tributes Paid For Devotion to Duty in Face of Criticism.

At a special sitting of the night court, Chief S. J. Newhall was indicted with defrauding the shore citizens of advance notice concerning his marriage and because of the weight of evidence submitted against him was convicted and sentenced to a life term of happiness and prosperity.

The accused who had engaged no defence found considerable difficulty in responding when asked if he had anything to say for himself as the court broke forth into song and cheers as he attempted to plead, using such appropriate numbers as "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "See Him Smiling" and "He's a Dandy Just Now" after which he was allowed to proceed.

The chief said that he was very much surprised as he learned of the session before which he was to appear and more so because of the concerted spirit of good will which was evidenced toward him and his wife. He had been conscious of much adverse criticism during his period of office but the effect of it was lost on him as he was ever determined to follow the path of duty.

As the Chief stepped into the Court Room accompanied by his wife a hidden singer rendered "Wedding Bells," a selection which was heard with rapt attention by the entire court.

Judge Huycke Presided.

Judge Huycke, who was presiding explained the object of the session and read a letter of regret from Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K. C., who was unable to attend.

The judge then indicated a porch hammo-couch, rattan set composing table two chairs and work basket and small basket filled with flowers and drew a graphic picture of the accused and his wife seated upon the front porch sipping something—due to the many changes by amendments of beverage acts more exact information could not be given.

Magistrate O. A. Langley.

Magistrate O. A. Langley then on behalf of the Police Commission and friends presented the gifts to the chief as an appreciation of the service which he had rendered.

Mayor Turner.

Mayor Turner marvelled at the dispensation of fate which had spared the chief so long, suggested that the nectar involved in the sipping process might be withdrawn from the lips of Mrs. Newhall though he was aware of the fact that his counsel might be considered by some to be superfluous.

Messages of good will and happiness were delivered by legal luminaries, past members of police forces, members of the present force and many other well wishing friends of the Chief and all congratulated him on the wise choice which he had made in securing so suitable and, as one put it, so good-looking helpmate.

Sergeant W. Meagher.

W. Meagher, detective sergeant, spoke of the Chiefs record for fairness and said that the best possible treatment had always been meted out to members of the force.

R. R. Hall, K. C.

R. R. Hall, K. C. drew attention to the fact that Chief Newhall has always been a potent force in the reform of youth with whom he dealt in the course of administering justice.

Recommends Mercy.

F. D. Kerr, K. C., anticipated that both the accused would be recommended to the mercy of the court and congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Chief on their consummation of happiness. The record which the Chief has always had for landing his man stood him in good stead on a certain day about one month ago although his reputation as a riddle solver will suffer if he attempts to apply his skill to the present problem.

Chiefs' Tribute.

The Chief paid a shining tribute to the men under him when he said that he was confident of the incorruptible nature of each member of the staff.

When Mrs. Newhall was called upon she informed the court that she had been told to hear all, see all but to say nothing and that she intended to stick to the letter of that injunction.

J. A. O'Brien.

J. A. O'Brien found that the Chief was always willing to look upon cases with which he dealt from the standpoint of humanity being careful that justice should not be converted to injustice by an over zealous administration of the law. He assured the Chief of his good wishes and remarking on the old adage—"It is not good for man to live alone," said that while the Chief had been fairly successful in the past his usefulness now should noticeably increase.

G. W. Powell adjured the Chief to heed the counsel of Mrs. Newhall and said that most great calamities resulted from someone not listening to the wise words of his wife.

Numerous other witnesses attested to the Chiefs' popularity and devotion to duty, wished him happiness for many years to come, a list of whom would include H. Rush, J. P., V. Eastwood, Wilfred Huycke Inspector Reid, Sergeant Deannard, Wm. Wilson, Ex-Patrol Sergeant of the Toronto Police; F. Pratt, G. Grange and P. C. Thompson.

Darling; instrumental by Miss Willa Darling; a song by Mrs. Hamblin, and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Weir. Then Mr. Garfield Crowe read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Weir. Chester Hamilton and Creena Watley, representing Bethel's Young People, presented them with a brass jardiniere and fern, and a duofold fountain pen, and Mrs. Edgar and Mr. Henry Little, for Zion "Willing Workers," presented a music roll and sherbet set. Mr. and Mrs. Weir were completely taken by surprise, but Mr. Weir made a suitable reply. BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS IN THE HOME

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she always keeps a supply on hand, for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping children well. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making teething easier. Concerning them, Mrs. Saluste Pelletier, St. Dumas, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and am never without them in the house. They have always given the greatest satisfaction and I can gladly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

$50,000 PEARL FOUND.

What is called the world's finest pearl, a lustrous, peacock-green gem nearly three-quarters of an inch in diameter and weighing almost thirty karats, has been found off one of the Gambier islands in the South Pacific ocean by an eighteen-year-old native boy diver, says Popular Mechanics. He parted with it for a small fortune, and the buyer is said to have been offered $50,000 for the treasure. It is not an uncommon occurrence for the fishermen to go out in their little canoes in the morning and return at evening rich, according to their standards. The find of the young boy, however, is said to be the largest in the records of the region.

Last year 454 persons were rescued from shipwrecks around the British coast.

HEATED DEBATE OVER NEW BEER

Rev. Ben Spence and F. W. Wilson Draw Record Crowd to Windsor Armoury.

REPORT DENIED.

WINDSOR, June 27. — (Canadian Press.)—A debate on the 4.4 beer measure between Rev. Ben H. Spence and Frank W. Wilson, local M.L.A., arranged after a lengthy correspondence, drew to the Windsor armoury last night a record audience.

A great crowd of more than 5,000 overflowed into the street. At times the debate was heated, especially when Mr. Wilson read a story in a Kingston newspaper which stated that Rev. Mr. Spence during a meeting in 1921 admitted having a case of whiskey in his basement which he used occasionally for his brain. In his rebuttal Mr. Spence denied the story, saying that he had never had a case and that he had not a cellar to keep it in.

"Will Mr. Wilson accept the word of a gentleman?" Rev. Spence shouted amidst much hooting and other kinds of uproar.

"Well, a reporter wrote it and I have never heard of the story being denied before," shot back the Windsor member.

Mrs. L. J. Wade, Aylmer street, was hostess last evening at a kitchen shower given for Miss Marion Scully, whose marriage takes place next week. The rooms were prettily decorated in pale pink and rose, with table bouquets of pink roses and peonies. A pleasing event of the evening was the presentation of gifts to the bride-elect, made by Miss Marion Best, a charming little figure in pale blue taffeta frock, who wheeled in a carriage decorated with blue and pink and laden with gifts. The hostess served dainty refreshments, and the evening was pleasantly spent in the enjoyment of music and games.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Roland Hill, Sherbrooke street, when a miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Edna Gillis, whose marriage takes place next week. The bride-elect was the recipient of many lovely and beautiful gifts, which were drawn in on a decorated chariot by her little cousin, Ruby each. The evening was spent in amusement, including a mock wedding, music and games. Dainty refreshments were served.

New Bathing Suits

NEW YORK, June 27.—(United Press.)—Thousands of new bathing suits appeared on the beaches about New York this month and one gains the idea that the popularity of the one-piece knit suit is waning, since the majority of models were of cotton-dress type.

The women who wore one-piece garments seemed to be either formless flappers or fat matrons—neither of whom added beauty to the beaches. Color is plentiful this year. Suits, caps and wraps can't be too colorful and since many of them are of figured designs, they are very conspicuous.

Very few silk suits were worn about New York. Cretonnes, ginghams and India linens were materials geinerally chosen and these were often combined with plain materials. Many suits were made of printed bordered material with plain bodice and bloomers and with front and rear apron skirts made of the border. Little childish gingham frocks were worn with rubberized belts placed low on the hips. A tall blonde wore such a suit of pink and white checked gingham with white belt. The skirt of her frock was extremely short, displaying little ruffled bloomers.

Frocks combining silk and cretonne were numerous. One lovely model had its bodice made of henna satin with its skirt portion made of printed cretonne in henna shades. A little knee-length beach henna. Short beach coats, by the henne. Short beach coats, by the way are extremely smart this season. They are wrap-about models and some of them have hemborders of fringe.

A black taffeta model in straight-line dress effect had a 5-inch ruffle of black cretonne figured in pink roses extending from the right shoulder to the left knee. A long cape of the cretonne accompanied this.

A blonde bathing suit made its appearance at Long Beach. This was made of heavy satin in dress effect with a wide bright red belt about the hips. Cap accompanying this outfit was brilliant yellow.

GOOD MANNERS

The calling card of a lady is usually from about 2 3-4 to 3 1-2 inches wide by about 2 to 2 3-4 inches high, but there is no fixed rule. The card of a young girl is smaller and more nearly square. A gentleman's card is long and narrow, about 3 inches long by 1 1-2 inches high.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A timely recipe for strawberry preserve comes from Mrs. Wm. Madill, 554 Aylmer street:

Use 3/4 lb. sugar to 1 lb. strawberries. Put sugar on stove, with just enough water to dissolve, and let boil for five minutes. Then add six drops of lemon juice to every pound of sugar used. After hulling and washing berries, put them in and let boil for two minutes after coming to a boiling point in the hot syrup. Let stand over night, then seal in sterilized jars.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

A while ago I went to a dance with a man whom I like very much. There were a number of girls staying at the same place as I was. After the dance I was in such a hurry to see the girls, who had gone inside, I neglected to tell this man how much I enjoyed going to the dance. I do not know him well enough to write him, so what shall I do?

I will see him much this Summer and I certainly do not want him to feel offended. SALLY.

Sally: I am glad you realize that it was improper for you to have neglected your "thank yous" to this young man, Sally. Even if you do not know him very well, you should write him a little note telling him how much you enjoyed the dance and how happy you are that he was kind enough to invite you. The young man will not think you forward if you write him because he probably realizes that you had no other way of expressing your gratitude.

"NO WONDER" IS NEW SONG HIT.

The song that has been on music dealers' counters for some weeks, but has suddenly sprung into great popularity, is one called "No Wonder."

It is a sweet ballad of the "June Night" type that promises to become quite as popular as the famous song or its predecessor, "Linger Awhile."

"No Wonder" is a ballad fox trot that is popular with piano players, dancers and singers. The following are the words of the chorus:

"No wonder, No wonder ,
I feel so wonderful, dear.
No wonder, No wonder,
My troubles all disappear.
There's no one, No, no one,
Would do for me what you've done.
No wonder, No wonder,
No wonder that I Love You."

HOW TO WIN a SLIM FIGURE.

By Lucrezia Bori.

Have you a straight firm figure? Do the lines about your waist and hips express the beauty you would like to have them express?

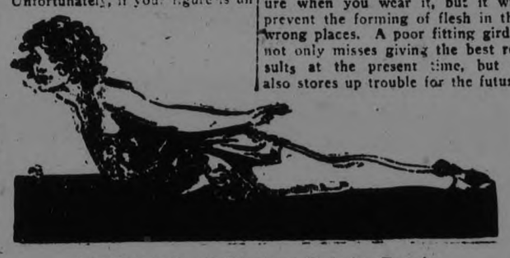
In this day of lightly boned girdles and more or less corsetless figures the firmness and strength of the abdominal muscles is most important. The ideal figure is the one in which the muscles are so firm and strong that they form a sort of natural corset. Then there are no bulging amounts of soft fat which are pushed up in humps about your waist.

Unfortunately, if your figure is unduly soft, any corset or girdle which holds you in where you need to be held in, must push you up a bit in the wrong place so that you pay for the straightness imparted elsewhere.

This is true, as I say if your figure is unduly soft from lack of exercise. It will not happen if you exercise it properly in the right palces. And any exertion the exercise may cost you is well worth while, if it imparts the straightness that spells beauty.

So many women have complained to me of the soft fold of fat they accumlate over the diaphragm and is between the diaphragm and the stomch. The flesh here seems to become softer than at any other place on the body and the result is that it pushes up in a flabby fold which prevents the figure from being straight and firm and lovely.

Now I am going to give you a good exercise to help reduce this unattractive fat. I also want to warn you to be most careful in your choice of a corset or a girdle, or whatever garment of this type you have found best suited to your needs. Be quite sure it fits you correctly, and it will accomplish the most amount of good. It will not only impart the best linees to your figure when you wear it, but it will prevent the forming of flesh in the wrong places. A poor fitting girdle not only misses giving the best results at the present time, but it also stores up trouble for the future



The Way to Do the Diaphram Reducing Exercise.

Here is the diaphragm reducing exercise:

Lie flat on th efloor on your stomach, putting your arms behind your back and locking your thumbs, so as to hold your arms steadily in this position.

Now slowly raise yourself as far from the floor as possible.

When you have gotten your head and shoulders and the upper part of your body as far away from the original horizontal position as you can get them, reverse the movement and lower your body just as slowly as you raised it.

Repeat this movment six or eight times.

You may become very tired at first, and if you do be careful not to overdo the exercise. You should never persist in your exercises until you become overtired. Just a feeling of healthy fatigue is the stopping signal.

Keep this reducing exercise up daily, twice a day if possible, and you will see beauty results for your diligence.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

Squeedee Introduces Bunny Rabbit to His Northern Cousin.

Peggy held out the leaf of lettuce to her pet rabbit, and he nibbled away at it, his little nose wiggling all the time.

—"Say Bunny, dear," Peggy laughed as the last bit of green disappeared, "you certainly do like lettuce. I love to watch you eat, for you wiggle everything but your tail when you chew."

—"Get out," chuckled Bunny Rabbit. "I wiggle my tail, only it's so small you can't see it wiggle."

"Do all Bunny Rabbits have such small tails?" Peggy asked. "All the rabbits that I have ever seen have tails just like yours."

"Guess they all look like that as far as I've seen," began Bunny Rabbit when a rustle in the grasses behind them made them turn.

There, his face in a broad grin, stood Squeedee, the wee elfin from Joyland.

Both Peggy and Bunny Rabbit hurried to meet him and shook his hands.

"Just heard what you two were talking about," laughed the elfin, "and I remembered I had promised to introduce Bunny Rabbit to a cousin of his a long time ago. So come along." Before Bunny Rabbit or Peggy could say a word they were standing in a land of ice and snow. Out of a hole in the very ice and snow at their feet, peeped a snowy white head, and when the owner saw Squeedee he crawled out and greeted his guests.

He was just about five times larger than Bunny Rabbit—a lovely snow white. His hind legs were much longer and more powerful than Bunny Rabbit's. His ears were so long that when he sat down to talk to his guests they reached way back over his shoulders. Instead of a short tail like Bunny Rabbit's, his tail was quite long.

"Folks, let me introduce White-tailed Jack Rabbit, and this is

"You Two Fellows Are Cousins."

Bunny and Peggy Brown," said Squeedee bowing politely. "You two fellows are cousins, you know. I just heard Peggy asking Bunny Rabbit if all bunnies had short tails, so I thought I'd show them one fellow who could boast of a long tail."

"I certainly can," laughed White-tailed Jack Rabbit, "and believe me, I'm so proud of it I switch it back and forth every time I take a run. Have you noticed my long ears? I love them, too."

"Oh!" cried Peggy, "but I like your soft white coat. I wish Bunny Rabbit dressed in white fur."

"He would if he lived up in the Far North like I do," chuckled White-tailed Jack Rabbit. "It helps one in getting over the snow. Folks can's spot you so easily. Then when summer comes I change my coat for a light brown one, about the same shade as yours, cousins. But in the winter season I must dress in white. You see, I dig down in the snow after the roots of trees and plants, and if I dressed in dark clothes I'd be seen too easily."

"Not a bad idea," agreed Bunny Rabbit, admiring his great big white cousin. "But come along, Peggy, isn't that your mama calling you?" They listened and sure enough they heard Peggy's mama calling. Then, like a puff of smoke, they landed back in their own yard. Peggy gave Bunny Rabbit the last bit of lettuce she had, then she ran into the house. HOW TO HAVE A LAVENDER ROOM.

Interior decorations are shy of the lavender note in coloring because it fades readily, and it often is not becoming to people.

But the lavender room seen recently is quite another thing. The floor and woodwork of the room are done a glossy black. The walls, covered with Chinese gold paper, have a cutout gold lattice border, through which sprays of wistaria run and droop down on the wall in a very natural way. The gold covers the ceiling, but grows paler toward the center, where an iridescent ceiling dome light is placed. The light passing through seems like a dainty rainbow in coloring.

The glass curtains at the windows are of gold gauze, and over them the long curtains are of black silk, painted with wistaria blossoms wreathed in a border in all their lilac loveliness. The rugs are of Chinese goat hair, embroidered in medallions of color in wools. The rugs are very novel and new, and they are not only lovely in appearance, but wash as well as the woven rugs and wear wonderfully. On the black floor they are especially effective.

The furniture of natural bamboo is painted with broad black stripes, on which medallions in lilac and gold have been painted. The cover used on the table is a suede skin dyed lilac and painted in gold cobwebs. There are two wicker floor lamps, painted to match the furniture, and the straw shades are lilac lined. There is an elaborate carved chest in the room, with ornate brass hinges, handles and locks, and a set of book shelves to match, with brass corner pieces that are very unusual. And though they are really fastened to the wall, they appear to be hung by heavy lilac cords and tassels. A Chinese mirror, in the gold outlined squares and frame, is hung above a wicker console table that holds a single tall lilac vase.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A SIMPLE NIGHTGOWN

"I have to go buy some of the finest linen I can find in the shops," Gaby announced after lunch today.

"Whatever are you going to do with it?" I asked, all interest.

"I'm going to make a trousseau nightgown," Gaby replied.

"Sounds interesting," I agreed readily. "Whose trousseau?"

'Not mine," announced Gaby.

I still continued to raise a questioning eyebrow, so Gaby hastened to expain. She said:

'It's for my favorite cousin, Maisie."

—"Well, congratulations for Maisie," I responded. "And what kind of nightie are you going to make her."

'I want to make it of fine handkerchief linen, in flesh color," Gaby explained.

She led me to a shop renowned for its fine linen, and we found some lovely flesh colored linen that was exactly what Gaby had in mind. She bought it and explained to me:

'Maisie will doubtless have numbers of crepe de Chine gowns, and I thought a fine linen one would be more interesting to make her, just for variety."

I agreed with Gaby and asked her how it was to be made.

Gaby immediately pulled a folded bit of paper from her pocketbook and showed me a sketch of the gown as it would look.

"How perfectly sweet," I exclaimed, for I liked the simple lines of the garment very much.

"You see, the square neck and the tiny sleeves will be bound with fine binding of the material," Gaby explained. "Of course I'll have to do the little pin tucks first."

"And then are these pleats down the front?" I asked.

"Yes, there're just pressed in, after the French manner," Gaby explained.

"I must say the tie girdle and the pocket add a lot of dash to your nightie," I commented.

"I think so, too," Gaby agreed. "You see all the new nighties have tie-on girdles, or something to make them look as much like frocks as possible, and I do think the monogrammed pocket I am going to do will be a lovely touch."

This Fine Flesh-Hued Linen Has Dainty Tucks and Pleats.

"And you must stick a little handkerchief in it, just as you have in the sketch," I urged.

"How about your making the handkerchief?" Gaby asked.

"I'd love it," I responded. "I've always liked Maisie and I'd like to give her some small thing."

"That will be small enough," said Gaby with a smile, "For the pocket is tiny and the kerchief will have to be, too."

BRITISH GOLF CUP TO BARNES

Fourth Time in Last Five Years Trophy Won By Americans.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, June 27.—The British Open Golf Championship clup will be carried back to the United States by Long Jim Barnes, who won it to-day. His score of 300 strokes for the 72 holes over links at Prestwick led all others of the eighty-three players who had tried for the title.

This was the fourth time in the last five summers that golfers had come across the Atlantic and achieved the highest honour that the game of golf can bestow upon those who play it.

Two Britons who tried most valiantly to keep their cup from resting longer in an alien land failed only by one stroke each to equal Barnes' accomplishment. One of them is the veteran Edward Ray, champion of years ago. The other is a rising star of North English golf, Archie Compton, of North Manchester. Each scored a 301. Each could have tied Barnes by getting down their final putts on the last green this afternoon, but both failed. Compton ran his ball past the cup and Ray was short of it.

Fourth place in the tournament was taken by MacDonald Smith, with a score of 303. Almost everyone of the 30,000 or more spectators who watched the championship play thought Smith would win it when he began his last round this afternoon, almost an hour after Barnes had ended his labours with the wood and iron. Smith's failure to do so supplied the most complete and distressing collapse that the championship has brought fourth in recent years. Needing only 78 to bet ter Barnes score, Simth took an 83, going off his game at the third hole and never really getting back on it. Indeed from there until almost the end he went from bad to worse.

Two strokes back of Smith with a total of 305 came Abe Mitchell. This noted player had done consistent golf throughout the two days, but it was not good enough golf to win. The remainder of the field trailed behind the leaders most of them with amazing poor scores. Joe Kirkwood the third challenger from the United States, finished with a 314, having recuperated a great deal to-day with two rounds of 76, after starting yesterday so badly that he was not at all in the running for the title after half the holes had been played.

The amateur English champion, Robert Harris, took 311 for the 72 holes, one stroke behind five professionls, among them J. H. Taylor.

To Compton fell the honor of playing the most consistent golf of the lot. His rounds were a 76 followed by three 75's, but the scores were not good enough to beat the former Pelham professional.

BALTIMORE, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Providence staged a rally in the eighth frame to take a 3 to 2 erdict over the Orioles here today. Jackson held the Clams to six safeties in his 7 1-3 innings on the mound, but when he got in trouble Tommy Thomas was rushed to the rescue. Hendricks slapped out a double, scoring Sheehan and Whitman before Thomas could stem the tide. Moose Swaney pulled himself out of several holes by clever twirling. Score:

Skeeters Win and Lose.

READING, Pa., June 26 (Canadian Press).—Reading and Jersey City divided a double-header today, the Pests taking the first game, 11 to 4, and the Keys the second, 7 to 4. Hard hitting of the visitors gave them the decision in the opener, Schroeder being driven from the mound by six straight hits in the fourth inning. Reading's four run rally in the fifth inning of the second game, which was climaxed by Scheer's triple, decided the nightcap. Scores:

First Game:

ROCHESTER, N.Y., June 26.—The Buffalo Bisons took the first game of a series from the Tribe here today, 10 to 8, when a local rally in the ninth fell short. The Tribe scored five times in the final frame, George Quellich's 13th homer chasing three runs across the plate. Six errors by Rochester hurt the locals' chances. The game was held up thirty minutes in the seventh by rain. Score:

AMERICANS GET NIPGON BEAUTIES

Three Tourists Hook Largest Speckled Trout of the Year.

MONTREAL, June 26. — Three times within two hours yesterday the 1925 speckled trout record in the Nipigon district of Northern Ontario, which is synonomous with the speckled trout record of the world, was broken according to a telegram received to-day by the tourist department of the Canadian National Railways from Neil McDouglall, veteran guide of Northern Ontario and manager of Nipigon Lodge on Orient Bay.

Three fishermen from the United States did the trick when within two hours they each caught speckled trout which weighed five, six and seven pounds respectively. The first two fish were caught within several minutes of each other, H. H. Rubens of Joilette, Ills., landing a five-pounder a few minutes before Charles Harold Meixell of Wilkesbarre, Pa., hooked on which weighed six pounds. An hour later W. F. Bemis of Duluth, Minn. got a strike and after a forty minute fight landed his fish which weighed seven pounds. All the fish were caught in the Nipigon River within a short distance of one another. The Nipigon district where these fish were caught produced the world's record speckled trout. It weighed fourteen and one half pounds and was caught in 1919 by Dr. J. W. Cook of Fort William, Ont.

FRENCH TENNIS PLAYERS STAR

Three Survive in Eights — Round of Wimbledon Tourney.

AND SUZANNE.

WIMBLETON, June 27. — The contestants in the All-England Tennis championship here have been whittled down to eight, and of these the British Empire is represented only by Jagat Mohan Lal of India and J. C. Anderson, of Australia. Three Frenchmen, Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet, survive while of the United States team John Hennessey of Indianapolis alone has reached the quarter finals.

Borotra defeated J. B. Gilbert of England yesterday in a surprisingly easy manner, the Frenchman taking the match, 6—1, 7—5, 6—3.

Hennessey had considerable difficulty in disposing of the veteran Gordon Lowe of England, the latter forcing the United States player to 9—7, 8—6, 6—7. Hennessey's next opponent is the Indian, Jagat Mohan Lal member with S. M. Jacobs of the Indian Davis Cup team

In the Lacote Casey match the Frenchman after a cautious opening wore the Californian down gradually and finally overwhelmed him, 8—6, 6-4, 6-1. Added to the clean sweep which France threatens to make of the Wimbledon championships was the incomptrable play of Mlle Suzanne Lenglen who ran rings round her English opponent Miss E. A. Goldsack, leaving the home player utterly helpless.

The play resulted in Suzanne's favour, 6—1, 6—0.

Then in the doubles Borotra and Lacoste trimmed the English players, Ferrier and George, while Mlle Lenglen ,playing with Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California, easily defeated the English couple, Mrs. Colgate and Miss C. Tyrrel.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

As usual the Central Ontario League game scheduled here for next Wednesday, Dominion Day, will be played in the morning, giving fans who want to go out of town in the afternoon a chance to witness the holiday fixture. Oshawa will be the visiting team and the leadership will likely be at stake. So that the game should be one of the most interesting of the year. Duke Dainty is billed to pitch for Oshawa while it is hoped that Al Heckman will make his first home start of the season on the mound for the Petes. With the teams all in a heap and the schedule nearly half over every game from now on should be full of excitement and next Wednesday's fixture in particular looks like a "wow."

Can Oshawa get by the four game jinx today? The Motorists have won four games in a row. The Ponies and Petes both staged a four run record earlier in the reason, only to be wrecked in the fifth start. Oshawa should make it fine straight at the expense of Belleville today but if Goyer is billed to start for the Railroaders and Oshawa takes a chance on anybody but Dainty Walt Gerow's boys are liable to win themseves a ball game.

The Belleville Ontario says that Whitehouse's work Wednesday was as fine an exhibition of pitching as has been seen on the Belleville lot this season. The left hander surely had all the Trunks heaviest hitters handcuffed.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Makes of 51 Golf Champions "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Now we come, as the last of the Ten Fauls Most Common to Golfers, to the one that hits us all more or less, while some of us it rains. That is the habit of trying a different method with almost every shot. This keeps the player forever in the field of experiment, and experimenting while playing golf does not lead to golf progress. It is a fine practice to try out different methods, but demonstrations with these new methods should not be tried while playing a round. Adopt some fixed method and stick to it while you are playing golf. Then improvement in that particular method will come, but the player cannot expect to improve who seeing some other player bring off a shot with a method different from his own, immediately changes to that style of play.

CONNIE MACK RATED DEAN OF MANAGERS

Athletics' Pilot, Oldest in Point of Service in Majors, Became Leader in 1901.

Of the sixteen managers now in charge of the teams in the two major leagues, Connie Mack of the Athletics is the oldest in point of service. He took command of the Philadelphia American League team at the start of the season of 1901, and he is now serving his twenty-fifth consecutive season as its manager. During that time he has captured six pennants and won three world's championships. He also has finished in last place seven times. In the event that he leads the Athletics to the American League pennant again this year it will be the first time since 1914, when they lost four straight games to the Braves in the world's series, that they finished in first place.

The oldest manager in point of service in the National League and the second oldest in the two major leagues is John McGraw of the Giants. He took charge of the New York club on July 19, 1902, and he has held the position ever since. Mack, McGraw and Wilbert Robinson of the Robins, who has turned over the reins to Zack Wheat, temporarily at least, are the only managers now in the major leagues who have held their present posts more than ten years.

Before becoming manager of the Athletics, Connie Mack was an active major league player for eleven years. He started his career as a big leaguer with the Washington club of the National League in 1886. He remained with that team for four seasons and in 1890 he joined the Buffalo club of the Players' League. He stayed with this club for only one season, however, and in the following year he was with the Pittsburgh Club of the National League.

In his first season with the Pittsburgh team he played in seventy-one games and batted .210. His highest batting average while a member of the Pittsburgh team was .362, made in 1895. This was 61 points lower than the average made by Jess Burkett of the Cleveland club in leading the league that year. In 1896, his last year with the Pirates and his final season in the major leagues, Mack played in thirty games and batted .251. His batting average for his eleven years as a major leaguer also was .251. In that time he took part in a total of 696 games.

Teacher Appointed.

At the regular meeting of the school board, held on Monday evening last, the application of Miss Jessie Curtis, of Havelock, was accepted and Miss Curtis will fill the position on the High school staff left vacant by the resignation of Miss Mason.

Examinations On.

Examinations are going on briskly in the local school. The Entrance is being written on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, by sixty-eight pupils, twenty-three boys and forty-five girls.

The Lower school examinations began on Tuesday and the Middle school on Monday. The latter continue till July 3rd, with intervals.

Groups of boys and girls are seen on the streets and on verandahs discussing papers and comparing notes as to probable results. Sins of omission committed during the year have a way of coming up at examination time and the pupil who sees the neglected subjects looming up wishes many things.

The school attendance report of the Lakefield Public school for the month of June is: Enrollment 250, average attendance 235.

Cottages Being Opened.

The steamer and the C.P.R. bus are running again and both are taking the tourists up to the great summer playground. The closing of the schools automatically opens the cottages and vice versa.

The resorts are all open and report splendid prospects for the season.

Oiling Streets.

The streets are receiving their first coat of oil for the season, and in consequence complaints of the dust nuisance on the principal streets of the village have been allayed. The work is being carried out very thoroughly and the results will be very satisfactory.

The annual garden party of St. Paul's parish will be held on Tuesday, July 30.

Held Lawn Social.

Misses Aileen Brown and Dorothy Sutton arranged a lawn party in aid of the Children's Shelter on Tuesday afternoon on Mrs. H. J. Sutton's lawn. The refreshment booth was very popular with its cold lemonade and juicy and exceedingly tempting water melon, which was a special feature. A tea room was also a popular feature. The fish pond was as popular as ever, also the home-made candy which was on sale. The proceeds were very creditable and the promotors felt rewarded for their trouble. Unfortunately Miss Dorothy Sutton was ill and unable to be present in person, but Misses Reba Preston, Maxwell Hamilton, Mila Bogue and Cora Charlton and Masters Alex. Sutton, Jack Elmsley and Kenneth Morris assisted Miss Aileen Brown and everything was a decided success.

JUNIORS PLAY MONDAY NIGHT

Lakeviews and Hillcrests Will Put on Hard Battle at Riverside.

PLAY GOOD BALL.

At Riverside Park on Monday evening, there will be a snappy game of baseball, when Hillcrests and Lakeviews put on a seven-inning encounter in the Junior City League. The quality of ball played by these teams is improving with every start, and its calibre is shown by the success of junior pitchers with the local Central League team.

A good attendance of fans would encourage the boys to greater achievements and assist in the development of more stars for the seniors in the next couple of years.

Up to the present time the Hillcrests, who are the pride of East City, have been outlucked, losing their games by narrow margins. They expect to reverse the score this time and take the fast-travelling Lakeviews into camp. The Lakeviews are right behind the C. G. E., who are leading the League, and have no intention of being beaten, which would make their task harder in the climb to the top.

GARDEN PARTY DEFEATED RAIN

Annual Y. W. C. A. Affair Was Turned Into Fine Indoor Fete.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

Although the Garden Party held yesterday under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association was not a garden party in the strict sense of the term, being more of an inside fete, it was extremely successful. The provision made by those in charge for possible inclement weather left nothing to be desired, and the patrons of the event enjoyed themselves just as much as if the affair had been staged outdoors, rather than within. There was a splendid attendance during the afternoon and evening, with a total of over two hundred people who were present at the high tea, served in the gymnasium.

There was something doing every minute. In the swimming pool gallery, crowds of people congregated to watch the exhibitions of skill in the water of numerous classes of Miss Littlefield's pupils, the diving and stunts that went on in jolly fashion. In the entrance hall were stationed the ice cream and candy booths, there was a treasure trove in the library, and the green room held secluded alcoves where fortune tellers, in gypsy costumes, read the future for enquiring ladies and gentlemen. Altogether, the annual garden party of the "Y" was just as successful this year as usual, the weather man notwithstanding. Decorations were unique and pretty The side verandah had baskets of cheerful daisies, frilled about with orange crepe paper, and lines of Japanese lanterns. In the entrance hall and green room, grate fires added a bright note to the general gay atmosphere. The big gymnasium, where high tea was served, was profusely decorated with the same bright orange baskets of daisies and yellow buttercups, the high windows holding quantities of the pretty flowers. Individual small tables were centred with roses and painted daisies, and the long table, where tea was poured by Mrs. T. Cruikshank and Miss M. Dickson, was arranged with a large centerpiece of orange blossoms and Canterbury bells.

Afternoon tea was served in the library, from a table decorated with green tulle and green candles and small silver vases of red roses and red sweet William. Tea was poured by Mrs. N. D. Seaton, assisted by Mrs. J. K. Hughes, the Misses Geraldine Glover, Gwen Hall, Isabel Oke, Muriel Jeffries and Margaret [illegible]ter, a pretty [illegible]lashed white [illegible]uge bowl of [illegible]ornucopias of [illegible]dess and Mrs. [illegible]re in charge, [illegible]es Margaret [illegible]astwood and [illegible]s in charge of [illegible] the library [illegible]re, Mrs. D. This [illegible]tionally dainty affair of pa[illegible]pink and white, the dainty c[illegible]s in green and pink holders [illegible]ing the long streamers of cre[illegible]per which decorated the front, the simulated pink roses and the pink and green arch.

The committee in charge of the high tea was composed of Mrs. W. Cormack (convenor), Mrs. H. F. Foote, Mrs. A. Moir, Mrs. R. Denne, Mrs. T. Barrie, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, and Mrs. Gerald Wood. Mrs. H. Beal and the following committee was in charge of table arrangements, each lady looking after a table and procuring assistance: Mrs. J. MacKintosh, Mrs. A. L. Killaly, Mrs. J. W. Fraser, Mrs. W. M. Cruthers, Mrs. R. Hunter, Mrs. R. A. Carman, Mrs. B. Harkness, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. H. Morphet, Mrs. J. D. Patterson, Mrs. W. J. Oke, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. N. D. Seaton, Miss Cora Mowry and Miss A. Doris.

Decorations were in charge of Mrs. Reg. H. Turner, Mrs. J. H. Seels and Miss Mary Elliott. A car committee included Mrs. W. J. Oke, Miss M. Hamilton, and Miss M. Jory. Mrs. G. E. Porter officiated at the entrance, with Mrs. H. Beal as treasurer for the high tea.

During the afternoon, Miss Madelin Willis played several pianoforte selections in the green room, where fortunes were told, and Wilson Dunlop supplied trap music in the evening. Dances in pretty costumes were given by the following groups of young ladies: Dance of Youth: the Misses Hazel Jackson, Irene Chambers, Majorie Lawrence, Florence Roberts, Lily Slaughter, Lily Gregory, V. Martin, E. Yelland. Spanish Dance: the Misses Marjorie Long, Florence Waudby, Myrtle, Bradley Rose Puttick. Fan Dance: the Misses Muriel Wilson, Ruby Jackson, Bertha Lobban, Viola Harvey, Arleigh Comtsock, Grace Comstock, Jean Harvey.

Fortune tellers during afternoon and evening were Miss B. Matchett, convenor; Mrs. J. W. Brightman, Mrs. W. Laing, Miss Ethel Mackey and Miss Zoe Doyle.

In the swimming pool, three little tots, learners of this year, attracted a great deal of interest with their exhibitions of swimming prowess: Mary Kingsbury, Marion Wood and Gladys Carvolth. Demonstrations by a group of pupils in the life-saving class were given also by Audrey Evans, Jean White, Margaret Roger, Ina Terrace, Mary Dunlop and Mathilde Dunlop.

TENNIS TIPS

THE TWIST SERVICE.

This service, which has proved terribly effective in many international matches, gains much of its "punch" because of the peculiar hops a (break) ball takes which is served with "American twist." R. Lindlay Murray and Manuel Alonzo, the Spaniard, are masters of this service.

In executing this service, stand loose and easy, as in the service explained yesterday. Hold the racquet a little looser than usual and shorten the grip a trifle. The feet may be parted so the left leg is a little in advance of the right. The body must be bent backwards to get the necessary twist on the ball. Bend it backwards to the left—putting much of the weight on the left leg, and throw the ball to the left of the head. Hit the ball a glancing, upward blow from right to left. This will put a lot of "over spin" on the ball and makes it very nasty for the striker to handle.

This service is one which takes some time to master, but it is so efficient that it is well worth spending time on. The racquet comes through with a full sweep and a good follow through must be used to get the full effect of the "top-spin" on the ball, because, although the ball is not hit with the "follow through" it will not be hit correctly unless it is struck from a swing and position with necessitates follow through.

FAMOUS VASE LOST DRY SEASON FEARED

Superstitious Chinese Concerned About Disappearance of Talisman

PEKING, June 27 (United Press).—The Living Buddha's magic rain vase is lost.

The Living Buddha, he it known has been touring the northern and central parts of China since his arrival from Tibet, and as part of the paraphernalia with which he bolsters up his status as spiritual head of all Buddhism he has carried with him a vase alleged to bring rain in large quantities.

While in Peking, the Living Buddha placed this vase in the Fei Hai (North Lake of the winter Palace) and, presumably as a result, rain fell. But more rain was wanted in other districts. Great was the consternation when it was found that in some way the vase had disappeared. Energetic steps are being taken to recover it, while the Chinese farmers dismally predict a dry summer in spite of good spring rains.

Try Gunfire

Advantage has been taken to the situation by General Chang Tsung-chang, new tupan of Hantug province, to gain popularity. He first prayed for rain and next caused 120 guns to be fired on a hillside just outside Tsinanfu. No rain resulted but the people were greatly pleased at this evidence of solicitude for their welfare.

To clinch his advantage, General Chang has sent for the famous rain-making iron tablet from Hantanhsien. This tablet, a most prized relic was brought to Peking last summer after long drought and immediately after its arrival rain fell in such quantities as to render many thousands of persons homeless and to kill nearly 15,000 outright in the floods. More caution is to be exercised in praying before it this year, it is understood.

Two layers of georgette crepe bound with ribbon and belted with a wider sash are used to make very attractive night gowns.

WHY THE ROTARY CARNIVAL?

The announcement that the Peterborough Rotary Club will hold its annual carnival on July 16th will be welcomed by the people of Peterborough for two reasons—because they know it means a good time for everybody who attends and because they also know that by attending they will be helping a good cause.

Everybody knows something about the Rotary Club and what it has been doing— but the complete story is perhaps not so generally known.

The history of the Rotary movement is full of interest, but it need not be told here. It is enough to say that the Peterborough Rotary Club is an accurate representation of the whole movement, an organization composed of one representative from each profession or calling, banded together to carry out the Rotary ideal of service.

There is a social side to the thing of course, hence the expression "luncheon club," used to describe Rotary and other similar movements. The members get together once a week and learn to know each other and mutually benefit by the association.

But the social side is not the principal one; if it were Rotary would not have lived long enough to have reached Peterborough.

Rotarians believe in service — their two slogans emphasize that fact, "He Profits Most Who Serves Best" and "Service Before Self"—and in Peterborough we have had concrete proof of what such service means.

From day to day portions of this proof will be discussed by the Examiner, because we believe the people should know the complete story.

To-day it will be enough to just outline what has been accomplished.

Crippled children's work—that almost explains itself.

The Rotary Club has had a survey of the city made, all cases where crippled children could be helped located, and for some time a number of these little, handicapped youngsters have been undergoing treatment with splendid results.

A wonderful work that deserves more extended reference later on.

Under privileged boys' work—another glowing chapter in the history of the Peterborough Rotary Club. A splendid camp where such boys can enjoy the health-giving benefits of a holiday in the Kawartha lakes region, a helping hand throughout the year for boys whose circumstances do not give them a fair chance, a big brother's care that more than once has salvaged a boy from the police court.

General community work— The Rotary Club has proven its usefulness as an organization ready to assist all worthy community efforts.

For these reasons and others that will be advanced Peterborough should unitedly support the Rotary Carnival on July 16th.

Old potatoes were up slightly, their owners asking $1.00 a bag for the few bags on view.

Fresh trout was 22 cents a pound.

Hay on the market this morning was $16.00 a ton.

Polite little lads with newspaper to wrap up their flowers were selling yellow and white daisies at 10 cents a bunch, and there were big bouquets of late peonies, Canterbury bells and rich red sweet william, for a quarter. One man had a litter of collie pups, soft-eyed little things with silky coats, at $2 apiece.

Butter and eggs were fairly plentiful. Butter was selling from 33 to 38 cents a pound. Eggs at 30 cents a dozen. Broiling chickens were priced at 45 cents a pound, hens at 22 cents and ducks at 40 cents.

Gooseberries were 20 cents a quart.

ETHEL M. DELL'S GREATEST FICTION SUCCESS MAKES VIVID, COLORFUL FILM. At Royal Monday.

Anna Q. Nilsson, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton and Sheldon Lewis — this is the featured quartet of notable players who appear in Paramount's picturization of Ethel M. Dell's widely-read novel, "The Top of the World."

Because of the amazing popularity of her books, of which millions of copies have been sold, Ethel M. Dell deservedly ranks with such top-notch authors as Zane Grey, James Oliver Curwood and Harold Bell Wright. Her stories are colorful, packed with tense, swift-moving action and lend themselves admirably to visualization on the screen. In this instance, the scenario writer, Jack Cunningham, has caught all the essential drama and flavor of the story, which George Melford has translated to the silver sheet with all the directorial mastery that has made him one of the most successful producers in the business.

Inasmuch as most of the action takes place out on the African veldt, there are extraordinary opportunities for unusual settings and backgrounds. None of these has been overlooked, but Melford, very wisely, has made the story and characterization the dominating features.

The acting of the individual players deserves honorable mention. Nilsson has a strong, forceful part which demands every ounce of histrionic ability she possesses. Kirkwood carries a double acting burden in the picture since he plays a dual role—the two cousins who resemble each other physically but are different mentally, morally and spiritually. It is a remarkable character transition, all the more emphasized by the astonishing photographic effects. Hatton has comparatively little to do but he does this bit with the skill of a veteran actor. Sheldon Lewis, as usual, plays a villainous role so effectively that you feel like hissing him! The minor characters were carefully chosen and acquit themselves with distinction.

"MAN AND MAID" REAL LOVE TALE.

Latest Elinor Glyn Picture Thrilling Romance of War Hero.

The sets as well as the people are real in Elinor Glyn's Metro-Goldwyn Mayer production of "Man and Maid," which is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Monday.

Madame Glyn in writing her novels, puts in real life characters and actual incidents. Then in bringing her stories to the screen she transcribes them accurately and casts exactly as to type.

The heroine in "Man and Maid" was a tall slender tragic eyed blonde, a close friend of Madame Glyn's. Harriet Hammond looked identically like the original, so she was given the role, though she had been away from the screen for two years and previous to that time had only been connected with pictures as a player of small parts.

Lew Cody was so exactly like the hero of Madame Glyn's tale that she couldn't resist taking him for the part, though everyone warned her that he was essentially the 'heavy.' She won her point conclusively when he was shown on the screen as Sir Nicholas Thormonde, for every semblance of his villaining had been lost and in its place stood the real lover.

Dagmar Desmond was "found" by Madame Glyn at a tea party. Miss Desmond had not thought of going into pictures, but was urged to play the particular part of Odette in "Man and Maid" because she was so like the girl of that name, whom Madame Glyn had known and written about.

And so with the sets as with the cast. Madame Glyn has some specific place in mind when she writes about them and in bringing her stories to the screen insists upon exact replicas of the locations she has written about.

Victor Schertzinger directed "Man and Maid" under Madame Glyn's supervision.

GARDEN PARTY DEFEATED RAIN

Annual Y. W. C. A. Affair Was Turned Into Fine Indoor Fete.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

Although the Garden Party held yesterday under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association was not a garden party in the strict sense of the term, being more of an inside fete, it was extremely successful. The provision made by those in charge for possible inclement weather left nothing to be desired, and the patrons of the event enjoyed themselves just as much as if the affair had been staged outdoors, rather than within. There was a splendid attendance during the afternoon and evening, with a total of over two hundred people who were present at the high tea, served in the gymnasium.

There was something doing every minute. In the swimming pool gallery, crowds of people congregated to watch the exhibitions of skill in the water of numerous classes of Miss Littlefield's pupils, the diving and stunts that went on in jolly fashion. In the entrance hall were stationed the ice cream and candy booths, there was a treasure trove in the library, and the green room held secluded alcoves where fortune tellers, in gypsy costumes, read the future for enquiring ladies and gentlemen. Altogether, the annual garden party of the "Y" was just as successful this year as usual, the weather man notwithstanding.

Decorations were unique and pretty. The side verandah had baskets of cheerful daisies, frilled about with orange crepe paper, and lines of Japanese lanterns. In the entrance hall and green room, grate fires added a bright note to the general gay atmosphere. The big gymnasium, where high tea was served, was profusely decorated with the same bright orange baskets of daisies and yellow buttercups, the high windows holding quantities of the pretty flowers. Individual small tables were centred with roses and painted daisies, and the long table, where tea was poured by Mrs. T. Cruikshank and Miss M. Dickson, was arranged with a large centerpiece of orange blossoms and Canterbury bells.

Afternoon tea was served in the library, from a table decorated with green tulle and green candles and small silver vases of red roses and red sweet William. Tea was poured by Mrs. N. D. Seaton, assisted by Mrs. J. K. Hughes, the Misses Geraldine Glover, Gwen Hall, Isabel Oke, Muriel Jeffries and Margaret Bolbridge.

At the ice cream counter, a pretty affair arranged with slashed white and orange paper, a huge bowl of daisies and tall white cornucopias of paper, Mrs. W. R. Widdess and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner were in charge, assisted by the Misses Margaret Widdess, Eleanor Eastwood and Sophie Haggis. Ladies in charge of the treasure trove in the library were Mrs. L. J. Leclaire, Mrs. D. F. Drummond, Mrs. A. J. Robinson and Mrs. H. Carr.

The candy counter was supervised by the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., with the following ladies in charge: Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. F. Webber, Mrs. N. Birks, the Misses Hazel Butler, Mamie Drope and Mayme Montgomery. This booth was an exceptionally dainty affair of pale green, pink and white, the dainty confections in green and pink holders matching the long streamers of crepe paper which decorated the front, the simulated pink roses and the pink and green arch.

The committee in charge of the high tea was composed of Mrs. W. Cormack (convenor), Mrs. H. F. Foote, Mrs. A. Moir, Mrs. R. Denne, Mrs. T. Barrie, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, and Mrs. Gerald Wood. Mrs. H. Beal and the following committee was in charge of table arrangements, each lady looking after a table and procuring assistance: Mrs. J. MacKintosh, Mrs. A. L. Killaly, Mrs. J. W. Fraser, Mrs. W. M. Crothers, Mrs. R. Hunter, Mrs. R. A. Carman, Mrs. B. Harkness, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. H. Morphet, Mrs. J. D. Patterson, Mrs. W. J. Oke, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. N. D. Seaton, Miss Cora Mowry and Miss A. Doris.

Decorations were in charge of Mrs. Reg. H. Turner, Mrs. J. H. Seels and Miss Mary Elliott. A car committee included Mrs. W. J. Oke, Miss M. Hamilton, and Miss M. Jory. Mrs. G. E. Porter officiated at the entrance, with Mrs. H. Beal as treasurer for the high tea.

During the afternoon, Miss Maqelin Willis played several pianoforte selections in the green room, where fortunes were told, and Wilson Dunlop supplied trap music in the evening. Dances in pretty contumes were given by the following groups of young ladies: Dance of Youth: the Misses Hazel Jackson, Irene Chambers, Majorie Lawrence, Florence Roberts, Lily Slaughter, Lily Gregory, V. Martin, E. Yelland. Spanish Dance: the Misses Marjorie Long, Florence Waudby, Myrtle, Bradley Rose Puttick. Fan Dance: the Misses Muriel Wilson, Ruby Jackson, Bertha Lobban, Viola Harvey, Arleigh Comtsock, Grace Comstock, Jean Harvey.

Fortune tellers during afternoon and evening were Miss B. Matchett, convenor; Mrs. J. W. Brightman, Mrs. W. Laing, Miss Ethel Mackey and Miss Zoe Doyle.

In the swimming pool, three little tots, learners of this year, attracted a great deal of interest with their exhibitions of swimming prowess: Mary Kingsbury, Marion Wood and Gladys Carvolth. Demonstrations by a group of pupils in the life-saving class were given also by Audrey Evans, Jean White, Margaret Roger, Ina Terrace, Mary Dunlop and Mathilde Dunlop.

WHY THE ROTARY CARNIVAL?

The announcement that the Peterborough Rotary Club will hold its annual carnival on July 16th will be welcomed by the people of Peterborough for two reasons—because they know it means a good time for everybody who attends and because they also know that by attending they will be helping a good cause.

Everybody knows something about the Rotary Club and what it has been doing— but the complete story is perhaps not so generally known.

The history of the Rotary movement is full of interest, but it need not be told here. It is enough to say that the Peterborough Rotary Club is an accurate representation of the whole movement, an organization composed of one representative from each profession or calling, banded together to carry out the Rotary ideal of service.

There is a social side to the thing of course, hence the expression "luncheon club," used to describe Rotary and other similar movements. The members get together once a week and learn to know each other and mutually benefit by the association.

But the social side is not the principal one; if it were Rotary would not have lived long enough to have reached Peterborough.

Rotarians believe in service — their two slogans emphasize that fact, "He Profits Most Who Serves Best" and "Service Before Self"—and in Peterborough we have had concrete proof of what such service means.

From day to day portions of this proof will be discussed by the Examiner, because we believe the people should know the complete story.

To-day it will be enough to just outline what has been accomplished.

Crippled children's work—that almost explains itself.

The Rotary Club has had a survey of the city made, all cases where crippled children could be helped located, and for some time a number of these little, handicapped youngsters have been undergoing treatment with splendid results.

A wonderful work that deserves more extended reference later on.

Under privileged boys' work—another glowing chapter in the history of the Peterborough Rotary Club. A splendid camp where such boys can enjoy the health-giving benefits of a holiday in the Kawartha lakes region, a helping hand throughout the year for boys whose circumstances do not give them a fair chance, a big brother's care that more than once has salvaged a boy from the police court.

General community work— The Rotary Club has proven its usefulness as an organization ready to assist all worthy community efforts.

For these reasons and others that will be advanced Peterborough should unitedly support the Rotary Carnival on July 16th.

JUNIORS PLAY MONDAY NIGHT

Lakeviews and Hillcrests Will Put on Hard Battle at Riverside.

PLAY GOOD BALL.

At Riverside Park on Monday evening, there will be a snappy game of baseball, when Hillcrests and Lakeviews put on a seven-inning encounter in the Junior City League. The quality of ball played by these teams is improving with every start, and its calibre is shown by the success of junior pitchers with the local Central League team.

A good attendance of fans would encourage the boys to greater achievements and assist in the development of more stars for the seniors in the next couple of years.

Up to the present time the Hillcrests, who are the pride of East City, have been outlucked, losing their games by narrow margins. They expect to reverse the score this time and take the fast-travelling Lakeviews into camp. The Lakeviews are right behind the C. G. E., who are leading the League, and have no intention of being beaten, which would make their task harder in the climb to the top.

TENNIS TIPS

THE TWIST SERVICE.

This service, which has proved terribly effective in many international matches, gains much of its "punch" because of the peculiar hops a (break) ball takes which is served with "American twist." R. Lindlay Murray and Manuel Alonzo, the Spaniard, are masters of this service.

In executing this service, stand loose and easy, as in the service explained yesterday. Hold the racquet a little looser than usual and shorten the grip a trifle. The feet may be parted so the left leg is a little in advance of the right. The body must be bent backwards to get the necssary twist on the ball. Bend it backwards to the left—putting much of the weight on the left leg, and throw the ball to the left of the head. Hit the ball a glancing, upward blow from right to left. This will put a lot of "over spin" on the ball and makes it very nasty for the striker to handle.

This service is one which takes some time to master, but it is so efficient that it is well worth spending time on. The racquet comes through with a full sweep and a good follow through must be used to get the full effect of the "top-spin" on the ball, because, although the ball is not hit with the "follow through" it will not be hit correctly unless it is struck from a swing and position with necessitates follow through.

FAMOUS VASE LOST DRY SEASON FEARED

Superstitious Chinese Concerned About Disappearance of Talisman

PEKING, June 27 (United Press).—The Living Buddha's magic rain vase is lost.

The Living Buddha, be it known has been touring the northern and central parts of China since his arrival from Tibet, and as part of the paraphernalia with which he bolsters up his status as spiritual head of all Buddhism he has carried with him a vase alleged to bring rain in large quantities.

While in Peking, the Living Buddha placed this vase in the Pei Hai (North Lake of the winter Palace) and, presumably as a result, rain fell. But more rain was wanted in other districts. Great was the consternation when it was found that in some way the vase had disappeared. Energetic steps are being taken to recover it, while the Chinese farmers dismally predict a dry summer in spite of good spring rains.

Try Gunfire

Advantage has been taken to the situation by General Chang Tsung-chang, new tupan of Hantug province, to gain popularity. He first prayed for rain and next caused 120 guns to be fired on a hillside just outside Tsinanfu. No rain resulted but the people were greatly pleased at this evidence of solicitude for their welfare.

To clinch his advantage, General Chang has sent for the famous rain-making iron tablet from Hantanhsien. This tablet, a most sacred relic was brought to Peking last summer after long drought and immediately after its arrival rain fell in such quantities as to render many thousands of persons homeless and to kill nearly 15,000 outright in the floods. More caution is to be exercised in praying before it this year, it is understood.

Two layers of georgette crepe bound with ribbon and belted with a wider sash are used to make very attractive night gowns.

Green peas were 10 cents a quart and new cabbage, two for a quarter.

Old potatoes were up slightly, their owners asking $1.00 a bag for the few bags on view.

Fresh trout was 28 cents a pound.

Hay on the market this morning was $16.00 a ton.

OBITUARY.

MRS. CAROLINE WHITE.

The death occurred on Monday, June 22nd, of one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of the village in the person of Caroline White, widow of Joseph White, in her 88th year. Deceased possessed a lovable disposition, and was a general favorite of both young and old, a true and generous neighbor and friend, a loving wife and mother.

The late Mrs. White was one of our earliest settlers, and while she has not been feeling well for the past few months, she was in full possession of all her faculties, and many and interesting were the stories she could tell of the early history of Hastings and surrounding district. Being a pioneer resident she watched with intense interest the progress of the town of her adoption.

She was a devout member of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel and will be greatly missed by all, irrespective of denomination.

There are left to mourn her loss, two sons, Joseph and Elrick, both of Peterboro, another son, Alexander, predeceased her some few years ago. Besides her two sons she has two sisters, Mrs. Cooper of Courtland, N.Y., and Mrs. Hurley, of Rochester, N.Y., and two brothers, Mr. Nat LeJoie, of Langford, Ont., and Edward of Peterboro, Ont.

To the sorrowing family the Star joins a host of friends in extending sincere sympathy in their hour of trial.

The funeral was held from her late residence, Front Street, Hastings, on Wednesday morning at 8.45 to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, where services were held, and was very largely attended, showing the respect in which deceased was held in the community. Interment took place in the Hastings Roman Catholic Cemetery. —Hastings Star.

MRS. JOHN WEST.

The death occurred on Friday, June 26, at 1.30 p.m., of Fannie Louisa, wife of John West, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wilson, No. 2 King George street.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

American Can Made New High During the Morning

NEW YORK, June 27. —(Canadian Press). —A sensational advance in American Can which was bid up ten points to a record high at 200 as compared with a low of 158 1-8 in January, overshadowed all other developments in today's rising stock market. Subsequent profit taking forced this stock down to 195 where it met strong support and started upward again.

Asbestos and Paper Led Business In Montreal

MONTREAL, June 27. —(Canadian Press). — Asbestos issues and paper works attracted most of the interest in to-day's stock market, the former being particularly strong. Asbestos common gained 3 3-4 to 79 12 while preferred was up 3 to 111. Papers received some attention and were strong but no price changes of importance were recorded in this group. Wheat Market Scored Narrow Advance To-day

CHICAGO, June 27 (Canadian Press).—Owing a good deal to unexpected upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool, the wheat market here scored a narrow advance today. Indications that the greater part of movement of wheat from threshers would be over within a week, as far north as the Kansas and Nebraska boundary also helped to lift values. More or less attention was likewise given to reports of curtailed production of winter wheat, especially advices that three of the best counties in South Western Kansas would equal only forty per cent. of last year's total.

TENTACLES OF HUN SPLIT AMONG SONS

Hugo Stinnes, Whose Name Was Synonymn of Power Leaves Interest to Heirs

By GUENTHER TONN
United Press Berlin Correspondent

BERLIN, June 27 (United Press) —The name of Stinnes, always a synonym for economic power, during the war and the post-war period associated with gigantic wealth of American proportions. The late Hugo Stinnes, Germany's "uncrowned king" had been one of the first to realize the tremendous economic possibilities of currency inflation. For four years he played that difficult game to perfection and on his death-bed, a little over a year ago, he left to his widow, Frau Claire Stinnes, a veritable business empire. From the Cape of Good Hope to Canada and from Spain to China the name of Stinnes had become a house-hold word signifying the wrapping of a thousand commercial threads around one spool.

After Stinnes' death his empire was divided into three parts. The eldest, son, 27 year-old Dr. Edmund Stinnes, with headquarters in Berlin, directed the chemical automobile, pulp and newspapers interests. The second son, Hugo Jr. in Hamburg controlled the steamship lines and overseas dominions, notably in South America. The heavy industrial and electrical interests, finally, grouped around the orignal nucleus of the combine, namely the firm of the Matthias Stinnes in Muehlheim-on-the-Ruhr.

A few months ago gossip told of dissensions in the Stinnes family in which Hugo's widow plays a material role. Personal, political and economic disputes were reported to be tugging at the structure of the House of Stinnes. Considering that the sons and daughters of the late Hugo, who had himself sprung from dynasty of hard-headed business men, had all inherited their father's initiative, energy and stubborness, well-informed circles always suspected a certain amount of truth in these rumours, and were not surprised at the recent announcement that the eldest had left the nest to start out on his own responsibility.

Dr. Edmund Stinnes will henceforth devote himself entirely to the insurance and automobile interests which have passed under his sole control. Amongst the most noteworthy of the latter is the Aga Automobile Factory near Berlin. Great extensions are planned here, and it is expected that soon the output of the Aga, which will concentrate on one popular type, will rival that of Germany's largest automobile producer, the Opel Works,—and approach the Ford pattern.

Just what released the tension within the family has not been divulged. It would, however, be crediting the firm with little business acumen to suppose that it was merely a petty personal quarrel between Edmund and the rest of the family represented by Frau Stinnes. The discussions are deeper than that and are probably of an economic or rather, organizatorial nature. Dr. Edmund Stinnes' recent article in the "Credit Monthly" opposing photectionism, which was widley noted in Germany, strengthens belief that the protective tariff is the issue over which the family ship went on the rocks.

At any rate, there is no immediate responsibility of the breach affecting German industry. Indeed, the breach appears to gather the scattered Stinnes interests in one hand.

All men below the grade of superintendent have allowance for clothing and boots, and also a detective allowance. There are also allowances for rent and taxes to married men for whom no quarters are provided, and allowances are made for special service, including 3s per week to 62 shorthand writers.

The revenues from which these expenses are met come partly from the national government and partly from local taxation and other miscellaneous sources, including some £523,000 received for services of the police specially employed, as for example those employed at the British museum, House of Lords, House of Commons, War Office, Yards, hospitals, and Royal Naval College.

EARTHQUAKE ROCKED FOUR WESTERN STATES FOR THREE HOURS SATURDAY NIGHT, STARTING SLIDES FROM MOUNTAINS ACROSS RAILWAYS AND RIVERS

No Loss of Life Reported, But Property Damage Estimated at Half a Million—People of Many Towns and Cities in Panic.

RECURRENCE OF SHOCKS FELT ON SUNDAY.

Passenger Trains Cut Off By Land Slides— Pavements and Buildings Cracked By Heaving Earth — Wide Area Shaken.

BUTTE, Montana, June 29—Sections of four western states were harassed by earthquakes for three hours Saturday night. Panic resulted in practically every city in western Montana.

Pavements and buildings were cracked in many cities, a half dozen buildings were reported to have been demolished, and electric railway lines temporarily crippled and there was a recurrence of the recent avalanche at Jackson, Wyoming, but nowhere was any loss of life reported.

The convulsions of the earth shook two loaded cars of coal from their perch on an overhead dock at Bozeman and they ran wild down the decline, piling up at the bottom and bottling up the exit of the roundhouse there.

Livingston was shaken four times and most of the cities in the danger area reported many shocks. Apparently the shocks began at 6.23 o'clock and lasted intermittently until well after ten. The quake was felt from Seattle East to the South Dakota line; from Spokane South to Thermopolis and Casper, Wyoming.

River Dammed

JACKSON, Wyo., June 29—A recurrence of the avalanche in the Gros Ventre River Valley of early this week took place Saturday night when another vase section of Sheep Mountain rolled into the valley and dammed the river about three miles above the lake caused by the first big slide. Earthquake shock accompanied the moving of the mountain into the valley.

In Mountain Area

LIVINGSTON, Mont., June 29—Mother Earth regained her composure Sunday after badly shaking up Saturday night four States in the northern half of the continental divide—the Rocky Mountain Range.

The report of a new tremor at Three Forks, Montana, at 10.45 o'clock yesterday morning, however, caused new apprehension to the population of this section of Southern Montana.

Idaho, Montana, Washington and Wyoming felt the oscillations of the earth Saturday night but Central Montana received the heaviest buffets. Scores of cities and towns in Central Montana suffered severe tremors while their residents, many of them panic-stricken, hastily vacated business structures and homes.

Landslides on many mountains blocked highways and railways. No lost of life occurred according to meagre reports.

Property Loss $500,000

Damage to property based on scant information is estimated at approximately $500,000. Towns in the Gallatin Valley were the heaviest sufferers, damage estimated there running to $300,000.

Three passenger trains were hemmed in by avalanches near Lombard, Mont. A Northern Pacific train also was blocked by a landslide at Lombard. A small cave-in occurred in the Lombard Tunnel on the Milwaukee lines Saturday night which temporarily blocked the passage of traing through it.

Fear that the earth upheaval might be continued with disastrous effect prompted the residents of Three Forks and Manhattan to vacate their homes and sleep in the streets. They also moved their household effects from the houses and yesterday prepared their Sunday repasts outdoors.

Patrols of police and volunteer citizens were thrown about buildings in Three Forks to guard weakened structures where danger of falling walls existed. Plans to raze with dynamite several of the shattered structures were under consideration the authorities said.

Sunday Tremors

HELENA, Mont., June 29 — A slight earthquake shock was felt in White Sulphur Springs, Mont., at 3.45 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

ANACONDA, Mont., June 29—A slight earth tremor was felt here at 3.10 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Of the 16 charges preferred against him 12 are for selling to the officers and the remaining four to the public.

Details of the case could not be learned from the police.

BRITISH WORRY OVER INDUSTRY

MacDonald Says Government Has Failed to Remedy Labor Situation.

COAL TRADE HIT.

LONDON, June 29. — England's shaky industrial condition, about which Englishmen do not like to talk but which none the less is real, is due to come into the limelight this week.

In the House of Commons Ramsay MacDonald will make a motion of censure against the Conservative Government and push his charge that those in power have not remedied the bad labor situation but have allowed it to become worse.

This week will also see the beginning of negotiations between mine operators and miners due to the owners' thirty-day notice to the men ending the present national agreement fixing wages and hours.

On the labor horizon in addition looms a railroad struggle due to the falling off of the road's income and their consequent desire not only not to meet demands for increases in wages but to try and effect a decrease of existing scales.

Protection Seen As Inevitable.

These developments are only features of the general situation growing out of the increasingly difficult economic situation and reflected in increasing unemployment and waning foreign trade, which in the opinion of many observers mean that England will have to come to protection. In fact it is a common prediction now that the Labor Party will soon be out against free trade.

The most acute issue is that of coal. England cannot sell her coal on the Continent and she cannot sell it because it costs too much to produce. It costs too much to produce because the men work seven hours instead of eight, nine and ten in the Continental mines and because their wages are away above those of the French and German miners.

Many mines are closed and there are 200,000 fewer men digging coal than a years ago. The operators say this cannot go on, and seek to restore the eight-hour day and reduce pay. Labor is divided. There is a faction directed by J. H. Thomas, Parliamentary Labor leader, and there is another faction headed by J. A. Cook which wants to fight and starts out by demanding increases rather than decreases.

Mr. Thomas thinks a bitter-end fight talk can do no good and that the situation calls for sacrifices on all sides and has suggested that if all the railroad employees, from managers down, accept a pay cut the workers might do it. On the other hand Mr. Cook and his lieutenants do not seem to see the Thomas point that if coal remains so high that it cannot be sold abroad the workers must suffer first of all and most seriously.

The Trouble in the Coal Trade.

There can be no doubt that production cost is what is ruining the British coal trade. That cost stands now at 13 shillings 6 3-4 pence per ton, as compared with 6 shillings 10½ pence per ton before the war. These scales, which show an increase of 97 per cent., may be compared to the per ton cost of Germany and France, which runs about 7½ shillings.

It is stated that every ton of coal sold abroad in the past three months presented a loss of a shilling and a half. Five hundred closed coal pits in England result from France and Germany getting England's coal trade on the Continent.

The general opinion expressed among all but the miners is that restoration of the eight-hour day will do much to relieve the situation. Operators and miners are to begin their conferences the coming week, and doubtless out of it will come a common effort to cut cost of production.

Both sides seem fairly serious and it is not evident that the Communists are cutting any figure in the great dispute affecting this industry, which supports some 5,000,000 people in England and which supplies the greatest single item of Britain's trade. And the need for doing something is shown by the fact that coal exports so far this year are 1,500,000 tons below those of the same period last year.

INFLATION OF CURRENCY MADE LAW IN FRANCE

Bill Adopted By Senate For Additional Issue of Four Billion Francs.

VOTE 273 TO 11.

Inflation Condemned By Opposition, But Passed to Avert Peril.

PARIS, June 29. — M. Caillaux's financial measures, which were adopted by the Senate Saturday 273 to 11, became law upon their publication in the official journal Sunday. They authorize the printing of 6,000,000,000 more paper francs, making a total of 10,000,000,000 francs within the last three months.

This inflation of the currency was scored by all the Opposition speakers in the Senate, and even by Premier Painleve himself, who, however, excused it as a measure to avert national peril.

Senator Henry Berenger, reporting the Caillaux project for the Senate, declared it was certain that if the deficit in the circulation, due to the national defence bonds, was not checked, the newly authorized 6,000,000,000 francs would be rapidly absorbed.

After the inflation feature had been voted 226 to 29, the Opposition, led by M. Cheron, former Minister of Agriculture under Poincare, decided not to abstain from voting on the financial projects as a whole, thus responding to Premier Painleve's appeal for the largest possible majority from the Senate in order to reassure the country.

A delegation of public employees demanding to see M. Painleve caused the doors of the Senate to be precipitately closed and the Republican Guard reinforced. They dispersed without trouble after M. Painleve had promised them an interview at the Ministry of War.

Speaking in the Senate M. Caillaux declared:

"This project is a liquidation of the past. No other Government in our place could do otherwise. We are in the presence of peril. I do not like inflation any more than you do, but I felt when the first 4,000,000,000 francs of additional issue were authorized a few months ago we should then have made the amount 10,000,000,000."

Senator Berenger, presenting the report to the Senate, said the French Treasury had at the Bank of France a balance of only 40,000,000 francs.

The Chamber of Deputies Saturday voted provisional credits of 3,229,000,000 francs to carry on the business of the country during July, M. Caillaux admitting the impossibility of having the 1925 budget voted before the beginning of next month.

The credits include 59,000,000 francs for the upkeep of French troops in foreign countries.

HAIG COMMENDS BRITSH EMPIRE SERVICE LEAGUE

Comradeship and Loyalty Its Objects Says Field Marshal at Montreal.

MEETS IN OTTAWA.

Veterans of All Parts of the Empire Represented at Convention.

MONTREAL, June 29. — Canadian Press. — Field Marshal Earl Haig spent Saturday on the Steamship Letitia in Montreal Harbour, accompanied by Countess Haig and a distinguished party. The field marshall arrived on the Letitia in the afternoon, received officials and friends on board, and proceeded on Sunday morning to Ottawa, where as Grand President, he will preside over the meeting of the British Empire Service League.

The Letitia was decorated from stem to stern in honor of the famous passenger, and was greeted vociferously by the sirens of other craft in port as she swung into place at her pier. The group which went aboard to welcome the field marshal included Brig.-General C. J. Armstrong, G. O. C., Military District No. 4, and Colonel H. Chasse, staff officer, Ald. Thomas O'Connell, acting mayor, of Montreal, Sir Henry Thornton, and railroad and steamship officials. On behalf of the city a huge bouquet of roses was presented to Countess Haig.

Later the Earl appeared on the upper deck, and was cheered enthusiastically by a large crowd on the docks, which included many veterans. Montreals official welcome to him will be given on July 26 and 27 and elaborate preparations are being made to make it a memorable one at the close of his tour across Canada.

In a statement to the press the field marshal emphasized the value of unity in solving the problems affecting ex-service men and expressed the hope that the Ottawa conference would be productive of happy results to the veterans of Canada.

Empire Represented.

"I am more than gratified at the warmth of the welcome which is promised to myself, my wife, and the British Empire Service League delegates.

"The delegates accompanying me have been specially elected as the representatives of the organized ex-service men of Great Britain, India, South Africa, Rhodesia, New Zealand, Malaya and the Irish Free State. Our comrades from Australia Newfoundland, British Guiana and Scotland, all meeting us in Ottawa, where we are also to be joined by representative Canadian ex-service men.

"We are here to attend the second Biennial Conference of the British Empire Service League, of which I have the honor to be Grand President.

"I feel sure the people of Canada, and in fact the people throughout the British Empire, will be impressed by the very representative character of the men who are attending this all-Empire conference, including, as they do men of all ranks who served in the great war. These men are now willing and determined to give

KING DIRECTED MANOEUVRES OF AIR SQUADRONS

Crowd of 100,000 Thrilled By Aviation Display at Hendon Saturday.

MANY NEW TYPES.

Air Show Has Never Yet Been Equalled by Any Other Country.

LONDON, June 29. — One hundred thousand people, including the King and Queen and members of the Cabinet and many members of Parliament and representatives of all the embassies, saw twelve crack bombing machines of the British Royal Air Force attack an elaborate representation of an enemy cruiser at Hendon on Saturday.

It was the greatest "air gazettee" ever given by the Royal Air Force, and 120 machines, ten of which were of types never seen by the public thrilled the British crowd as never before. Although the pageant is an annual affair, the presence of the members of parliament as well as the Cabinet, gave the event an official touch, at a time when Great Britain is devoting considerable attention to the air force in an effort to be able to resist any attack, no matter what size which might be made on London in the future.

All the last developments in air warfare were embodied in this pageant. One of the most interesting was a wireless installation permitting the King personally to direct the squadron, which responded very accurately to the King's commands, and loud speakers at various points enabled the vast throng to follow the King' orders.

The ten new types of machines attracted wide attention, since it was the first time the general public was allowed to see them. They included a very speedy single seater fighters all of metal, machines used for various army co-operation work, a one horsepower Trope de Carrier for coast defense, a new and sumptious ambulance with huge red crosses marked on the outside, a twin engine vanguard, capable of accommodating two pilots with one attendants and 22 passengers for civil transport purposes, and the De Havilland-54, said to make possible a very low landing speed. The British regard the De Haviland-54 as one of the greatest achievements in recent aeronautics. It has acompleted very successful trials.

Apart from the other exclusive advantages it possesses, it has a fuselage which is watertight and will permit the machine to remain afloat many hours should it be forced to descend on the water.

Advances which have been made in the methods of communication between machines in flying formation were impressively shown when squadron drill was carried on by radio. The squadron leader, talking into a microphone, transmitted all his orders to the other machines. Thirty-six machines were thus thrilled in the sky as the crowd stood and shouted its approval. The public came away from the pageant deeply impressed with the strides which Great Britain is making in the air, especially since many comparisons have been made to show she is lagging behind in the so-called aerial race going on in Europe.

Observers remarked that such an air show as Saturday's never yet had been equalled in any country, which goes to prove that great Britain as the Minister for Air Sir Samuel Hoare, recently stated, is trying to be able successfully to defend herself from any possible foreign attacker, no matter what his strength.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., —June 29. —(Canadian Press).— All brick buildings in Santa Barbara were demolished this morning, including the Arlington Hotel, by an earthquake which swept the State and seems to have centred its ferocity in this city. Water mains and River Reservoirs were broken and the city was partly flooded. Two fires started but so far little damage has been reported done by them. CAN APPEAL ON POINT OF LAW

Attorney General Will Decide Course in Home Bank Case To-day.

JUDGES DISSENTED.

TORONTO, June 29.—(Canadian Press).—Upon a point of law only can the province appeal against the Appelate Court judgment which quashes the conviction of the Home Bank directors. Whether or not such an appeal will be taken will be decided to-day by Attorney-General F. F. Nickle, K.C.

When communicated with last evening at his summer home in Kingston, Hon. Mr. Nickle stated that he had given instructions for the papers in the case to be forwarded him, in order that he might give consideration to the matter. He had been under the impression that the judgment had been unanimous and that a further appeal by the province was therefore impossible. When advised that such was not the case, he was interested in knowing who the dissenting judges were. The matter, he said, would be carefully considered by him to-day.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Irregular Price Movement On New York Exchange

NEW YORK, June 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Irregularity of price movements during the morning resulted largely from the switching of speculative interest from such recent strong spots as American Can, United Cigar Stores and Radio Corporation to a number of Motor, Rubber and Public Utility issues which are believed to be out of line with the general market. Bear traders attempted to take advantage of the heavy profit-taking by active selling of supposedly vulnerable issues, but they failed to bring out much long liquidation and the market was again headed upward around noon. The Southern Railway decision, generally favorable for the rest of the trade for the second half of the year, expectations of easier money rates when mid-year settlements were completed and heavy bank clearings all had a restraining influence on bearish operations, even though they failed to stimulate a widespread public demand for stocks. Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent.

Price Of Wheat Took Sharp Drop at Chicago

CHICAGO, June 29.—(Canadian Press.)—New sharp setbacks in the value of wheat took place early today. Favorable weather conditions in the spring crop belt led to general selling, a good deal of which was the result of standing orders to stop losses at various definite set limits.

About the only support for the market came from previous sellers who were in a position to collect a profit. Opening 1-8 to 1 1-2c. lower, July 147 1-4 to 148 and September $1.44 7-8 to $1.45 1-2 was followed by an irregular fall to $1.45 1-2 for July and $1.42 for September.

Trading In Mines Active With Hattie Leading List

TORONTO, June 29. — (Canadian Press.) — Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was active to-day, transactions totalling 267,885 shares. Hattie Preferred opened strong 1 1-4 points higher and advanced to 12, a total advance of five points over Saturday's closing figure. Algonquin was fractionally lower at 2 1-4, while Dome advanced 15 cents to 14.80. Kenora and Kirkland Lake advanced fractionally to 10 1-2 and 39 1-2 respectively and McIntyre sold at 17.75, an advance of five cents.

Sharp Break In Price Of Wheat at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, June 29—(Canadian Press)—A sharp break was recorded during the first half hour of trading on the local wheat market this morning when July declined 4 3-8c and October 3 1-2c from opening prices. AT LITTLE LAKE.

Impressive ceremonies marked the unveiling of a monument to the late William E. Degen, in Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon, when members of the Salvation Army Life Saving Scouts and of the Orange Young Britons assembled to do honor to one who was a valued member of both organizations.

The Orange Young Britons' service was conducted by Right Worshipful Brother Mitchell of Toronto, Deputy Grand Master, assisted by R. Wor. Bro. Waters, of Toronto, Grand Recording Secretary. After the Orange ceremony, the monument was unveiled by Adjutant Porter, officer in charge of the Life Saving Scouts in Canada East. He was assisted by Commandant Smith of the Peterborough Corps.

Adjutant Porter, in his address, paid tribute to the memory of the deceased, who was an instructor of the local scouts. His sterling character and pleasant ways had endeared him to everyone with whom he came in contact.

The monument, which is of light red Swedish granite, is enscribed with the name of William E. Degen, and the dates of his birth and death. The designation of the lodge, O.Y.B. 372, is placed next the inscription and on the bottom is the badge and motto "To save and to serve" of the Life Saving Scouts.

G.W.V.A. SERVICE TO ALL VETERANS REQUIRES $20,000 MORE THAN THE ASSOCIATION'S NORMAL REVENUES

More Than 8,000 Cases Now Being Dealt With By G.W.V.A.

REPORT OF WORK.

Business Sessions of Convention Concluded Saturday—Next Week in Nova Scotia.

OTTAWA, June 29.—(By Canadian Press).—The business sessions of the annual convention of the Great War Veterans' Association, sometimes referred to as the "Soldiers' Parliament of Canada," were brought to a close here Saturday afternoon after one of the most successful and largely-attended gatherings in the history of the Association. It was decided to hold the next convention in Nova Scotia, but the city was not named.

A session will be held on this afternoon when General Sir Richard Turner, V.C., will be formally installed in office as president, and at a mass meeting of returned soldiers and dependents, to be addressed by Field Mashal Earl Haig on Tuesday night, the convention will be adjourned.

Delegates to represent the Association at the British Empire Service League conference which commences here today were appointed Saturday afternoon. They are General Sir Richard Turner, V.C., president, Major W. D. Sharpe, M.D., of Brampton, Ont., the past president, and Capt. Ian Mackenzie, M.L.A. of Vancouver, second vice-president, who has taken a prominent part in the deliberations of the convention.

Col. James McAra of Regina, first vice-president, stepped aside in favor of Capt. Mackenzie, and strongly urged his appointment because of his knowledge of world affairs.

Service to Veterans.

It was decided to continue the legislative and adjustment service bureau of the Association, operated since 1917 on behalf of all war veterans and dependents. The report of the ways and means committee was received and showed that if the Dominion Command functioned on behalf of its members only, the current revenues would be sufficient, the general service work available to all affected by war service, regardless of membership in the G.W.V.A. made it necessary to find more than $20,000 over normal revenues yearly.

More than 8,000 adjustment cases were now in the hands of the adjustment officers, it was stated, and an average of 3 new cases were received daily. Satisfactory adjustments in the past three months totalled 565. The committee considered these facts made it imperative to continue the service.

"If the nation will not accept this rightful responsibility, then the members of the G.W.V.A. must continue to assume the burden of safeguarding the interests of their more unfortunate comrades and the dependents of the fallen", declared J. R. Bowler, of Winnipeg, chairman of the committee.

It was also decided that the Dominion executive should be empowered to deal with branches carrying on in the name of the G.W.V.A., but not assisting in the support of Provincial and Dominion commands.

Greetings From Scotland.

Andrew Young, member of the British Parliament for an Edinburgh constituency, arrived Saturday as a delegate to the British Empire Service League conference. Mr. Young who is a member of the Council of the British Legion in Scotland, conveyed to the convention the greetings of Scottish War Veterans. Contrasting the living conditions of war veterans in Canada and Great Britain, Mr. Young asserted that those in Canada were in better circumstances than those in Britain, and said that of the estimate 1,250,000 unemployed overseas, 500,000 were ex-service men.

Trophy to Verdun, Que.

The President's Cup for the largest percentage in increase in membership during the past year was presented to M. Wakeling, president of the Verdun, Que., branch. The "Birthday Shield", awarded to the Province giving the best exhibition of loyalty during the Association's birthday celebrations was presented to Saskatchewan, and received by Col. James McAra, of Regina.

The convention adopted a resolution urging that an army discharge certificate should constitute an ample passport to and from all parts of the British Empire; expressed its appreciation to the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, and kindred ladies' organizations, for their co-operation; and endorsed the principle of the establishment of Women's Auxiliaries in connection with branches, suggesting a Dominion constitution.

Problem of Mental Cases.

The question of returned soldiers, who, it was claimed, were suffering from epilepsy and neurasthenia and confined in mental hospitals with persons suffering from other types of dementia, was raised by Winnipeg delegates, and the convention decided that the Government should be petitioned to have ex-soldiers neurasthenics and epileptics segregated from the other types.

David Nelson, of Winnipeg, in dealing with the subject of mental cases, said he thought epileptic and neurasthenic cases, should be placed in an institution apart from the other patients in mental hospitals. He did no think it proper that returned soldiers who were suffering from the effects of war disabilities should be mixed with patients, some of whom, for example had been found criminally insane, and sent to the institutions on the recommendation of a jury.

"That is no reward for a man who has lost his reason through the service he gave for his country," Mr. Nelson said.

HARDING MEMORIAL TO MARK LATE PRESIDENT'S VISIT HERE

Erected on Canadian Soil Near Scene of Eventful Address.

UNDER KIWANIS

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 19.—Canadian Press. — An international memorial which in many ways is unique will be unveiled in Vancouver on September 17 next to perpetuate the remembrance of the late President Warren G. Harding's visit to Canadian soil in July, 1923.

The unveiling will take place after the International convention of the Kiwanis Clubs, under whose auspices the memorial is being erected. Although the statue was first ordered to be built by a committee acting on the initiative of the Kiwanis Club of Vancouver, the subscription list was opened to clubs in the United States as well, with the result that the objective of $35,000 was soon over reached and the United States clubs insisted that they bear the entire expense, the amount subscribed by the Canadian clubs being returned to them.

The memorial will mark an event of which history offers no duplicate—that of a United States president making an address on Canadian soil during his term of office. President Harding visited Vancouver for a few hours on his way south after visiting Alaska, in July, 1923, and was given an impressive reception. His address in which he made an eloquent plea for continued friendship between the English peaking peoples and particularly between Canada and the United States, was listened to by over 20,000 people, and aroused considerable interest through out the British Empire.

The memorial will stand within a few feet of the exact spot in Stanley Park where President Harding stood when he delivered his speech. It will be flanked by gigantic Douglas fir trees the forest providing a striking and awe inspiring background.

The statue itself, which is the work of Charles Marega, an Italian sculptor, now resident in Vancouver, is being modelled from a design submitted to the International Kiwanis headquarters in Chicago and which was selected as the best of a group of 80 designs submitted by sculptors all over the continent. The statue will be ready to set in place about the middle of August and it is hoped to have President Coolidge officiate at the unveiling in the following month.

Of bold simple lines, the statue's central motif embodies America and Canada represented by female figures holding the shields of their respective countries facing each other as though swearing eternal friendship and holding in their hands the olive branch, symbol of peace. Under the olive branches a bas relief tablet of Harding will be done. The treatment will be flat and shaded so as to suggest the spirit rather than the personality of the former president. Underneath will be the single word "Harding."

A panel will be at each end of the statue engraved with passages from the Harding speech which incidentally, furnished the sculptor with his inspiration for the entire conception. In front of the statue will be a pool of water and the reflection will give the statuary the suggestion of life as well as add a very effective decorative touch. Water for the pool will issue from the mouth of a colossal lion's head to be carved of granite, and which will surmount the entire figure.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

WHAT HAPPENED TO A SILLY LITTLE FROG.

Croaker Green Frog hopped over to the edge of the water lily pad and glanced at his reflection in the water.

"My, but I'm a beauty," he croaked. "There isn't a frog in the pond can boast of a smoother, greener skin than mine. Fact is, I wouldn't change places with anyone in this pond—no, not with anyone in this whole wide world. I'm just right. Croaker Green Frog can't be beat, on looks."

"Maybe not," chuckled Tilly Turtle. "But looks don't always get everything a fellow needs. "Now, I'm not bad looking—"

"Ho, ho, ho," laughed Croaker Green Frog. "Listen to the foolish Turtle talk. Now, if you were of the lovely green color that I am, you might have cause to boast. Why, you are so ugly, I wouldn't even notice you if I were looking for beauty, while I am beautiful." And he leaped from one edge of the lily pad to the other. "I am worth looking at."

"Better be careful," snapped Tilly Turtle. "Good looks often turn one's head. Jump! Here comes old Granny Crane. Better be careful of her red head." Tilly Turtle just had time enough to draw her head and legs into her shell when up came Mrs. Crane.

"Good morning, Mr. Croaker Frog," she said without bending her head. "How is the weather down where you are?"

"Just the same as it is up where you are," retorted Croaker Green Frog.

Mr[Green Frog Disappeared.

"My, what ugly looking legs you have, Mrs. Crane. I'll bet anything you never glanced down at your reflection or you would be so ashamed of them, you'd keep them hid."

"And if you could feel the sting of your ugly tongue like your friends do I'm sure you wouldn't wag it quite so much," laughed Mrs. Crane. "My long legs don't hurt anyone, but your remarks hurt folks' feelings."

"Folks with long legs like yours shouldn't have any feelings," croaked the Frog. "Now just look me over; did you ever see anything quite so pretty as my green suit? I just pulled off my old suit and swallowed it. Tonight I'll be the pride of the whole pond. Everyone will envy me. But, of course, your neck is too long and your feet are so far from your head you miss my beauty."

"So," chuckled Mrs. Crane, and before Mr. Croaker Green Frog knew what was happening, Mrs. Crane stooped her head, and quick as a flash Mr. Croaker Green Frog disappeared. The Mrs. Crane spied Tilly Turtle, pecked her shell, but shaking her head waded off into the pond.

Tilly Turtle lost no time. She stuck out her head and scrambled off the log into the water to warn her friends.

That night there was one Green Frog missing at the song festival, but no one missed him, for no one likes a boasting, bragging frog.

bate Court. The burden of proof as to the validity of the will and that it was drawn according to statute lies on Shepherd's shoulders. Ten cousins and Miss Pope will protest against admission of the will and will file a bill in equity to contest it if it be admitted.

John J. Healy, who did not take part in the criminal prosecution, now assumes the role of chief counsel for Shepherd's opponents. Shepherd will be represented by William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, his attorneys in the murder trial.

"We expect no quarter in the will fight, and we will give no quarter," said Mr. O'Brien. "McClintock's distant cousins haven't a leg to stand on in their contention that Shepherd used undue influence to make McClintock draw the will in Shepherd's favor.

"I have nothing to say about the acquittal of Shepherd. I told the truth and eased my conscience, and that is all."

These were the words of Charles C. Faiman, who finds himself in the peculiar situation of being in custody for the murder of William McClintock, while Shepherd, the man he accuses of being the leader of the conspiracy, is free as the result of the jury's verdict.

Faiman remains in the custody of two police sergeants.

"It rather eases a fellow's mind to know that he has done his duty," he added. "I told the truth despite the consequences. If I ever get out of this mess I probably shall go to Europe and study."

"Bacteriology," asked a reporter.

"No more germs for me," replied the "doctor." "I am all through monkeying around with things like that."

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A few weeks ago I read an article entitled, "Women Who Know How to Grow Old."

It isn't nice to be old. No one wants to be old. But the worst of it is, we just have to get old.

If I could make you believe I have a process for keeping young you would pay me half your fortune to possess the secret. I know a man who would give me a million dollars for every year I could add to his life.

But, dear friends, isn't it foolish to attempt to fool your acquaintances about your age? I say attempt to fool them, because it is only an attempt and a useless one. You just don't fool them.

One way or another everybody knows the age of everybody else in the community. Gossip fixes the date in most instances, but the worst of it is the face tells its own story almost in every instance. There are few persons who escape the verdict. It is rare indeed to miss in the estimate by more than two or three years.

Do not delude yourself by dyes or false fixtures, the truth can be evaded. It just can't be done.

The trouble about the age business is that popular belief that nobody loves you if you are past forty. That is all nonsense. You love children for their innocence. You love boys and girls for their sprightliness and vivacity. You love young people in their twenties for their ambitions and their self-consciousness. It is not until thirty years is reached that life becomes really serious. From that birthday forward you feel you are "old."

To everybody under thirty you are old. To everybody above thirty nobody is old till he is really old—seventy or more.

You never begin to lie about your age till you are thirty. Since you can't hope to fool the young folks it will do you no good with them to yarn about it. The rest of the world won't care what your real age is, because it does not regard thirty plus as really old.

The cold fact is, you are absolutely wasting your time and your reputation for veracity, by all the vain tales about your youthfulness. You fool nobody but yourself and have no chance of gaining anything.

By right living, fresh air, exercise, cheerful thoughts, kindly deeds, and particularly, by simple eating, you can preserve your figure, your clearness of complexion and the avoidance of wrinkles. Then they will say of you: "She is every bit of forty-two, but isn't she a wonder! She doesn't look a day over thirty."

Answers to Health Queries.

M. A., Q.—How can I gain weight?

A.—Build up the general health by eating your meals at regular intervals. Get plenty of sleep and exercise. Practice deep breathing daily. For further particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

further service, in the first place, towards helping to rehabilitate in civil life their less fortunate comrades, and secondly, towards co-operating with the citizens of every part of the Empire in working for peace, prosperity and fellowship throughout our commonwealth of nations.

Founded in Africa.

"The British Empire Service League was founded in 1921 when I visited South Africa, where I met representatives of the various ex-service associations existing at that time, and where we took the first steps towards welding them into one comprehensive organization.

"From the date of its inception it has steadily grown and extended its influence; to-day every part of our Commonwealth of Nations is represented upon its empire headquarters' committee, and each of the several governments within the empire recognizes its importance in matters directly and indirectly affecting the welfare of those who have served in the forces and their dependents.

"The League is entirely non-sectarian in character. It is completely detached from and has no association with any political arty.

Strengthen Empire Bond.

"Loyalty, comradeship and the strengthening of the ties of empire are in the forefront of our programme— a programme which includes closer co-operation between the overseas dominions and the old country, and also what is of equal importance—closer co-operation and greater reciprocity between each and every dominion and colony.

"Although at the conference we shall deal with questions affecting the administration of pensions, and kindred subjects we shall apply ourselves more especially to considering matters of imperial interest, and the means by which we can strengthen our empire-wide organization, and so help towards the solution of some of the social and economical problems with which the British Empire as a whole is faced to-day.

"Unity is our watchword and while recognizing that each Dominion possesses problems which particularly affect its own ex-service men, and the solution of which is their own special province, I am hopeful that the holding of this, the third conference of the League in Canada may be productive of happy results to the ex-service men of this vast dominion by showing in practical form the value of unity.

"I anticipate that the discussions will be of interest to all and I trust that the decisions arrived at will be not only helpful to all my old comrades but of real and constructive value to our Empire as a whole.

"After the conference we are making a trip across Canada and I am looking forward to meeting Canadian ex-service men wherever possible."

OTTAWA, June 29. — Canadian Press. — An appeal for unity among all the returned soldier organizations throughout Canada was made, it is understood by Field Marshal Earl Haig at a round table conference held here late yesterday afternoon, at which representatives from different veterans' associations were present.

SAVE THE CHAPEL OF SHAKESPEARE'S BOYHOOD.

Of all the beautiful and interesting buildings which the visitor sees at Stratford-on-Avon, apart from those intimately connected with Shakespeare, none arouses deeper sentiment that the Chapel of the Guild of the Holy Cross that stands across Chapel Street. It has stood here since 1296 and was the school chapel for young Shakespeare in his day as in days since. It has, however, of recent years been allowed to crumble and now there are those who say, "It is time the old tumbledown building should be cleared away and no longer obstruct the traffic." One of the last things Lord Curzon did before he died in February was to plead for its keeping and if only enough persons make his plea strong enough, it may yet come within the care of the Shakespeare trustees.

EVOLUTION LAW CALLED WICKED

Westminster Archdeacon Denounces Tennessee Statute as Falsehood.

ADDS INTEREST.

(By Keith Jones, United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, June 29— Declaring Tennessee's evolution law "a wicked law," R. H. Charles, D. D., Archdeacon of Westminster Abbey, told the United Press in an exchange interview that, were he on the jury to try John T. Scopes for teaching evolution he would stand out to the bitter end for a verdict of not guilty.

He would take this stand, he said, because he did not believe that a wicked law should be inforced."

"I do not believe in punishing a man for the violation of a law harmful to truth and morality."

"He declared, adding that he regarded the law as a muzzling of the truth and enforcing the teaching of a falsehood."

Relation, he continued, was a progress of development and not in opposition to the laws of science but rather in harmony with them.

"Until the theory of evolution was taught and understood," he said, 'the Old Testament was largely unintelligible.

"Christianity as revealed through evolution is vastly more interesting than ever it was before the theory of evolution was brought into being.

Intelligent churchmen welcome the new discoveries of science and of explorers as all aiming at the true revelation of God. Their work helps us to not think God's thoughts after him."

He gave it as his opinion that the American movement against the teachings of evolution could be only temporarily.

"Americans can thank God they never elected William Jennings Bryan, President," he concluded.

CUTTING OFF LARGE LIMBS FROM TREES

The long and ugly stubs of branches one sees everywhere, attest to the lack of knowledge of this subject on the part of the average property owner. Careful adherence to the following instructions will result in a great improvement in present methods and probably the saving of the lives of your trees.

For very heavy limbs.—First remove the weight of the limb by making a cut sufficiently far out, so that any breaking of the wood will not strip the bark down the trunk. (Do not cut any closer than one and a half to two feet from the trunk or larger limb.) If the limb be very heavy, it will pay to make a cut underneath the limb and nearer the trunk, to prevent any possibility of this stripping. Then if necessary cut to a stub that will not be too heavy to control. That is one you can hold up while making the final cut, to prevent stripping. Then make the final cut, parallel to the trunk and just as close as you can possibly use the saw, being very careful again to avoid stripping or damaging the bark. This does not mean an inch or two away from the trunk. If this is well done and quite close, the bark will heal over the wound quite readily. It is advisable, however, to use a chisel and mallet and pare away the remaining wood so that the chiseled surface is practically flush with the trunk or larger limb to which the severed limb was attached.

For lighter limbs.—The branch may be severed directly to a stub, taking the precaution first, of course, to make a cut on the underside of the limb, as described before, to prevent the possibility of stripping. The stub may then be cut off and finished as before.

The ideal wound is a fairly broad oval one which will heal over the most rapidly. Healing takes place most rapidly at the sides.

So many people have been asking about the blackbirds this year, that it is about time we took a day off and had a real good look at this questionable character, for the blackbirds are so thick in some Canadian towns, this summer, that they are becoming troublesome.

The blackbird is called "Crow Blackbird," "Bronzed Blackbird," "Bronzed Grackle," "Purple Grackle," and "Squeaky Hinges," the last name being used mostly by folks who hear them day and night and do not know their other names. They have the greatest series of raspy notes I know of.

When I was a lad, I saw grackles eating robin eggs. The grackles seldom nested on houses in those days, but this summer I saw many nests taking places usually occupied by robins. This is a bad thing in every case except where grackles are scarce, for they will drive away our nicer birds.

One little girl informed me just recently, that there have been wrens and robins on her place every year for four years, and they seem to be the same birds each year, appeared to look upon the folks in the house as friends, and everybody was happy until this year, when a pair of blackbirds made a nest over thr rain pipe.

These black robbers broke and ate the robin eggs and the robins made life so miserable for the wrens that there was a fight every day and both wrens and robins went elsewhere to nest. They seemed to know, though, that the blackbirds were the villains in the show, for they were chased by the robins and wrens alike.

When another bird interferes with a wren, there is sure to be trouble and in this case, the wrens went and punctured the blackbird eggs.

Blackbirds are valuable birds when nestin; out of town, or in very limited numbers, but if we want robins, wrens, bluebirds and other little feathered folk in our gardens, we must send the grackles elsewhere to nest.

DECORATION DAY.

Decoration Day has proven once again that the people of Peterboro are not forgetful of those who have joined the great majority.

God's acre, the beautiful Little Lake Cemetery, so wisely chosen by the men of vision who planned it many years ago, gave evidence on every hand yesterday not only of the splendid work of the cemetery staff but of the loving care of hundreds of citizens.

There may be more beautiful cemeteries in Canada—there can't be many—but none of them could have been more eloquent of the fact that those left behind preserve the memory of their departed dear ones.

Almost it seemed as if every grave bore its token of remembrance.

All morning loving hands were busy.

Flowers everywhere, thousands of them, the exotic blooms of the cultivated gardens and the beauty of the wild flowers nature has so profusely distributed in this district.

The eye glimpsed them in endless variety of colour and charm on every side.

And to complete the day the ceremony of the Oddfellows decorating the graves of the brethren who have passed on.

Whoever first conceived the idea of a public decoration day deserves to have his name kept in loving and grateful memory.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS.

Several complaints have reached the Examiner—and there is every reason to believe they are justified—in regard to glaring automobile headlights.

The subject is not a new one; it has been given attention in several legislative amendments and has been discussed through the press, and among motorists.

Yet the glaring headlight menace has not disappeared from the highways.

It is probably a greater factor in motor car accidents than is speeding—but very few car owners who are offenders in this respect have been hailed into police court either here or anywhere else.

The Provincial Government keeps a squad of motorcycle officers on the highways checking up the speed of automobiles and fattening the Provincial funds by securing a multitude of fines from those who like to "step on the gas" on a good road.

Is there any reason why these officers could not spend a few nights checking up the glaring headlight offenders whose presence on the road is a constant source of danger.

Certain regulations have been laid down in regard to headlights, and they should be enforced as rigidly as any section of the Motor Vehicles Act.

That they are not being given such an enforcement a trip over any well travelled road will show.

WHY NOT A STANDARD PLAN?

The Citizens' Research Institute has made out a strong case in a communication received by the Examiner in favour of the adoption of a standard form of municipal and Provincial accounting—a reform toward which not a great deal of progress has been made.

The present conditions in this regard are a relic of the times when accounts were conceived of only as devices to prevent the theft of public funds, and when it had not yet begun to filter into the heads of those who spent or who supplied public funds that the chief function of public accounts is to provide information for administrative purposes so that waste through inefficiency might be curtailed.

It is only now becoming apparent that for every dollar lost through peculation, there are several lost through waste and inefficiency.

Even today a statement that $10,000 had been stolen out of the treasury would cause more excitement than a statement that ten times that amount had been lost through administrative inefficiency.

As the Institute points out, more millions are probably lost through waste than thousands through dishonesty.

Until legislators, whether municipal, Provincial or Federal, get over their fear that a presentation of the facts in standard form might be used to their disadvantage and until the people who foot the bills get tired of paying out money without information, they can understand it will be possible to prove anything by public reports, provided one knows what he wants to prove.

CADET TRAINING.

Anything that Miss Agnes MacPhail says at any time upon many subjects is entitled to respect. Those who disagree with her, but who are acquainted with her high character, know that she is sincere. But when Miss MacPhail attacks cadet training on the ground that it breeds war, then one can only feel that she has become afflicted with that curious pacifist fanaticism which fastens upon the remotest things to buttress a theory, says the Ottawa Journal.

What are the causes of war? Racial hates; religious prejudices; extreme nationalism; desire of nations to avenge past wrongs; greed for economic conquest; folly of some who play at diplomacy. Does Miss MacPhail really think cadet training related to such things? Does she seriously hold that boys whose bodies have been trained as well as their minds are more likely to grow into men who hate other races, who detest other people's religions, who will be narrow in their world views, who will be more greedy for gain, or more foolish in diplomacy? Surely the exact contrary ought to be the consequence.

Miss MacPhail, of course, would make a distinction between physical training and cadet drill. But why? If boys prefer to take their exercise in the form of cadet drill, if, indeed, they are more likely to take it with the march and rhythm and manly discipline of cadet training, why drop it for something less pleasing? Today, all over this country, thousands of boys are being taught physical exercises, and are being blessed with more healthful bodies, just because of Boy Scout troops and Cadet Corps. In fifty cases out of a hundred they would be deprived of such a boon did these organizations not exist. The comradeship, the companionship, the appeal of their natural spirit of play-acting, inherent in Boy Scout and Cadet training—these are the things that attract them.

To say that such boys are being imbued with a love of war, that they are more likely upon reaching manhood to want war, is not sense. All down through the centuries men have fought each other. Ages before Cadets or Boy Scouts were heard of, battlefields were crimsoned with blood. One cannot dare hope that mankind has passed such folly; that there is not enough of ignorance and hate and greed left among men to still make war. But surely it is not wisdom to hold that because our youth train their bodies, because they grow up strong and manly rather than weak and diseased, we are more likely in the years ahead to know more of bloodshed and strife.

WILL MAKE THE EXPERIMENT.

The Alberta coal experiment is, after all, to be made, a conference with Sir Henry Thornton having resulted in a decision to proceed with the original plan of bringing 25,000 tons to Ontario at a trial transportation rate of $7.00 per ton.

The announcement will be received with satisfaction by the people of the two Provinces interested; of Alberta because of the manifest desirability of securing a market for the vast stores of coal in that Province, and of Ontario because it is obviously to the interest of the people of this part of Canada to know that other sources of fuel supply than the United States can be depended upon.

The movement of such a shipment east is the first practical step that has been taken to solve the fuel problem—and there was much disappointment when it was declared last week that the plan had been abandoned.

There seems no question about the good qualities of the Alberta coal, nor is there any reason to believe that the people of Ontario would not eagerly avail themselves of an opportunity to purchase the Canadian product.

That being so, the problem hinges upon the cost of transportation—and the experiment about to be made will do much to solve that angle of the question.

So far there has been nothing but guesswork—the present test will be of much more value in answering the question of whether or not Ontario's fuel wants can be successfully taken care of by the Alberta coal fields.

A REMARKABLE LITERARY FIND

Little as we know of Shakespeare, the man, of his forerunners and contemporaries we know even less. They were wits whose works have made them immortal, but whose lives are concealed by a veil of obscurity which centuries of the most patient and viogrous investigation and research have failed to penetrate. It is for that reason that a disocvery recently made by a Harvard professor, Dr. Leslie Hotson, is exciting lively interest on both side of the Atlantic.

Among the Elizabethan dramatists, who preceded the Bard of Avon, none showed greater power and promise of still finer achievement than Christopher Marlowe, he of "the mighty line" which inspired his mightier successor and evoked the admiration of all his contemporaries. In some respects he was more representative of the spirit of the period than Shakespeare himself, that spirit which found expression in the lust for knowledge and power, in the passion for adventure and conquest, in the daring and reckless pursuit of the unknown.

The Tamburlaine of Marlowe furnished the keynote of much of what the world cherishes as its greatest literature. His Dr. Faustus and Jew of Malta rival in imagination and power the best of Shakespeare's tragedies, and of his Edward II. Charles Lamb wrote that "the death scene of Marlowe's King moves pity and terror beyond any scene, ancient or modern, with which I am acquainted." Great in himself, the influence of "Kit" Marlowe was even greater; and yet of his life, we know scarcely more than that he was the son of a Canterbury shoemaker, a member of the circle of "University wits," whcih included Greene, Peele and Kyd, and a Bohemian, who tragically ended his days in a tavern brawl.

Concerning his death, one of the best known ihstorians of English drama observed some years ago; "On June 1st, 1593, he was stabbed to death in a tavern brawl at Deptford, the revolting details of which may be fitly passed by, especially as their truth or falsity, or the nature of the mixture in them of both, is not to be ascertained." To add to the mystery, there were other equally vague and unsatisfactory accounts of his demise. According to one supposed authority, he died not by the hand of a disputant in a quarrel, but of the plague, according to another he was "killed by a serving man, a rival in a quarrel over bought kisses"; while from a still more mendacious source came the preposterous story that "Ben Jonson killed Mr. Marlowe, the poet, coming from the Green Curtain playhouse."

Thanks to a lucky discovery by Dr. Hotson of Harvard, following much industrious and ably directed research among the papers preserved in the Chancery and Patent Rolls offices in London, the mystery surrounding Marlowe's death has at last been cleared up, and vauable light has been shed upon the ill-fated dramatist's character and career. It now becomes an authentic part of Elizabethen literary history that "on May 30th, 1593, at about ten o'clock in the morning, Christopher Marlowe and three men, Ingram Friser, Robert Poley and Nicholas Skenes, all of London, met at the house of Eleanor Bull, widow, in Deptford; and here they dined and remained all day, conversing 'in quiet sort,' and strolling in the garden adjoining. About six in the evening, they returned to the huose to sup, and there a sharp quarrel between Marlowe and Friser anent the reckoning terminated in the death of Marlowe, the aggressor, from a dagger thrust."

These, and other details unearthed by Dr. Hotson, sordid though they are, have an historical and biographical value which cannot be over-estimated. They represent what a leading English authority regards as "one of the most remarkable of modern literary finds," and mark a real triumph of historico—literary research. But, perhaps, their chief significance lies in the encouragement their discovery offers to others engaged in probing the past. Some day, a similar piece of good fortune, backed by scholarly investigation, may yield up the still more fascinating secret of Shakespeare, that has so tantalizingy defied his biographers and commentators.—Ottawa Journal.

A THOUGHT.

YOU SHOULD AND YOU MUST

There are two reasons for telling the truth in advertising. First you should; second, you must.

Misrepresentation or exaggeration in advertising costs the confidence of the public. This is why you should.

A lie in advertising may be made to answer to the law, and this is a kind of advertising that will ruin almost any business. This is why you must.

There are many more reasons for truth in advertising, but when you "should" and when you "must," why bother your brains about whether you will?

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 28—Foreign demand for wheat overnight was very good with quite general acceptances, particularly of Manitoba grades, according to advices from New York received here Saturday. Nearly every exporting house reported some business. The total sales for the day were placed at 500,000 bushels, with rye and oats at 300,000, and some lots of barley. A moderate amount of business also was reported by Montreal exporters.

The domestic and country demand for Canadian Western Oats continued to be somewhat limited, as a fair quantity of Quebec Oats is still on the market, selling at lower prices, sales being reported of car lots at 56 to 57 cents per bushel, ex-track.

Egg Market Firm

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 1,133 cases, as against 1,955 cases for the same day last week, and 3,235 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending June 27, were 14,548 cases, as compared with 12,491 cases for the previous week and 18,857 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1 to date were 123,316 cases, as against 156,347 cases for the same period of 1924.

The egg situation is generally reported firm. At this season of the year prices usually decline, but at the present time they are inclined to be firmer on the top grades and steady on the undergrades. This situation is attributed to the earlier development in the export demand for fall delivery, the early falling off in the production and the continuance of a steady consumpative demand as a result of the much better quality of the average receipts than formerly at this season. The present egg grading regulations has done much towards keeping the consumptive demand up. A good steady trade was done in a wholesale jobbing way during the week and the market was moderately active with final sales of specials at 39c, fresh extras at 37c, firsts at 34c and seconds at 30c to 31c per dozen.

A fair business was also done in round lots of eggs the past week and Ontario shippers report sales of extras at 33 1-2c per dozen, firsts at 31 1-2c, and seconds at 25c, f.o.b. shipping points. Cases returned, and a car of storage firsts at 29 1-4c per dozen, and seconds at 25c f.o.b. Yorkton in export cases, while a purchase of a car of Prince Edward Island fresh receipts was made delivered at Montreal at 35c per dozen for extras, at 32c per dozen for firsts, and at 28c per dozen for seconds in export cases.

There continues to be a steady demand from English importers for Canadian storage eggs for fall shipment and as the prices bid have in many instances been in line with sellers views here a fair amount of business resulted, including several sales the past week at 41c and 41 1-2c per dozen, f.o.b. seaboard, which figure put a little better than 18s, 6d, c.i.f.

Butter Price Up

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending June 27, 1925, were 26,730 packages which show a decrease of 3,647 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 967 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May first to date have been 28,633 packages less than the same period for 1924.

The feature of the trade for the past week was the steady demand from English importers for supplies which to some extent was attributed to the strike in Denmark and the much smaller supplies coming forward from that source with result that a very fair amount of business was done here and this coupled with the renewed strength in the cheese situation created a firmer feeling in the market and prices closed with a net gain for the week of 1-2c per lb. final sales of Eastern Township No. 1 pasteurized creamery being made at 37c per lb. No. 1 Creamery at 36c per lb., and No. 2 Creamery at 35c per lb.

Spot Cheese Higher

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending June 27, 1925, were 65,556 boxes which show an increase of 11,271 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 7,352 boxes with the same week last year, but the total arrivals from May first to date have been 47,382 boxes in excess of the corresponding period for 1924.

A very strong feeling developed in the market and spot prices closed 1c to 1 1-8c per lb. higher than a week ago with final sales of Western No. 1 Colored at 20 5-8c per lb., No. 1 Wite at 20 1-2c per lb., and Eastern No. 1 White and Colored at 20c to 20 1-4c per lb. while for Western Cheese at the boards in the country 19 5-8c to 20 1-8c per lb. were paid showing an advance for the week of 11-16c to 1 1-8c per lb. This strength in the situation was attributed to the marked increase in the demand from foreign buyers for supplies and as the prices bid were in line with exporters views the largest business of any previous week this season was done and the market was quite active, the movement outward being in excess of the arrivals by several thousand boxes.

QUEBEC BUTTER AUCTION

MONTREAL, June 28 — At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society auction sale held here on June 22, there were 4,000 packages of creamery butter offered, as compared with 3,100 packegs for the previous sale, and 3,225 packages for the same date last year. There was a good demand and prices were unchanged at 35 7-8c lb. for pasteurized creamery, at 34 7-8c per lb. No. 1 Creamery, and at 33 7-8c per lb for No. 2 Creamery which were 2 3-8c to 2 1-2c per lb. higher than a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 27 — Enlarged receipts in the Southwest, together with a prospect that in Huchinson, Kansas, alone 300 carloads would arrive Monday, did a good deal to knock support from under the wheat market today during the last half hour. Besides, weather conditions northwest were ideal. Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 3 to 3 7-8c net lower, July 148 1-8 to 148 1-2 and September 146 1-8 to 146 1-4. Corn finished at 1c to 3c decline; Oats 7-8c to 1 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c higher.

LEST WE FORGET

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

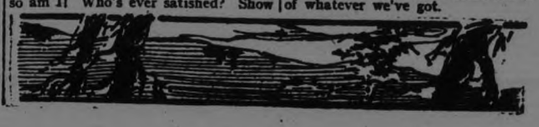
What are you sayin'—you think it's too hot? Real summer weather seems all tommyrot? Startin' at kickin' and raisin' real Ned? Say, has the heat simply gone to your head?

Not so long back you were cussin' the snow; wishin' and prayin' that winter would go. Frost-bitten ears made you hope for the sun that brings forth the heat when the summer's begun.

My, but you're changeable. Well, so am I! Who's ever satisfied? Show me the guy. Now we're perspirin' a quite ill at ease, tellin' our friends th we'd much rather freeze.

Still, when the winter was here wi a kick, coldness and freeziness made all sick. Whether it's heat, or i cold, we all fret, longing for weath we simply can't get.

'Taint no use fussin' or cussin' such. What we all wish ne'er accomplishes much. Summer is here and i bound to be hot. Let's make the b of whatever we've got.



KIWANIS MEET IN CONVENTION

5,000 Club Members Gather in Mighty Conference of North American Continent.

AT ST. PAUL, MINN.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 27.—St. Paul, North American Kiwanis capital for the week, is giving welcome to all her guests, to the thousands massed within the walls of the Auditorium and to the hundreds of other Kiwanians throughout the United States and Canada who are listening to radio speakers, at the opening session of the ninth annual convention of Kiwanis International.

Seldom in its history has the St. Paul Auditorium held such a throng as filled every seat Monday night, on stage, parquet, balcony and even the second gallery. Seldom, if ever, has an audience come representing a territory so far reaching in its geographical extent.

Hollywood and Hudson Bay rubbed shoulders; Florida sat side by side with British Columbia, and all, more than figuratively, sat within the shade of Minnesota's pines.

All Minnesota Extends Welcome.

It was an introductory session, more or less, St. Paul, all Minnesota came to welcome Kiwanis, to get better acquainted with the organziation that less than a decade ago began with a little group of men with an ideal and a name. Kiwanis International was there to get acquainted with the host.

In preparation for the ceremony were the pines, banked high on the stage, masking a pictured cataract to typify the northern lure of Minnesota's cool vacation ground.

Before the background of the fragrant pines was grouped officialdom of Kiwanis, and around, on all sides, in gallery above and pit below, were mingled hosts and guests alike, builders all, along the lines of Kiwanis principle, the "golden rule." Such was the visible audience Monday night. Over the speaker's stand a radio receiving set, connected with the microphone and amplifiers, gave hint of that still greater audience, a continent's membership in Kiwanis, who listened to the words pronounced on the stage.

Colorful Scenes.

St. Paul has enteretained great throngs before, but never one more colorful than Monday night.

Kiwanis reached a continent actually through representatives gathered thus in one large room, audibly through the miracle of radio. In thousands of cities Kiwanians took part in the "All-Kiwanis Night" programme that began shortly after 8 p.m., following the introductory song and invocation by Rev. James W. Bean.

..... Past President Presides. .....

Henry J. Elliott, past president of Kiwanis International, presided. He spoke briefly of Kiwanis aims, of achievements, purposes already gained. Then he gave the signal for a song, an anthem sung twice with different words, but words that had an inspiration, kindred in the hearts of the citizens of two nations, "America," or, with different words, "God Save the King."

The echo of the song died down and Mr. Elliott summoned to the speakers' place another with a message that, like the anthem's words, has brought to two nations' citizens an inspiration, this time the inspiration of Kiwanis principle.

The speaker was Victor M. Johnson, president of Kiwanis International. His message was a dedication of Kiwanic to a newer and fuller realization of the great responsibilty the organization has to carry on, to become the human embodiment of a sublime philosophy of life, to enable its membership to combat the danger of class strife to meet wrong ideas with right, and offset low living standards by high idealism.

Official Welcome Begins.

Another song, "Onward in Kiwanis," this time the fighting song, the inspirational anthem of Kiwanis, and the "Zero Hour," and the first session of Kiwanis International was declared adjourned by Mr. Elliott.

But with adjournment began the official extension of St. Paul's welcome to her guests. First, of course, it had to meet its guests through their official representatives, the men who for the past year have stood at the head and directed the doing of the organization in its various districts, the officials of the Kiwanis International.

Mr. Elliott resigned the chairman's gavel. George K. Gann, general chairman of the St. Paul convention committee, took his place. He called on Fred C. W. Parker, International Kiwanis secretary, to introduce the officers of the International organization, the district governors, the chairman of the International committee and the International headquarters staff.

Welcome to Leaders

One by one, as he called their names, thees men who have in the past year led Kiwanians throughout a continent to "carry on," stood up. From gallery to pit the audience cheered each one, bade noisy welcome of the ninth convention city to its guests, a welcome carried by radio to every town of size in the United States and Canada.

There was music then and following, officialdom of Minnesota and St. Paul added their greetings to the cheers that welcome Kiwanis representatives. First Governor Christianson spoke, voicing his sympathy for ideals of Kiwanis and announcing Minnesota's gratification at their presene here. Frank W. Mattson, president of the Gavel Club of St. Paul, bespoke the welcome of a city's civic life. Mayor Nelson officially extended welcome, as did Emil E. Theurer, district governor of Kiwanis for Minnesota and the Dakotas, and Rosser J. Willis, president of the Kiwanis club of St. Paul.

Past President Responds.

Response was given by Edmund F. Arras, immediate past president of Kiwanis International, and then resident Johnson spoke again, stressing the need for Kiwanians as members of an impartial, non-partisan organization, to interest themselves in the vital national and international questions of the day. He spoke of the need for some such body to hold political executives to the pledges made to their constituency.

SHEPHERD FREE ON ALL COUNTS

Will Not Be Charged With the Death of Mrs. McClintock.

HEIR TO $1,000,000.

CHICAGO, June 29.—There is to be no further prosecution of William Darling Shepherd following his acquittal after trial of the indictment charging the lawyer with the murder, through the use of typhoid germs, of William Nelson McClintock, to whose $1,000,000 estate Shepherd is the chief heir.

The Grand Jury will be asked to no-bill the charge that Shepherd poisoned Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of William Nelson. There will be no indictment for the death of Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of Judge Harry Olson, Chief Justice of the Municipal Court, who instigated Shepherd's prosecution.

"The State has no further evidence upon which to prosecute Shepherd or his wife," declared State Attorney Crowe Saturday.

Within a week, his spokesman announced, Shepherd will begin activities to gain full possession of the estate willed to him by McClintock.

Meanwhile Shepherd and his wife are absenting themselves from their Kenilworth home, remaining in seclusion at an unrevealed address. Carl O. Sigfried, a lawyer, Shepherd's brother-in-law, is in charge of Shepherd's affairs until he returns.

"The will of William McClintock will be admitted to probate a week from to-day, and under its terms Mr. Shepherd will have access to the accumulated earnings of the estate, which hertofore have been tied up, to defend the will as administrator," said Mr. Sigfried.

"Judge Olson will probably have his hands full then. In a week or two Judge Olson may have cause to regret his part in the plot to hang Mr. Shepherd."

Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancee, is to receive her $8,000 annually despite the fact that she took the stand against Shepherd, who thwarted her death-bed marriage to the young millionaire, Shepherd's partner, Robert H. Stoll announced.

"No matter what Miss Pope does, or has done, Mr. Shepherd will carry out the provision of McClintock's will leaving her $8,000 a year," said Mr. Stoll.

Miss Pope is fighting to break the will under an agreement with the natural heirs of McClintock whereby she is to get one-half of the entire estate if the contest is successful.

Hearing of proof of the will is scheduled for July 1, at 11.30 a.m. before Judge Horner, in the Pro-

DIED AFTER QUARREL.

Woman Stricken in Dispute With Neighbor.

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask., June 29.—(Canadian Press).—Continuing a quarrel which had started by their children, Mrs. Alex. Fobert and Mrs. Lawrence L. Scott exchanged hot words Friday until the latter dropped dead of heart disease when, it is alleged, she was called a liar by Mrs. Robert. Six children, of one to 17 years, are left motherless.

A coroner's inquest was opened Saturday and adjourned until this week.

WEDDING BELLS.

LAKEFIELD, June 27. — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Braden, Bridge street, Lakefield, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, June 27th, when, at 12.30, their only daughter, Mary Edna, was united to Dr. George Edgar Renwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Renwick, of Dromore, Ontario.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. P. L. Jull in the prettily decorated darwing room, in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties.

The bride wore a handsome gown of beaver georgette trimmed with silk Spanish filet lace, and leghorn hat trimmed with French satin flowers of pastel shades and with shoes and stockings of beaver shade to match her gown, and carried a bouquet of bride roses and lily of the valley. Mr. Braden gave his daughter away and the wedding march was played by Miss Nelson, cousin of the bride.

After the ceremony the bridal party partook of a dainty lunch, after which the happy couple motored to Peterborough, where they took the train to Toronto, where they will spend a few days; they will then take a motor tour through Western Ontario, the bride travelling in an orchid silk crepe frock, with a coat of sand sade trimmed with fur and hat to match. The bride, who was among the most popular young ladies of the town, was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

After their honeymoon Dr. and Mrs. Renwick will reside in the village.

OBITUARY.

MARGARET ELLEN O'CONNOR

CAMPBELLFORD, June 29—Margaret Ellen, daughter of the late Patrick J. and Mrs. O'Connor, died at the residence of her mother in Seymour West Friday night, aged 19 years. The young lady, who was born in the house in which she died was a student in the Toronto Normal School, and was taking her final examinations for a first class certificate when her health failed, due to too close application to her studies. Two weeks ago she was brought home from Toronto but failed to rally.

The late Miss O'Connor is survived by her mother, four brothers and two sisters. The brothers are Edward and John at home, Jerry who teaches in the Sacred Heart Separate School, and Neil, attending the Campbellford High School. One sister, Josie, is teaching in Edmonton and Katherine is a student in the Campbellford High School. Her father and one sister, Mary, predeceased her some years ago.

The funeral was held Monday morning to St. Mary's Church and cemetery.
